The Nazi Book Burners Are a Little Too Late

There have been few times in modern history when there were as many reasons for pessimism about the future of civilization as there are today. Nevertheless, it is also true that one's pessimism can very easily be overdone.

For although the de-civilizing forces which are abroad in the world today have a sweep and a power which must not be under-rated, the opposing forces are not without power, either. The picture is black, but it is not all black. The Jeremiahs who currently predict the downfall of civilization may be overlooking a few bets.

There is, for instance, the matter of the book-burners. Shortly after the German Nazis took over Austria, Nazi chieftains announced that they would purge the famous Austrian National Library of all "non-Aryan" volumes. Considering the way they interpreted that sinister catchword in Berlin, this is apt to mean that almost any book which is really worth preserving will get tossed into the bonfire.

Now it happens that the Austrian National Library is one of the great libraries of the world. It contains some 1,200,000 books, including thousands of ancient manuscripts and priceless historical documents. Merely to think of a squad of storm troopers going through that collection with carte blanche to destroy all that is beyond their understanding is enough to make a man shiver.

Such things have happened before. The ancient library at Alexandria, Egypt, was once a treasure-house of human knowledge. When the Mohammedans burned it—on the ground that since all man needed to know was written in the Koran no other books were necessary—the world became measurably poorer, and the slow and painful rise of the human race from barbarism received a measurable set-back.

Yet the book-burners in Cienna do not have the power that the book-burners in Alexandria had, much as they might like to have it. They are operating in a toadily different sort of world; a world which does not sit dumbly by while brute ignorance destroys the heritage of intelligence, but which bestirs itself to make the loss good.

For the world has moved, after all. Man's progress could be delayed some centuries by the destruction of the Alexandria library; it cannot be so delayed by the destruction of the one in Vienna. The widened horizon represented in those books at Vienna does not exist in those books alone. It has been diffused among thinking men all over the world.

All of which is a sign that human civilization rests on stouter pillars now than used to be the case. The militaristic Samsons may be doing their best to throw those pillars down, but the job is beyond them. In the end, it is not quite possible that they will destroy nothing but their own strength?

'Napoleon, Junior' Declared As One Of Better Plays

In the fields of industry, commerce, science and invention the leadership of America and Americans in recent years has been universally recognized. But no such recognition has been accorded to the giant strides made in this country in the realm of fine arts—in literature, music and painting. To take the drama as a concrete example: until a very great majority of all those writing about life, rather than about a pretty, idealized impossible storybook conception of life, were doing their writing in the other side of the Atlantic. We had to look to Europe for a real literature of the drama, but today, although it may not be generally realized, the process is being reversed, and the works of our contemporary American dramatists are entertaining and enlightening more audiences in countries throughout the civilized world than those, perhaps, of any other nation.

In the list of writers who have contributed to this forward march of the American drama, the name of John Hershey must rank high. He has amply demonstrated his ability to portray faithfully, understandingly, humorously, that backbone of our civilization—the average American family. His latest stage success, "Napoleon Junior," a comedy in three acts, which is to be the next presenta-

Employment Office Job to Be Filled At An Early Date

Merit examinations for the position of Junior Interviewer in the Texas State Employment Service has just been announced. Vacancies in the operating staff of the local employment offices will be filled from eligible lists established through these examinations.

Application forms and detailed announcements concerning the examinations may be obtained from Professor Emmette S. Redford, Special Representative of the United States Employment Service, Box 2119, University Station, Austin. Application forms must be returned to Mr. Redford by May 31, 1938.

The examinations are open to men and women who have been citizens of Texas for at least five years immediately preceding the date of employment.

Applicants must meet the following minimum requirements for participation in the examinations: (1) A high school education and three years of the required experience; or (2) a college education and one year of the required experience; or (3) an equivalent combination of (1) and (2); or (4) four years of the required experience. Required experience is full time paid employment in work definitely providing familiarity with employment problems.

"A hilarious and altogether delightful evening in the theatre, that yet contributes more to a genuine and sympathetic understanding of the American scene than many a more ponderous tome."

