Methodists to Meet In Fort Worth On Next Wednesday

One of the outstanding church gatherings of the year will be held at the First Methodist church in Fort Worth on Wednesday of this week. It is known as the Regional Aldersgate Commemoration Rally, as a part of the world-wide bi-centennial commemoration of the spiritual awakening of John Wesley. It is hoped that through these observances, that the church of today may rekindle the spiritual fire and enthusiasm which flamed so brightly, with the Wesleys, Whitfield, and others of their time.

Abilene Rotarians To Advertise Show At Eastland Stop

A group of Abilene citizens, mostly members of the Rotary club, will visit Eastland at 3:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the courthouse square to advertise the Spring Livestock Show and Rodoc at Abilene March 1 through March 3. Secretary H. J. Tanner of the Chamber of Commerce reported Saturday.

Taggenberg Goat Has Quadruplets

Ben Rigby, who lives on Eastland highway three miles south of Ranger, is the owner of a Toggenberg milk goat that gave birth to four kids last Thursday morning and all are normal and active. Rigby states that the goats were carried to the barn in a bushel basket and the mother goat followed and has been looking after the young in a manner that shows almost human intelligence. One of the kids is a bit smaller than the other three and the mother goat allows the small one to feed first.

Cheaney Drive On Rabbits March 3

A rabbit drive will be held in the Cheaney community Thursday, March 3, according to an announcement here Saturday. The drive scheduled for Thursday last week was cancelled because of rain. Drives have been announced for first and second Thursdays of each month until a sufficient number of rabbits have been eliminated.

MOSCOW, Russia, Feb. 19.—Four Soviet scientists of the North Pole expedition, adrift on ice floes for eight months, were rescued today off the southeastern coast of Greenland. The four, headed by Ivan Papanin, were taken off with all their equipment and records. The rescue was made by the ice breaker Timair and Murman.

How 'Living Death' Came

Seeking compensation for radium poisoning allegedly contracted when she worked for a watch dial factory in Ottawa, Ill., Mrs. Catherine Donohue, above, demonstrates to the Illinois Industrial Commission how she moistened brushes with her tongue while painting radium on the watch dials. Doctors had testified that Mrs. Donohue is certain to die from the effects of the poisoning, which is believed to have killed nine women who worked with her. Thirteen other women who claim to be victims of the "living death" asked compensation awards along with Mrs. Donohue.

FAST GROWING LIME PAY VICINITY IN COUNTY IS FAVORED BY NEW OFFSET

Hickok Producing and Development Company Saturday scheduled a 10,000-gallon acidization treatment on its No. 1 Donovan, slightly showing as an Ellenburger producer in the new lime pool northwest of Cisco in Eastland county. The 10,000 gallons was to be in the formation from 4,247 to 4,280 feet. One thousand gallons had been used previously at the same depth. The well had been cored with cable tool core barrel and only last six inches of core showed. Drilling had stopped. Well was treated with 1,000 gallons initially in order to make room for the larger shot. Unless there is water in close proximity with the oil there is no possibility of turning water into the formation because only the oil section was to be acidized.

Motorists Urged to Keep Off Highway 89 Until Finished

People going east on Highway 1 have been requested by state highway officials to continue to use Highway 1 east of Ranger instead of travelling over Highway 89. This request was made because east-bound traffic has been delaying paving of the new highway. Highway department officials, who visited here the latter part of the week, stated that the paving on 89 would be completed in about 90 days if traffic was kept off the road, but that cars travelling in wet weather, had slowed operation considerably. The cooperation of the people in this part of the country was urged in order that the highway might be completed as rapidly as possible.

FLOODWATERS IN MANY AREAS ARE RECEDING

DALLAS, Feb. 19.—Floodwaters of the Trinity river spread, farwise, over huge areas of rich Dallas county farm lands through at least two breaks in the levees causing damage estimated at $300,000 and dispossessing at least 200 families. Red Cross distributed blankets and bedding and food to the stricken families who lost their homes when the river broke through two gaps near Forney and Ross Hill communities. Skies cleared in North and East Texas Saturday. Flooded rivers and creeks slowly receded. The Trinity at Dallas was still running bank full, after reaching a crest of 42.7 feet at midnight Friday.

