Wheat Insurance Rates Are Listed For Two Counties

COLLEGE STATION, May 3.—Farmers who insure their 1938 wheat crops for a guarantee of one-half their average yield, must pay premiums ranging from .1 bushel an acre to 1.6 bushels, it was estimated today by George Slaughter, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee.

For insurance that guarantees three-fourths of a crop, the premiums will range from .7 bushels to 2.5 bushels an acre. The rates are figured by counties. They are based on average per acre loss during 1925 to 1936. Estimates for the average loss per acre for insured percentages of 75 per cent and 50 per cent by counties includes: Nolan County, two bushels for 75 per cent, one bushel for 50 per cent. Palo Pinto County, .7 bushel for 75 per cent, .3 bushel for 50 per cent.

DRAMATIC RESCUE FROM FLOUNDERING PLANE

The plane may be the king of the sky, but when forced down it's mighty handy to have a ship close by. The photo above shows the recent dramatic rescue of 12 passengers and a crew member from a Pan-American twin-engine flying boat which developed motor trouble while flying from Cuba to Jamaica and had to land on the shark-infested waters of the Caribbean. A freighter, the Cavina, sent an open boat to take the marooned off the plane. When the no-longer flying boat began to sink, three other crew members put to sea on a rubber raft. A couple of sharks tried to attack them and they were finally saved by a tugboat. The plane sank an hour after coming down.

Mutual Slaughter and and Sportsmanship

The plaintive cry from Japanese army headquarters that the Chinese are not playing fair in the fighting in Shantung may turn out to be the last dying gasp of that noble fiction which once went by the name of Civilized Warfare.

According to the Japanese, the proverbially clever Chinese have been playing mean tricks on their unsuspecting invaders.

Chinese soldiers doff their uniforms, filter into the countryside back of the Japanese lines and contrive to look like farmhands, day laborers, or what not. At a propitious moment they extract weapons from secret hiding places and sally forth to slaughter Japanese truck drivers, blow up Japanese supply trains, shoot Japanese sentries and military police, and in other ways make life uncomfortable for their enemies.

All of this, say the Japanese, is not the high-minded and chivalric sort of fighting that was learned on the playing fields of Eton, and it obliges the sons of Nippon to burn Chinese Villages, tear down farmhouses, and shoot a number of people who claim to be innocent civilians.

You could argue, of course, that the Chinese can hardly be blamed for disregarding the rules of warfare, in view of the fact that Japan has insisted from the start that this isn't a war at all, but just an incident.

But it is more interesting to reflect that even the exponents of extreme ruthlessness in warfare look back longingly to the days when war was a formalized contest carried on according to definite rules.

Those rules, devised by general agreement to mitigate the horrors of unrestrained savagery, provided that soldiers should fight only soldiers, that some sort of code of fair play should cover their mutual killings, and that rival commanders should be able to trust each other, within limits.

For a full century or more they have been breaking down. The code still lingered in the American Civil War, although there were notable cases in which that war was fought without gloves. Since then things have grown much worse, until now passenger steamers are sunk without warning, defenseless towns are bombed, civilians are machine-gunned by aviators, and prisoners are executed in wholesale lots.

The last trace of "civilized warfare" has vanished; and it would be just as well if we all realized the fact. For while this world could safely contemplate the chances of war when war was fought by professionals within definite limits, it cannot do so nowadays, when war has no limits at all and babes in their cradles are the most likely victims. And a world that cannot shape its policies in the light of that fact is heading for a tremendous catastrophe.

