NO. 178

BRAZOS RIVER DISTRICT GETS LICENSE TODAY

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Brazos River Conservation and Reclamation District of Texas held a Federal Power Commission license today for the construction of a hydro-electric plant in Palo Pinto county. The license was modified to require officials of the district that its wording would not interfere with the obligations of the district to the State of Texas. The district formerly had contended that the federal license would not be necessary because the project would not affect interstate commerce. District representatives withdrew a petition for rehearing on that question, however, and the modified license was granted yesterday. Construction contracts for the $5,000,000 Possum Kingdom dam, first in a series of power conservation and irrigation projects proposed for the Brazos river, have been granted.

Roosevelt to Make Known His Action On Tax Measure

WASHINGTON, May 26.—President Roosevelt will announce his action on the tax bill in a speech to the nation at 1 p. m. (CST) tomorrow, from Arthur's Dale, W. Va. The $5,330,000,000 measure, drastically modifying the levies on capital gains and undistributed corporate profits, must receive executive action by midnight tonight or it will become law without Mr. Roosevelt's signature. The President apparently plans to act sometime today, but to withhold information on his action until the address tomorrow.

Two Cadets Killed In Airplane Crash

SAN ANTONIO, May 26.—Two Kelly Field flying cadets were killed today when their observation plane crashed in the hill country three miles southwest of Camp Stanley. The dead were Pilot Gerald D. Shannon, 24, of Parsons, Kan., and Observer Robert Brown, 24, of Brady, Nebr.

Union Organizer Confesses a Murder

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 26.—Arnold Ralph Johnson, 33, confessed today that he killed William S. Brown, 41, president of the General Drivers' union, because of a disagreement over the union funds. Police announced that Johnson, an organizer for the union, signed a statement that he shot Brown to death last night "because I know he had too much money and we argued about union funds."

Marie Galloway Is Named Club Scribe

Chosen by popular vote of her club associates, Miss Marie Galloway of Eastland will serve as secretary of the Press club at Texas State College for Women at Denton this year. Sponsoring creative literary work, the organization meets monthly with programs of original literary compositions read by the club members, who are regular contributors to the college magazine. Miss Galloway, a member of the club for two years, is a junior Spanish major and the daughter of County Clerk and Mrs. R. V. Galloway.

Legion's District Meeting Postponed

Word was received by the post commander of Carl Barnes post No. 69, American Legion, Ranger, from state headquarters that the dates of the 17th district convention were postponed from June 11-12 to June 25-26, 1938. This change was made on account of conflicting dates of the district 19 at Denison. It is the wish of the department commander, Dr. Danforth, to visit all district conventions in Texas, and he does not want to miss the meeting at Ranger. Elaborate preparations are being made for this occasion, as Carl Barnes post and the ladies' auxiliary expect to be hosts to several hundred Legionnaires and ladies. The post commander urges all Legionnaires to be present at the regular meeting tonight. Visiting Legionnaires are cordially invited.

Gun Club Shoot Slated On Sunday

Officials announced Thursday was a shoot to be held Sunday afternoon at the range of the Oil Belt Gun Club off Highway 67, near Eastland. A program of skeet and regulation trap targets is being arranged which officials said will undoubtedly draw a large attendance of club members and the public in general.

Tully Is Awarded Letter at E. T. S. T. C.

Darrell Tully of Eastland, student at Texas State Teachers College, has been awarded a letter in track, according to an announcement received from the school at Commerce. Two hundred victims were buried today and additional bodies still were being recovered. Loyalist sources reported that foreign consular representatives here would urge trying to "halt such attacks against humanity."

Action as Police Smashed C. I. O. Picket Line

This action-packed picture shows a part of the hostilities that occurred when a flying wedge of police smashed a C. I. O. picket line around the J. I. Case Company plant at Rockford, Ill. With police using clubs and the pickets retaliating with stones, several casualties were reported. One deputy sheriff was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull. The police claimed that they had used 35 or 40 men to break the picket line of 700.

Austria's Fadeout Traced In a Book By Schuschnigg

By Louis F. Keemle United Press Cable Editor NEW YORK.—The tragic story of Austria, written as living history, is presented in a book published today, "My Austria," by Kurt Schuschnigg, last chancellor of an independent Austria. Its Austrian edition was, according to the publishers, Knopf, the first book to be consigned to the flames in the recent book-burning by the Nazis. It is the poignant, heart-broken cry of a man passionately devoted to his native land; who saw its power decline and fade away; who tried to save it; who was at the helm when the invader came from Naziland, and who bowed to the inevitable rather than subject his people to bloodshed. He is now under "protective" arrest at Belvedere Palace in Vienna and his fate is uncertain—perhaps a trial on the strange charge of high treason against an acknowledged patriot. The theme of "Austria, Austria, Austria" runs like a thread through the book. Schuschnigg writes feelingly of the culture and aspirations of German Austria of its music and literature and beauty. He sketches the final days of the old empire, the agony of the World War, and the trying days up to a period just before the Hitler annexation. It is the "inside story" of the man who should know better than anyone what went on. Timely Introduction Added The last few months, up to the ultimatum and invasion of March of this year, are filled by an introduction by Dorothy Thompson, who writes: "The results of what happened in Austria in March, 1938, will not be apparent for sometime to come. I am firmly convinced, however, that it was the most cataclysmic event of modern history, and that as a result of it, one of two things will happen: Germany will dominate the continent of Europe, or millions of lives will be spent in another war." Toward the end of the book, there are 40 fascinating pages from the private diary of Schuschnigg, constituting a fairly historic document. Earlier in the book, his political philosophy is summed up in an open-minded, puzzled and questioning note: "I am of the opinion that there never is finality in political forms or tendencies and I do not think it right to regard any system, no matter what it may be called, as wholly timeless and immune from error."

