DARK TOWN SCANDALS

Britain Forms a War Time Plan for Her Railroads

By Joseph W. Grigg, Jr. United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON—British authorities have completed plans for protecting the country's mainline railroads and docks against air attack in the event of a future war. Schemes have been worked out by which, if any big rail junction is bombed and put out of action, food supplies and other vital material can be diverted immediately to alternative routes.

For example, virtually all main rail lines between London and the South Coast pass through Clapham Junction in South London. A few well-placed bombs could destroy the whole elaborate network there and block transportation of all food supplies, munitions and troops between London and most of the Channel ports.

Plans now have been prepared for utilizing little-used branch lines on the outskirts of London which avoid the main junctions entirely. A vital spot such as Clapham Junction also will be ringed around, as during the World War, with a "screen" of searchlights and anti-aircraft guns which would make it difficult to attack. Where rail lines are blocked temporarily, plans will be ready for immediately putting the road-transport services into operation. Main trunk roads for transporting food supplies to big cities in recent years have been duplicated and triplicated. Between London and Yorkshire, for example, there are at least four or five first-class routes.

Thousands of lorries, buses and private automobiles already have been listed for commandeering if necessary. Equally vital to the country's food supplies are London's miles of docks. The government plans, in the event of war, to make considerable use of small, comparatively safe, ports on the Bristol Channel and Irish Sea, which would be less likely to be bombed than such ports as London and Southampton.

The Port of London Authority, however, has drawn up an elaborate scheme for safeguarding the personnel of docks, offices and warehouses against air raids and for reducing to a minimum the dislocation which might be caused by air attack. The scheme provides for protective measures—including anti-aircraft and searchlight batteries—at vital points in the dock system and defenses for ships in dock.

Numerous splinter-proof and gas-proof shelters will be provided for dock workers. The Port of London Authority's fire-fighting services will be augmented and emergency repair gangs will be organized to prevent as far as possible interruption in the handling of foodstuffs and other goods.

To insure the smooth functioning of fire-fighting services, every source of Britain's water supply will be investigated and surveyed by Geoffrey Lloyd, undersecretary to the Home Office, recently announced.

"Rivers, ponds, canals, underground rivers, artesian wells and swimming baths—in fact any supply of water which can be reached, must be carefully listed." So far, however, no special steps have been taken to safeguard the water supply of Greater London's 8,250,000 population administered by the metropolitan water board. The board itself is urging the government to give financial assistance for protection of the hundreds of reservoirs in the country around London against air attack.

"Swing" May Become Century's Folk Music

By United Press BOSTON—"Swing" is the folk music of the 20th century, according to Nicolas Slonimsky, author of "Music Since 1900."

"The listeners absorb these at times highly complicated rhythms without inhibitions and vibrate to it physiologically," said the author-composer-conductor-critic. "Swing very probably will be the inspiration of some future symphonists, who will poetize and organize its improvised tunes as the symphonists of yesterday did with the old folk melodies."

Men Also Fight Around the Table

If conferences could help, the world's troubles would have been solved long ago. We have had domestic conferences aplenty, and the international scene has had everything from League of Nations meetings to an interchange of side-of-the-mouth whispers by dictators; but still the millennium comes not, and the world's ills go on piling up.

All of which is brought to mind by the recent suggestion of Philip Murray, C. I. O. leader, that President Roosevelt summon a conference of leaders in labor, industry, finance, agriculture and government to "lead the nation out of the wilderness."

In theory, Mr. Murray's suggestion is perfectly sound. We are all in the same boat, and if it fails to stay afloat all groups and all classes are going to suffer equally; surely there ought to be enough good will and common sense to make such a conference productive of a broad-gauge plan to end the depression.

Yet the record of recent years argues against it. The average conference may provide a useful-section of the sentiment of folks back home, but it produces little in the way of a feasible plan of action.

And it may be that the reason why this is so simply that hardly any of us are able to shed the old idea that we can get ahead only at the expense of somebody else.

Suppose, for instance, that all the groups Mr. Murray enumerates were summoned into one big conference; what would happen?

If they ran true to form, each group would immediately begin to interpret the national policy in terms of its own interest. It would examine every plan submitted by another group to see—not whether it would be the best thing for the nation as a whole, but whether it would offer the best possible immediate advantage for one individual group.

