Law's Ideals Mocked By Bad Examples

A conscientious man can make a fine living in the practice of his profession... Fine phrases about the lawyer's sacred duty to the public may ring through the corridors of law schools...

Some 190 young attorneys were admitted to the bar in New York the other day, and Justice Francis Martin took advantage of the occasion to warn them of their duties and responsibilities.

"The type of lawyer who uses his ability to enable the dangerous criminal to escape the law or to take advantage of an opponent is an enemy of the legal profession and of his government," said the justice.

"You start at a time of unrest and uncertainty and Communistic radicalism, when it is more necessary than ever to support the Constitution."

Now it just happened that a day or so before this elevating homily was delivered, the Department of Justice revealed that lawyers for some of our leading gangsters are attacking the federal kidnaping and firearms registration acts on the ground that they are unconstitutional.

A precious group of distinguished citizens is represented in this action, including the kidnapers of June Robles and Charles Urschel. The best-known of the bunch is Harvey Bailey.

Their lawyers will presently tell the supreme court that the new federal laws under which these snatch artists were put away are unconstitutional; and the odd part about it is that their plea will be very like the one successfully raised against the NRA.

This federal kidnaping statute is based upon the power of the government to regulate interstate commerce—as was the NRA. The court held last summer that the NRA constituted an undue extension of this power.

And somehow this assault on the kidnaping law has an odd sound when placed beside the remarks of Justice Martin.

Here we have a law under which the Department of Justice has solved 55 kidnapings, broken up some of the worst gangs in the country, sent 22 criminals to prison, and landed 25 more in jail to await trial.

Would the justice tell his fledgling lawyers that an assault on this law comes under the heading of "enabling dangerous criminals to escape the law" or of "supporting the Constitution at a time of unrest and uncertainty"?

She walked bravely toward the newcomer, free of her uncertainty and unhappiness showing in her eyes. The old lady who had entered the big, gloomy room had almost white hair, aquiline features and dark eyes that burned in a thin veil. She stared down at Dana sadly, terribly. "I'm very glad you've come," she said, but made no move forward. The child has come a long way and is very tired," Aunt Ellen said a gentle, troubled tone. "Yes, yes," muttered the old lady, "she must want to go to her room." GRANDMOTHER CAMERON sank into a chair, heavily, her sodid eyes fixed on a familiar pattern of the rug. She said with a lifting of her eyes, "You are welcome here. We hope you will be happy. You must excuse me for not accompanying you to your room, but I, too, am very tired." "It isn't necessary," Dana said through stiff lips. "If you'll only tell me where to go." "Ellen, call Sarah." Her sister flew to pull a long rope that was concealed behind the faded draperies between the hall and living room. She pulled it twice in her agitation. An old colored woman answered the summons, grumbling as she came: "Yes'm, I'm coming, Miss Ellen. Fas' as ever my laigs can ca'y me." She stopped at the sight of Dana. "Fo' de lawd," she whispered, her face gray. "Fo' de lawd!" "Sarah!" the harsh tones of Grandmother Cameron recalled her. "This is Miss Dana. You have prepared her room?" "Oh, yes'm." Knotted black hands raised the apron corners that had been clutching Sarah lifted Dana's traveling bag and started up the stairs. The girl followed, conscious of pitying blue eyes and burning dark ones watching her as she went up the wide, walnut stairs. The old colored woman led the way down a long hall on the upper floor. The walk seemed endless. And then, suddenly, a door swung wide. Sarah whispered: "Go on in honey child. You're the spit' image of yore pore young ma who sleep in this room. It ain't never been opened till today since the night she run away with Marse Dana lovin' him so and miserable married to Marse John. I dunno what come over yore grandma, lovin' it to be open for you. Mebbe she's gettin' soft in her old age." "Thank you, Sarah," Dana said and a lump in her throat. The door closed. She could hear the old servant shuffling down the hall. (To Be Continued.)

New Battle Flags Germany Salutes

"I give you a new war flag. Its swastika is the symbol of national unity... Its Iron Cross will remind you of the tradition of the old army," Chancellor Adolf Hitler proclaimed as Germany's new banners were unfurled over every army barracks and warship. On a red ground and divided into four quarters by black and white stripes, the war flag design, just received in America, is shown at top, with the simpler warship flag reproduced below.

Many from Relief Rolls Now at Work

SAN ANTONIO.—More than 35 thousand former relief roll employables were working this week as Works Progress Administration took a long stride toward realizing its goal in Texas. With more than one-third of the available employables at work, Administrator H. P. Drought had cause to feel that his organization is just about ready to shift into high gear. State headquarters has authorized projects involving more than 20 millions of dollars of federal funds to be started throughout the state, and it was estimated that more than 700 projects have been begun in the 20 state districts to date. Estimates placed the number of available relief roll employables at approximately 90,000. Drought, however, said he expected the original WPA quota of 120,000 will be employed after persons now in temporary seasonal occupations finish their jobs. Of the 150,000 persons scheduled to receive jobs in the entire works program in Texas, approximately 30,000

"Persons being released from seasonal employment in various parts of the state, many of whom are eligible for WPA employment because of their relief status, should be registered at NRS or Texas State Employment offices so that they may be in line for jobs which are opening on WPA projects over the state," Drought said. At the same time, persons who have not been previously on relief will not be able to obtain WPA employment by attempting to "crash" relief rolls, since orders recently issued by National Works Administrator Harry L. Hopkins instructed state administrators to accept NO workers who have registered for relief after Nov. 1, 1935. "Woman cigar smokers in Scotland increasing in number." Perpetual Puzzles!