The Eastland Little theatre, therefore, it is stated, considers it a rare privilege to be enabled to present this great comedy success by Hershey in Eastland. The play will be Thursday at the Connellee theatre.

Sign-Up In Range Program This Heavy Says

One hundred thirty-rangers and livestock farmers in Eastland county had pledged to sign up in the 1938 Range Conservation Program by Monday, according to a survey by Elmo V. Coe, agent. The sign-up will not begin until May 15th and estimates the acreage will amount to fifty thousand acres that date.

The earning capacity of Eastland county since the 1938 Range Program is estimated at $13,000.

Many ranchers in county now have their proving practices in operation in the form of practice tank building, pasture deferred grazing, and

T. E. Castleberry, range inspector, is in the fielding range land to determine exactly how much each rancher can produce in the 1938 program.

EQUIPMENT. All prices include front and rear bumpers and bumper guards, spare wheel, tire and tube, tire lock, star lighter, one windshield wiper, one sun visor, twin horns, and light beam indicator on instrument panel, at no extra charge.

If you make these three simple tests when you shop for a car, you'll get more for your money:

- 1. CONSIDER PRICES. You'll find all Ford prices low—and Ford "60" prices especially low. Price isn't everything, of course, but it comes out of your pocket.
- 2. CHECK EQUIPMENT. Price means little, if you pay extra for equipment you've got to have. Ford prices include equipment.
- 3. COUNT CYLINDERS. More cylinders mean more and smoother power impulses. America's most expensive cars have engines with 8 or more cylinders. Only Ford has been able to offer the basic advantages of 8 cylinders at a low price—with low operating costs. ("Thrifty 60" owners report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a gallon of gas.)

These are only three of the reasons for visiting a Ford dealer before you buy. You'll recognize the rest when you get out on the road in a Ford V-8.

You'll realize that it's 8-cylinder quality all the way through!

CAST OF CHARACTERS
 JACKIE DUNN—heroine; she wanted to fly.
 ROGER FRECKLES—hero; he wanted to test the stratosphere.
 BERYL MELROSE—hero's ally; she wanted Roger.
 EVELYN LA FARGE—Jackie's mother; she wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday, Roger kissed Jackie, making the engagement more real than ever. Then, suddenly, she burst into tears.

CHAPTER VI

AFTER Roger had loaned Jackie his pocket handkerchief and apologized profusely she explained she only cried when she was angry. "It's because I thought your plan would work out so easily, the way you said it would," Jackie said, a bit tremulously. "And instead, it's a howling flop. Why, if we're not careful Mother will have us middle-aiding to the tune of Lohengrin next month!"

Roger could think of worse things than that. But he, too, was learning his lessons from bitter experience. His face still stung. So he said, "I told you I had something important to tell you. If it works out, as I hope it will, I think we can talkpin your mother's well-intentioned schemes. But my love, we have to put on an act if we are going to put over the idea that we are engaged. That's why," he added throwing her a grin, "I got slapped. I was only practicing—get me?"

"I get you. But you'll get slapped again, if you keep on practicing," Jackie said. "And remember, please, I'm not your love!" I suppose you're right about the act, though. But remember, too, it'll only be put on in public."

"I'll remember," Roger promised, rubbing his jaw thoughtfully. "Just what it you had to tell me?"

"I asked, 'It will have to be ready good this time—aren't you going to drive on?' If anyone goes by he'll think we're lovers! Parked on the side of the road like this with the lights turned out."

"He'll have another guess coming," Roger said. "This is more like an amateur boxing match. We'll move on, as soon as I've told you—and this really is good. I think I've met my Santa Claus, Jackie. When I was in Washington."

"SOMEONE who'll back you?" Not really! The golden fires in Jackie's eyes flared anew. "Right you are. At least, it looks that way. If everything works out," Roger smirked his lips in smug satisfaction. "We may get the whole thing set up in another month. This Santa Claus works fast. There's a new super-charged ship ready for stratosphere tests. It will take an altitude of 50,000 feet, maybe more. And yours truly, my love—forgive me, I forgot again—but your fiancé-by-proxy may land the job."

