Writer Upon Crime And How to Fight It Sentenced to Prison

By United Press
 EL PASO, Texas.—Last January, Elmer Gonzales wrote a theme on "Crime and How to Fight It." His efforts won first prize in high school competition.
 Today Gonzales is sentenced to three years in the national reformatory at Joliet, Ill. Federal Judge Charles A. Boynton sentenced the 15-year-old youth on probation charges.
 Court testimony revealed that the youth wrote a letter to Cary Holland of Alpine. He demanded $500 and included a threat against the life of Holland's daughter, Virginia.
 Holland consulted FBI agents and they arrested Gonzales.

Featured Gizella Varga, 18-year-old Hungarian, will be "Miss Broadway" at the New York World's Fair. She was chosen from 7000 contestants for the title.

Half-Rubber Not Half Bad

Saw off a broom handle for a bat, slice a 10-cent sponge-rubber ball in half, and you're ready to play "half-rubber," a game that originated in Savannah, Ga., and promises to spread. A pitcher and a catcher constitute a team. The batter remains at bat until he strikes at the ball, misses it, as the youngster in the above picture has done, and it is caught by the catcher. The elusive rubber may be seen almost in the catcher's outstretched hands. No bases are used, but the players think of imaginary runners on imaginary bases after each hit.

WASHINGTON WITH SOJNEY DUTCHER

By SOJNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The wage-hour bill issue, more obviously than ever, has become a sectional-political football in a queer game where individual players keep popping from one side to the other, explaining that they don't like the size or shape of the ball. Chairman Mary Norton of the House Labor Committee went to the White House the other day and thereafter informed her committee that President Roosevelt insisted he "must" have some kind of a wage-hour bill.
 Thereupon the committee approved a bill which would set a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour (excluding agricultural labor) and a maximum work week of 44 hours, the minimum wage to be increased to 40 cents within three years and the maximum hours to be cut to 40 within two years.
 This was achieved a measure which won the support of President Bill Green of the A. F. of L. and even that of numerous northern Republicans who previously had opposed other wage-hour proposals.
 Original proposals of the administration had left ample room for wage differentials between northern and southern areas. The so-called Norton bill establishes a flat minimum wage for north and south alike.
 President Green and the A. F. of L. leaders previously had opposed any differentials and it had been supposed that this was because they desired no minimum wage legislation at all, since any proposal for a national minimum was sure to meet solid southern opposition. But the new bill also meets A. F. of L. demands for enforcement of its provisions by the Department of Justice and since when he received this letter, he followed instructions in the note. Officers arrested Gonzales when he went to receive the package of money.
 In writing his crime theme, the measure was written to meet A. F. of L. specifications. Green could hardly object to it even if he so desired.

 Northern Republicans have begun to line up behind the Norton bill because it eliminates the north-south wage differential. They believe it's good election campaign material, in view of the southward migration of factories to take advantage of cheaper labor, and that it will help them attract labor support which has been veering toward Democratic members.
 Conversely, the Norton bill is anathema to southern Democrats in Congress who insist there must be room for differentials if there is to be a wage-hour law. But it was the opposition of the vast bulk of southern Democratic congressmen which last December killed a bill which carried provisions for discretionary exceptions.
 The bill passed by the Senate last year calls for a five-member board on which the south would be represented and which would be empowered to set differentials. Hence if the Norton bill passes the House, southern members are likely to prefer the Senate version.
 The Norton bill would give supervision to the Department of Labor, empowering it to impose the act's provisions on industries it found to be in interstate commerce and directing it to investigate and report violations to the Justice Department for prosecution.
 Administration and C. I. O. forces will battle on the House floor for an initial 30-cent minimum and for prosecution through some other instrument than the Justice Department on the ground that southern U. S. district attorneys can't be depended on to enforce such a law.

Expert Decries a Fuss Over Vitamins

By United Press
 MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—American housewives spend $12,000,000 a year for food, but most of them have "very little fundamental knowledge of what food really is," according to Dr. Leroy S. Palmer, University of Minnesota agricultural biochemist.

Housewives are warned by Dr. Palmer against being "taken in with cleverly-worded, plausible-sounding propaganda" regarding vitamins. He believes that "very few people in the United States suffer from a severe or even moderately severe deficiency of vitamins A, B, C, E, G or P."
 Dr. Palmer said newer discoveries "definitely call for a higher standard of diet, as well as one which now calls for a greater expenditure of money." Human welfare, he believes, demands an abundant food supply of proper sort, and either adequate income to buy it or a low cost level within reach of income.
 In the case of vitamin D, which prevents rickets, Dr. Palmer said, most cases of deficiency are caused, not by improper foods, but through insufficient exposure to the right kind of sun rays—the short or ultraviolet rays.
 "There is a mistaken idea that sunlight, to be beneficial, must be enjoyed 'all over,'" he said. "There is ample evidence that only a small portion of the skin need be exposed to obtain the benefits of those vitamin D synthesizing rays which are able to reach us."

Do-re-me-I.O.U.

Mrs. Adelaide Moffett Brooks, above, songstress daughter of former Federal Housing Administrator James A. Moffett, invited to be crowned Queen of the Apple Blossom Festival at Winchester, Va., by Admiral Richard Byrd, sees her recently declared bankruptcy as a "breathing space." She'll pay her debts through notes, she says, but they'll be the blue ones she rumbles in New York night clubs. She expects they'll earn the difference between liabilities of $9691 and her assets of $1800.

graduating students of the Southwestern Baptists Theological Seminary here on May 6.
 The class represents 13 states and one foreign country. A doctor of religious education degree will be conferred upon Miss Mary Alice Rutherford of Mars Hill, N. C.
 The commencement address will be given by Dr. J. R. Grant, president of Ouachita Baptist College at Arkadelphia, Ark.

"Pin the Tail On the Donkey"

When you were young, you played that timeless game. Blind-folded, you weaved your way to the painted donkey on the wall, and tried to pin his tail in approximately the right position. You hit his nose, his ear, his leg—or you missed completely, and your blind stab landed on the empty wall.

Do you still "pin the tail on the donkey" when you go shopping? Do you make your purchases "bindfolded," leaving your choice to chance? That is literally the "unenlightened" method. It wastes your time, your energy, your patience—and your money.

Don't buy haphazardly. Know beforehand what to buy, and where to buy it, and how much to pay for it. Read the newspaper advertisements! Scan the shopping columns; compare prices, compare values—decide upon your bargain. Then go directly to the store which advertises it; make your purchase—and be content!

No more hit-and-miss buying when you follow the advertisements. They lift the blindfold; they make it easier to find the best values.
