LOUISIANA BLINKS ITS EYES, SEES HUEY LONG "REINCARNATED" AS SON CAMPAIGNS ON CAMPUS

Give It Straight From the Shoulder

Before so very long, commencement orators will be popping up like so many jack-in-the-pulpits, and up and down our broad land, exhorting high school and college seniors about the world which they are soon to enter.

Commencement time is still a number of weeks away, but the orators might well start in now to think about what they are going to say. For the world has more or less put them on the spot.

What can a man say to these youngsters, anyhow? He can't paint a rosy picture for them, because the plain facts are mostly the reverse of rosy. He can't tell them that the world is waiting to use their skill and energy, because the world can't begin to find jobs for the people who graduated last year and the year before.

He can't, in short—if he is an honest man—tell them much of anything, except that the world is in a bad mess and that they have drawn the unenviable assignment of stepping out into it at the worst possible time.

Yet even to say that much is better than to say nothing. For youth is not cowardly. It can stand it to hear the worst; indeed, there is something about the resiliency and the dauntless energy of youth which makes a bad situation act as a challenge.

And there is nothing we need right now more than a frame of mind in which we can see in our troubles a challenge rather than a reason for rushing to the nearest wailing wall.

We have had our fill, or ought to have had it, of drift-along in the pious hope that sooner or later things would right themselves without our help. Maybe there was a time when that sort of attitude would work, but it doesn't work now. We are drifting downstream, and unless we help ourselves there is precious little to hope for.

So our innocent young graduates might just as well get it straight from the shoulder, this spring, and know the worst. And we of the older generation could very profitably listen in with them.

For it is our world as well as theirs and we are at least partly responsible for the shape affairs are in these days. Perhaps we clung to our blind optimism too long, perhaps we grasped at solutions that wouldn't work, perhaps we simply were too heedless. Whatever the case, we can hardly be complacent about the world our youngsters are going out into, nor can we afford to assume that it is their problem and not ours.

The commencement speakers, then, may do us all some service. If they can get away from the blind, unthinking optimism traditional to commencement day, and can provoke an honest and fearless discussion of our ills and their solution, they can give us something well worth remembering.

Chesterfield Starts New Advertising Program In May

Continuing the successful Chesterfield "Treasure" campaign which has been equally welcomed by the public and the retailer, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has released a new nation-wide advertising campaign to appear during May and June.

Lively illustrations are used in all the newspaper, magazine, billboard and point-of-sale advertising, which appeals to smokers by connecting the real pleasure of smoking Chesterfields with other pleasures. Throughout the series, credit for Chesterfield's increasing popularity is given to the Chesterfield ingredients, mild, ripe tobaccos—homegrown and aromatic Turkish—and pure cigarette paper.

Supporting the general campaign, Chesterfield continues its radio broadcasts featuring Paul Whiteman, Grace Moore, Andre Kostelanetz and Paul Douglas, baseball commentator. These programs are featured in the coming newspaper advertisements and attention is called to them in each advertisement of the series.

Liggett & Myers reports general approval from retailers for the current Chesterfield point-of-sale displays, which have been complimented for their "eye-appeal" and for their consistent combina-

All of England Gets Gas Masks

By United Press

LONDON.—The British government soon will be able to provide every man, woman and child in England with a gas mask within eight hours in an emergency.

The government now has more than 30,000,000 masks ready for distribution to local authorities, who will keep them under proper conditions until it is thought necessary to distribute them to the public. The production of masks is continuing at the rate of 500,000 a week.

After an air raid wardens have visited every house and, so far as possible, actually tried on the various sizes of masks, it is anticipated that the distribution of masks to the whole population could be accomplished in eight hours.

A memorandum from the Home Office has been sent to all local authorities setting out the position of the moment and the steps it will be necessary to take in the various localities.

Local authorities are asked to supply particulars of the numbers of men, women and of children between the ages of 4 and 16 years, 2 and 4 years, and under 2 years in their area.

The government, however, does not intend to wait for this detailed information, but will supply respirators for local storage on a rough estimate of the requirements. Children under 2 will be fitted with a protective device which will totally enclose them.

It is possible that in at least one area the government will conduct a test distribution to the living there.