Latin America Is Needing Education Upon Democracy

FORT WORTH.—Education of Latin-American neighbors in the benefits of democracy is needed to forestall propaganda in Central and South America, Dr. Samuel Guy Inman, secretary of the Committee on Cooperation in Latin America, believes. Germany, Italy and Japan are flooding Latin America with stories of their glory, he said. "This propaganda," Dr. Inman said, "is persuading hundreds of thousands of young Latin Americans that democracy is a failure. The worst part of it is that they have no chance to learn what the democratic peoples are doing. "American radio broadcasts that reach Latin America are mostly in English, and they are concerned chiefly with big football games, prize fights and labor strikes. "We should let these neighbors know what's going on in our colleges, clubs and civic organizations, at them hear our music instead of a prize fight broadcast. Inman proposed a congressional appropriation for a powerful radio station in the United States to broadcast cultural programs in Spanish and Portuguese to Latin American listeners. He also suggested that this country and others of the western hemisphere exchange teachers and students, encourage neighbors to visit them, and distribute the best democratic literature among their peoples. The Committee on Cooperation with Latin America is sponsored by the mission boards of thirty church denominations.

Candid Camera On Ranch Is Paying Owner Dividends

BONHAM, Texas.—Erwin E. Smith, who lives at Bermuda Ranch, 12 miles north of Bonham, still is making photography pay after bringing the candid camera to the cattle ranges a quarter-century ago. Smith's photographs—action shots of the round-up, branding and bronc riding—were published in national magazines early in the century. He still supplies pictures, taken on ranches, for magazines and for technical comparisons in Western movies. His collection includes thousands of prints. The cowboy photographer came to the Panhandle in 1900 and made many of his best "shots" in the years before action pictures were attempted generally. Smith strapped his box and bulb to the saddle and photographed the cowboy at his work. He made portraits of such early ranchers as Col. Charles Goodnight, Murdo Mackenzie, and Henry Campbell. Smith's hobby is raising Hereford calves.

The bridegroom is the eldest son of the Detroit motor magnate, while the bride is the daughter of Mrs. Walter H. Sykes of New York.

This Is Month of Drownings in Texas Health Officer Says

AUSTIN.—May is the month when most Texans take a look at the thermometer, make a dive for their bathing suits and hunt for the nearest swimming pool or lake. Swimming is a fine sport but it does involve certain hazards. It is tragedy enough to have a drowning accident but far greater tragedy if no one present knows how to save life by artificial respiration.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, advises that the "Prone Pressure Method" is the accepted one for restoring life from drowning. The method involves the following steps: Place patient stomach down, one arm stretched above the other bent, with face resting on it.

Rescue measures should begin at once and continue rhythmically until natural breathing is established. This may take four or more hours. The procedure is:

- 1. Kneel, and straddle the patient below the hips, placing hand on small of the back with fingers over the lowest ribs, tips of fingers just out of sight. 2. With arms straight, while counting one, two, swing forward bearing weight on body firmly but not violently. 3. Swing backwards while counting one, straightening up and thus relieving pressure. This allows air to be drawn into the lungs. 4. Rest in this position for two counts. 5. Repeat these movements rhythmically, forward and backward, without interruption, about twelve to fifteen a minute, until natural breathing is restored.

Police investigating the disappearance of Andrew Carnegie W. field, nephew of Andrew Carnegie, missing since he took off in a private plane from Roosevelt Field, L. I., on April 15, found a pair of his slippers and a pair of his shoes in a Garden City, L. I., hotel, where he is thought to have registered under an assumed name. As detectives display the suitcase and clothing.

6. Meanwhile, if assistance is at hand, a physician should be sent for, patient's tight clothing should be loosened at neck, chest or waist, and patient should be kept warm. Patient should not be moved from this spot until he is breathing naturally and then should be carried in a lying position to a place where he can be kept and receive expert medical attention. Books on Review

"Action at Aquila" by Hervey Allen, the author of "Anthony Adverse," is a romance of the Civil War.

Along the Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia Border and against the magnificent autumn background of the Valley of Virginia, this story moves in the pagantry of way shot through with the lives, deaths, loves, thoughts and tragedies of the long to be remembered people who throng its pages. Battle, two loves stories with passages of poignant and beauty, the threatening tragedy and stark triumph of the story's end which complicate and resolve its unusual plot—all prevent the skipping of a page.