Cotton Farmers To Get Large Sums In 1938

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—Southern cotton farmers will receive approximately $250,000,000 in government benefit payments this year under the new farm program, farm administration officials estimated today. Total payments in 1938 will be more than double the amount paid in any previous year under the agricultural adjustment administration act. Payments will include $130,000,000 in subsidy payments on 1937 cotton to farmers complying with 1938 acreage allotments and about $120,000,000 in benefit payments on 1938 cotton and for soil conservation practices.

Fisher Leader In Region for Debt Adjustment Cases

Robert Fisher, Eastland, supervisor of Farm Security Administration district No. 11, led all districts in Region 8 in debt adjustment cases during January, according to announcement from L. J. Cappelman, regional chief of the rural rehabilitation division, Dallas. Region No. 8 includes 12 districts in Texas and Oklahoma. According to Cappelman, Fisher's district closed 33 cases with a reduction of debts of $3,133. 123 cases represent that number of debts adjusted satisfactorily for creditors and debtor farmers. Said Cappelman, in part: "This is the greatest number of cases closed and largest amount of reduction obtained from any one month since the severe reduction in personnel. From observation of the administration of debt adjustment activities by the various district supervisors, it is noticeable that Mr. Robert Fisher is forging ahead, and probably will be tough competition in the future, because he gets out definite and firm instructions to his county rural supervisors pointing out the importance of debt adjustment and the necessity of careful preparation of forms, and stating that instructions regarding debt adjustment should receive the same careful consideration by the rural supervisors as is given to any other instructions received from the administration."

It's Rhetoric, but It Isn't Realism

Germany and Russia spend a good deal of their time and energy these days just sitting and breathing fire and brimstone at one another. It's a dull day when Hitler fails to come out in his newspapers with a violent denunciation of the Communist Menace. And Stalin is just as regular and just as scathing in his references to the Menace of Fascism.

This would not be so important except that both are constantly trying to get people in foreign countries to back them up. Hitler is always trying to align people of other nations with him in his self-appointed crusade against the Communist Menace. And Stalin, through his devotees in other countries, tom-toms away at the idea that the world must back him against Fascism by boycotts if not by more strenuous means.

But there is a childish saying that handsome is as handsome does. And, while they fume against each other, what do these handsome gentlemen do?

Well, sir, you would hardly believe it, but underneath the screen of the word barrage, they just get down to business and trade with one another to beat the band.

Year after year Russia buys more goods from Germany than from any other country. She pays for these goods with nice, fresh, new-mined Russian gold. That is mighty nice for Herr Hitler, who needs that trade balance and that gold very badly.

In short, Stalin hates Fascism (and urges that you hate it, too). But he is happy to give it the gold it needs in exchange for the machinery he needs.

And Hitler foams at the mouth at the very mention of Communism (and urges that you foam, too). But he is very happy to have the Russian gold, and doesn't hesitate to strengthen Communism by sending it his nice machinery—at a profit.

Russia needs goods. Where does she go for them? Well, sir, she goes right where the veriest economic royalist would go—where they are cheapest. The Living Age Magazine picks up this plaintive wail from Labour, British trade organ:

"The Soviet buys in the cheapest market, regardless of the conditions which make it possible for that market to be cheapest." You see, radicals have sold British labor quite a bill of anti-Hitler goods, and this wail is very heartfelt indeed.

By the way, while "democratic" countries were sold the idea of a boycott on oil to restrain Italy from the Ethiopian adventure, who was it that sold oil to Italy? None other than our old "breathing fire against imperialism and Fascism" Stalin! Business, as the hated capitalists say, is business.

