HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE IS LEVIED BY TORNADO

Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald
"Marching Through Georgia"

And now it is announced that Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, has selected Rockmart, as the site for a 50,000 spindle textile mill for the manufacture of tire fabric. Furthermore, a project contemplates immediate erection of 400 houses for workers and operations will begin Sept. 1.

There is money in textile tire. Georgia and South Carolina are producers of long staple cotton. Textile manufacturers are coming from New England to the South States. Not many years ago the Carolinas were poverty stricken states. They harnessed mountain streams, they built iron mills, they built tobacco stores, they built furniture factories, and now "protection for American industry" is the slogan these former slave holding states use.

Old South mills are dead. This is the age of business and the manufacturing states are the althly states.

As a Manufacturing State Texan never lie. Texas is going to the front as a manufacturing state. A bulletin issued by the census bureau of the department of commerce tells the story. Texas in 1927 maintained lead in the manufacturing of the South, with manufactures totaling nearly one and a half billions of dollars.

U. S. Soldier Is Reported As Wounded

Bullet Crossing Border Strikes Negro Cavalryman—Rebels Make Terrific Attack on Naco, Sonora, Saturday.

EL PASO, Tex., April 6.—Southern Pacific railway officials today denied widely circulated reports that a railway tunnel was blown up by rebel soldiers on American soil east of Naco, Ariz. Bombs were found on the track near Naco, but none exploded, officials said.

The bombs were evidently intended to wreck the special train taking interned Mexican federal troops from Fort Bliss to reinforce Naco federal, it was said at the Southern Pacific offices.

NACO, Sonora, Mex., April 6.—A negro of the Tenth United States cavalry was shot through the chest and severely wounded in a skirmish on the international line east of here today.

WASHINGTON April 6.—No word of the shooting of a negro cavalryman on the international line in Naco, Ariz., has been received at the State or War departments today, it was announced.

NACO, Sonora, Mex., April 6.—As rebel troops attempted to drive the garrison out of the city today, federal reinforcements arrived at Naco, Ariz., across the international line.

The men, brought from El Paso over United States soil, were to join the defending forces. The detachment numbered 300 men.

NACO, Sonora, Mex., April 6.—Revolutionary troops under Gen. Fausto Topete, governor of Sonora, began a major assault on the federal garrison here today.

Aircraft, tanks, cavalry and infantry drove on the city from all sides.

The entrenched federal forces answered the attack with rifle and machine gun fire.

The insurgent advance followed three air raids by bombers. Airplanes continued to drop explosives into the federal trenches as the assault continued.

The entire rebel force seemed to be taking part in the attack. It was estimated that Gen. Topete was throwing 1,500 men against the city.

The make-shift rebel tanks advanced to within 200 yards of the federal barbed wire entanglements. The tanks carried machine guns.

At 8:15 a. m., the rebel lines had closed into close range and the firing was intense as the attackers advanced behind their tanks.

Bullets were falling heavily in the American town across the border. All Americans were herded away from the international line as the fighting started.

The rebel airplanes still were dropping bombs on the federal encampments with an unknown effect.

The American city of Naco was without electricity during the battle because of a terrific explosion which shook windows and rocked the entire city.

The blast, believed to have been caused by explosion of a carload of dynamite, appeared to be in the rebel lines about two miles to the south.

The intensity of the firing slackened a bit about 9:30 a. m., and it seemed that the rebels intended to retire to reform their lines.

The rebel fire stopped almost entirely, leaving the federal forces victorious, at least for the moment.

It was apparent that rebel casualties were heavy. A devastating fire was poured into their ranks as they advanced.

Scarcely a building on the American side of the line escaped the mark of bullets.

Shots fell continuously in the streets and for once soldiers and deputies did not need to warn visiting Americans to keep out of harm's way.

Boys, 18 and 22, Held for Slayers

Confessing that he shot and killed his father, 18-year-old Jack Crawford, right, has been jailed in Los Angeles and charged with murder. Young Crawford's mother and brother say the father was throwing dishes at Mrs. Crawford and that the boy shot to save his mother from abuse. William Loughman, 22, left, of Washington, Pa., was held without bail on a charge of murdering 15-year-old Gertrude Heiney over the love of a 14-year-old schoolgirl, Gertrude Baer.

Air Corps Tests Aerial Instrument In Long Flight

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., April 6.—A thorough test of new aerial navigation and communication instruments was started by the army air corps Saturday when three army planes, carrying eight air corps officers and one mechanic, took off from Brownsville for Boston, Mass.

Much interest is being attracted to the flight because of practical tests to be conducted with the air corps' new "Pancake" radio receiving set. The set was developed by the signal corps of the army, and it is believed will answer the air corps long felt need for a small and light, but reliable radio receiving set.

The three planes include one trimotored Packer cabin monoplane, one trimotored all-metal Ford cabin monoplane, and a Curtiss two-seater. All the officers of the expedition will alternate as pilots.

The personnel includes: Capt. C. V. Finter, A. F. Hegeberger, Lieut. F. B. Tindall, Lieut. G. H. Gale, Lieut. F. B. Valentine, Lieut. P. Melville and Mechanic E. L. Jordan, all of Wilbur Wright Field, and Lieuts. E. C. Lynch and E. C. Langmead of Brooks Field, San Antonio.

The total vote cast Saturday for members of the board of education for the Eastland Independent school district had not been announced when the issue of the Telegram was printed, but reports late in the afternoon revealed that but little interest was being manifested in the election since there were no contests for the four vacancies on the board.

Garrett Bohling, George Brosdon Green Hazel and Grady Pipkin were the candidates whose name appear on the ticket. They were unopposed.

