Step Toward Solution of Parking Problem

Ask the average American what he is looking for in this life and chances are he will answer "a parking space."

For that reason New York City's decision to make permanent the ban on parking on 10 midtown streets is of interest to many people.

The "express streets" had been on trial in New York since January 3. Police liked the idea. So did motorists.

Other metropolitan centers can now be expected to follow New York's lead. In doing so they will finally give ear to advice which traffic experts have been passing out for some time.

And that advice is that the only real solution to the problems of congestion and parking lies in, first, elimination of parking on all but the widest and least traveled of city streets and, second, provision for off-street areas to accommodate not only the cars usually parked on the streets but also the even greater number of cars people are driving around the block in the vain hope that they will find a place to leave them.

The experts believe further that city planning should provide for conversion of low value real estate into parking space.

Down in Argentina, the forward-looking city of Buenos Aires is showing the way to a motorists' Utopia by constructing the worlds widest street—with subways beneath it to provide parking space for 300 cars.

Parking is the prime causative factor in traffic congestion.

Consider a 100-yard block on a busy artery. Only 18 cars can park in 100 yards; that would be 36 cars for both sides of the street.

Thus a few parked cars clog the street and slow up traffic for many times that number of moving cars.

New York has taken the first step toward a sensible solution of what are probably America's most universally irritating problems, parking and traffic.

Provide adequate off-street space—and then get the parked cars off the busy streets.

When that is done life will be a lot more pleasant for a lot of people. Saturday night on Main street a midwestern town will be no more of a drivers' nightmare than will 5 o'clock in the afternoon on 33d street in New York City.

Great Inventor.

A ROSE may smell as sweet by any other name, but how will a sausage taste when called a Piccadilly Dainty? It's worth investigating on this, the first official day of spring.

Piccadilly Dainties

(Serves 6)

Twenty-four small breakfast sausages, 3 cups flour, 1 cup shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon baking powder, 11-2 (or more) cups water.

Puncture skin of these cute little sausages. Bake them in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) until done, then stand on sheets of brown paper to cool. Make short pie crust of flour, shortening, salt and baking powder and moisten with water. Dough must not be too soft.

Roll out thin on floured board, cut into oblong little overcoats for the cold sausages. Wrap up each sausage and brush with beaten egg, mixed with small amount of water. Place in greased pan and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 15 or 20 minutes.

That gentle cooks is what they serve on special occasions at the Piccadilly Hotel in New York.

Heavenly!

The chef is ready to show us how to make them. He goes even further than Hash Desert.

Heavenly!

One cup diced oranges, 1 cup diced apples, 1 cup diced pears, 1 cup diced peaches, 1 cup diced cherries, 1 cup diced strawberries, 1 cup diced raspberries, 1 cup diced blueberries, 1 cup diced blackberries, 1 cup diced kiwi fruit, 1 cup diced guava, 1 cup diced passion fruit, 1 cup diced dragon fruit, 1 cup diced jackfruit, 1 cup diced breadfruit, 1 cup diced soursop, 1 cup diced mango, 1 cup diced papaya, 1 cup diced pineapple, 1 cup diced watermelon, 1 cup diced cantaloupe, 1 cup diced honeydew, 1 cup diced muskmelon, 1 cup diced rockmelon, 1 cup diced seedless watermelon, 1 cup diced seedless cantaloupe, 1 cup diced seedless honeydew, 1 cup diced seedless muskmelon, 1 cup diced seedless rockmelon, 1 cup diced seedless watermelon, 1 cup diced seedless cantaloupe, 1 cup diced seedless honeydew, 1 cup diced seedless muskmelon, 1 cup diced seedless rockmelon.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

the type of sleek, super-sophisticated men who most often came to the shop. Yet he showed none of the discomfort of the mere male who finds himself in an utterly feminine setting.

Constance resented the quietly amused curiosity with which he was looking at him. As if this were a flea circus, she thought. He was older than she had supposed, with a deep fine between his alert brown eyes, and a fine web of wrinkles at the corners.

The woman was voluble and friendly.

"I'm afraid we're keeping you after hours," she smiled apologetically to Constance.

Miss Letts—perhaps reflecting that she, too, was being kept after hours, and nothing said about it—shrugged faintly.

"But I'm going away tomorrow," the lady went on, "and my son and I want to select some things for a young niece who's stranded in a small town."