The moral? Just this: the next time somebody asks you to swear to an undying vendetta against Fascist Germany or Communist Russia, just ask yourself "How many other hands are holding this bag, and whose hands?"

THE CLASS IN FOREIGN AFFAIRS

AGRI CHECKS FOR COUNTY ARE RECEIVED

Pete Clement of Eastland was the first to receive a check in payment for complying in the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program, Harry K. Westerman, assistant in Agricultural Conservation for Eastland county, announced Saturday.

A total of 337 Agricultural Conservation checks amounting to $20,644.88 was received Saturday by Westerman. Of the 337 checks received 276 were farm checks totaling $14,460.73 and 63 ranch checks totaling $6,184.15.

Westerman will deliver checks at the following places this week: Wednesday: Cisco, Chamber of Commerce, 8 a. m. to 10 a. m.; Rising Star, Higginbotham's, 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m.; Carbon, Trading Company, 1:30 p. m. to 3:00 p. m.; and Gorman, Chamber of Commerce, 3:30 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Thursday: Ranger, Chamber of Commerce, 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m.; Eastland, county agent's office, any time before or after the preceding schedule.

Westerman pointed out that each person who had received a check has been mailed a notice. Checks can be delivered only to the payee whose name appears on each check. Checks cannot be delivered to agents who present a power-of-attorney or written request. Payees who live outside of Eastland county can write the county agent's office at Eastland, giving their present address and checks will be mailed to them.

When calling for the check bring the SR-109 (yellow sheet), which has been mailed to the producer, in order that the check may be located conveniently, it was explained.

In summarizing the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program Westerman pointed out Saturday the following: Out of 738 farmers in Eastland county making Work Sheets under the 1937 Agricultural Conservation Program 590 made applications for payment. These producers complied on about 45,000 acres, planting 3059 acres of legumes, 2800 acres of sudan grass and sweet sorghums, grazed 350 acres of peanuts, planted 315 acres of crops on the contour, and built 500,000 feet of terraces to earn their payments.

Car Straddles Wire After Leaving Road

An unusual accident which sent a model A Ford astraddle a guy wire supporting a utility pole on the 300 block of South Seaman street of Eastland was seen by witnesses Saturday afternoon.

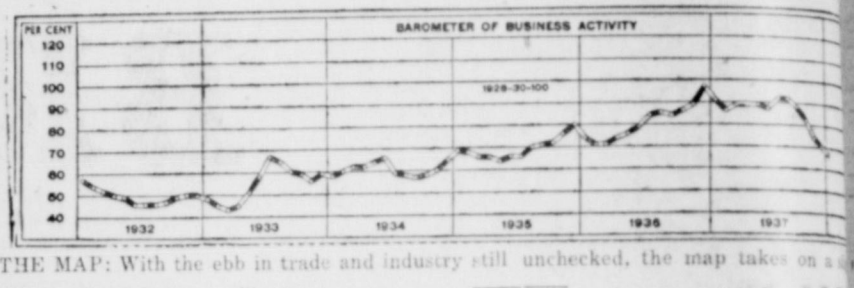

The car, said witnesses, left the highway, ran across the curb and its front was thrown astraddle upward in the direction of the wire. The car then backed downward and when stopped was still on two wheels. A wrecker later removed the automobile.

A flat was presumed to have sent the car from the road.

However he decided to drill plug and drill to the lower Ranger to pick up gas around 3,850 feet. Saturday the drill was at 3,459 feet.

Four miles north of Ranger but in Stephens county, Graham et al were cleaning out their No. 1 Yocum heirs, John Carter survey, which will be finalized as a pumper of 25 to 50 barrels daily, operators said. One thousand gallons of acid were used in the gray limestone, 3,575-3,590 feet. Gas, formerly 200,000 cubic feet, was not believed increased by the treatment. Gallagher-Lawson et al No. 1 Terry, near Desdemona in Comanche county, was said to be drilling at 4,715 feet. Cleaning out continued on the T. W. Johnson et al No. 1 Mary Jackson, mile south of Carbon, Eastland county, it was reported. Four miles southwest of Brownwood, Brown county, Whitehead and Smith have staked location for No. 1 B. J. R. Shelton, S. H. Eaton survey, 150 feet from the west and north lines of the lease. Drilling to 430 feet is planned.