FIVE DIE WHEN HOTEL BURNS UP

Guests Leap From Fifth Floor Windows At Des Moines—One of the Dead Has Not Been Identified.

DES MOINES, April 6.—Fire believed to have originated in a room where a "wild drinking party" was in progress today swept the Kirkwood hotel, bringing death to at least five persons. A score were injured, eight so severely they required hospital treatment.

Fire and police officials believe the ruins will give up additional bodies when they cool sufficiently to permit search.

The hotel, built a half century ago, was valued at $150,000.

Between 125 and 150 guests were in the hotel when the fire was discovered at 3 a. m. Many were able to reach the street safely but several jumped from windows, including four occupants of the fifth floor who leaped to the roof of the first floor court.

The dead were W. P. Radler, address unknown, Thos. P. Coates, of Kankakee, Ill.; Mrs. Ted Watson, Ralph Jarrup, both of Des Moines, and an unidentified man. Ted Watson, husband of the woman burned to death, was not expected to live. Twelve injured were treated in hospitals.

"Burglar Proof" Safe Is Robbed Of $21,000 Cash

MACOMB, Ill., April 6.—A new burglar proof safe at the Macomb post office was robbed of $21,000 during the night, post office authorities reported to police today.

The new safe, equipped with especially designed tear bombs, had been entered by means of an acetylene torch which was found on the floor. Explosion of the tear bombs had been avoided by cutting a four inch square around the combination on the outer and inner door.

Carbon Farmers Diversify And Are Prosperous

Splendid progress in diversification is being made in the Carbon county, declares County Agent J. C. Patterson.

Two carloads of fertilizer have been purchased by Carbon farmers.

More hogs are on the farms of that section than ever before.

At the meeting Saturday night plans were to be made for the completion of the cream route.

The blackberry project, providing for 200 acres to be planted in berries, has had to be postponed for a year owing to inability to obtain the plants. However, the acreage has been signed up and those interested are enthusiastic about the possibilities.

Bobbie Sikes Is Wounded When a Bullet Explodes

While playing in the yard with his younger brother, Bobbie, the 11-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Sikes received a wound in his right arm, near the elbow, when a bullet which he had placed in an old rifle barrel from which the stock and triggers had been removed exploded. The accident happened about 10:00 o'clock Saturday morning.

After the bullet had been placed in the barrel Bobbie struck it on something and it exploded. Surgeons have been unable to find the bullet.

"All Around the House and Pig-pen Too" Is His Motto

By HARRY FERGUSON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, April 6.—Charles Beck of Rockville Center, L. I., sighs for the days when he could open a door and go from his dining room into his kitchen.

Now when he desires to make that journey of a foot and a half he finds it necessary to walk out into the back yard, climb three flights of apartment of a neighbor, climb down three flights of interior stairs and enter his kitchen from the rear.

Rockville Center residents describe it as one of the most thorough jobs of padlocking ever done by a prohibition agent.

Last July men knocked on Beck's front door, entered and sniffed. In the parlor they found a piece of furniture, which they insisted was a "bar." Beck didn't know about that and didn't care, he cared less.

All went well until three months ago when one of the agents returned with a piece of blue paper.

Beck was informed that a judge would like to see him. There was some mention of a statute called the Volstead law.

"It don't bother me," said Beck. "I'm busy."

The dry agent departed. Yesterday he was back, laden down with bolts, screws, padlocks and awls. By this time Beck was getting accustomed to this eccentric fellow who kept calling on him, so he paid no particular attention to the man as he went about the house, driving nails and putting screws in the doors.

"I guess that will be all," said the prohibition agent after two hours. "Good bye."

Beck went on a tour of inspection. There was padlocks on his outside door; there were padlocks on the doors of each of the six rooms in his house. Beck sat down and penned a letter to the prohibition authorities. He explained that his wife and child were in danger of contracting pneumonia every time they went from the dining room to the kitchen to get a drink of water. And anyway, he wrote, if it was wrong to have a bar in the parlor, the dry agent might have contented himself with putting a padlock on that room only.

BOXING TO ATTRACT A BIG CROWD

Eastland City Hall Will Be Scene Tuesday Night—No Admission Charge—Out-of-Town Fans Expected.

The boxing program which attracted 600 people to the Eastland city hall recently was so enthusiastically received that J. M. Nunn, chairman of the athletic committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has arranged another program which will be given Tuesday night.

Six or seven bouts will be held, and plenty of skill can be looked for.

Bill Ligon, who showed lots of science in his bout with Shazo Harrell will be matched against a lad his weight. He is in the light heavyweight class. His opponent will be announced Monday. This scrap is expected to be the feature of the evening.

The huge Billy Jenne, 250-pounder, who made a hit on the preceding occasion, will likewise swing into action again.

There is no charge for admission and everyone is invited. Ladies are especially invited to attend. The program will be conducted in a clean, refined way.

Although there is no admission charge, the hat will be passed and everyone who desires to contribute may do so. Those who do not contribute, however, are entirely welcome to attend. The boxers are giving their services and the contributions will go toward the expense of grassing the Eastland football field.

Numerous Ranger, Olden and Cisco fans interested in boxing, are planning to attend and predictions are that the city hall auditorium, seating 1,000, will be filled.

RESOLUTION TO IMPEACH LONG OFFERED

Charges That He Attempted to Intimidate Congressman Man Filed With Louisiana House of Representatives.

BATON ROUGE, La., April 6.—The Louisiana House of Representatives voted today, 58 to 40, to refer one of 19 charges of impeachment against Gov. Huey P. Long to the Senate for trial.

This action was taken after several hours of debate on the first resolution presented to the House as a committee of the whole.