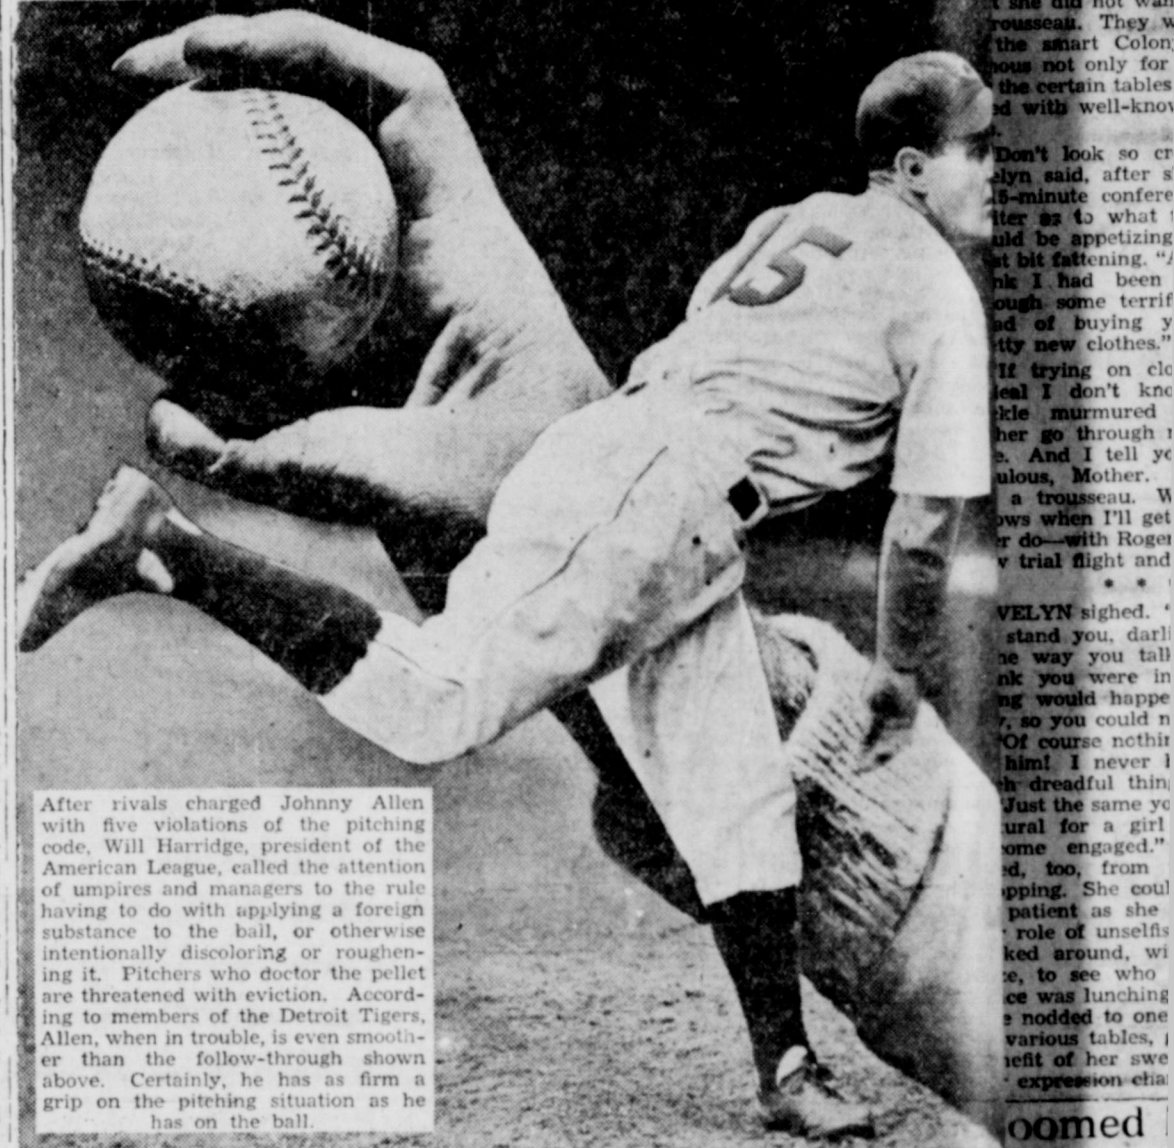

Experiments are also being conducted for protection for livestock. Experiments will have to be kept which are sealed against the air.

It is said that England is ahead of any other country in its arrangements for safeguarding its civilian population.

The storage places to be used by the local authorities are known as "local respiratory centers" and are being established from experiments conducted in the past.

From experiments conducted in the past, it has been considered that in large towns of the local stores should accommodate 30,000 respirators. It has been demonstrated that a minimum number of respirators can satisfactorily be distributed by one distributing depot of 4,000.

TOO GOOD TO BE LEGAL

After rivals charged Johnny Allen with five violations of the pitching code, Will Harridge, president of the American League, called the attention of umpires and managers to the rule having to do with applying a foreign substance to the ball, or otherwise intentionally discoloring or roughening it. Pitchers who doctor the ball are threatened with eviction. According to members of the Detroit Tigers, Allen, when in trouble, is even smoother than the follow-through shown above. Certainly, he has as firm a grip on the pitching situation as he has on the ball.