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK

CAST OF CHARACTERS
POLLY CHELSEY, heroine stranded in London when war breaks out.
JERRY WHITFIELD, hero of the Yankee who sees her through.
CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

Yesterday Jerry tries to escape but fails, and in Boston the Banks family wonders about their son, Cabel.

CHAPTER XVI

CORLEY proved to be a score of shabby fishermen huts located to the right of the King's Highway, between marsh grass and booming sea. Their excuse for being was a shallow harbor that all but vanished at low tide. It was a dejected spot.

Polly, having been put down there with her dog and trunk, looked after the departing coach with a regret that bordered on panic.

She noted one house in the village that seemed to be an inn. Though not less ramshackle than its neighbors, it was larger and carried a sign. Polly dragged her trunk from the roadside and called it along a sandy path to this building. Arrived there, she left Nuisance to stand guard while she entered the inn. She was leaning heavily on her stick and frowning sharply.

"Where can I find John McGean?" she asked the room at large.

A man in a dirty apron, evidently the keeper of this unwholesome place, answered her. "Ye're in luck, old dame. The Sea Serpent, 'is built, 'is anchored off Corley today. Just in, 'e is, from a little trip, and soon to be put out."

"Look! There 'e comes along the wharf!"

Polly went outside and stooped to give Nuisance a reassuring pat, for the little dog was looking uneasy and restive.

The skipper, who had just come ashore from an ugly two-masted lugger with patched brown sails, was large and forbidding. He had heavy handsome features, coal black hair that he wore in a queue, and bold prominent eyes.

"If you are John McGean," she said to this man, "I have business with you."

"Then, speak it. Time's valuable," he started hard at her.

Polly spoke her business, as commanded. She talked to him urgently; but since money talks best in the long run, she offered him what she could afford to pay and still keep enough to carry her to Cherbourg. For this she gratefully agreed to convey her across the Channel to a fishing port near Calais. He was sailing that night, if the wind was favorable.

When black night had fallen the wharf and sat down to wait. It seemed safer here than in that evil inn, and the air was certainly better. This was the same star-filled sky, she reminded herself, that had covered her at home, and these waves were but a part of the same restless Atlantic that broke in white foam on the coast of Connecticut. This water was a part of the sea, and the sea tonight bore Jerry on its breast, so she must love this water and not fear it. Whenever Nuisance gave one of his low ominous growls she soothed him, being calm herself.

After a while she heard the grating of carlocks and the muffled splash of oars. A dory appeared, and when it had docked, the smuggler's large figure loomed out of it and approached her.

Though he handled the little trunk as though it were a feather, he grumbled his displeasure at having to take it into the boat, and when he saw the dog his grumbling turned to cat's.

"Ye can't take that beast aboard," he decreed, "with 'is barkin' and yippin'!"

"You've not heard him bark or yip. The worst he does is to growl a little. You'll take him or I'm not going. You've not got my money yet."

A pause, then, "Come aboard, but if 'e barks, 'e gets the belayin' pin to quiet 'im."

Nuisance lay on Polly's lap in the rowboat and made no sound; and when they reached the lugger Polly carried him on board with caution and apprehension.

The crew, she calculated, numbered a dozen men. They looked like the dregs of France and Spain and Portugal, picked less for strength than cunning. They eyed her and the dog with lowering expressions, and she deemed it best to glare back at them, giving them as good as they sent in it.

She followed McGean up to the cabin. The swinging lamp had a sooted chimney but it managed to reveal as dismal a skipper's retreat as Polly had ever set eyes on. The scarred bulkheads were hung with weapons—muskets, cutlasses and knives; torn rigging lay about; boxes and barrels stood everywhere. In one corner was an iron strong box with heavy padlock.