The charge was based on the allegation that Gov. Long threatened Charles W. Manship, Baton Rouge newspaper editor, with publication of the names of "those that are fighting me that have relatives in the insane asylum," and that he actually did publish the fact in a radio speech, Manship's brother, a world war veteran is confined to a sanitarium.

A resolution to impeach Gov. Huey P. Long on the charge that he attempted to intimidate Chas. W. Manship, newspaper editor, was introduced in the state House of Representatives here today immediately after the House had resolved itself into a committee of the whole.

The motion made by Rep. George K. Perral as the result of an agreement to defer the taking of testimony at least one resolution of impeachment has been adopted, or all admissible charges are defeated.

Supporters of Gov. Long claimed control of 55 votes against the impeachment resolution shortly before the session opened at 9:30. The insurgent faction which controlled the House since impeachment proceedings started, protested this statement.

Debate over the resolution was begun immediately the motion had been introduced. The debate, by agreement, will be unlimited either as to length or number of speeches.

BLACK CLAW CLUTCHES AT MANY TOWNS

Ten Are Known Dead, Nearly 100 Injured—Estimate Property Damage in Wisconsin and Minnesota At $1,000,000.

MINNEAPOLIS, April 6.—A black robed tornado whirled in a crazy dance over Minnesota and Wisconsin Friday night and, when the crushing dips and turns were done, it was learned today that at least 13 persons had been killed, nearly 100 injured and property damaged perhaps to the extent of $1,000,000.

The fitful, terrible dancer first touched Worthington, Minn., where several small farm buildings were destroyed and then bounded with intensified force up and around the Twin Cities and northwest into Wisconsin.

In its wake was a mass of twisted or demolished buildings, uprooted trees, broken communication lines, dead livestock and levelled farms. Hospitals in a half dozen cities cared today for the injured several of which were given slight chances for recovery.

It was impossible to estimate the property damage at once but there was little doubt that it would reach several hundred thousand dollars.

Neither Minneapolis nor St. Paul were seriously affected by the twist er.

The black funnel shaped cloud which eye-witnesses described as "A huge claw which came out of the sky" was observed approaching north of Minneapolis shortly before 5 p. m. from the direction of Worthington.

Screams filled the air as the great force toppled over buildings and hurled the wreckage to the earth.

The tornado twisted and whirled over a wide path in the Lake Minnetonka region, which only last summer was battered by a similar force, and then turned toward Wisconsin.

A path sometimes a mile or more wide and approximately 200 miles long was blazed with debris and the destructive winds passed over the two states.

The known dead were: Andrew Hanson, 42, North Minneapolis; John Lindgren, 41, Forest Lake, Minn.; C. F. Bryan, 62, Taylor Falls, Minn.; Miss Martha Rowe, 26, Rice Lake, Wis.; Mrs. Lewis Reed, 50, near Rice Lake.

John Salmon, Clayton, Wis.; Douglas and Dorothy Pittman, children of Richard Pittman at Reeves, Wis.; Lawrence Pittman, young son of John Pittman Reeves, Wis.; Mrs. John Paulson, of near Barrow (not expected to live); John Paulson; Mr. and Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Shell Lake, Wis.; Charles Hanson, Barron, Wis.; Mrs. Nauer, Barron, Wis.; Frank Olson, Chicago, City, Minn.; Louis Larson, North Minneapolis; Lewis Reed, Rice Lake, Wis.; Mrs. Charles Skog, Forest Lake, Minn.; Martin Hockstra, Forest Lake; Leonard Thullner, 42, Minneapolis.

Louis Anna Thullner, 4, Minneapolis; Frank Olson, 56, Forest Lake; Mrs. John Paulson, 82, of near Barrow; A. G. Anderson, Glenwood City.

THE "WHITE PLAGUE" DECLINES.

The human race has done a good many rather notable things in the early part of the twentieth century. It has some splendid achievements to its credit. One of the very finest, overlooked by most of us, has been its steady, winning fight against the disease tuberculosis.

The progress of this fight is set forth in an article in the current Harper's Magazine by Dr. Louis I. Dublin.

At the beginning of the century, he points out, the death rate for tuberculosis in the registration states of the United States was 195 per 100,000 of the population. This meant that approximately two people out of every thousand died from tuberculosis every year.

By 1910, however, the death rate in the same area had dropped to 164—a decline, in 10 years, of over 15 per cent.

In 1920 the rate had fallen to a drop of more than 82 per cent, or over twice as fast as in the preceding decade.

Most amazing of all, by 1926 the rate had dropped to 84 per 100,000—considerably less than half of the rate for 1900.

This achievement is as encouraging and noteworthy as anything medical science has done. At the dawn of the century, tuberculosis was one of the greatest scourges the race had. It was dreadfully common, and once it took hold there was little that could be done to check it.

Now, however, Dr. Dublin, after surveying the statistics, announces that "the time has arrived when we may look forward to the virtual elimination of tuberculosis as a major problem in public health."

There remains, of course, another angle of the thing to be considered. As the tuberculosis death rate has declined, the death rates for other diseases have risen. Cancer and organic diseases of the heart, to mention two, kill far more people now than they did three decades ago. Medical science is coming close to the solution of one problem, only to find another one on its hands. For a good many years to come it will have plenty of puzzles to solve.

U. S. SOLDIER REPORTED AS WOUNDED

today as federal troops relentlessly advanced strong offensive columns on the rough mountain country from two directions.

There was a possibility that the defeated and broken insurgent forces would offer resistance in Chihuahua or Sinaloa, according to border reports, but Mexican Minister of War Calles expressed the conviction that there would be no important clash outside Sonora.