In the end there would be a series of horse-trades—provided the delegates stayed away from one another's throats long enough—which would leave the nation on better off than it was before.

Which, of course, would leave the individual groups no better off. For the whole is greater than any of its parts, and in the long pull all of us are going to go up or down together.

That ought to be the most obvious single fact on the entire horizon. Yet it seems to be about the last one we can assimilate. Hence our conferences come to little good—and a sensible suggestion like this one of Mr. Murray's becomes something that only the hardiest will care to endorse.

The Austrian government is considering having at least one aboriginal man elected to its legislative body. We could lend them at least one, with experience to boot.

Grim Work Awaits Guillotine Returned As Tourist Exhibit

By United Press. SAINT GALL—After 84 years as a tourists' curiosity, the guillotine of this cantonal capital of Saint Gall, Switzerland, will be used for a real execution. Murders are rare in the canton of Saint Gall and the last decapitation took place in 1854, but now Paul Iringer, a youth convicted of several murders, is to be beheaded. Formerly, the guillotine stood in the open as a deterrent for possible criminals. But a student was seriously injured while amusing himself with it, so it was placed in a nearby inn. In this inn, a gentle, smiling waitress for 20 centimes would permit tourists to touch the slanting knife and then would demonstrate how it beheads a person. Those condemned are placed on

"College" Party Success... The Young People's department of the Methodist church school honored the graduating class of the Eastland High School at a "College" party Wednesday evening at the church with Mrs. Bert McGlamery presiding.

The lower assembly, scene of the affair, carried out in a college air with clever arrangement of banners, ornaments and the school colors of McMurray, of Abilene, Weatherford College in Weatherford and Southern Methodist University in Dallas.

As the guest of honor a ribbon representing one of the three schools featured, was given each to indicate at which "college" they were to enter by registering at the table designated.

The registration tables were decorated representing one of the three schools and with a display of the school catalogues, banners and annuals for observation by students.

Registration cards used were obtained from the selected schools in keeping with the college theme.

Each group after registering organized into a student body with a captain and two pep leaders elected.

The three groups entered were spelling, English, arithmetic, declaration, extemporaneous speaking, geography, poetry, one-act plays and choral singing.

Athletic events named were: balloon races and relays.

In all events Weatherford College placed as first with the one act plays, "If Men Played Bridge As Women Do" a decided hit of the evening.

Eastern Mayor Stands Indicted

Warrants for the arrest of Lieutenant Governor T. Frank Hayes, above, and 26 others were issued following a 20,000-word report by a Connecticut extra-ordinary grand jury which charged him with heading a "small but powerful, ruthless and corrupt group of men" who conspired to "cheat and defraud" the city of Waterbury, Conn., of sums exceeding $1,000,000.

Hayes, besides being the second ranking state executive, is mayor of Waterbury.

ing section moisture sufficient for seed germination was reported.

Delayed seeding in parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta makes the 1938 wheat acreage still uncertain and unless a warm, dry spell of weather sweeps the prairies shortly the total acreage may not exceed 22,869,000 acres, compared with 24,599,000 acres last year.

In Manitoba, there is a strong movement from durum wheat to rust-resistant bread wheat.

Surface soil in the three provinces was reported much better than at seeding time last year, and the majority of sections reported that sub-surface moisture also is good.

Whole Area Hard Hit Government authorities too are hopeful. Municipal and provincial budgets in western Canada have been drained of resources steadily, with some sections now verging on bankruptcy.

A good crop this season is expected to reduce the tremendous relief burden and to replenish the rapidly decreasing treasury.

Doomed Community Of Ozarks Resents Flood Control Plan

By United Press GREENVILLE, Mo.—This 123-year-old Ozark logging center and five other Wayne county villages are experiencing the feelings of a man sentenced to death.

The federal government has filed the first of a series of condemnation suits seeking to obtain title to this county seat town, Wappapello, Chaonia, Taskee Station, Shook and Ojibway and 23,000 acres of land that will be inundated when the $6,000,000 Wappapello flood control is completed two years from now.