"Oh, Roger!" Jackie could not say any more. She was so thrilled for him. "I'll know next week," he went on. "So keep your fingers crossed until then. Oh, boy, will that be something! Think of me, practically flying in a new, unseen world, a world where the stars always shine in the purple shadows, where the sun is only a silver disc; no clouds, no birds. No storms or air-bumps, either, which is what makes it an aviator's dream."

"It's too magnificent!" Jackie said. "Too big almost to comprehend. And to be one of the first to help make such dreams come true—oh, Roger, why wasn't I born a man!"

He looked at her, her shining eyes more beautiful than any stars or sun. "You do very well as you are," he said. Like every man since Adam, he did not want his woman to change. He would do the man's work, if she would only have faith in him. "You can practically go with me," he promised. "If I get the breaks and get my chance. I'll arrange so you can listen in at the radio-tower. I'll send you messages all the way up, so you'll almost think you're in the ship with me."

"Oh, Roger!" It was all Jackie could say again. She slipped an arm through his, squeezed it hard. Her heart was so full she thought it would burst. She would try to be unselfish, be happy with him. Since she wasn't a man, it was almost the next-best thing to know one like Roger.

"It's what I've always wanted to do," Roger said. "It will be the beginning for a lot of things for me. No more crazy test-dives, photographic mapping, or teaching dubs how to fly."

"I LIKE that!" She pretended indignation. "Calling me a dud! And what will I do for an instructor, please? Just when I'm getting ready to solo and everything."

"I didn't mean you. You're okay. Good reflexes and rhythm—if you'd been a man you'd make a swell pilot, Jackie."

"Don't rub it in!" "Sorry. But it's the truth. You can't change the world too quickly. Maybe some day women will be the leaders in aviation—look at the way they run affairs in their homes now! I know darn well you'll boss the guy you marry."

"But I'm not going to marry anyone—unless Mother manages to make me, as she gives every evidence of doing the way things are stacking up. Roger, you said you had another idea. Something to do with what you've just told me. I don't see how your stratosphere flight can make things any easier."

"We'll tell your mother we can't make any definite plans until I've made my flight," Roger explained. Jackie considered. "That ought to hold her off a while," she agreed. "But after the flight?"

"One thing at a time!" he reminded. "Maybe my oxygen tube will spring a leak, or my body expand to the bursting point..."

"Roger!" "Well, I was only trying to be helpful." She made him a little bit, the way she had reacted to that.

"You ought to be ashamed to say such things!" She looked as though she would like to slap him again. Then as suddenly her eyes turned stary, her lips tremulous, and she was all tender femininity and yielding sweetness, as unthinkingly she caught his arm, pressing it to his side. "You didn't mean it! It's not that risky!" She was seized with that unexplainable panic once again, that sickening emptiness.

"I was kidding," he said lightly. But he put his two hands on her shoulders and pushed her gently from him.

Who! He'd rather do any number of test-dives, climb to any stratospheric heights, than have Jackie, looking like that, so un-bearably close, yet so unattainably far from him.

She sank back, releasing another big sigh. Relief flooded through her, as though she had been made whole again. "Who is this wonderful Santa Claus?" she murmured. "You didn't tell me his name, Roger. Or anything about him."

"Didn't I?" Roger laughed. "It isn't mister, Jackie, at all. This happens to be Mrs. Santa Claus Mrs. Beryl Melrose, to be exact."

"Mrs. Beryl Melrose," Jackie repeated. But the name did not mean anything to her then.

Public cordially invited.
 "Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 8.

The Golden Text is: "The Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord" (Isaiah 59:20).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son unto your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then an heir of God through Christ" (Galatians 4:6, 7).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When speaking of God's children,

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHEK
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—"Sonny Jim" Roosevelt weeks ago gave his friends to understand that he would say "No" to the Massachusetts Democrats who asked him to be a candidate for lieutenant-governor in the Bay State.