Juarez offered one possible scene of conflict—despite Calles' opinion—and federal troops on the west coast reported that they might overtake and attack the rebels retreating from Sinaloa, at San Blas, near the Sonora border. It also was possible that rebels at Chihuahua City would offer resistance although the government said they were retiring northwest.

An attack was anticipated at Naco, state of Sonora, however, as the rebels were reported preparing for an attempt to seize the border city from loyalists before reinforcements arrived from El Paso, Tex., where federal troops who fled from Juarez after the rebel victory there were released from Ft. Bliss.

OUT OUR WAY

FAMILY OF 8 DIED A YEAR AGO

County's Greatest Tragedy Is Recalled on Anniversary—May Go Down As One of the Unsolved Mysteries.

One year ago, the greatest crime in the eventful history of Eastland county was committed—the murder of eight members of a single family. "Boss" Jackson, his wife and their six daughters—the oldest less than 14 and the youngest, twins, only two years of age—lost their lives one year ago Saturday night near Bothan in the western edge of the county. After the murders, their home was set on fire to cover the traces of the deed and the house burned to the ground.

Today, the authorities apparently are no nearer a solution of the mystery than they were immediately after the crime was discovered. Vigorous investigation, lasting for some weeks, yielded nothing and for months there has been no public reference made to the case by officials.

On that tragic night, April 6, 1928 the stars of flames attracted neighbors who, arriving on the scene, found the Jackson house a roaring furnace. By the ghastly illumination, bodies could be seen within. It might have been thought that the house accidentally caught fire and the entire family was destroyed as the members were asleep had not been found the throat of one of the children had been slashed. Then authorities reached the conclusion that murder had been committed, then the house set on fire to hide the crime.

Bill Schluter, a friend of Jackson, left the house at about 9 o'clock that night, proceeded to a farmhouse where he was employed and had retired when he was aroused by his employer, who told him that Jackson's house was on fire. The flames were plainly visible.

The authorities detained Schluter for questioning but the young man gave a straight-forward account and declared he knew nothing that would throw light upon the tragedy.

While he was held in the county jail, another event befell in the neighborhood of the Jackson murders. Charles Jackson, brother of the unfortunate man, was spending the night with a neighbor who lived near the scene of the tragedy. During the night, this house caught on fire but the occupants were awakened and the 15 members of the two families escaped. Many incline to the belief that the same hand that set fire to the "Boss" Jackson home struck this second blow. Others believe that the second fire was accidental.

Unless some unforeseen development—the working of conscience, perhaps—causes the unknown assassin to blurt out his secret, the crime that exterminated a family of eight seems destined to go into the records as forever an unsolved mystery.

ST. LOUIS, April 6.—A national referendum on prohibition will be asked of Congress in a concurrent resolution to be presented in the Missouri state legislature Monday by Rep. Aom A. Huber of St. Louis he announced today. The resolution will neither attack nor defend the 18th amendment Huber said, but simply urge an opportunity to be given the people of America to vote on the matter.

Weekly Cotton Review

NEW YORK, April 6.—Cotton futures worked lower on favorable weather reports and an extensive liquidation during the past week on the cotton exchange.

Prices sagged 15 to 20 points in the initial session of the week on increased acreage estimates and sharp decline in the call money rate to 15 cent, and thereafter declined on rather heavy professional liquidation with intermittent rallies that failed to raise levels appreciably.

Cables were poor throughout and a bearish interpretation of the weekly report on Wednesday brought further liquidation and the weekly weather report indicating favorable conditions throughout the belt did not encourage any operations for the advance.

Wall Street, the South and commission houses engaged in some rather extensive selling in the latter part of the week and the trade absorbed contracts on a scale down. Talk of unfavorable weather by the week-end and some trade short covering brought in some scattered outside support, but an irregular stock market and comparatively high money continued to work against the price.

While the weekly report showed Texas survival as 10.7 per cent of loss, against 77.5 a year ago and South Carolina as 7.07, against 21.1, figures for Georgia were 38.7 against 88.7, Alabama 10.8 against 43.2 and Louisiana 40.6, against 45.9 last year.

Professor May Be Right About It

By HENRY T. RUSSELL United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON.—Human beings of future generations may be able to transmit waves of thought to one another by using the electrical force in the bodies, in the opinion of Professor A. M. Low, distinguished young British scientist, expressed in an interview with the United Press correspondent.

Professor Low also said that the time would come when persons might be arrested for allowing their "thinking waves" to clash with others. He added that a man will have to be allotted thinking wave lengths, and if those are exceeded by him, it will have to be a matter for the police.

"And another thing," the professor said, apparently in dead earnest, "I hope the day will come when all those who make a noise will be put in jail."

"The day will come—although I think it is still far distant—when we shall learn to convey power by wireless. The discovery of wireless power transmission should enable us to send through space and at immense heights to specially designed airplanes flying by inductive power supplied by stations many miles away from them. Thus not only would they be controlled by wireless as were John Hays Hammond's experimental crewless ships, but would also be moved by radio."

"I think also that the day will come when we shall be able to move vehicles along the highways by means of underground cables connected by induction with some simple mechanism under the car to be propelled. Thus we would have fuelless automobiles, motorless tramways and steamless engines.

"Close All Sunday Movies"—Woodall

By United Press. MARSHALL, Tex., April 6.—Strict enforcement of the present law against Sunday picture shows in all towns and cities of Texas is favored by Rep. Ben Woodall of Marshall.

Following Governor Moody's veto of the bill to legalize Sunday movies, Woodall declared he will introduce a resolution at the special session calling on all law enforcement officers, including the governor, to enforce Sunday closing laws now in force, prohibiting picture shows and theaters from operating on Sunday.