Natives, who have heard talk of such a dam for 20 years, at first refused to believe that they would actually have to move, but they are now reported resigned to their fate.

Between 3,000 and 4,000 residents will be forced to evacuate the St. Francis river valley in Wayne county.

The project was designed by the War Department to prevent flooding Missouri's rich cotton producing boot-heel counties and to prevent yearly flooding of southeast Missouri cities.

The dam is expected to protect 1,500,000 acres of rich farm land and such towns as Kennett, Poplar Bluff, and Paragould, Ark., with the sacrifice of 23,000 acres of upland valley an six small towns.

The entire project, which includes construction of dikes along the river below the dam, will cost an estimated $1,000,000. Actual work on the earthen dam will start within a few weeks.

Natives object to the government program because they will only be paid for their land and buildings. Moveable property and intangibles, such as businesses and go-bills, will not be bought by the government.

Rumors have caused an influx of job-seekers. Government engineers have been forced to erect large signs to inform the job hunters they are not paying $3 an hour for grave moving as rumored.

The permanent lake will cover 6,000 acres. When there are heavy rains in the upper St. Francis basin the dam will impound up

Hurling Boomerang Becoming Popular

By United Press SYDNEY.—Boomerang throwing is rapidly becoming one of the leading sports of Australia as a result of the advice of Dr. Harvey Sutton, director of the School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine.

He insists it is one of the ideal sports, and presents the advantage over golf and several other relieving sports in that the boomerang comes back to the thrower instead of the thrower being obliged to go after it.

A man in Seattle found he had been carrying a WPA check for more than a million dollars around in his pocket for a week. When he turned it in, it was some relief.

Cows escaped recently from a run-away freight train in Colorado and the funny thing is that nobody thought of the obvious solution—the one hanging on the front of the engine.

Trial Flight

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JACKIE DUNN—heroine; she is married to Roger.
ROGER BRICKNER—hero; he works in the telephone company.
BERYL MELROSE—wealthy widow; she wanted Roger.
ERIKIN LA FARGE—Jackie's mother; she wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday, convinced of Roger's love, Jackie returns to him while Beryl leaves for New York on a secret mission.

CHAPTER XXIII

It seemed to Jackie, going back to Roger, that the cab would never reach the hospital. Oh, what Beryl had not come after her, but she would never know the truth about Roger, never would have known that he loved her.

This last thought was so tremendous that Jackie's heart beat faster than the spinning wheels. Beryl had said that it had been Jackie's name that Roger had pulled out in his delirium, that she believed that Beryl was Jackie and saved his life. Roger had not been merely acting then during his trial engagement. He had loved Jackie all the time, as she had loved him.

The cab pulled up in front of the hospital. In her excitement Jackie nearly forgot to pay the driver. She did forget her bag, so the driver had to run up the steps with it after her.

As long as she lived Jackie knew she would never forget the light that sprang into Roger's eyes, that illuminated his whole face when that door opened and he saw that she had come back to him. It was a beautiful light. It told her, more eloquently than any words, that Roger loved her.

"You missed your train!" Roger said. His tone was gay. He tried to be casual but his face still showed the nurse murmured something then about an errand she would attend, closing the door quietly as she slipped out of the room, proving an understanding heart hidden beneath the stiff starchiness of her crisp white uniform.

"Yes, I missed it," Jackie said. "On purpose."

"On purpose?" She crossed over to the bed, drew a chair up close beside it. She snatched off her hat, tossing it aside, so that once again the sunshine streaming in through the window made a brilliant halo of her golden hair. "I decided I didn't want to go, Roger, after all. I decided I was wrong—about everything. That's why I came back."

"What made you decide that?" Roger asked. His glance was searching, questioning.

JACKIE'S gaze did not waver before it. "Because I love you, Roger," she said simply, honestly. "The light that came into her eyes made her very lovely. So lovely that Roger had to turn away a moment before he could answer her.

"You... you don't mean that," he said. His tone still was gay and casual, except for an undercurrent of eagerness that so effort could suppress.

"I never meant anything so much in all my life," she went on. "I've been an awful little fool, Roger. Pretending I didn't want anything to do with love, building such wild, impossible day-dreams of what I would do with my life. But now I know, believe me, I know now that nothing matters—except love. I love you, Roger—and I'm not ashamed to say it. I came back to tell you. I'd like to tell everyone—the whole world—that I love you."