JACKIE DUNN—heroine; she is a young girl who has just returned from the States where she has been living with her mother. She is a very popular girl and is being courted by a young man named Roger. She is a very intelligent and capable girl and is a very popular girl and is being courted by a young man named Roger. She is a very intelligent and capable girl and is a very popular girl and is being courted by a young man named Roger.

CHAPTER VII
VERAL days after the evening when Roger had told Jackie that his important news had come, Jackie received what she might have called the shock of her young life. Evelyn and Jackie had gone into town for a day's shopping, and Jackie's continued protest against the matter did not seem to have any effect. They were lunching at the smart Colony restaurant, and Jackie was not only for its food, but the certain tables always identified with well-known persons.

"Don't look so cross, darling," Jackie said, after she had spent a minute conference with the waiter as to what to order that day. "Anyone would think I had been putting you through some terrific ordeal, instead of buying you all those nice new clothes."

"I'm trying on clothes isn't an affair I don't know what it's all about," Jackie murmured darkly. "I'd rather go through something like this than to see you buying a trousseau. When goodness knows when I'll get married—if I do—with Roger planning this trial flight and everything."

EVELYN sighed. "I can't understand you, darling," she said. "One would think you were in hopes someone would happen to the dear, so you could not marry..."

"Of course nothing will happen until I never hoped for anything like that," her mother said. But the storm gathering in Jackie's young face must have stopped her for once from carrying out any such idea. It did not deter her from her main objective, however. She managed to signal Henri with her bright glance. "You see that young lady in the far corner, Henri?" she said. "The young one, all in black—with the two silver fox scarfs. I wonder if you would see if you could learn her name for me, please."

"But certainly, Madame," Henri replied promptly. He held a brief conference with the head waiter, returned to their table. "The lady's name is well known, Madame," he bowed elaborately. "Especially in our capital city—Washington. She is the widow of the late Charles Melrose."

"Charles Melrose!" Evelyn gasped. Even then that name held no significance for Jackie. She was only half listening anyway. "Yes, Madame," Henri bowed again. "She was famous for her beauty when she was Miss Evelyn Davidson. And for other things. She was the young lady who won the long-distance trophy at the Cleveland air-show. I believe Mrs. Melrose is exceedingly interested in aviation, Madame."

THAT was when the full force of the shock hit Jackie. Naturally she was called to attention by any mention of flying. Then she put two and two together rapidly. Why, that attractive young girl was Roger's Mrs. Santa Claus!

"Thank you very much, Henri," Evelyn dismissed him with a graciously condescending smile. "Did you hear that, darling?" she addressed Jackie. "Why, Charles Melrose was one of the wealthiest men in the world! I believe this was his second wife—though I presume she received all of his money, as the first was a divorcee and settlement. He must have been much older than his young widow. But how on earth do you suppose Roger got to know her?"

"Mrs. Melrose is going to finance Roger's stratosphere flight. That is if Roger is lucky enough to get his chance. Which I suppose he will, if she is as important as Henri says she is." Jackie's tone almost sounded as though she hoped now that Roger would not get his big opportunity. "Henri always knows how important the people are who come to the Colony," Evelyn replied. "That's the reason I reserve this table, my dear." She turned around deliberately in order to look again at Roger's companion. Then she leaned toward her daughter, lowering her voice. "Well, I only have one thing to say, darling. If Roger was my young man, and I was engaged to him, I would not allow him to make any such flight. Not if such an attractive young woman was going to back him! Mark my word, Jacqueline, unless you put a stop to it now, you may regret it all the rest of your life!"

MYRA NORTH, Special Nurse -- By Thompson and Coll
 ALL IS CONFUSION IN THE SMOKE-FILLED CONJURE WOMAN'S CABIN FOLLOWING THE SUDDEN SHOT THRU THE WINDOW! JACK LEAPS FOR THE DOOR...
 THERE'S NO WOODOO ABOUT THIS, MYRA! LOOK AFTER BESSIE... I'M AFRAID THEY'VE GOT HER!
 TELL ME WHERE YOU'RE HURT, AUNT BESSIE... I CAN'T FIND ANY WOUND!
 OH, ME—AH DONE BEEN W-LEED!
 THEY TOLD ME IT WASN'T SAFE TO PACK A GUN IN THE HILLS! WHAT CHANCE HAVE I GOT TO CATCH THAT BIRD WITH MY BARE HANDS?
 SEE HERE, ALINTIE—YOU'RE NOT HURT AT ALL! THE BULLET GLANCED OFF THIS HEAVY METAL CHARM AROUND YOUR NECK!
 LAWDY ME! I SHOULD KNOW NO ONE COULD KILL ME WHILE I WAS WEARIN' DAT CHARM!