GEN. CEDILLO'S AIRDROME IS BOMBED TODAY

SAN LUIS POTOSI, Mexico, May 26.—The revolt of General Saturno Cedillo reached new intensity today with violent clashes between his guerrillas and government forces. Government airplanes destroyed a rebel airdrome at El Rucio, "killing many followers" of the outlawed army commander. Rebels destroyed the village of Yerbabuena, where it was reported the majority of residents were slain and their homes set afire. Officials asserted, crippled Cedillo's aerial power badly. They believed that the former war lord of San Luis Potosi state had only a few planes and that some of them were destroyed in the raid.

Buffalo Youth Is Known as Collector

BUFFALO, N. Y.—When 11-year-old Robert Sutherland is not in school he is usually busy adding to his numerous collections which have gained him wide recognition. Thus far Bobby has collected 10,000 stamps, 1,100 china animal figures, 300 shells from all parts of the world, 2,300 picture postcards, 600 snapshots of "pen pals," and 1,000 other souvenirs. He operates a correspondence bureau that has given him more than 900 active "pen pals" and is well-known by Buffalo postoffice workers. Two years ago he sought a new activity and began a milk bottle cap collection. Once an envelope with the drawing of a milk bottle cap and the words "Bobby," Buffalo, N. Y." found its way quickly to his home. When he was in kindergarten, Bobby started writing jingles and since has more than 850 short poems published. Bobby's mother, Mrs. Pauline V. Sutherland, said that last Christmas he received more than 800 Christmas cards and nearly 600 packages. "Among Bobby's cherished possessions," his mother revealed, "is a letter from the Duke of Windsor when he was King Edward VIII. It was written after the death of George V. Bobby felt very badly, wrote a special poem to this effect and in return got the letter."

Ross-Armstrong Fight Postponed

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Barney Ross-Henry Armstrong fight for the world welterweight championship, scheduled for tonight in Madison Square Garden's Long Island bowl, was postponed today because of rain. If weather permits it will be held tomorrow night.

Attorney General Has Important and Various Activities

AUSTIN, Tex.—The attorney general of Texas has many important duties and must make a report on one government activity in which he has no other part. Biennially he must compile a total of the criminal cases tried in all parts of the state. He has no part in the trials and must collect the information from district and county attorneys. In civil matters he represents the state as attorney, in all suits and pleas in the supreme court. He acts as attorney for the various state departments. His rulings are binding on the departments until they are set aside by court procedure. The constitution gives him the special duty of inquiring into charter rights of all private corporations and taking necessary legal steps to prevent any of them exercising any powers not conferred in their charters. Enforcement of the anti-trust laws, oil and gas conservation laws and regulations, and collection of disputed taxes are among duties of the offices that have become particularly important functions in recent years. The attorney general is ex-officio member of the state banking board and the state board to canvass election returns. A compilation of the list of all statutory duties was ordered by Atty. Gen. William McCraw when he took office. Completed, it filled 60 typed pages. His salary recently was raised to $10,000 a year. Notation of the attorney general's approval is required on all bond issues of cities, counties and other units of state government, on state charters, state deeds, bonds furnished by state officers, and on contracts made by counties for collection of delinquent taxes. He is designated as legal adviser to the governor, to state officials, to committees of the house and senate, to county auditors, county attorneys, district attorneys, state boards of regents and state boards of trustees. He appoints a portion of the members of the Lower Colorado River Authority and some other agencies.

Strange Burial Rite Held Yearly by Clan

CINCINNATI — A strange burial ceremony was held here for the 69th time when the body of John O. Gorman, 61, of Vincennes Ind., was interred. Each year approximately 400 members of the nomadic Gorman family assemble here in tribute to members of their clan who have died during the past year. The rite has been followed annually since 1840. The Gormans come from all walks of life, but annually drop their business pursuits to make the "pilgrimage of the dead." Col. James E. Gorman, leader of the family travels with and manages a rodeo.

Drowning Victim's Rites Conducted At Baptist Church

Funeral services for James Franklin, Jr., 12, who drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming in Lyster's tank at Eastland, were conducted Thursday morning at the First Baptist church in Eastland. Rev. J. I. Cartledge, pastor of the church, officiated at the rites. Interment was in Eastland cemetery. The boy attended Sunday school at the Baptist church and was a student in West Ward school. He was born in Eastland. Music was furnished by the church choir. Survivors include his parents, three sisters and one brother. Hammer Undertaking company, Eastland, had charge of arrangements.