This is indeed romance, love and great adventuring. But it is romance with an idea, war with a theme, and adventure with a purpose. The strong necessity, the braving of infinite difficulty for preserving the unity of the nation, the intolerable prospect of misery with disunion would entail are here brought home as a reality to the reader in the form of contemporary experience. The love stories are instinct with the growth of character through the frustrations and chaos of the war involving both the younger and older generations. What happens when oratory fails in implicit in one of the most moving battle scenes of modern times—the "Action at Aquila."

Young Dr. Andy Lane takes his wife, Neal, and his serious little daughter, Jenny, out to Hollywood, where he sets up his practice in "Call Back Love" by Margaret. Before many months on the movies metropolis, Neal, young, pretty, and extremely restless, catches the fever to "go into pictures." She takes Jenny out of school, and puts her (at great financial sacrifice) among the youthful stars of Miss Lee's private school. She feels that through confidential, exotic Miss Lee, who was once in pictures, she can make "contacts."

Her chance comes when Director Von Loben finds it necessary to shoot some group scenes for Kitty Kelly's new picture in Miss Lee's school. Neal preens herself and forgets all about Jenny, who to Neal's ultimate surprise, is chosen in her stead, to stardom. While their plain little youngster, with her delightful natural laugh, unconsciously wins fame and riches, Neal and Andy themselves get caught up in the whirlpool of hectic Hollywood, where actors and actresses make gay inroads on the lives of ordinary married folk.

Here is a gay and tender story about Hollywood, about the children who earn more money than their parents, about the whole swift pace and glitter of the most amazing town in the world. Yet the characters are so real and everyday, that they might be any family living anywhere.

The Eastland Public library opens on Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday afternoons from 2 until 5:30 o'clock.

J. A. Lant, Carrie Shedd, Midfield Oil Ryalties of Texas, a corporation, Alva Eastman, Alice M. Eastman, Eunice Eastman, William Eastland and Phillip K. Eastman are Defendants and the cause of action being alleged as follows:

The Ohio Oil Company has filed its original bill of interpleader in the above entitled and numbered cause, tendering into the Registry of said Court the proceeds of certain oil purchased by it which was produced from that certain tract of land known as the "56" Petroleum Corporation Sam Hunt Farm situated in Eastland County, Texas and being 96 and 1-2 acres of land, a part of the E. Finley League and the E. Duncan Homestead, which land is described by metes and bounds in plaintiff's original petition on file herein, to which reference is made, and is also described by metes and bounds in that certain oil and gas lease executed by Nannie Allman to S. R. Hunt, executed on September 4, 1929, and recorded in Vol. 311 at page 358, Deed Records of Eastland County, Texas, to which reference is here made for a more particular description of said premises; the said The Ohio Oil Company further offering to tender and pay into the registry of said Court the proceeds of the sale of a portion of any oil purchased by it after March 1, 1938, up to the time of the trial of said cause; alleging that the plaintiff and defendant's in said cause are asserting conflicting claims to the proceeds of the sale of oil produced from said premises and praying that the Court require such claimants to interplead in this cause, so that their respective claims and rights in, and to the funds so tendered into the registry of the Court may be determined in this cause, and the rights of the plaintiff, "56" Petroleum Corporation of Texas, to the foreclosure of a lien upon said funds and upon the interest of the defendants in said cause may be determined.

JIM WENT TO THE CELLER Last night Jim, our next-door neighbor, went to the cellar and looked over his last year's porch furniture. His appraising eye saw all the scratches and wear given the chairs last year by his three growing boys. Jim decided that he needed some paint and a new brush; and planned to take that furniture out in the back yard next Saturday afternoon for the annual cleaning-up process. Curious, but men all over the country are now thinking of paint, and seeds, and outdoor games. And—a new hat, a new suit and some new shirts. And maybe the women don't feel the urge to buy new things! And why shouldn't they? Why be content with old things when there is money for new? Mercanths are offering the latest goods of all sorts in the advertisements in this newspaper. Go to them as you would to old friends. You can rely upon their descriptions of every article.