But he has taken so long to say it that the same friends think he may be reconsidering. Some insiders say the President's son and secretary is about to make a few speeches in Massachusetts on the problem of industrial migration from New England to the south. If that's so, suspicion is bound to arise that he is still flirting with the idea of running for office this year.

Previously Jimmy was supposed to have been dissuaded by the fear that his political career might suffer an early blight if he tried this time and lost. His White House position gives him great power and a unique opportunity for acquiring influence and friends.

Furthermore, he went into the White House largely to make up for the great personal loss suffered by his father in the deaths of Secretary Louis Howe and R's closest associates. The President in this period of rough going for the New Deal, doesn't want to lose him. Especially since Jimmy has done an acceptable job and is increasingly valuable as a contact between his father and the world outside—including members of Congress.

On the other hand, Jimmy's influence on patronage in the Massachusetts of his political adoption has enabled him to build up something of a personal machine there. A few of his friends argue that 1938 is the year in which he can depend on that machine to do most for his political career.

The chances still seem to be against Jimmy's entry in the primaries. But he still refrains from Hardly anyone in the Roosevelt family knows Jimmy would have a White House secretary. The late Louis McCaughey of the Massachusetts legislature moved to Washington in an apartment. But Jimmy mustn't be a p. secretary and won his job. Jimmy went away, he used and declaring that in the case he was and make a million dollars was then that he went insurance business in Massachusetts politics. He must not have made the million did very well for him.

BOY REFUGEE'S PRAYER SENT TO PRESIDENT—New York City—Martin Marden, 16-year-old schoolboy, whose vivid prayer of thanks for freedom and liberty in America, was sent to President Roosevelt. The author of the thanksgiving message came to this country from Germany to escape persecution.

FASHION REVUE—(1) A lovely afternoon dress of chartreuse green chiffon and candlewick nub woolen of the same shade, topped off with a halo straw. (2) The sailor vogue reaches its peak in this trim little hat of navy blue silk crepe dotted with white. (3) Buttons and button holes trim this young looking suit of navy blue woolen. The Chinese mandarin type hat is of navy blue milan.

YOUNG'S YOUNGEST AN EDITOR—Richard Young, the youngest son of Owen D. Young, was recently appointed editor-in-chief of St. Lawrence U's undergraduate magazine. His father was business manager in 1893.

DAILY DOZEN—Betty Grable, blonde screen starlet, is an accomplished dancer and keeps in trim with daily practice of dance routines.

NEW LOYALIST DEFENDERS—Barcelona, Spain—Volunteers in the Loyalist army, part of a new force of 100,000, come to the defense of Catalonia as the insurgents draw nearer.

ROD AND REEL CLASS—The edge of the beach is the classroom for this novel surf-fishing class of pretty fishermen.

SPRING IN THE AIR—A spectacular leap by one of the Indian antelopes at the Edinburgh Zoo.

BATTLESHIP WITH WINGS—Dayton, Ohio—A bird's-eye view of the Army's new experimental bomber XB-15, the largest land plane bomber ever developed in the U. S.