Tammany Leader Is Indicted Today

NEW YORK, May 26.—James J. Hines, powerful Tammany Hall politician and dispenser of federal patronage in New York, was named today in a broad indictment as one of the key figures of a $100,000,000 a year racket in the numbers lottery in which judges were bribed and violence used to maintain its control.

Assassination Plot Recounted by Dies

WASHINGTON, May 26.—Rep. Martin Dies, Dem., Texas, told the House today that a speaker at an "un-American organization meeting" advocated the assassination of President Roosevelt. Dies said he had positive proof of "shocking activities" by the organization, and urged approval of his resolution for an investigation of such organizations.

American Troops to Prevent Smuggling Arms Into Mexico

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—The San Pedro Roma correspondent from La Tresa reported today that "many" American soldiers were on duty along the Mexican border between the towns of Roma and McAllen, northwest of Brownsville, to prevent arms smuggling.

Texas Open Golf Tourney Assured

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Virtual assurance that the Texas Open golf tournament will be revived was seen this week in the announcement of the San Antonio Golfers' Association that the $5,000 prize money had been underwritten. Roy James, co-chairman of the association's finance committee, said that approximately $500 needed for expenses would be raised within a few days. Association executives planned to send word immediately to the Professional Golfers' Association that the money was available. Fred Corcoran, PGA tournament manager, will then set dates for the tournament. It probably will be held in February of 1939, shortly after the California winter circuit is ended.

Arkansas Area to Be a Game Refuge

MENA, Ark.—A 96,000-acre game refuge, to be located northwest of Mena, probably will be created in the Ouachita national forest. J. E. Bishop, one of the sponsors of the move, has expressed belief that the new refuge would be the largest in the nation. The state game and fish commission at Little Rock has endorsed the plan, and the Federal government is expected to take action on setting aside the area for preservation of wildlife. The proposed refuge is located in the area where Scott, Yell and Montgomery, Ark., counties meet. It would include the present Muddy Creek refuge. According to present plans, the new refuge would be known as the Ouachita refuge, and it would be under Federal supervision.

G. O. P. Nominee in Oregon Race

Winner of an eight-cornered contest for the Republican nomination for governor of Oregon, Charles A. Sprague, above, now opposes Henry L. Hess, Democratic nominee, in the campaign for the November election. Sprague is editor of the Salem Statesman, the state capital's morning newspaper.

Insect Hordes Are Appearing Early To Eat Up Crops

WASHINGTON, May 24.—A large number of insects which survived the warm winter have begun to inflict heavy damage upon early crops, reports to the Department of Agriculture indicate. The vanguard of the 1938 army of insect pests, advancing with warm weather, have brought widespread destruction to vegetation and a threat of more to come." An Insect Pest Survey bulletin said. Despite millions of dollars spent every year in fighting plants pests they cause damage estimated at $500,000,000. Grasshoppers, Mormon crickets, chinch bugs and bollworms cause a major portion of the damage. Army worms and cutworms made an early appearance in the lower Mississippi Valley, injuring several crops, notably oats and alfalfa. Cutworms also have been especially destructive in the Delta. Winter survival of the corn ear worm was greater than last year in New Jersey, Virginia, Ohio and Texas, for the first time on record this worm lived through the winter in Kansas and Utah. The eastern cotton caterpillar, out in large numbers, has started to skeletonize foliage from New Hampshire to South Carolina and westward to Tennessee. The tent caterpillar is doing the same thing in Georgia and Mississippi. A plague of cankerworms was reported from the Middle Atlantic states, from Ohio and from Mississippi. The codling moth, No. 1 insect enemy of the apple, has appeared in Indiana, said the Mexican bean beetle has appeared earlier than ever before in Virginia. May beetles have severely injured pecan buds in Georgia and have been found as far north as Lafayette, Ind. Injury from frubs of the green June beetle was reported from Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia. The vegetable weevil was reported more numerous than usual in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. A new infestation of the weevil was reported in Texas. It was reported proving unusually destructive in Southern California. Grasshoppers, delayed by the spring cold snap, were reported hatching in unusually large numbers in Texas, Utah, Colorado, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri. The most serious damage, however is expected this summer in the Great Plains. The hessian fly was reported in Kansas, Indiana and Pennsylvania and the chinch bug in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri. Mormon crickets eggs have hatched throughout Montana. The cotton boll weevil and the cotton leaf worm have made unusually early appearances. The pea aphid were reported numerous along the Pacific coast, especially in Oregon and California.

Eastland Youth Is Named Society Head

Parker Brown, Eastland student at Texas Technological College in Lubbock, this week was elected president of the Geological Engineering society at the school. The society is composed of engineering students. Brown, a junior, is the son of Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Brown.

