Goodby Gay Vienna! Heil Stern Adolf!

The Nazis have finally extended their benign guidance to what used to be Austria and gay, dreamy Vienna henceforth may be about as gay and dreamy as Philadelphia on a dreary winter Sunday.

One of the major tragedies of the Hitlerization of little Austria is the certainty that the be-good-or-be-beaten discipline that the Nazis so dearly love will be imposed on her capital, Vienna, where for many centuries good food, beautiful women and gay dancing have been considered among the most important things in life, may feel the puritanical influence of the Nazi reform mania.

Wiener schnitzel will be broiled in some imitation butter, because the Nazis must have guns instead of butter. The beautiful women will be sent to camps to learn farm work or they may be told that their place is forever in the home, for they must be ready to do their solemn bit when the big war comes.

Leisure, long looked upon as an art in Vienna, will of course be something to be forgotten for there can be no unemployment—much less anything like leisure—in a Nazi state. In short, the Viennese must stop having fun and be quick about dedicating their lives to the greater glory of Herr Hitler and his ideas of how the world should be run.

In this befuddled world the Nazis are true missionaries. Nothing makes a good storm trooper happier than the knowledge that he has changed the way of living of some erring soul and brought to him the stern light of national socialism. And right there you have the aspect of Nazism that is more irritating to a lot of people than the more sinister phases of the movement.

The Germans used to be just about the world's jolliest people. It was a rare German indeed who was not dominated by the spirit of gemuetlichkeit. But Herr Hitler apparently has changed them into a nation of crusading zealots.

Not long ago it was even decreed that the Germans would consume no beer this spring. Go away with it, too. Whatever you think of Der Fuehrer you must admit that he accomplishes things no man ever dared dream before the advent of the Nazi regime.

But when Herr Hitler finally gets everything he wants—which is quite a bit—what then? Will the German people be happy? Ordinary human beings—and that is just exactly what the Germans fundamentally are—ask more pleasure of life than the Nazis are willing to permit.

So for the present: Heil Hitler, Vienna, and forget all those champagne parties, grand balls, and the light and carefree spirit that made you famous. As the capital of a Nazi state you now have a mission, and the fulfillment of that mission leaves no room for the enjoyment of living.

Death Not Taking Holiday on Roads; Child Deaths Fewer

AUSTIN.—Death is not taking a holiday on the open roads and city streets of Texas, but despite increases each year in population and the number of scholastics in Texas schools, fewer children die each year from traffic accidents in this state, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, state health officer. But the toll is still appalling. Last year 221 under 15 were killed, 154 of them between five and 14 years of age, yet state safety officials, educators and others intensely interested in preserving child health are encouraged. It has been definitely demonstrated that safety measures are effective and the tragic cost in child life can be materially reduced in the future, he pointed out.

That special emphasis be placed on safety as part of health and protection on State May Day is being asked by the Child Health Day Committee, and plans are being formulated to make every Texan conscious of what is being done and what must be done to preserve life of Texas children.

The state highway department has done much to help lower the number of fatalities among the school children of Texas, and Child Health Day affords the May Day committee an opportunity to bring the department's work along this line to public attention. These are some of the outstanding safety measures the highway department has effected:

1. Constructed thousands of hard-surfaced turn-outs at mail boxes so that the school bus will not be forced to stop on pavement in order to discharge or take on passengers.
2. Widened the hard-surfaced portion of the roadway in front of many rural schools adjacent to the highway so that vehicles bringing children to and from school will not be forced to stop on the pavement.

3. Provided for a standard portable "School Children" sign to be placed in the center of the highway wherever school boys' patrols are organized by school superintendents to keep the signs in place during the periods of the day when children are crossing the street.

4. Constructed sidewalks on many bridges in rural areas to safeguard school children and pedestrians.

5. Constructed sidewalks adjacent to the right-of-way line in front of many rural schools to reduce congestion and the hazard of groups of school children walking on the road.

6. Chain link fences along the right-of-way in front of some rural schools to limit crossing of roads to single areas and to prevent school children at play from rushing onto the road.

7. Begun hard surfacing hundreds of miles of road shoulders to reduce hazards of motorists running off the pavement and as an incentive to pedestrians to stay off the pavement when meeting cars.