The man now opened this with a brass key he carried. "I'll give your passage money," he said; and when Polly took it from her pocket and counted it out for him he clutched it hastily and locked it away. "I've 'ardly asked ye enough," he added thoughtfully.

Polly turned inside out her voluminous pocket and said like an irritated old woman, "Not enough, you robber? You've got it all!"

This mollified him and he told her to make herself at home. "We'll be sailin' inside the hour."

Left alone in the cluttered cabin, Polly leaned back against a pile of canvas and listened to the tramp of feet, the harsh voices and the running up of sail that was taking place above. Presently the small lugger was under way and the shouting ceased. Weariness overcame Polly and she slept.

She wakened to a low growl from Nuisance. Stilling him, she got up and looked from a porthole that gave to landward. The lugger was at rest, anchored off a cove which a rising moon showed to be cliff lined and chalky, but broken by a dark ravine. A laden rowboat was approaching the lugger from the cove; in the dark ravine two lanterns bobbed like fireflies. . . . So this was the way smuggled goods was landed and sent to sea!

As a keg was hauled aboard, Nuisance barked. Polly, in consternation, slapped him so violently that he retreated behind a bale, howling in a very injured way. Polly dived after him and brought him out, catching a lock of hair on a bayonet point as she did so, and pulling off her wig.

As she arose with the dog in her arms, the door opened and McGean entered. He stared at her as she stood at bay, tall and straight and surprised. Short brown hair covered her head, curling stubbornly in the damp sea air. Her cheeks and lips were scarlet, her eyes wide. A torn sleeve revealed a round white arm.

"So ye be a young one," he laughed unpleasantly. "And a French aristocrat to boot. I'll be bound. 'Well, I'm French too, but not your kind. I'm from on call me Jean Clitte!'"

He took a bright-striped scarf from a sea chest and bound it around his head, transforming himself, by that simple act, into a Latin. It was evidently what he had come into the room to do. Yet the thing that he did next had not been a part of his plans.

After he had gone from the cabin and closed the door, he locked it after him.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS - TEXANS

WILL H. MARTIN, AUSTIN, TEXAS

This column answers will be given in response to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Martin, Austin, Texas.

Q. How did Texans respond to the call for help from San Antonio when Vasquez entered the town on Mar. 5, 1842?

A. By Mar. 15, at least 3,000 Texans were in camp awaiting orders, and on that date Gen. Edward Burleson reached San Antonio with some 200 or 300 men.

Q. What other battles followed Wolf's invasion of San Antonio?

A. When he learned that an armed force of about 200 Texans was assembled on Salado Creek, a few miles out, under command of Col. Mat (Old Paint) Caldwell, Wolf's men went out to capture them, but suffered a loss of 60 killed and as many more wounded. When preparing to return to San Antonio, Wolf learned that Capt. Nicholas Dawson, with 53 men, was advancing upon his rear to succor Caldwell. Dawson's men were located in a nearby thicket, and were forced to surrender to superior numbers and arms. Disregarding the white flag of surrender, Wolf's men indiscriminately massacred 36 of the Texans and took 15 prisoners, two Texans escaping.

Q. What confusion arose as to the command of the forces at San Antonio in March, 1842?

A. Finding that Vasquez had crossed the Rio Grande in retreat the Texans decided to remain at San Antonio under command of General Burleson to await further orders. President Houston had issued an official call to the militia to turn out and report at the point of danger, and directed Brig. Gen. Alexander Somervell, the senior officer, to take command. The displacement of Burleson disgruntled his men and Somervell offered to withdraw, but instead, Burleson left the command to Somervell, and large numbers of the citizen soldiers also retired.

men, was advancing upon his rear to succor Caldwell. Dawson's men were located in a nearby thicket, and were forced to surrender to superior numbers and arms. Disregarding the white flag of surrender, Wolf's men indiscriminately massacred 36 of the Texans and took 15 prisoners, two Texans escaping.