JAPAN SEEKS MORE POWER TO ECONOMIZE

Japan sought increased national unity in prosecuting the China war today by giving army leaders greater power in the cabinet of Premier Fumimaro Konyoe. While Japanese armies closed in thunderously on Kaiseing, in North China, the premier announced reorganization of his cabinet at Tokyo in order to make Gen. Kabunari Ikeda finance minister. The appointment of generals to the foreign and education posts was regarded as particularly significant. Ikeda was expected to bolster and coordinate Japan's war-weakened economy, in an effort to withstand the drain of the China campaign. Across the sea, Japanese armies appeared to be concentrating on two main routes to the Chinese provisional capital at Hankow. The first line of attack along the Lung-Hai railway progressed smoothly with the attack on Kaiseing and preparations to envelop Chenechow. The second advance was expected to start up the Yangtze by warship, to start from the south, while land forces moved down from the northern front.

Mrs. Bowles Will Observe Her 95th Birthday This Week

Mrs. Virginia Bowles, pioneer of Eastland county, this week observed her 95th birthday at the home of Mrs. Dell Cox, a daughter, with whom she makes her home at Eastland. Mrs. Bowles is the widow of Colonel Volivar Bowles, who died 48 years ago. They came to Eastland from Oxford, Miss., where he was owner of a cotton plantation. Colonel Bowles and Mrs. Bowles, when they first moved to Eastland resided east of the city in what was later known as the "Old Rock House." Keeping house for Mrs. Bowles and Mrs. Cox is "Aunt Jane" Bowles, 72-year-old negro. Before the Civil War Colonel Bowles freed the majority of his 100 slaves but remaining were two, later the parents of the girl who was to be known as "Aunt Jane." She has been with Mrs. Bowles since these years of age. It is said "Aunt Jane" was the only negro in Eastland before the oil boom. Mrs. Bowles is in ill health. Mrs. Bowles was a native of Mississippi. Her husband fought in the Civil War. Other children are Oscar Bowles of Cleburne, Jim Bowles of Oklahoma City, Okla., John Bowles of Eastland and Mrs. C. H. Carter of Eastland.

American Art On Display at Paris

PARIS.—Three centuries of American art, an exposition valued at almost $1,000,000, goes on display here in the Jeu de Paume Museum. The exposition, organized by the Museum of Modern Art of New York, will continue until the middle of July. More than 200 oils and watercolors, 40 sculptures and 80 prints are included in the exhibition. Nine Whistlers, including "The Blue Girl," range themselves in the same gallery as "The Tough Boy," John Smiths 1937 painting. Private collectors, including Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Cornelius N. Bliss, Harry T. Peters and John F. Wilkins, as well as leading museums, have lent outstanding examples of American art, dating back as far as 1609. Not only paintings, sculpture and the graphic arts are represented in the exposition, but architecture, photography and motion pictures also are given prominence. The works arrived in France in 87 cases insured for $913,000. Included among the paintings are 12 whose artists names have been lost.

Jimmy's Tastes Are Universal

Whenever there is nothing else to worry about, good people can always get themselves into a state of alarm by meditating on the kind of movies little Jimmy goes to see on Saturday afternoons.

Jimmy knows little about the finer points of the cinematic arts, but he indisputably knows what he wants. So do the moviemakers, who see that he gets in. The result is a wealth of blood-and-thunder stuff, G-men epics, cowboy escapades, mining town shooting scrapes and highly improbable bits of adventure and action in the South Seas.

All of which, to many of us whose childhood is long gone, is pretty disturbing. It looks like strong meat for delicate stomachs. We are easily persuaded that little Jimmy ought to be protected against his own desires.

But when the topic of Jimmy and his movie fare came up for discussion at a conference of elementary school teachers at Teachers College, Columbia University the other day, very little alarm was manifest. On the contrary, the teachers were urged to go out and attend a few of these Saturday afternoon thriller specials themselves once in a while and find out how and why those things hit Jimmy where he lives.

For little Jimmy is perfectly direct and simple about it all. He likes rapid-fire action, bold adventure and the certainty of right's ultimate triumph over wrong; and these likes are not at all bad or unnatural traits for him to have. On the contrary they are universal, rooted in the deepest stratum of human nature.

And it is up to us adults to understand that—and to understand, at the same time, that these youngsters of ours are not in the least fooled by the kind of life they see in the Saturday afternoon movie houses.

They know, after all, that real life seldom has a moving picture finish. The hero doesn't always come galloping out of the sunset just in time; the dauntless young man doesn't foil the evil designs of the villain; virtue does not always reap its rich reward in the final reel. The everyday life of schoolyard and playground teaches that, unmistakably.

Yet it is human nature to wish that things were different; and in their own way the youngsters who cheer and stamp their feet at the holiday thrillers are simply testifying to the fact that they wish life were a little bit nearer to the ideal. That is a wish which, however it may find expression, is worth understanding and fostering.

Which doesn't at all mean that we should never exercise the right of censorship over little Jimmy's entertainment program. It does mean that if we just take the trouble to see things the way he sees them, and share in his vibrant young emotional life, we can do an indefinitely better job of bringing him up to adulthood prepared to do his part toward making this a better world.

STILL CHAMP

WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON.—Among other depression results is a partial revision of the theory, previously held almost unanimously by politicians, that Herbert Hoover wouldn't have the ghost of a chance of being the next Republican nominee for President.