"But you just told me—only a short while ago—that you had been putting on an act," Roger said. He would not look at her; he had managed to suppress all eagerness now. "I suppose this is just another one, Jackie. In fact I'm sure of it. You only think you love me—or at least you're only saying it. Because you feel sorry for me, because I cracked up, because I'm not much good any more."

"Don't say that!" She got to her feet, bent over to silence him with a finger held against his lip. "It's not that. I'm not sorry for you. Why should I be? So you'll be just as you always were, we'll forget all about all this—your crack-up, the hospital..."

"You don't know what you're saying!" His voice was harsh. "Pity is akin to love, you know. Beryl told you—the truth about me!" He looked at her now, into her eyes—a look that would not let her glance away.

"BERYL has gone to New York," Jackie answered. "I did not say whether Beryl had told her or not. Beryl had asked her not to. Why should she say anything to me? Oh, yes... I did say that she would be back soon as she could, that she had gone on some very important matter."

Boxcar Home Goes; Tenant Calls Police

By United Press

STURGIS, Mich.—Roosevelt "Shorty" Bowers rushed in to police headquarters here with the complaint "my home has vanished."

Questioning by officers revealed that Bowers had been living in an empty box car during the winter. When he returned from a window washing job he discovered his home and household furnishings had been moved by the railroad.

Bowers asked police to send a tracer for the car so that he may get back his tarpaulin, lantern, mattress and two quilts.

Population Not Dense In Texas Despite Growth

DALLAS, Tex.—Texas has more than doubled her population since the turn of the century—a greater proportionate increase than any other section of the country save the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast regions.

However, although its gain to the 6,172,000 mark in 1937 made second only to California in speed of growth that year, its population density ranking of 5th among the states indicates that it still needs "more people," says a report of the All-South Development Council.

When its present ratio of 22.2 person per square mile is compared to such figures as 131.8 for New England, 262.2 for the Middle Atlantic states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, 103 for the Ohio-Indiana-Illinois and Michigan areas and, finally, 65.1 for the Kentucky-Alabama-Mississippi-Tennessee section, Texas

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH ROONEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—A disconcertingly huge flood of protests against Boss Frank Hague of Jersey City has been reaching the White House.

Letters and telegrams began to pour in after Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, was ejected from Jersey City when he tried to make a speech there. No one on the receiving end supposed, people would make too much rumpus. But it would take a much mightier shout to make the administration act against Hague.

President Roosevelt can hardly be blamed for the Jersey City affair just because Mayor Hague denies the right of free speech there. But he could move to oust Hague from his post as vice-chairman of the Democratic National Committee and he has been asked to do that.

Neither Roosevelt nor National Chairman Jim Farley, however, is willing to sever relations with a Democratic machine boss who controls a state as populous as New Jersey. Meanwhile, such Republican leaders as former Governor Landon of Kansas and Governor Aiken of New York have publicly attacked Hague and his strong-arm tactics.

THE editor of a weekly newspaper in Iowa recently wrote in a humorous column that it was rumored a WPA worker had died of heart disease and that officials had had to examine 24 smokers to see which of them it was. Curiously enough, a WPA worker died of heart failure that very day and a delegation of a hundred or more WPA employes marched to see the editor, who was out at the time but subsequently apologized.

ALTHOUGH conservative Supreme Court justices have no love for the liberals who now dominate the Court and the split among this group is perhaps the most interesting, definite fact behind the scenes in the current hubbub over charges that other justices were taking cracks at Black.

nieled he ever told anyone that Black was incompetent or lacking in craftsmanship. But Stone's friends know that he and other liberal justices believe Black wants to move altogether too fast in tearing down a structure of Court rulings and precedents with which most liberals don't agree. Stone and the more cautious liberals want to proceed step by step, without making the Court turn spectacular flip-flops. Black believes in prompt, vigorous attack on what he considers a century or more of constitutional misinterpretation. This is his recent spectacular dissent denouncing the 50-year-old Court ruling that a corporation was a "person."