Straighter Roads, Levelling Hills On Program of Safety

By United Press

AUSTIN — Texas highway engineers have made great progress in straightening out dangerous curves, widening bridges, eliminating grade crossings and marking cross roads. Next important safety step probably will be reduction of the steep grades that exist on major highways.

Accident records of the State Motor Police are demonstrating that it is just as dangerous to have a hill so steep that the top of an approaching car cannot be seen as it is to have a sharp curve obscuring vision. Highway 2 between New Braunfels and San Antonio has several such grades. A similar situation between Brenham and Houston has been improved by widening the roadway at the hills.

Text: Mark 3:7-19, 31-35

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

If one wished to mark the difference between a great and true Teacher and the demagogues who, in various ages, have professed to have panaceas for the ills of humanity, he could not find it more emphasized than in the opening words of our lesson: "Jesus with His disciples withdrew to the sea."

It is the mark of the demagogue that he always wants to be with the crowd, or wants to have the crowd with him; but Jesus was continually withdrawing from the multitude.

Was it that He had no message for the common people, and did not wish to give the Gospel to the multitude? Not at all. On the contrary, the common people heard Him gladly, and we see Jesus constantly in places where people were congregating in their daily life, and in the synagogues and the temple, where they congregated for worship.

But almost invariably, where the multitude surrounded Him, hearing of His fame, the emphasis was always upon the things that He had to express. The people were eager for some physical benefit, but they did not perceive the need of His spiritual teaching. "Ye seek Me," He said on one occasion, "not because ye see the miracle, but because ye did eat of the loaves and were filled."

JESUS realized that the great influences were not upon crowds and multitudes, but were expressed in close contact with individuals and with small groups. He retired into quiet places with His disciples that He might teach them and commune with them.

He sent out the apostles and 70 other workers to go through the villages making contacts with people, bringing near to them in their daily lives the

NEW YORK — Lester Steers didn't become a high jumper overnight.

Steers, now 20, has been coached by Dick Templeton since he was in grammar school. Templeton was self.

In his indoor bow under strange and imperious Boston Garden, his initial appearance in national best Mel Walker, the world record holder, and the Olympic champion, by leaping 6 feet 5 1/2 feet at that height.

The Boston Garden had a haphazard runway and Steers was a lit apprehensive of landing on it. He expected to do better in the Millrose Athletic Square Garden, where there was a superior lane jumper—a springer runway and a softer landing.

Steers was reported by Johnson and Walker as ever. He tied Arthur Bynes of Manhattan for

BUT Steers likes jumping off boards. They will be other nights and afternoons. And he will be left California.

Steers is a natural for Stanford—provided, he gets in. He will be graduated from Palo Alto in the California state interscholastic crown for that but won't be eligible this trip. They changed the rule over it. His top figure in school meets was a fraction.

A native son, born and raised in Palo Alto, Steers is considerable tonnage to catapult over a bar heights. He is a deep-chested and brawny California standing more than 6 feet.

Steers lives a mile from the Stanford campus athletic field a lot as a kid, and began to jump scissors kick like most youngsters.

TEMPLETON took him in hand at first sight on the ground up. He was doing 6:2 before he was 10. "Coach Templeton made me over to a World Steers. "You can go much higher with this style scissors kick."

Steers, who failed to go higher than 6:2 in his Olympic tryouts, last year did 6:6 consistently, and foregone, cleared 6:8 in practice before heading off in his first two eastern indoor meets. Steers said that he has it in him to break the five-year high of the Negroes, Johnson and Walker and Dave Lister, pair of Ohio State, and Ed Burke of Marquette, indoor and L. C. 4-A outdoor titles.

A CHOP may lie down like a lamb, or else turn out to be very saucy. The chef at the Hotel Astor says there is nothing meek about his chops. He gives this recipe to prove it.