As the "Roosevelt depression" drags along, many Republicans, although they still remember the "Hoover" depression" vividly, aren't so convinced as they were that their last President would be the worst possible candidate in 1940. This fact is not due to any inspirational quality of Mr. Hoover's latest 11-point "recovery" platform, which has caused no large ripple.

Nor can it be said, despite the former President's desire to vindicate himself with a second White House term, that there is any actual boom in Hoover stock. The man's chances have improved somewhat from zero. Or, if you felt he was a 100-to-1 shot a year ago, you might say he was a 50-to-1 shot now. Odds against Hoover may continue to shorten. He is still in virtual control of the Republican party machinery.

SENATOR GEORGE L. BERRY of Tennessee, heretofore a loyal and obedient administration servant, has flailed out at the new spending-lending program. This means George and the administration have busted up. The White House decided not to help Berry get renominated, figuring that the TVA-marble episode in which Berry figured, the senator's attempt to monkey in the federal-state-TVA-private power whirling and the almost unanimous opinion that Berry couldn't win under any circumstances added up.

MOST quoted line of the week among Foreign Service officials and other diplomats appeared in the magazine Ken it a column written by Claude Cockburn, who reported: "A profound statement of Anglo-German relations is proffered by a British first-class barman in Dover who claims 'Germans are our blood brothers. They are close to us in every possible way. They think like us, act like us—and that's why you can't trust them a bloody yard.'" (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JACKIE DENN—heroine; she wanted to fly.
ROGER BERRY—hero; he wanted to test the stratosphere.
BERYL MELROSE—wealthy widow; she wanted Roger.
EVELYN LA FARGE—Jackie's mother; she wanted a son-in-law.
Yesterday Jackie is leaving when Beryl calls her back. We'll see that Roger may never walk again!

CHAPTER XXII
"ROGER may never walk again!" Jackie repeated what Beryl had told her slowly, incredulously. "But that can't be!" "I don't want to say it," Beryl returned, her dark eyes compassionate. "You remember I told you yesterday I was to have a conference with Doctor Watson? Well, he told me then. It seems there's something wrong with Roger's back."

"Oh, Beryl!" Jackie bowed her head in despair. Her own trouble was forgotten now, the fact that she had been running away. For Roger, who practically had been born with wings, who was only at home riding the sky, conquering the heavens, to be earthbound—never able to walk again. Jackie raised her head, stricken by another thought, "Does he know?" she asked. "Does he have to know this, Beryl?"

Beryl nodded, moistened her lips. "If she had let Jackie glimpse the love she felt for Roger once or twice, now Jackie's love—her very soul—lay revealed for anyone to see. "Yes, Roger knows. He had guessed all along. He insisted I tell him—yesterday."

"Then that was why you were kneeling at his side, why you were crying!" Jackie spoke without thinking. "You saw us then?" "Yes . . . I . . . I thought you had told Roger that you loved him . . ."

"That was why you loved him?" Jackie cried out in protest at that. "As though I would want to be free of him! Even if he never walks . . . that could not make any difference."

"Good girl!" Beryl said. She got to her feet, stooped looking down at Jackie, her lovely face alight with her gentle smile. "I knew it would not make any difference; I knew you'd say that. Now you understand why I've told you. Why I had to stop you, come after you. It was you Roger called for all during the time he was delirious. It was the fact that he thought I was you, standing by, helping him hold on, fight through, that made if I went away . . . he would realize that he loves you. "No, don't interrupt!" she said, when Beryl tried to speak. "Why shouldn't Roger love you, Beryl? You are so wonderful, so much better than I am. You two really are suited to each other in every way. And I love you both, so much that I want you both to be happy. That's why I did what I did. That's why I wanted to go away."

"You foolish little girl!" Beryl reproved gently, but her dark eyes, looking directly back into Jackie's, were shining. "Haven't you learned yet that you can't do anything about love? You can't plan for it, change it—make it do the things you want it to. You can't love Roger. I admit it. I'm not ashamed of it. She threw back her head and looked proudly, her eyes alight with the acknowledgment of her love now. "But my dear—it is you whom Roger loves. He does not love me."

Jackie's heart leaped high, as though suddenly she had shed its dull aching weight, found new strength again. But only for a moment. She shook her head. "No, Beryl. You forget. Roger was perfectly willing that I break our trial engagement, perfectly willing for me to go, to say goodbye."

"A SHADOW darkened Jackie's face with the pain of this brought home again. "You mean never know?" "More than that. He made me promise not to tell you. He doesn't know now that I came after you, that I've told you, Jackie. You see, Roger wanted you to go—thinking he did not care—because only in that way could he give you your freedom from him."

Jackie cried out in protest at that. "As though I would want to be free of him! Even if he never walks . . . that could not make any difference."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox

BRILLIANT wedding cake is a beautiful symbol. It is the first food the bride and groom share together, surrounded by well-wishing relatives and friends.

Wedding Cake (14 pounds)

One pound almonds, 3 pounds currants, 3 pounds raisins, 1 pound mixed sliced peel, 2 cups cognac brandy, 4 cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking soda, 3 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1/2 nutmeg, grated, 1 pound packed brown sugar, 16 eggs, 3 drops wintergreen, 1 cup New Orleans molasses, 1 cup sour cream.