"We're always glad to accommodate you, Mrs. Rogers," Miss Letts put in effusively. "If Constance is too tired, we have other models who—"

"Oh, but we want her," Mrs. Rogers objected; and went on to Constance. "My son suggested that you saw you at Daimler's that you are about my niece's size and coloring."

Constance displayed several garments, and Mrs. Rogers selected a rosy hand-knitted frock and a furred evening wrap.

When they rose to go, she said to Constance, "You do look tired. I am hurrying off with a friend for dinner; but my son has his car outside, and—Mark, why don't you take this obliging young lady wherever she wants to go. . . Oh, don't look at your watch. My son," she explained proudly, "can't forget, even when he's on vacation, that he's a busy doctor."

"You're not rushing off to any deathbeds this evening, Mark?"

A doctor, Constance thought. Of course it can't be any novelty to her to see a little lingerie strewn about.

When Constance hesitated, Dr. Rogers said, arching one eyebrow at her, "Doctors are notoriously bad insurance risks, but if you're willing to take a chance, I'll be very glad."

I don't think he'd burst into tears if I refused, Constance thought wryly. But she was tired, and she knew that by this time every car and bus would be jammed to the doors.

"Thank you," she said. "I'll hurry."

He was walking up and down before his car when she went out. Constance almost laughed when she noticed that he had just returned his watch to his pocket.

"This is a record," he announced. "I've never known a woman to get dressed so quickly."

Constance wanted to ask, "How many women have you timed?" But she said instead, "That's part of my job"; and then in response to his questioning eyebrows "Twenty-two forty. Blanchard street, please. . . You go out the Boulevard."

They did not speak again until they were out of the worst of the traffic. Then he said, "Do you know, the other day at Daimler's I thought the joke was on Mother. I'd have sworn at first that you were there for a more frivolous purpose than modeling gowns."

"I should have supposed," Constance suggested, "that to a busy doctor, modeling might seem the most useless and frivolous business possible."

"Useless?" He seemed to consider the question. "Maybe. But highly decorative. And God knows we need all the frivolity and beauty we can get in this sordid world. . . I'm not so sure that a lot of the women I have to deal with wouldn't be better off if they were doing anything half so useful."

SUPERIOR male, hm? Constance gathered. Aloud she said, "I gather you don't think too highly of women?"

"On the contrary," he said. "I've often thought women might be rather good company if you didn't always have to see them at their worst."

"Well, I suppose being physician to the idle rich must be a disillusioning business," Constance said, wondering if there would be a letter from Derek waiting for her at home.

"You are tired, aren't you?" he said in an entirely new tone glancing sidewise at her. "If I were you I'd get to bed as early as possible. There's nothing like—"

"I'm so tired," Constance cut in, "that if you turn on your bedside lamp, I'll probably spoil your vacation by yawning on your shoulder. . . That's my house—the third on the right. . . And thanks a lot."

The first person Constance talked to when she went back to the store after the showing in Chester was Miss Letts.

"Miss O'Dare asked to see you as soon as you came in," Miss Letts told her with a furtive satisfaction in her manner that made Constance vaguely uneasy.

WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Although Mr. Harry Bridges is a hero only to the pro-labor groups, it will be cause for general grief in Washington if he does not eventually get the chance to appear before Senator Royal S. Copeland and the Senate Commerce committee of which the latter is chairman.

An encounter between the senator and the West Coast C. I. O. leader, whom Copeland wants deported as an alien agitator, would be this capital's idea of a spectacular show. Bridges, militant, aggressive and highly articulate, appears to answer witnesses who have been charged at hearings on maritime labor affairs that he is a Communist and a bad man.

Copeland, who encouraged the anti-Bridges witnesses and made it evident he believed them, has been reluctant but now indicates Bridges can appear if the Department of Labor doesn't hold against him in its investigation of charges that he is deportable.

It wouldn't do to suggest that Copeland is afraid to cross swords with Bridges, although other committee members have been considerably more eager than he to take on the assignment.

BUT THE C. I. O. has been digging up the "dirt" on Senator Copeland, just as Copeland has been digging up "dirt" on C. I. O. maritime labor leaders. And Bridges, who is no shrinking violet and doesn't care who knows what he has in mind, is loaded with ammunition for the fray.

Letters in which Copeland is made to appear to have sought and obtained free ocean trips from ship owners—despite his key position as a framer of shipping legislation—are one item of the Bridges ammunition.