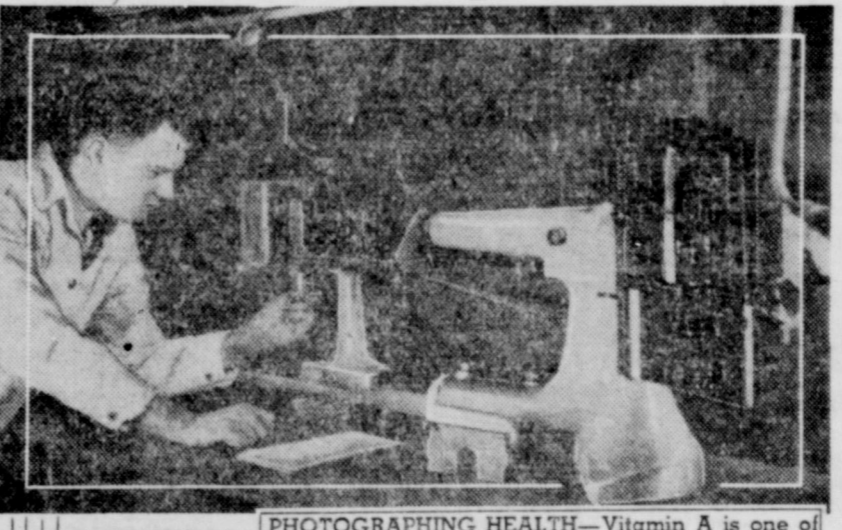

HELP WEEK-ENDERS—The automobile and the five-day week are turning us into a nation of week-enders, and so Collier's commissioned Edward D. Stone, above left, and Richard M. Bennett, to design a special week-end house. It has all the comforts of home and some extra ones too, and can be built cheaply.

WORLD'S CHAMPION "UMPU" PLAYER—Long Beach, Calif.—Master Stan is the world's champion "umpu" player at the tender age of five. He plays the Euphonium bass or giant Sousaphone which is twice as large as he is. He also plays the piano accordion as a solo instrument and conducts a full band with equal facility.

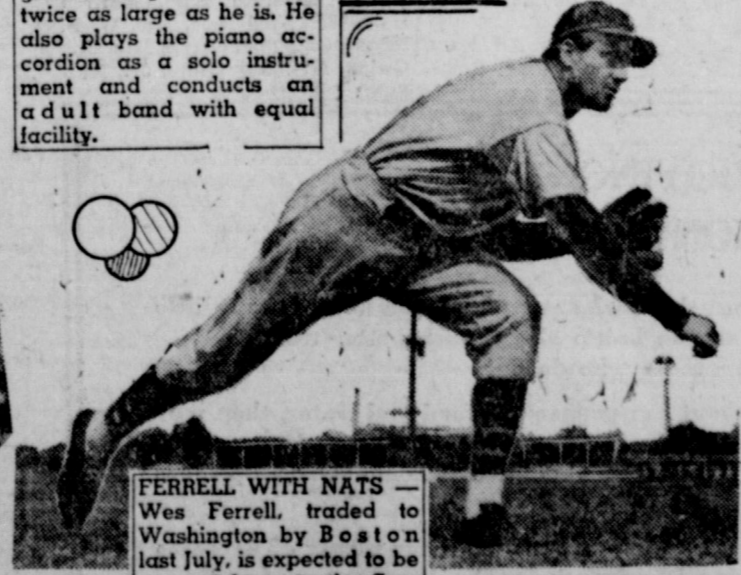

BRITAIN'S PRIME MINISTER—The latest portrait of Neville Chamberlain, Prime Minister of Great Britain.

PHOTOGRAPHING HEALTH—Vitamin A is one of the things which help to keep us healthy, and outstanding among food concerns who fortify their products with this vitamin are manufacturers of certain brands of margarine. Here Consumers Information shows a laboratory worker with a quartz spectrophotometer testing margarine to show that it comes up to requirements. The amount of light rays absorbed tells the answer.

COLORED YOLKS TO ORDER—Pictured here are Henry Joellenbeck of Okawville, Ill., and a few of his prize hens that lay, of all things, colored eggs! Yes, sir—red, white, blue, green—or what have you! The secret lies in the addition of certain ingredients to the feed, which produce differently colored yolks.

FERRELL WITH NATS—Wes Ferrell, traded to Washington by Boston last July, is expected to be a great boon to the Senators this year.

NEW BEACH SKIRT—With a detachable skirt, Miss Peg La Centra, displays the latest in beach attire. Note the footwear and bracelets.

BABY GIRL 4 SINGS BASS—Genevieve Saville of White Rock, Va., has had the bass voice of an adult man since she was able to sing. Her repertoire consists of hymns and hill-billy songs.

"Call It Freedom"
"Call It Freedom," the latest novel of Marion Sims, author of "The World With a Fence" and "Morning Star," has been added to the book shelves of the Public Library.