Blanch and shred almonds; mix with fruits, peel and brandy, and let stand in closely covered jar 2 days. Mix and sift flour, soda and spices. Cream shortening until soft and smooth. Gradually add sugar, creaming until fluffy. Beat in thoroughly 1 egg at a time, then wintergreen and molasses.

Add flour mixture alternately with sour cream, mixing well after each addition. Stir in brandied fruits and nuts. Turn into greased loaf pans, lined with waxed paper and again greased, filling them about 2/3 full. Cover tightly with waxed or greased paper and steam 2 hours. Then bake in very slow oven (250 degrees F) about 2 hours, removing paper the last 1/2 hour to dry surface.

For a decorative two layer cake use frosted sticks of cardboard to support the upper layer. The little bolts on the sticks, which look like marble columns, and on each corner of the lower layer stick small frosted "wedding" veil. The frosted rosettes and scroll work which are so definite a part of a wedding cake can be bought in a five and ten store and applied to your own glistening white frosting.

If you are not quite sure of your skill as a cake decorator, you can pay your local baker to decorate it for you in his best professional manner.

Sport Glances. By Grayson

BY JERRY BRONFIELD

NEA Service Sports Writer CHARLES (BUCK) WALSH has broken out his battle flags, cleared decks for action and marked the order for all hands to stand by.

The veteran Navy crew coach is quite fed up with the Washington bugaboo. He's tired of seeing stern rowing men drink up like many violets and cast furtive glances over their shoulders every time someone mentions the Huskies from the northwest.

It's high time eastern sweepstakers started a long overdue renaissance, he figures—and there could be no better time than June 27 at Poughkeepsie.

Maxwell Stevenson, Chairman of the Board of Poughkeepsie Stewards, sounded that same keynote a few weeks back when he fatly accused eastern rowing powers (?) with having a Washington complex, and the sooner they dropped it the better.

Figuring out the last eastern crew to triumph at Keepsie is more than a matter of a moment. To paraphrase Stevenson, you've got to blow the dust off the record books before you discover that back in 1931 an eastern shell—Navy—glided across the line.

Since then the Hudson River classic has been dominated by Washington and California.

"THERE'S no reason why we should fear these western outfits so much," Walsh growls. "They can be beaten—they can catch a crab just like we can—and they can't stick more than eight men in a shell at a time. So it's time someone did something about it."

Walsh isn't making rash statements or predictions, but being of a very logical frame of mind he has reasons for thinking the eastern cause is a little brighter this spring.

"Western crews get the jump because they get onto open water for practice long before we can. But this year was an exception. Most of our eastern outfits got out early this year. That, plus the fact that the Regatta is later this season than in years gone by, will give us a lot more time to get ready."

"Maybe Navy will be ready," he muses. "Maybe Cornell will be ready, too."

The midshipmen have the best boat they've had since 1931. It's a strong, smooth-working eight that has class and guts. Right now it's the best boat load on the Atlantic seaboard.

ANNAPOLIS proved as much when it defeated a powerful Cornell boat by a quarter of a length. And when Walsh saw his boys backwash the Big Red he was convinced he had something. Because the word floating off Cayuga's waters is the Ithacans, too, have the best they've put out in seasons. The best, in fact, since a Big Red boat lost to California in that photo finish of 1935.

"Somehow, it's a different feeling this year," says Walsh. "Maybe it'll be Washington again, for the third year in a row. After all, they've got to be good to beat California by two lengths."

"Yet we're losing that inferiority complex. In fact, Navy, Cornell and Syracuse are just a bit impatient for Washington and California to arrive. "I've seen some strange things happen on the Hudson river," he concludes.

to his garden, poultry, cows and hogs, Evans said.

"Many families have been so centered upon the obtaining of cows, hogs and chickens that they have failed to give sufficient attention to this livestock after it has been obtained," he explained.

"Some of them let all their cows freshen at the same time, and the result is a surplus of milk at one season and a shortage at another. Others allow their cows to farrow too late to provide a winter meat supply, or they fail to set aside a calf to fatten for fresh meat or for canning."

Evans said that between 15 and 20 per cent of the FSA clients in Texas, and 30 to 40 per cent in Oklahoma, had been able to go through the past year without borrowing money for food.

"Money formerly spent for food will be available for paying off indebtedness on livestock and equipment," he said. "When these borrowers own their teams and tools, they have made a long step toward eventual ownership of their land."

Chapman Is Rated As the Cleverest Criminal at Large

By United Press

HUNTSVILLE — G-men rate Charles Chapman, "escaped convict and once a respected Arkansas road contractor, as one of the cleverest robbers at large today and would like to catch him to set at rest the fears of bankers throughout the country.

But Ovid Mathis and L. L. Sutherland, serving long terms in prison for bank robbery, want him to be caught, they say.

captured for an entirely different reason. They believe that prison bars for Chapman would mean freedom for them.

Before leading a spectacular escape from Eastham prison farm on July 8, 1937, Chapman confessed to officers that he robbed the First National Bank of Atlanta, Texas, on June 6, 1934—the crime for which Mathis was given a 30-year sentence and Sutherland 50 years.