But meanwhile Bridges must answer deportation charges. He and the C. I. O. lawyers profess complete confidence that they can beat those charges. If and when they do, Washingtonists will start reserving ringside seats for the Bridges-Copeland bout.

FAITH in Mr. Roosevelt's recent determination to do and say nothing that might be "disturbing to business" is bound to be slightly shaken by appointment of Thurman W. Arnold of Yale to succeed Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson as assistant attorney-general in charge of anti-trust cases.

Appointment of Jackson's successor was generally considered a definite test of the seriousness of Roosevelt's past attacks on monopoly and his future intentions. Members of the administration's liberal wing are delighted. For Arnold, who has done various special legal jobs under the New Deal, is one of them and they consider his recent book, "The Folklore of Capitalism," one of the finest things ever written. Arnold has been an outspoken critic of "uncontrolled business dictatorships" of inadequate anti-trust laws and of courts which have emasculated those laws. A conservative fight against his confirmation by the Senate seems certain.

HORSEMEN today are fairly certain of four things, viz.: Stagehand already is a great three-year-old; Seabiscuit is the unluckiest horse in American racing history; Pompoon is as great as ever; and the mighty War Admiral soon will have tough going for the rest of his career, because the handicappers will start putting the kitchen stove on his brown back by way of a handicap.

You can't take it away from Stagehand. Col. Maxwell Howard's three-year-old is a great colt. It is true that he is carrying only 100 pounds to Seabiscuit's 130 in the Santa Anita Handicap, yet he raced one of the fastest mile and a quarter races in history, and did so when he was barely three years of age.

He proved in the Santa Anita Derby that he can carry weight and defeat horses of his age, and in besting the pick of the handicap mounts, he established himself as the choice for the Kentucky Derby.

Up till now, Equipoise has rated in my book as the unluckiest of race horses. As a two-year-old, Equipoise lost $150,000 worth of races by being left at the post, disqualified, or otherwise failing by a nose or so. The next year he broke down from an obscure, ailment and missed his chance at the rich three-year-old specials. Of course, it is no cinch that he could have taken Twenty Grand and Mate, anyway.

SEABISCUIT has lost two Santa Anita Handicaps by margins of less than a foot. That means he has dropped purses amounting to nearly $200,000. In both races the "Biscuit" suffered interference at some stage of the race—enough to cause him to lose.

Yet there are many who think Seabiscuit would have won last year anyway had not Jockey Polard been caught napping in the last 100 yards.

This can't be proved, of course but it does show how narrow a margin by which Seabiscuit lost. Seabiscuit was shut off in the early running of his year, but had been carrying two or three pounds less, or had Stagehand been carrying two or three pounds more, there can be no doubt that Seabiscuit would have won.

As it is, Seabiscuit proved even in defeat he is a true champion. You don't find many champions who can pick up 130 pounds and run a mile and a quarter in 2:01 1/2. That was the time in which Stagehand won, but Seabiscuit was so close to him that it was also his mark for the race.

POMPOON ran into the worst going of all at Santa Anita. But he still demonstrated he has plenty of speed. Probably, however, his best distance will be just short of a mile and a quarter. He hung badly in the last eighth of a mile of the big money event.

As for War Admiral, he won as he was expected to win. He spotted the sprinters several lengths, up to 30 pounds, out-sprinted them for half a mile, then cut loose long enough to race everything else dizzy, and loafed for the rest of the way home.

That means that the handicappers will have to continue to pile weight onto him until they find out just how much he can carry without dimming his speed. Equipoise, Discovery, and Seabiscuit suffered a common fate before him, and it is now up to him to prove he is different by taking it.

The Admiral, however, is a champion.

Meeting Is Held By Olden High P-TA

The Olden Parent-Teacher association met Thursday, Mar. 17, at the home economics cottage for a business and social hour. The officers elected for next year were: President, Mrs. Barrett; vice president, Miss Grayham; secretary, Mrs. Vermillion; and treasurer, Mrs. Smith.

Delegates selected for the district meeting in Brownwood for April 5 and 6 were Mrs. Barrett, Hale, Scruggs and Fiddler.

During the social hour Mrs. Chas. Young rendered a solo, and "Irish Eyes" was sung by all.

St. Patrick's Day colors were gaily carried out in room decorations.

The large dining table was laid with a beautiful white and green linen cloth. Center piece was a bowl of tiny pink rosebuds, a tall green and white candle stood on either end of the table.

A delicious salad course in color scheme was served to all by the hostesses, Miss Morehart, Miss Hamilton, Mrs. Stanton and Mrs. Horner.