There are 142 cities and towns in Texas where picture shows are operating in direct conflict with the penal code, according to Woodall, who believes there should be no discrimination in enforcement of the movie laws.

Bomb Wrecks The Smoking Car On Santa Fe Train

HOUSTON, Tex., April 6.—A high explosive bomb wrecked the smoking car of the Houston-bound Ranger, crack Santa Fe train, at 2:05 a. m. today, it was reported when the "flyer" reached here Saturday, forty minutes late.

The explosion in the first passenger car after the baggage coaches, took place between Pendleton and Moody. Twelve men riding in the compartment were injured.

The car's interior was wrecked and it was cut off the train at Temple.

The bomb, or dynamite stick, evidently was planted in the lavatory of the car, which was divided into a white smoking section and a section for negroes.

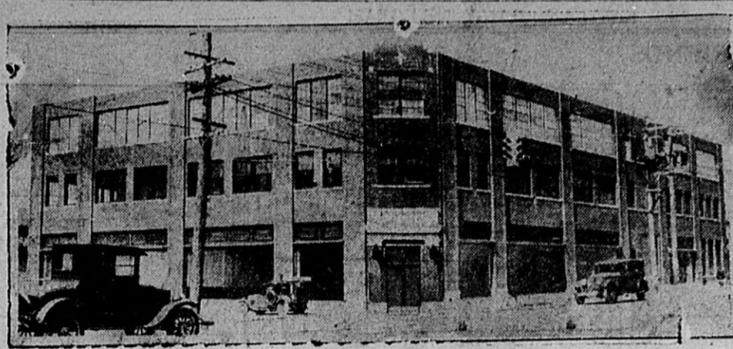

Former Governor Jim Ferguson also was a passenger on the train but left it at Temple.

Trainmen said the steel construction of the coach saved it from being blown from the track and causing a serious wreck.

A man who got on the train at Clifton for Cameron acted queerly and was suspected of planting the bomb. He could not be found when the train stopped after the explosion.

Buick Opening New Dallas Home

It is quite fitting and in full keeping with the celebration of the Silver Anniversary of Buick, together with the recognized growing importance of the Dallas zone in the automotive field, and the ever increasing popularity of Buick, that the Dallas zone headquarters should occupy a new and modern structure of sufficient size and appointment to meet every requirement of service and sales for Buick owners and prospective owners.

The new building is three stories high, of brick and reinforced concrete construction, and contains 55,000 square feet of floor space. The ground floor is given over to the display of the 17 beautiful 1929 Buick Silver Anniversary models, and to the housing of the large parts department, where a stock of over $200,000.00 worth of parts and accessories are constantly maintained on which dealers throughout the territory can draw to supplement their own stocks.

The personnel of the Dallas zone headquarters, as announced by John C. Cheek, manager, consists of H. H. Laezy, chief of new car distribution; J. K. Sutton, service manager; W. A. Shuler, manager of the parts department; R. T. Fisher, sales promotion manager; W. B. Wallace, manager of used car department; S. N. Johnson, manager of the accounting department and Lester E. Lloyd, head of sales research department.

"The long service and broad experience of this group of department heads is assurance to all Buick customers of efficient and satisfactory service," said Mr. Cheek. "Our zone organization is imbued with the full spirit of the Buick policy of fair play and service."

"Our new building, I believe, is eloquent proof of the rapidly increasing importance of Dallas and Dallas territory as an automobile distributing center. Our dealers in this territory are today better organized and equipped to serve the public than ever before and we of the Dallas headquarters are working constantly to the end that nothing will be overlooked."

"The opening of this new building," he continued, "is a matter of real public interest, and we want everyone to visit and inspect the new plant."

Brunk's To Open On Monday Night

By special request from the people of Eastland, Henry L. Brunk is going to give the following plays next week, "Why Men Leave Home," "The Mad Honey Moon," "Laff That Off," "The opening play Monday night, "The Florida Bubble," with plenty of good comedy. "The Florida Bubble" is a show that is perfectly balanced and entitled to a place along with the best of them.

Brunk's Recording Orchestra, a nine piece combination, is a hot favorite. The orchestra is under the direction of Harry W. Masten. Mr. Brunk wants every-one in Eastland to know that nothing but high class plays and plenty of good clean comedy is given in his big tent theatre. The Brunk Show will play under the auspices of the Eastland Fire Department all next week.

Tracy Wilson and family were visitors in this community Sunday.

WALTER JOHNSON HAS GOOD WISHES OF ALL THE FANS

Senators Are Playing Their Best for New Manager—Have 16 Out of 20 Spring Games.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, April 6.—Sentimental baseball fans who have been pulling for Connie Mack to pilot another winner during the past fourteen years will divide their allegiance between him and Walter Johnson this season.

There is no more lovable character in the National League than Walter Johnson and countless baseball fans from coast to coast will be heart and soul with "Old Barney" in his first season as a major league manager.

The Senators have won 16 out of 20 training camp games and the players are fighting their hearts out for "Old Barney."

Erratic pitching, a rap at shortstop and Goose Goslin's "dead arm" hold the Senators back last season but they played good ball in September and closed the season in fourth place with a percentage of .457. None of these troubles are expected to recur again this season.

It will take a long hard pennant race to discover the flaws in the 1929 Walter Johnson machine which apparently has everything a pennant contender requires.

Unless the Senators spring a leak at second base, where Jack Hayes is playing capably at present, Walter Johnson ought to have his club fighting for the pennant.

A glimpse at the Senators' batting order reveals a powerful attack.