As surely as THE WORLD WITH A FENCE singled out Marion Sims as a writer whose novels would bear watching, so does her novel CALL IT FREEDOM, stamp her as a novelist who has arrived. Marion Sims takes up a theme that has been greatly neglected: What happens to a young attractive and intelligent woman when she is tied to a home and community by her child, after she divorced her husband. The story opens in the summer of 1935 and Martha Freer has just returned from Reno to her home in a small Southern city. She tries to take up her life where she left off but finds it difficult to buck the round of bridge and cocktail parties, country club dances and gossip that make up the lives of most of her friends. Entertaining and being entertained is also a great problem because practically all of the attractive men had wives of their own and Martha is too sensible and fine a young woman to be a poacher. Mrs. Sims has written a magnificent story about a woman who finds herself through her own struggles. Brilliantly she analyzes the characters of the inhabitants of the medium sized Southern city. Almost every Southern type, young and old, is represented. These people serve as background to Martha and her problems.

Thursday Club:
The last business session of the Thursday Afternoon club convened in the Community club house Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Dan Childress presiding. Annual reports were made by the presiding officers and standing committee chairman.

Mrs. Childress gave the president's report followed by the vice-president's report given by Mrs. Art Johnson, the second vice presidents, Mrs. Turner Collier, recording secretary, Mrs. Grady Pipkin, corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. E. Wiegand; treasurer, Mrs. Ben Scott; Parliamentarian, Mrs. W. P. Leslie, historian, Mrs. B. W. Patterson, and critic by Mrs. J. M. Kenny.

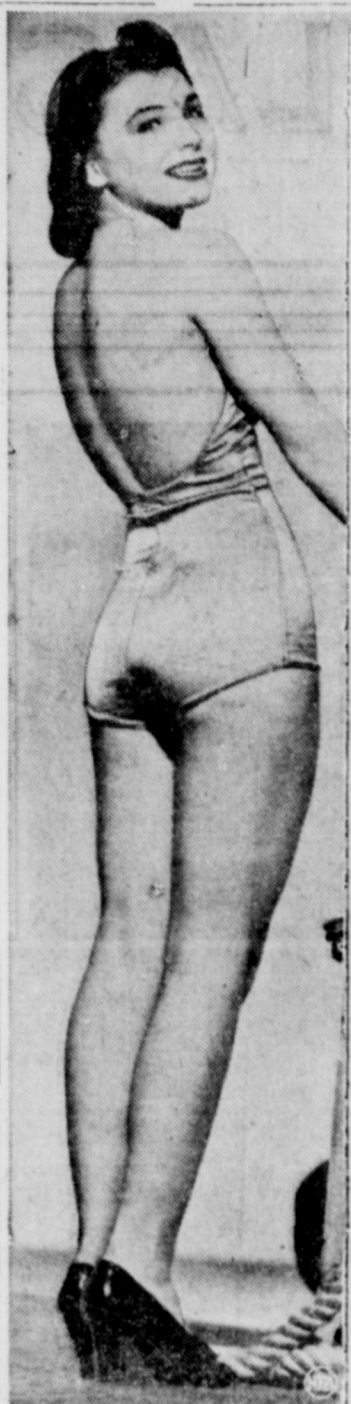

Mrs. Grady Pipkin as the delegate to the 6th District convention held here in April gave a detailed report of the three day session.

Chairman of the committees who reported at the meeting were: Mrs. Art Johnson on the programs presented throughout the club year; Mrs. Ray Lerner on the Library with the announcement that four hundred books had been added to a total of six thousand books available; Mrs. Elmo Cook made the report on the home committee; Mrs. Julius Krause on Civic enterprises undertaken by the club; Mrs. Victor Ginn on music; Mrs. Ben Scott, finance; Mrs. Roy E. Townsend, Club house.

The resignation of Mrs. D. S. Hood was received with regrets, and the announcement was made by the president that the next meeting scheduled for May 19 listed as play day will be a trip to Mineral Wells for an all day program. All members were urged to be present at the club house at 9 a. m. on May 19 in order to leave as early as possible.