These puzzles we have married are disturbingly simple. They sit across the table from us and riddles. They treat us like spoiled children, yet like kings. They ferret out our secret games—and collect! They devastate our emotions by a caprice... and we love it.

How do these wives of ours manage to keep young, so attractive, so full of life? Well for thing, they have learned that the advertisements are their willing servants. Here they are of an appliance that turns mornings of hurry into hours of leisure. There is a cosmetic that fits the skin like a glove. Or a new way to tempt your appetite.

Right now, your wife is busy with fall buying. She lets the advertisements shoulder part of her task. They bring her good news about fall fashions and gloves, blankets, perhaps a fireproof safe, new slippers for you, a sweater for you, and they save her time, trouble, worry—money.

Luscious fragrance of turkey roasting, savory dressing steaming, succulent turnips and onions boiling, spicy pies baking, I say "old-time," but I don't know why because the Thanksgiving aroma is about the same in the modern kitchen as it was in the old-fashioned one.

Tomorrow's Menu
BREAKFAST: Stewed prunes with lemon, cereal, cream, crisp broiled bacon, cornbread, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON: Baked macaroni and oysters, rye bread, hearts of celery, baked quinces, milk, tea.
DINNER: Baked sparrows, mashed potatoes and sauerkraut, baked corn, grated carrot and apple salad, cherry pie (canned cherries), milk, coffee.

Of course for the small family, the roasting fowl may be chicken or duck or guinea hen instead of turkey, but the good smell is there anyway.
 Here is a typical old-time dinner which, while simple, is interesting enough to give any cook ample opportunity to display her skill. Soup can be substituted for the fruit cup and such vegetables as turnips and parsnips may appeal to you more than brussels sprouts or broccoli.

For a modern touch to dinner, serve pumpkin pie Alaska. Bake a pie shell, fill it with pumpkin pie cream, cover with a heavy meringue flavored with ginger and sherry and bake in a very hot oven (500 degrees F.) just long enough to brown the meringue. Serve at once.

Pumpkin Ice Cream
 Two cups coffee cream, 1 cup whipping cream, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 3 tablespoons cold milk, 2 cups light brown sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-2 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 teaspoon salt, yolks 4 eggs, 2 tablespoons sherry, 2 teaspoons granulated sugar, 1 cup cooked pumpkin rubbed through a sieve.

 Scald coffee cream and add sugar. Stir until dissolved and stir in cornstarch mixed to a smooth paste with cold milk. Add spices and salt and cook and stir until thick and smooth. Soften gelatin in four tablespoons cold water and add to pumpkin. Beat egg yolks until thick, beating in sherry. Add to cornstarch mixture and cook and stir just one minute, removing from heat before mixture reaches boiling point. Stir in pumpkin mixture and chill. When thoroughly chilled, turn into freezing tray and freeze until firm around the edges. Then fold in whipping cream whipped until firm. Freeze three to four hours in mechanical refrigerator or pack in six parts ice to one part ice cream salt and freeze four hours. This will fill a twelve-inch pie shell.

In making the pie shell, don't roll the pastry too thin because it must act as a non-conductor of heat. The meringue forms a thick non-conductor, so be sure the oven is hotter at the top and put the pie as near the top of the oven as possible. If you can't regulate your oven this way, put the pie on a thick board.

Pola Says She'll Wed Rich Briton

Emphatically stating she'll wed "no more Mdivanis," Pola Negri reveals that before Christmas she will marry a famed British statesman, enormously wealthy, "10 years her elder and tremendously intellectual." The stormy Polish star of the silent films, shown here in her London apartment in a new picture, was divorced from Serge Mdivani in 1921. Note Pola's novel bracelet.

Mother, I can't Study - My head hurts!

As a usual thing, he is "such a regular guy." He comes home from school full of pep and energy. Of course you want him that way always. But are you protecting his health and safety during the few short months of winter when he must spend his evenings indoors?

That uncomfortable "stuffy" feeling... dullness... lowered vitality... headache... insufficient ventilation. These are the warning signals that America's Public Health Enemy Number One, the common cold germ, has found another fertile field in which to attack. For your health's sake and that of your loved ones do not wait for these definite signs of warning that the air indoors has become stale. Keep the air every room in the house.

Without oxygen man cannot live. Without oxygen, fuel cannot burn. Therefore, if your family "huddles" in one or two rooms around an open flame heater during cold weather with the doors and windows tightly closed, you are violating all the rules of nature, good health and good heating. Sooner or later the occupants of the room air becomes stale. Without adequate ventilation and circulation the air indoors may become as foul and unhealthy as that of the tenement slums of large cities, even though your home may be the most beautiful in the neighborhood.

A simple and easy method of providing a constant circulation of fresh air is found by opening a window in each room a few inches from the top and bottom. Consequently heated provide a natural circulation of pure warm air from one room to another. Incidentally, fresh, pure air is easier and more economical to heat than "stale" air.

Guard the health of your loved ones with adequate heat and proper ventilation of pure air in every room in the house.