Mutton Chops Reforme (Serves 6)

Six mutton chops, salt, pepper, 1 egg, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon water, 1-2 cup finely chopped ham. For sauce: 2 cups pepper sauce, 1 tablespoon finely shredded sweet pickles, 1 tablespoon finely chopped beef tongue, 1 chopped hard-cooked egg (white only).

Trim fat from chops. Season with salt and pepper. Beat egg slightly, add water, bread crumbs and ham. Mix well. Dip chops in this mixture. Fry the breaded chops in sweet butter until delicately brown. Serve with the sauce. To make sauce, combine all the ingredients and heat through, then simmer 2 minutes. And what's the sauce for the chop is sauce for the casserole. For example:

Lamb Chop Casserole (Serves 4 to 6)

Five or 6 shoulder lamb chops, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 5 or 6 slices onion, 5 or 6 slices green pepper, 1 can condensed tomato soup.

Mix pepper and flour and dredge the lamb chops with this mixture. Then place in casserole and on each chop place one slice green pepper. On onion place one slice green pepper. Pour the condensed soup over all. Cover. Bake in moderate oven for 1 1/2 to 2 hours. They can be served in a platter with the sauce. Serve with a little cream sauce.

DINNER role, baked 8-minute cream pie.

Veal Chop (Serves 6)

Six veal chops, 6 slices extra-fat ham, 6 slices extra-fat ham, 6 slices extra-fat ham, 6 slices extra-fat ham, 6 slices extra-fat ham.

Women Draft 36 Vote Issues For Approval of People

By United Press ST. LOUIS.—The National League of Women Voters in preparation for its biennial convention here April 25-29, has issued its proposed program for 1938-40, covering nine objectives in federal legislation, 12 in state work and 15 general objectives. "Placing our program in the hands of members in advance of the convention affords an opportunity for each member to study closely every proposal," Miss Marguerite Wells, president, said. The list of general objectives was headed by the merit system. This was in accordance with the league's work for the past two years in stressing the advantage of the merit system and working to effect the elimination of the spoils.

Farm Problem of Japan Is Grave

By FRED BAILEY United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON.—Japan faces a "grave agricultural situation" in some respects similar to that in the United States, according to a survey made by the Department of Agriculture. Some of the Japanese farm problems, the department said, are uneven distribution of land, burdensome debts, depressed prices of farm products, surpluses, and increasing farm tenancy. "Notwithstanding the important position of agriculture in Japan's national economy," the survey report said, "it is commonly suffering from a growing depression." Self-Sufficiency Pushed Japan, in common with European nations, has pushed a program of economic self-sufficiency with emphasis on agriculture during the past 10 years. In some ways the program has been successful and in others it has worked hardships on farmers, the department said.

Former Austrian Official Arrested

FRANZ Winkler, Austrian vice-chancellor, was arrested in Berlin, Winkler, now a newspaper correspondent, is reported to be accused of foreign exchange irregularities. ant-aid program similar to that in the United States. Japanese farmers are burdened with debt totaling about $1,700,000,000, an amount nearly 10 times that of 25 years ago. This, the report said, is equivalent to $290 per farm. Interest rates in more than 50 per cent of the cases are 20 to 30 per cent, the department said. Since Japan has never been an important outlet for United States agricultural products, except cotton, the efforts of the Japanese government to aid agriculture have had little effect upon

Secret of Renewing Batteries Is Found

By United Press EL PASO.—Fred S. Norton, retired railroad man, offered today the secret of rejuvenating a flashlight battery. Norton said a worn-down battery could be restored very simply, and with utmost ease and it would be as good as it was originally.

"Just put it in the oven of your kitchen stove," he said. "Don't bake it, but let it stay until it is so hot you can hardly handle it, then take it out and it's ready for use."

Norton said that he learned the trick while railroading. "I sometimes used a flashlight as a lantern for signaling, and when the battery became weak, I'd put the flashlight on a boiler-head, heat it up and go ahead with my work."