Members attending the Thursday session were: Meses. Dan Childress, Turner Collier, Elmo V. Cook, Victor Ginn, Leslie Gray, Ben Hammer, Art Johnson, F. M. Kenny, Julius Krause, R. A. Lerner, W. P. Leslie, W. A. Martin, B. W. Patterson, W. B. Pickens, Grady Pipkin, Ben Scott, Robert Searis, R. E. Sikes, Carl Springer, E. Roy Townsend, W. E. Wiegand, W. B. Collier, Beulah Frost.

She Has More Than a Voice

Pretty and persuasively charming is Jackie Gately, above, but you have no idea just how persuasive until you know her real calling. It's her calling. Soon she will demonstrate over a national network the magnetic vocal summons with which she won her title as champion golf caddy in—of all places—Yell County Ark.

To Be Featured:
The Eastland Methodist church will present the A Cappella Choir from Abilene High school, directed by Miss Ouida Clemons, in a program of religious music tonight at 8 o'clock in the church.

The choir is composed of twenty-eight young people from the Abilene High school and have recently returned from the state high school contest in choral singing, where they took first place. Their director, Miss Ouida Clemons, is also director of the choir at St. Paul's church in Abilene.

This program will be a fitting climax to the observance of National Music Week as held in Eastland.

Program
The Lord's Prayer—Mellotte-Deis.
Gloria from "Twelfth Mass"—Mozart.

Birth of Christ
O Thou That Tellest from "The Messiah"—Handel.
And the Angel Said Unto Them—Handel.
Glory to God—Handel.
Crucifixion and Resurrection of Christ.

Program Is Success
The annual Mother-daughter banquet given each year by the Martha Dorcas as an introductory program to Mothers Day was held in the lower assembly room of the Methodist church. The Booster Class assisted in serving.

Mrs. W. A. Martin as master of ceremonies presided at the table of invocation pronounced by Mrs. Fred Davenport.

Wilda Drago's Harmony Girls gave their usual delightful vocal program with the song "Who Is Sylvia" by Olney and "Big Brown Bear" by Mana-Zucca.

A toast to the Mothers was given by Frankie May Pierce with Mrs. Herman Hague responding with a toast to the daughters.

Mrs. Vera McLeroy gave a beautiful program singing "A Little Bit O' Honey" by Carrie Jacobs-Bond and as encore "Four Leaf Clover" by Coombs.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Dale Morrison, a member of the faculty of McMurray College in Abilene. Mrs. Morrison, made one of the most interesting and straight forward talks on the youth of today and its problems that was fully appreciated by the audience.

Following the guest speaker prizes to the oldest grandmothers, oldest mother, youngest mother, youngest grandmother and the mother with the most children present.

Mrs. Martin introduced the presidents and the past presidents of the Booster and the Martha Dorcas classes as a conclusion to the program.

From Case Brought Greatest Number of Tips to Department
By United Press
AUSTIN.—The Frome murder case has brought more communications to the State police than any other crime since the department was created. Hardly had news of the finding of the bodies near Van Horn been published when suggestions, tips and hunches started on their way to Austin. Communications came from all parts of the country. One early writer wanted to be supplied with all information to write a story of the case for a pulp magazine. One sent a drawing of the slayer as seen in a dream.

Confident that the slayer of the two women will eventually be known, M. T. Gonzales, ballistics and evidence expert of the department, is working carefully to see that a conviction will be possible when the break comes in the case. Bullets, weapons, fingerprints, scrapings from beneath the nails of the dead women and other possible bits of evidence are being examined carefully and preserved.

ARE YOU ENJOYING THE RECESSION?

Many people are not, but those who own their own homes are a little more secure and can battle along much better than those who do not.

The place of abode is about as necessary as food and water, then why rent it? A careful check-up will prove that owning is cheaper than renting. If we add the joys and conveniences of home ownership there is no comparison.

We are selling homes every week, but we still have plenty of bargains listed. Anyone with a few dollars for the down payment and a job can own one of these homes.