8. Provided the Red Cross first aid course to employees of the Texas Highway Department to increase efficiency in assistance at accidents.

9. Eliminated hundreds of railroad grade crossings in the interest of safety.

Has your community benefited by such activities and yet remained unconscious of it? The interest of highway engineers is not in speed; the paramount consideration is safety. Are you doing your part to make the highways of Texas safe for the children of Bluebonnet Land?

Car Registrations Are Well Below 1937

AUSTIN, Texas.—New passenger car registrations in Texas during February were well below those of the corresponding month last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Reports from sixteen representative Texas counties show total sales of 3,993 cars, a decrease of 6.8 per cent from the month before and a drop of 22.3 per cent from February last year. Aggregate sales during the first two months were 8,279 cars, a decline of 22.2 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

"The two highest price groups made the best relative showing," the Bureau's report said. "Sales in the highest price group were 75.4 per cent above January, but 8.3 per cent below February last year. The highest price group last year was 1.6 per cent above those of January last year."

Virginia Votes Safety Walks Along Roads

RICHMOND, Va. — Sidewalks for congested country highways are Virginia's answer to the rapidly-moving toll of pedestrian deaths on the open road.

Gov. James H. Price has signed, following unanimous passage by both houses of the general assembly, a bill authorizing the state highway commission to construct the walkways and sidewalks along state highways in an attempt to lessen fatalities to pedestrians which have totaled more than 550 in the past three years.

The walkways, which will be similar to city sidewalks along paved streets, will protect pedestrians by keeping them off the highways proper and out of the range of speeding automobiles.

Counties to Share Cost
They will be built only at request of county boards of commissioners, and each county must bear half the cost of the construction within its borders.

Henry G. Shirley, state highway commissioner, estimated the walkways would cost "between $7,000 and $8,000 a mile" to build and would be "well worth it" in the saving of lives and injuries.

"They are a safety measure, pure and simple," he said. Shirley added, however, that the highway sidewalks, built attractively

SIMPLE QUESTIONS AND UNDERSTANDABLE ANSWERS ABOUT YOUR BANK

NOTE: (Clip this ad out and watch for our ad tomorrow). Visit the Cooking School! PART 1

What happens to my money when I deposit it in the bank? Under normal conditions your money goes to active business use. When you deposit bills into your account is credited on our books. reasonable amount of cash for "till money" kept on hand to meet the daily requirements of our customers. In the case of checks, when cashed, they are credited to your account and deducted from some other account in this bank, or some other bank, thus completing a business transaction.

What is meant by a Bank's capital and surplus? The "capital" of a bank is the amount of money the stockholders have invested as owners of the bank. The Federal and State Governments have minimum capital, and frequently subscribed surplus, requirements that must be met before a bank charter is issued.

What is the purpose of a Bank's statement of condition? The purpose of a bank's statement of condition is to give to the proper Federal or State banking authorities, and to customers and the public, a report of the financial condition of the bank.

What is the best measure of a Bank's strength? The strength of a bank may be judged by the following 3-ply yardstick: 1. The honesty and skill of its management in making sound, useful loans and investments.

Do Bank Examiners examine your bank? Yes, bank examiners visit our bank periodically and go over our records. These government officials are representatives of the State or Federal banking authorities. Every incorporated bank in the United States chartered to conduct a banking business is thus examined.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—heroine; the stand-in.
DEREK MANTHON—an artist who loved money first.
HILDEGARDE THORVALD—Derek painted her portrait.
DR. ROGERS—he met his most difficult case.

Yesterday, Constance accepted the invitation to ride home with Doctor Rogers and returning to her work next morning felt vaguely uneasy about affairs at the store.

CHAPTER XI

ELSA O'DARE was sitting at her desk when Constance went in. "You wanted me, Miss O'Dare?" Constance asked, uneasy without exactly knowing why.

Elsa O'Dare laid down the papers she was sorting, folded slim, perfectly groomed hands on the desk top, and looked up thoughtfully. "I'm given to understand," she said, "that you allowed a gentleman who came here with one of our customers to drive you home last night."