Player	Position	Batting Average
Wright	Center field	.301
Myer	Third base	.313
Goslin	Left field	.379
Barnes	Right field	.305
Bluege	Shortstop	.297
Judge	First base	.306
Hayes	Second base	.332
Ruelch	Catcher	.257
Tate	Catcher	.246

The sentimental play of Emilie Barnes, former Alabama football star, has benched Sam Rice, veteran outfielder who batted .328 last season and was one of the three American league players to make more than 200 hits. Barnes has been hitting around .400.

Joe Cronin, a 22-year old rookie infielder from Kansas City, is ready for a regular berth in the opinion of Johnson but he can't bench Ossie Bluege, who has been moved from third base to short, or Hayes as long as the Senators continue to function smoothly.

Goslin's arm hasn't bothered him this spring and the American league batting champion expects to play regularly.

If tight pitching is what it takes to make the Senators a dangerous club, there is little doubt but that Walter Johnson will get it out of a pitching staff composed of Sam Jones, Garland Brazton, Fred Marberry, Irving Hahley, Lloyd Brown, Bob Burke, Archie Campbell and Ad Liska.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MOM'N POP

HERE AND THERE

Representatives of the schools of the Oil Belt district will meet on April 20 to arrange the gridiron schedule. This meeting is of general interest as it is expected that several new schools will enter the district. Big Spring, Ballinger, Sweetwater, Mineral Wells and Weatherford have been mentioned in this connection.

The Abilene Eagles have high hopes for a brilliant attack next fall built around Cecil Johnson, former Eastland high school lad. Cecil is the younger brother of the renowned "Bull", the greatest fullback in high school circles in the state two seasons ago. The Johnson brothers played at Stephenville, then came to Eastland where Cecil was not eligible nor, it seems, was he eligible at Abilene last season, due to his studies. Two years back—in criticism—he demonstrated to the satisfaction of his scribe that he has great potentialities. As a punter, he was superior to Bull; as a passer, he was nearly as good; he was a star on receiving passes and as he has greater speed than his older brother; he is more of a scoring threat. With the support that Abilene can give Cecil, there is no reason why he should not prove a sensation.

The Eagles will engage in their usual spring training clash with the Anson Tigers next Saturday. Some 45 boys have been out for practice at Abilene High. Several lads who are being counted upon strongly have not been working out as they are members of the track team.

Ranger seems highly optimistic for the next grid season. Fans who have watched the boys in spring training declare the team will be as good or better than in the 1929 edition. Eastland has hopes of the best team since 1925 and spring training brought out nearly enough lads for four elevens—a record number of aspirants for E. H. S. From Breckenridge and Cisco, very little is heard. However, the Buckaroos have been frequently referred to as the team that will have to be beaten next fall. And, of course, the year that Cisco doesn't have a powerful machine, the Anti-Saloon league will come out for light wines and beer, Pennsylvania will be carried by the Socialists and Notre Dame's chief boast will be its strong checker players. San Angelo will have to be strongly reckoned with, though the loss of Baker and Massey was a blow. And Brownwood will be much more potent than last year. Even then, it will be recalled that the Lions were going good in late games.

With every Iowa hopeful and with new towns going to enter, the Oil Belt loop should have an exciting race.

But this is baseball weather and some of the frenzied fanatics are clamoring to see some games on the diamond. Personally, we'd like to see some fancy stops and circus catches, some solid smacks and some stolen sacks.

Hoover's Busiest Month Just Over

WASHINGTON, Pres. Hoover's first month in the White House has been the busiest month of his life. That is his estimate of being chief executive, according to White House attaches. Not even his days as war-time food administrator or European relief dictat-

The list of problems to which Hoover has devoted himself since March 4 reads like the accumulative index of the Congressional Record. THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE, stenographer at the Judson Hotel, has been snatched from her in a room, but STEPHEN ARMSTRONG catches the thief and recovers the scarf. He asks to take home. Not wishing to seem ungrateful, she invites him to dinner.

That evening is spoiled when MELBA JUDSON, daughter of the employer, phones her to go to duty. Stephen escorts her to the hotel where Pamela accuses him as the salesman who sold her a car. She snubs him and tries to lure Stephen by pretending she wants another car from him. Then she meets HUCK CONNOR, who tells her he is a broker from New York.

Stephen invites Mildred to the party with him, and when Pamela learns that they are going to the party, she asks Huck to take her, hoping to share Mildred with her ex-lover.

Stephen confides to Mildred that he is suspicious of Huck, but she thinks he is merely jealous of her. After the show Mildred goes to a night club party. Pamela persuades her brother HAROLD to go. He admits Huck and confesses that he has gambled but has not been caught. Huck suggests that he play pool and offers to give him a lesson.

"Keep it quiet, Duke. I'll bring the kid to you. He's your chump, see? I don't want it spilled that I'm in on it."

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

Huck entered an unpretentious building in a dark building and passed a long, narrow, uncarpeted hall to a small elevator in a rear.

Four flights of stairs he got and made his way down another hall to a short flight that led him to a swinging door which he pushed open with his feet and strode beyond.

He came to the third door on the right hand side. He unlocked the door and entered a room which he had entered from before.

He had not yet had his arrival at the destination. There was one passage way to be negotiated. But this was different. It was not silent or darkened. A buzz of excited voices held a low tenor came to Huck's ears as soon as he had opened the door. Along one side of the passage way were other swinging doors that he did not want to conceal the view to the room behind them. But he did not pause to glance at them. His stride was hurried as he added toward a door marked "Men."

On it he rapped sharply and rearranged his signal and admitted after a hidden eye scrutinized his features.

"Hello, Huck," he was greeted in a man at a gray steel desk.

"The racket?"

"Need your help, Duke," Huck said frankly. "There's a chap I know that's got to be steered in. On the job?"