Legal machinery was in motion in federal court at Beaumont to reopen the robbery case in an effort to free Mathis and Sutherland when Chapman escaped with 27 other convicts from Eastham. He was the only fugitive who was not captured or killed.

Mathis has been working in the cotton fields at Central State prison at Sugarland since his conviction in September, 1934. Sutherland has been working in the prison print shop there since October of that year.

Chapman was a road contractor and suffered financial reverses during the depression in 1932. He tried to recoup his fortunes by robbing a bank at Camden, Ark.

After several more robberies, he was captured in Mississippi on October 20, 1934, and sent to Arkansas prison.

He escaped on August 25, 1935, from Tucker Prison Farm, Ark., and six days later was shot and captured after robbing the bank at Atlanta. He was given a 60-year sentence for the robbery.

After being sent to Eastham, Chapman called officers and told them that Mathis and Sutherland were innocent.

"I robbed the Atlanta bank both times," Chapman said. "I heard they had convicted some other guys in the first case, and I went back to see if they would recognize me."

On the strength of this statement, the federal grand jury at Beaumont indicted Chapman in March, 1937, for the first Atlanta bank robbery. But before he could be brought to trial, he escaped.

And so Mathis and Sutherland work away their days in prison, having 27 to 47 years, respectively, to serve for a crime that Chapman, not they, confessed to committing.

of the administration, has told borrowers in Texas and Oklahoma that fewer loans will be made in the future for the purchase of food, and that next year's food supply must be largely grown on the borrower's farms.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS - By Blosser

OH, DADDY, I HEARD THAT DUDLEY PICKED A FIGHT WITH FRECKLES, AND BEFORE HE KNEW IT HE WAS FLAT ON HIS BACK!

FRECK CAN HANDLE HIS DUKES!

IT WASN'T A FIST FIGHT! I THOUGHT IT WAS PRETTY CUTE OF ME HE WOULDN'T HIT DUDLEY AGAIN, AFTER THE DEBATE-- SO HE USED JU-JITSU!

IF YOU THINK FRECKLES IS PRETTY CUTE, WHY ISN'T HE TAKING YOU TO THE PROM?

I'M GOING WITH DUDLEY TO TEACH FRECKLES A LESSON!

DADDY, WHICH OF THE TWO DO YOU LIKE BEST?

WELL, IF I HAD TO THROW THEM BOTH OUT OF THE HOUSE, I THINK I'D TRY FOR DISTANCE WITH DUDLEY!

"And they list her: HOUSEWIFE,"

On census report, or tax return, she may be listed only "housewife," while her husband bears the more definite title of "lawyer," or "doctor," or "storekeeper."

But housewife hardly does this wife and mother justice. She is the modern Jill-of-all-trades. Her job includes being dietician, interior decorator, costume designer, gardener, chauffeur—not to mention educator and health authority.

How does she get away with it? She is informed! Just as her husband depends upon business news in this paper, she finds in the advertising pages the latest facts and price quotations on all the material's needed for her various jobs.

Food for the family? Butcher and grocer answer on these pages... Curtains, spring dresses for mother and daughter, slip covers? Department store and specialty shop are ready. She has preferences about fuels and milk, dental creams and even motor oil—all determined by her persistent, intelligent reading of advertisements.

That's why, when she is termed officially "housewife," she can run six jobs instead of one, and have time left over for amusement and relaxation. (The advertisements help her here too.)

South Called U. S. Manpower Reservoir

ATLANTA. — Literal occupation of the entire United States by southerners "if present migration of southerners to the North should continue," is the prediction of Dr. William F. Ogburn, University of Chicago sociologist.

Dr. Ogburn, speaking before the Georgia Academy of Social Sciences at Emory University, said a "population crisis" in the south centered around the birth rate, "which is much higher than in the rest of the nation."

Declaring that surplus population from the South had migrated North and West for 20 years, Dr. Ogburn said the outward movement had added to national unemployment problems and tended to "lower the average southern standard of living."

"Since it costs $2,000 or $3,000 or more to rear a child, the South has contributed $10,000,000,000 or $15,000,000,000 to the North and West by giving them an educated labor force without cost."

The Chicago sociologist, a native of Georgia, believed "the best way out for the South is to develop new industries and to prosecute vigorously a program of industrial expansion" to offset widening use of labor-saving machines like migration of iron men into the South.

Wheeled Yacht Sails On Utah Lake Bed

By United Press

SALT LAKE CITY.—A three-wheeled "salt yacht," which backers say is the only one of its kind in the country, is proving successful in test runs on nature's fastest speedway.

Stiff breezes which sweep across the salt lake beds every afternoon enable excellent speeds.

The yacht is not unlike a sailboat, with a light hull and 12-foot mast, which is rigged similarly to a sailboat. The craft has two wheels in front and is steered by a rudder attachment to a single rear wheel.

Gus P. Backman, Chamber of Commerce executive secretary, and M. Vern Woodhead, his assistant, fashioned the "salt yacht" and predict their invention is a forerunner of a new type of racing on the salt lake beds.