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

 WASHINGTON — Congressman Bruce Barton of New York, the handsome advertising man who wrote "The Man Nobody Knows," remained relatively obscure in Washington as long as he merely kept proposing repeal of a law.
 But now Mr. Barton proposes that a new law be passed and he is in the headlines. Democrats are embarrassed by the Barton proposal. They probably will manage to bury it, but their faces will be red just the same. Barton wants an amendment to the corrupt practices act which would send to prison any official distributing government funds who influenced the political beliefs or actions of a recipient.
 It is hard for a politician to think up any plausible reason why such a law shouldn't be passed. Any reason that he can give publicly, that is, the embarrassment which comes from failing to get behind such an obviously good law is by no means equal, in the case of many politicians, to the embarrassment which might be caused by its passage.
 Senator H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, another Republican, got himself laughed at by protesting Vice-President Garner's failure to appoint him to the joint TVA investigating committee.
 Bridges had been one of TVA's most savage critics and it was informally agreed that conspicuous attacks or friends of TVA should be left off the committee. Thus chairman Andrew J. May of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, the most outspoken enemy of TVA in the House, was omitted from the list. And so were such ardent partisans of TVA as Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska and Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas.
 Last year "Styles" was being discreetly groomed, promoted and publicized by certain persons as a presidential possibility. But the fellows who used to come around whispering that Bridges was a man to be watched and would go far aren't coming around any more.
 Senator Key Pittman, the Senate's president pro tem, had to threaten to clear the galleries because of the laughter which ensued when Sen. Tom Connally of Texas sought to sum up the Bridges situation by saying:
 "One of the surviving New Deal brain trusters, who has been brain-trusting and functioning in various important capacities almost since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration, was quite frank the other night when taxed with the fact that there still seemed to be an enormous amount of confusion within the administrative ranks.
 No more confusion than there always had been, he insisted, and quoted for a comparison the remark of an old Boer general who said after the South African war: "Our lines of communication were so disorganized that not even the British knew what we were doing!" (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

 NEW YORK — Seeing and chatting with blond Alice Marble causes one to suspect that Heien Willis Moody will have someone besides Senorita Anita Lizona, Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, and Nancy Wynne, the Australian star, with whom to contend at Wimbledon and in the United States women's tennis championship.
 The Marble health, which caused the San Francisco miss to collapse on a French court in 1934 and put her on the sidelines for almost two years, is better than ever.
 Miss Marble, who captured the American crown in 1936, will not play too much tennis again. She will compete in only the Wightman Cup match and at Wimbledon abroad.
 I have developed a better spin on my forehand drives, with the result that I am not overhitting the base lines so often," explains Miss Marble. "I am hitting as hard as ever, but the spin is keeping the ball in the court now."
 ROLLIE HEMSLEY improved young Bob Feller's control. Oscar Vitt taught him how to hold men on and throw to bases. Hemsley first caught Feller on a transcontinental barnstorming trip last fall. It was the enthusiasm that Feller reported for pitching to Hemsley that caused the Cleveland club to make a deal for Rollie. To risk the headaches that he was certain to bring to the disciplinary staff.
 When Feller shows a streak of wildness, Hemsley walks out to him and says: "Come on, kid. Forget all these guys around here. Pretend you and me are just playing catch." The veteran backstop built his influence with Feller on that sort of advice.
 Feller employs a high kicking motion with his left leg when he rears back. It was not a fast kick originally.
 Vitt taught him to speed up the kick.
 CHIEF BOSTON, key blocker in the Harvard backfield last fall, is recuperating from a serious illness. He developed peritonitis last winter. Doctors doubted that he would pull through. They fed him intravenously. Only a chap of Boston's stamina and fighting spirit could have survived.
 Boston must undergo an appendicitis operation when he regains his strength.
 Dick Harlow and Harvard men hope he will be fit for football next autumn, but it is far from certain that Chief will be permitted to play. Boston is the only Crimson blocking back who does not graduate in June.
 This gives you a fair idea of how pressed Harvard is for varsity material, but, then, Cambridge has Harlow and a fresh slant on the football situation.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

CAPE ALAVA, WASHINGTON IS THE MOST WESTERLY POINT IN THE U.S.

ELOTHERIUM,
 A SWINE-LIKE ANIMAL THAT LIVES ON EARTH MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO, HAD A SKULL MORE THAN THREE FEET IN LENGTH.

ONLY TWO NORTH AMERICAN METEORITES HAVE BEEN KNOWN TO STRIKE BUILDINGS.

THE Elotheries were not true pigs, nor even related to them, although the resemblance to wild hogs living in Europe today is striking. Little is known of their habits. They had very powerful cutting teeth and two heavy-clawed toes on each foot. They have direct descendants living at the present time.