"I'll crown. Keep it quiet, Duke? I'll bring the kid to you. He's your chump, see? I don't want it spilled that I'm in on it."

Huck was reverting to the man at his desk to appease a man who never liked to have a pull any high hat stuff with him.

"Right. What's the lay?"

"Granted."

He told him. And the next when he introduced Harold and turned him over to the man because he himself had no part in the engagement with "the kid," the boy was introduced with the attention he received as a friend of Huck's.

Harold took him aside for a moment before he left. Harold told beforehand that was merely a patron of the man who gave Huck his job.

"I think this man Duke is on the level," Huck said to him. "But he's only waiting until the time for a big killing. Don't trust him too deep. You can't trust him."

Harold nodded. He couldn't very deep; his allowance was perpetually overdrawn. But a clever stroke on Huck's part, question Duke's honesty, and suspicion away from him.

Duke took him in where he would molder before the portraits on the wall, rushed to the bulletin boards to tele-phones, crowded around the user to get the telegraphed on the entries, feverishly read their dope sheets and made their bets. Harold read what slight distrust of him had been entertaining to him and the people who ran the place.

"Let him play the first race on sheet information. Harold a few dollars; not enough to encourage him. On the second his horse came in second the third he lost again. Duke took a hand."

Huck took a hand in a room with a wife where he put in a call and pretended to be seriously for a return call. It came it was the return fourth race, but to Harold from Duke's end of the station, it purported to be a

"I've had a lucky day," he boasted. "Don't spoil it, Mildred. I'd rather take you out than any girl I know."

Mildred frowned. "What have you been up to?" she questioned, disturbed over the flush on the door a man cutting across his path bumped sharply into him and knocked him back into the room.

"Look where you're going," the other snarled, and Harold told him angrily to watch his own step. The fellow wanted to fight and, so far as Harold knew, there might have been trouble if Duke had not returned and put a stop to it.

Which little diversion prevented Harold from finding out that Duke had placed his bet after this race was won. And when he learned that the horse he had advised to bet on had brought home first money at heavy odds he felt he'd been cheated out of a good thing.

His irritation was directed at Huck, who appeared shortly afterward. If Huck had let him alone he'd have made a cleaning, Harold thought resentfully.

Huck assured him he had an engagement at the hotel and couldn't stay. "A little game with some friends from Chicago," Huck explained. "Like to have you come in and meet the boys?"

Harold needed no second invitation. His gambling spirit had been fired by the betting on the races. He wasn't ready to quit, but Duke had called it a day and departed. "Let's go," he said, his resentment vanishing.

Mildred saw them come in together; saw that Harold was talking excitedly. And when he passed her desk and gave her only a nervous nod she saw that he looked flushed.

Well, she had troubles of her own to worry about. She'd spent a sleepless night anticipating Pamela's first move of vengeance. As she had expected, it had come quickly.

She'd been called to the manager's office a short while before and very plainly told that she wasn't in the employ of the hotel to make dates with men who came to her on business.

Her anger had fired up quickly. "If you mean Mr. Armitage," she retorted, "I did not meet him first in the hotel."

The manager had studied her intently before saying anything more. Then, "Are you satisfied with your position, Miss Lawrence?" he asked quietly.

Mildred nodded. "If Miss Judson would let me alone," she said.

The manager sighed. "Ah, my dear," he replied, "that's just it. She isn't going to let you alone. You're too pretty, and you've managed to get in her way. But I should hate to lose you. We very rarely have complaints against you," he smiled. "There are cranks, you know, who would complain against perfection."

"I think I'd better leave, Mr. Dazel," Mildred said tensely. "Perhaps we can adjust the matter," he said anxiously. "I was under an impression that you had come to know this Mr. Armitage who appears to be the cause of the trouble."

"I know," Mildred said wearily. "Miss Judson probably told you I picked him up. Well, I did, in a way, but not in a hotel."

"Well, well." The manager seemed desirous of closing the interview. "It may be a choice for you between your place here and the young man. I'd advise you to give the matter serious thought."

Mildred was giving it serious thought. She forgot about Harold and her concern over seeing him with Huck Connor until he came to her desk just before closing time and begged her for a date.

"I've had a lucky day," he boasted. "Don't spoil it, Mildred. I'd rather take you out than any girl I know."

Mildred frowned. "What have you been up to?" she questioned, disturbed over the flush on the boy's face and the nervous, fidgeting gestures of his slim hands.

"Drinking?"

"Winning," Harold answered. "Come on, baby, make me happy. A dinner in some quiet place where I can tell you how much I love you, then a show and some place to dance . . ."

"And I'd lose my job," Mildred finished for him so he wouldn't suspect that she was trying to manage him. "Nothing doing, firebrand. I was out last night. But if you can bring yourself to spend a quiet evening at my fire-side you're welcome to sit in on the radio and the hot chocolate."

"With mother and sister?"

"Connie's going out and I'll put mother to bed."

Harold moaned. "My God, a fire-side! I bet you'll have a smoking jacket and slippers for me."

"Come early," Mildred told him, and started putting her desk in final order.

"I don't suppose you would come up to dinner," she added a little shyly. She hated to let him go now. He had been drinking; there was no mistaking that.

"I'd be ticked to death," he declared. "Wait for me."

And while he was gone for his topcoat Mildred closed and locked her desk. She was just turning away to get her own wraps when she looked up and saw Stephen approaching.

MINERAL WELLS PREPARES FOR VISITING SHIPS

To Dedicate Municipal Airport Saturday and Sunday.