"Why, yes," Constance said, wondering, "Yes, I did. His mother was kind enough to suggest it."

"I am not questioning the personal propriety of your doing so," there was in Elsa O'Dare's faint smile something puzzling that Constance was to remember later. "But there happens to be a rule in the store that none of our employes shall accept attentions from the male relatives or—ah, appendages—of our customers. It is, I believe, much resented—but there it is."

"I don't resent it," Constance said, flushing. "I simply didn't know anything about it."

"Well—" Elsa O'Dare raised her shoulders in a little shrug. "You know now. . . . You have been duly admonished. Don't do it again. That is all, I think."

PAULINE was loitering in the corridor when Constance went out. She shot a furtive, probing look from under her lashes at Constance's untroubled face, and as if dissatisfied with what she saw there, bit her lip and turned away.

But Constance was not so untroubled as she seemed. She was beginning to realize that at least two of the women here—Pauline and her ally, Miss Letts—disliked her enough to want to see her humiliated. And Constance had never before known an open enemy.

"Miss Thorvald and I went for a long horseback ride yesterday," Derek wrote. "Perhaps I should tell you that the Baron has placed a beautiful mount at my disposal. Miss Thorvald is magnificent on horseback—much as poets and artists like to think Joan of Arc must have been. She needs only a battle standard to make a really heroic figure."

"In a day or so I hope I shall feel well enough acquainted with her to tell her of our engagement. I shall have to be careful. She is so kind that it would make her frightfully uncomfortable to realize what a crimp she put into our plans."

It would, Constance had to admit to herself. Hildegard Thorvald was kind. "But I wonder if it has occurred to you, Derek, Constance thought, that I'm being made a little uncomfortable, too."

"Mr. Thorvald is so busy, and young George is away so much," Derek wrote on, "that she and I are often alone in the evenings. She enjoys being read aloud to, and I have been reading to her lately some of the books of travel and exploration of which she buys so many. For some strange reason she seems particularly interested in Tibet. She has a huge illuminated globe on which she follows the text as I read."

CONSTANCE was finding her own evenings unendurably lonely. Since the beginnings of Derek's swift courtship until he went away there had hardly been an evening that she had not spent with him, dancing, at play or a concert, or quite as often just sitting in her cozy chintz-hung apartment.

It was three days before another letter came. Derek had a great deal to say about the convenience of the studio Mr. Thorvald had fitted up for him—about the bridal beauty of the fruit trees—about his moonlight horseback rides. . . . At long last, Constance found the paragraph for which she had been waiting:

"Something came up here after I wrote you last that has made it impossible to bother Miss Thorvald with my own affairs for the immediate present. It seems that there is some trouble about her brother, to whom she is devoted. I do not entirely understand the circumstances; but I gather that the young cub has got himself mixed up with some woman and that his father is furious. The poor girl is in a terrible spot between the two,

I am sure you will agree with me that it is out of the question to intrude our plans on her just yet."

If Constance felt that some of this chivalrous tenderness might have been devoted to her own need, she suppressed the thought. Besides, it was not chivalry she wanted from Derek. If he did not long for her as she did for him, then she did not want anything from him, she told herself. . . . And one could not blame Derek for that fine sensitiveness that made him so sympathetic to the mood of those about him.

There was no reference to young George in the next letter, or to Derek's impending talk with Miss Thorvald—nor in the next. . . . CONSTANCE continued to write cheerful, chatty letters about her experiences at the store—there seemed, strangely enough, to be so little else she had to tell Derek about, since of the one thing closest to her heart she would not write. She thought some of her efforts really amusing, even though she sometimes composed them with tears in her eyes.

Then Pauline, who was bending over a magazine open on a table, said smoothly, "Here's something that may interest you, Constance." Gertrude cried, "Pauline!" sharply; and someone tittered. . . . Knowing that she was walking into a trap, but seeing no possible retreat with dignity, Constance moved over to the table and glanced down at the open page.