Little Autrie Laughed and Laughed at Tornado

When the Mississippi valley tornado hit Blytheville, Ark., little Autrie Nellie Lambert was smart. She dived into a dresser drawer. The house was leveled, walls and floors collapsed, but little Autrie just laughed and laughed because the dresser drawer saved her from harm. She is shown above as she crawled out from under the debris after the twister had passed on. Her father and mother were among the 20 other Blytheville citizens who were injured.

Famous Test Group Tries Out New Tire

PITTSBURGH TESTING LABORATORY CONDUCTS SKID AND WEAR TESTS ON SAFETY TIRE

What he believes the most severe and exhaustive series of grueling skid and wear tests ever made on a new automobile tire before it was introduced to the buying public are described here by Mr. Geo. H. Hipp, of the Hipp Tire and Service Station, located at Eastland, representatives of The B. F. Goodrich Company here.

Mr. Hipp following his recent announcement of the new Safety Silvertown tire with the "life-saver" tread says:

"Before the Goodrich company would release its new tire to its sales organization and thus to the buying public it enlisted Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory of Pittsburgh, Pa., largest independent testing organization in the United States, and asked the organization to make the most rigid skid and wear tests possible. They were given an absolutely free hand.

"More than 95,000 miles were traveled by the Goodrich testing fleet in making these investigations, with a senior engineer and three junior engineers of Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory in charge at all times. Special apparatus automatically recording skidding on a chart more accurately than had ever been done before was devised and used in the tests.

"In addition to the new Goodrich tire, regular and premium-priced tires of the five other leading tire manufacturers were put under identical tests to determine their resistance to skidding and wear.

"The net results, as released by Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory is that the new tire gives greater resistance than any other tire tested, including those listing from 40 to 70 per cent higher in price. The new tire gave more safe mileage than any other tire in its own price range, averaging 19 per cent more non-skid miles than the others on which the tests were made.

"Despite the severe nature of the test, not one of the new tires blew out, or failed from any cause, while two of the other tires failed."

Mariages Problem For Social Security

By United Press

EL PASO—Keeping up with recent and elusive brides, who obtained social security account numbers before their marriages failed to return their cards bearing "new name" is Uncle Sam's latest problem, according to David S. Pruitt, manager of the Social Security office here.

"The new name is necessary to prevent confusion in the worker's account," Pruitt said.

Olden P-TA Will Present a Play On Next Tuesday Night

The Olden Parent-Teacher association will present a play on Tuesday night, Mar. 22, at 7:45, at the Olden high school auditorium. The play is "The Old Fashioned Mother."

The play is a parable of a mother's love triumphant over the ingratitude and neglect of her children, and is arranged as a drama in three acts. There is plenty of comedy mixed in, though some of the scenes will bring tears.

The cast:

Mrs. Walter Barrett—Deborah Underhill, a mother in Israel.
Mrs. Frank Fiddler—Widder Pindle, choir leader.
Oleta Shoemaker—Lowzy Custard, sewing and gossip.
Mrs. Dave Vermillion—Isabel Simpscott, the village belle.
Miss Martin—Gloriana Perkins, hired girl.
Little Miss Roberts—Sukey Pindle, the widder's mite.
Walton Brauseum—John Underhill, the prodigal son.
Frank Fiddler—Charley Underhill, the elder brother.
Lewis Edwards—Jonah Quack-shark on its belly and render it completely helpless, according to the Rev. A. J. LaPlante, S. M., who offers the above picture as evidence. Rev. LaPlante, a missionary of the ecclesiastical society of Marists, for 10 years, says voodoo doctors perform the ceremony barehanded, and never are bitten.

TODAY'S NEWS

WASHING TON, Mar. 23. Registration supporters of the first of a gubernatorial bill, designed to measure whether the measure will contain gives too much power to the president.

By a vote of 33 to 51 rejected an amendment to the agriculture bill, which would strip the president's power to remove a cabinet member.

While the senate committee heard a summary of the bill from Roswell M. McClellan, secretary of treasury, it was stated that revision of the bill could be effected by a gain of $40,500,000.

President William Greer of the American Federation of Labor said he would support a bill to curtail the power of labor unions in a proposed amendment to the National Labor Act.

Other developments: Senate Finance Committee favorably reported the National Labor Relations Act. The Federal Reserve Board completed action on the $1 billion postoffice bill, carrying funds for departments during the year.