The dispute between Stone and Black, largely over tactics, seems to be most of the real fire beneath recent clouds of smoke. "I've taken an oath to uphold the Constitution, not to be guided by political exigencies or strategic considerations," said Black recently when a friend told him of criticisms of his dissents within the Court.

BY HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

BILL TERRY is a devoted disciple of the late Texas Guinan's—or is it W. C. Fields?—colorful philosophy: "Never give a sucker an even break."

Having made a messenger boy of everybody in the New York Giants' organization, Terry now is extending his arrogant hand to other National League outfits and parks.

The Chicago Cubs, having permitted Chille Willo to take pennants away from them in 1936 and '37, not only let his Polo Grounders sweep the club's first 1938 series, but allowed the Cheerless Leader to take charge of their playing field.

They permitted Terry to run the games and Wrigley Field with equal freedom. He countermanded park rules and canceled the sideline customs, with home officials exhibiting a meekness only equaled by the politeness their athletes showed in submitting to trappings.

The Bruins appear used to it now. Old Poosh 'Em Up Lazzeri has helped, but his hitting in the clean-up spot is the tipoff on the north side outfit, whose pitchers lack staying qualities, too.

ONE of the oldest Cub customs is to allow photographers to shoot from spaces in foul territory, well back of first and third bases. Before the last game of the Giant-Cub series, Charley Grimm, manager of Wrigley's, and Charles Drake, one of their many officials, extended the lens lads the same permission.

However, when the Cubs came to bat in the first inning, the imperious Terry ordered the photographers away from their right field post. Grimm met with Umpires Reardon and Pinelli, and the latter returned to his first base station to tell the cameramen, "Stay where you are."

But not even an umpire gets away with anything in a league which Terry has adopted as his own. When Stanley Hack, the Cubs' third baseman, stepped into the batter's box, up sprang Terrible Terry to yell: "Hack, you get out of that batter's box till these ——— photographers leave here."

HACK obeyed. The Cubs are used to obeying, and, moreover, Umpire Pinelli thereupon reversed his decision, and obliged the photographers to obey the New York manager, too.

Even Commissioner Landis swung into line, with "Maybe he thinks he's in New York," the reference being to Terry's rules against cameramen at the Polo Ground. I suspect that Landis wouldn't be surprised if Terry started to run his office next.

Anyway, the Wrigley Field incident closed with the photographers huddling on the Cubs' side of the field, and with the Cub officials and umpires meek as mice. All hands sort of sought protection against the heavy hand of Terrible Terry.

It's really too bad for the National League that Bill Terry can't control Joe McCarthy and the Yankees as he does the opposition and um-

Gas Company Is Rate Case Victor; Wins Nine Others

Lone Star Gas Company's victory in the famous rate case decided in its favor by the United States Supreme Court is the climax to a long series of court victories by the company, according to company officials. Since 1929, the company has won nine cases that have reached final decision.

In the present case, after six years of exhaustive investigation by the Texas Railroad Commission and the Courts, the company has established the fact that the railroad commission's order reducing its rate from 40 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to 32 cents was unjust and confiscatory. The Supreme Court sustained the verdict of a jury in the district court at Austin which held that the rate ordered by the commission was unfair and has returned the case to the Court of Civil Appeals for judgment accordingly.

This case, started by the railroad commission in 1932, was the one in which the commission assailed the company's advertising.

laying down a policy which virtually would have prevented the company from advertising had it been upheld. While the commission did not eliminate the company's advertising expense in this case, it inferred that most of its advertising was for political purposes and stated as a positive policy that only the local distributing companies should advertise and not the Lone Star Gas Company.

The Supreme Court, according to company attorneys, in effect held that since the jury as the trier of the facts found the commission's order confiscatory upon the conflicting facts, the Court of Civil Appeals could not overturn the jury's verdict on the ground that the company had failed to properly segregate its Texas and Oklahoma property. The High Court further held that the evidence was sufficient which the company introduced in support of its claim that the commission's rate was confiscatory.

The court held that the gas company had by appropriate evidence shown the commission's order to be confiscatory, that the jury had so found, that under the State practice the Court of Civil Appeals was not empowered to substitute its findings for conflicting evidence, and that therefore the case should be remanded to the Court of Civil Appeals for a judgment accordingly.