The magazine to which Pauline pointed was a pictorial bulletin of news concerning the great and near-great—the famous and the merely infamous. On the page spread before Constance over the caption: CITRUS PRINCESS AND INTERNATIONAL PRIZE WINNER.

she saw a picture of Hildegard Thorvald and Derek, snatched at they lounged under palm trees. The story underneath began, "It is rumored that a romance is ripening between the beautiful Hildegard Thorvald and the handsome young artist imported from the east to paint—"

"Constance did not read any further. . . . (To Be Continued)

Mrs. Tucker Will Have Cake Baking Contest at School

Housewives in this territory will have the opportunity of participating in the celebration of Mrs. Tucker's 25th Anniversary during the Cooking School as they enter the Mrs. Tucker's Silver Anniversary Cake Baking Contest which will be an important feature of the School. The dear old lady of Shortening fame is offering 25 silver quarters to the housewife who bakes any kind of cake using Mrs. Tucker's Shortening, which is judged the best entry in the contest, details of which will be explained elsewhere in this paper and from the stage of the school.

Mrs. Tucker's Shortening was first placed on the market in 1913 when kitchen work was drudgery; and, during the last quarter of a century, this ever-improved Shortening has played a large part in making cooking more certain and enjoyable. Mrs. Tucker was the first shortening manufacturer to put "Made Exclusively from Choice Cottonseed Oil" on shortening containers; and her policy of making only a pure, vegetable product has meant much for better digestion and health. When housewives showed a preference for economy, Mrs. Tucker pioneered and developed the airtight inner-seal of cellophane, which assures factory-freshness, and which has made her product known as "The Shortening with the Silver Lining."

First to feature triple-creamed Shortening, Mrs. Tucker now leads with a multi-creamed product that mixes easily with other ingredients without tiresome creaming. And, after a quarter of a century of laboratory testing and control, Mrs. Tucker's Shortening enters its Silver Anniversary year as the Shortening that fills homes with more smiles of cooking and eating satisfaction. As a lasting symbol of these smiles, the manufacturer is offering several Mrs. Tucker's Silver Anniversary Spoons to a limited number of Cooking School attendants. These beautiful spoons are made and guaranteed for life by one of the greatest silverplate

Lecturer Gives a Few Hints Upon Baking Powder

Mrs. Arreva D. French, who is conducting the Cooking School here, says that for best results in baking it is a good plan to follow these simple rules:

Use the amount of baking powder recommended on the can. Because of the high strength of K. C. Baking Powder which she is using in the cooking school, only one level teaspoonful should be used to a cup of well sifted flour for most recipes. This is equivalent to one heaping teaspoonful to a quart of flour.

Careful measurement is very necessary as using more or less than a recipe calls for will not produce best results.

Another secret of good baking is to be sure that the baking powder is thoroughly mixed with the flour and other ingredients. The more thoroughly the baking powder and flour are mixed before you add moisture, the better your results are likely to be. Sift three or four times.

For biscuits, make a smooth dough that can be handled without sticking, and bake in moderate oven. For cakes, have your oven slow to moderate at first, until the cake is fully risen; then increase heat so as to just brown lightly.

Mrs. French says that K C, the brand she is using in cooking schools, is manufactured by baking powder specialists who make nothing but baking powder—con-manufacturers in the country, and they are said to be as fine as the most expensive silver-plate. Mrs. Tucker's kindly face is embossed on the handle of each spoon, but there is not a word of advertising on them. These exquisite Anniversary Spoons may also be had at cost by addressing Mrs. Tucker at Sherman, Texas.

Attend the Cooking School; see how Mrs. Tucker's Shortening makes cooking easier and more economical; how these foods are more digestible; and celebrate Mrs. Tucker's birthday by entering the Silver Anniversary Cake Contest.

Mapping Rebel 'Victory' Thrust

A drive by Spanish Insurgents to cut Loyalist Spain in two, and thus almost insure the fall of the government, seemed near success as insurgents captured Alcaniz and Ramundo, as shown on the map above, cutting the principal inland road between Barcelona and Valencia. The object of the Rebel drive is to cut eastward and south through the 30 miles of seacoast mountains still between their front lines and the sea, thus isolating from Madrid the province of Catalonia and the city of Barcelona, now the seat of the Loyalist government. The fall of the Loyalist government in that eventuality would be almost inevitable. The shaded portions of the map indicate territory now held by the Insurgents at the end of 20 months of civil war.