Backman was so carried away with the craft's possibilities, that he issued a "challenge" to Capt. George E. T. Eyston, automobile speed driver.

Boston has been shipping lemon juice to the tropics, and any day now the tropics may be bringing enlightenment to "the hub."

SPORT GLANCES By Grayson

By HARRY GRAYSON / Sports Editor, NEA Service

JOHNNY GOODMAN sailed with his teammates confident that he would lift the British Amateur championship at Troon, May 23-28, and that America would score its 10th consecutive victory in the Walker Cup matches at St. Andrews, June 3-4.

Goodman believes that this will be his greatest year in golf, and looked in shape to make it so. He weighed 167 pounds, or three pounds less than he scaled last fall, when he captured the National Amateur.

The personable young man of Omaha is hitting the ball longer than ever before.

"When I won the United States Open five years ago, I was hitting tee shots about 220 yards," related Goodman. "Each year since then I've hit them a bit longer until I'm now averaging close to 240."

"I'm swinging faster than formerly, and it hasn't caused me to lose control. I'm still pretty straight off the tee."

Goodman stopped off at the Medinah Country Club, Chicago, to play a round with Tommy Armour and have the gray Scot check his game. That has been his custom for several springs.

ARMOUR corrects things here and there, and, in general, reduces even an outstanding performer's margin of error.

He gave Goodman a No. 4 wood, and Johnny called it a sweetheart. "I've always had trouble with my lofted woods," asserted Goodman. "I can use a 1, 2, or 3 iron okeh, but I've always had trouble with a 3 or 4 wood. But not with this 4 that Tommy's given me. I can really do things with it. With this club and Tommy's advice to close my stance somewhat, I'm all set to do my best."

Goodman has played the St. Andrews course. Winds on the famous Scottish layout shift a lot, and are hard to judge.

"A further handicap to an American in the British Amateur is the ball," said Goodman. "The British play with a smaller ball, and I find that this ball lights harder and doesn't roll as far. You have to hit approach shots about twice as hard. On putts the ball has a tendency to follow the slightest contour on the surface of the green."

YET members of the last American Walker Cup squad that went abroad used the British ball . . . found it better adapted to the winds than their own.

Goodman said that Armour told him much about courses and conditions on the other side, and promised to follow his instructions to the letter.

"Listen to your caddy, and do what he says," was Armour's tip. Caddies on the other side see, for the most part, mature men who've been at the trade for years. They know every blade of grass, every hazard, and just what club a player should use.

A player takes the caddy assigned him, with no questions asked, but Johnny Goodman promised to listen to whoever he drew.

He is counting on his caddy to help him to the British Amateur championship.

Freight Rates Upon Citrus Meal Have Been Lowered

By United Press

WESLACO, Tex.—The Southwestern Freight Bureau, an organization of railroads, has approved freight rate reductions on citrus meal feed for cattle and poultry to points east of the Mississippi River, according to James H. Hartzog, traffic manager for the Rio Grande Citrus Exchange.

The reductions are subject to concurrence of rate-making bodies in the eastern territory.

Hartzog compared the old rate of $1.10 per the 100 pounds on citrus feed to Chicago with the new rate of 59 cents per the 100 as a typical example of the reduction. Rates to other eastern points would be reduced proportionately.

The South Texas Cannery's Association, representing other Texas shippers, at the same time decided to oppose two proposed rate increases involving freight shipped through the valley's ports at Port Isabel and Brownsville.

The association voted to join with the Brownsville Chamber of Commerce in protest against establishment of a rate of 46 cents per hundred pounds for through rail-and-water shipments of canned goods from Valley points through Valley ports. Also opposed was a suspension of a scheduled reduction in truck rates from Valley cities to the ports.

Lieut. Governor Has Most Power With Legislature

By Gordon K. Shearer

United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN.—The lieutenant governor of Texas has more power to shape state legislation than that possessed by the governor.

The governor can only recommend legislation and veto bills which he disapproves. The lieutenant governor can do much to shape the bills and to bring about their passage or defeat.

The lieutenant governor's power is exerted in appointment of senate committees, and particularly in naming conference committees. Similar power is given the speaker of the house of representatives, but it is not so decisive in the house. The speaker is selected by a majority and must satisfy more than half of its 150 members. The lieutenant governor presides over a senate that had no special voice in his selection. It takes two-thirds to set aside his decisions. He has the deciding vote when the senate divides evenly upon any question.

All measures upon which house and senate disagree without actually killing the entire measure go to conference committees for adjustment. The presiding officers select the conferees. Each body has an equal number of conferees. House and senate must accept what they agree upon or discharge them and let new conferees attempt a reconciliation. House conferees vote separately from senate conferees. A majority of both is needed for a favorable report on a bill. If conferees fail to agree, the only way a bill can pass is by house or senate backing up and accepting it as passed by the other branch.

Besides his important functions as presiding officer of the state senate, the lieutenant governor takes on all the duties of governor when the governor absents himself from the state. Until the governor returns, the lieutenant governor can do anything the governor would be able to do. Presiding over the senate, the lieutenant governor is paid $10 a day.

While he is acting governor, he receives the same pay as the governor does.