MINERAL WELLS, April 5.—The program for the dedication of the new Mineral Wells Air Port Saturday and Sunday, April 6 and 7 will be chock-full of interesting events. The formal dedication ceremony will be performed by Mrs. A. P. Barrett, wife of the president of the Texas Air Transport company, and formerly a Mineral Wells girl, who will drop a shower of roses upon the field from a flying plane. In addition to the airplane stunts and maneuvers which usually characterize such occasions, there will be on both days a parachute jump from an airplane by Shorty Reddie, of Dallas, and on Sunday afternoon some score or more contestants will put on a motorcycle hill-climbing contest. This thrilling contest, new in this section, has been arranged by dealers and riders in north and Central Texas in co-operation with the Mineral Wells Chamber of Commerce. It will be staged on Bald Mountain, a 300-foot hill in the eastern city limits. The course laid out is up the side of the mountain on a grade of from 45 to 50 per cent. Cash prizes will be awarded to the ones reaching the highest point. These hill-climbing contests are popular in California commonly drawing crowds from 10 to 15 thousand.

A large number of visiting pilots have indicated their intention to bring planes, St. Paul being the most remote point yet reporting which place is sending a Ford tri-motored all metal plane. A dinner for visiting pilots will be given by the Mineral Wells Chamber of Commerce Saturday night.

BREAKING INTO TALKIES
NEW YORK—Up at the Bronx zoo, 300 unrelated forms of jungle life are rehearsing their parts for the first all-animal, all-talkie movie ever produced.

Under the skillful direction of Dr. Raymond L. Dittmars, curator of mammals and reptiles at the zoo, the crack of the cricket, the queasy lyric of the tree toad and the sounds of more brutish animals will be produced and filmed for lecture purposes.

Of the 300 actors, Dr. Dittmars said Slighters, the hyena, is the most temperamental.

"Once he starts laughing, there's no stopping him," Dittmars said.

THE MUSIC CLUB OF EASTLAND COMMEMORATES ANNUAL LUNCHEON DAY WITH BRILLIANT EVENT

The Roof Garden of the Connelley Hotel presented a gay and blithesome dinner Friday morn, planned for the honor of the annual luncheon of the Eastland Music Club, which entertained its members and friends about the brilliantly decorated banquet board that extended in the shape of an open square, the speakers' table connecting the two opposite tables, down the lengths of which were seated members, their guests, and club guests. Ye Harmony Shoppe was skillfully developed in its picturesque meaning in the decorations of gray hand-boxes that centered the tables and were fragrant with great clusters of beautiful spring flowers and the plummy lilac. A colorful line of "model" hats in every conceivable design and adornment, marched down the tables in double rows swinging from their wire standards and placed near the miniature hat boxes tied with girly bows and filled with candied mints. Each plate was indicated by the hat and hat box, the souvenirs of the luncheon, and the fair work of ye nimble fingers of Mrs. E. B. Baldwin, Mrs. J. M. Mouser and Mrs. J. M. Perkins. Trays of dainties in iced olives and curly celery spaced the tables at intervals between the gray plate favors. The speakers' table seated ye president of the club, Mrs. T. J. Pitts; ye chief sales lady of Harmony Shoppe and toastmistress, Mrs. J. M. Perkins; Mrs. Lela Johnson of Coleman, chairman of music; Texas Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. E. B. Wiley of Abilene, State chairman of music and of McMurray college; Mrs. J. D. Turk of Abilene, incoming president of Sixth district Texas Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. Monroe G. spoke of our chief markets and ye attractive features available for Eastland Harmony Shoppe. Mrs. Monroe Cheney was presented and gave a sparkling thought in the field of education. Miss Loraine Taylor was called upon and gave a sweet and girlish appreciation of the sponsorship of the Eastland Music Club and the privileges of having a junior McDowell Club. Mrs. Grady Pipkin was at her best in delightful voice numbers, with Mrs. C. G. Norton at the piano; "A Birthday" and "A Bowl of Roses."

Ye Chief Saleslady stated

the duo had a true reflector, who mirrored the styles of the members and introduced Mrs. W. K. Jackson, district chairman. "O wad a power the gifte gie us to see ourselves as others see us," a running commentary on ye styles of chapeaux best fitted to ye noble brows of the patrons of ye harmony shoppe and ye visitors thereto was described and Madame Pitts requested to fit ye head piece so that ye noble brow would not be surcharged with weight. Each member rose and bowed as her style was described. Mrs. B. B. Bickerstaff, in for ye harmony shoppe, presented a foreign visitor, Mrs. Turk, the incoming president of the Sixth district, who responded in a clever phrase or two. Mrs. Turk sang very exquisitely, "By the Bend of the River," by Edwards, and "A Birthday," by Cowan with Hjalmer Bergh of Abilene at the piano. Mrs. Bergh was the accompanist for the visiting officers. His music is exceptionally clear and pleasant and shows a sympathetic understanding of moods.

Ye toast mistress, the chief sales lady

A delightful (a) and (b) number, violin, was presented by Mrs. Clifton of Olden with Mrs. Simpson of Desdemona at the piano, the group including a French song and a 17th century danse.

The delicious menu of iced fruit cocktail had a plente luncheon of roast chicken, creamed asparagus, waffle potatoes, hot rolls and vegetable salad, the third course of vegetable salad and waters, had ice cream with whipped cream topping. An informal reception prior to luncheon was held in the lobby of the hotel when Mrs. E. C. Satterwhite, Mrs. Jess Pipkin of Breckenridge, Mrs. Grady Pipkin and Mrs. H. O. Satterwhite, Miss Gretchen Overton, and other members of the club received and introduced the special guests of the luncheon, the out of town officers here for this occasion.

Press Association Not for Propaganda

By United Press. CHICAGO—World-wide distri- bution of news by American press associations will continue to be beneficial to American trade if American press associations re- main in the future, as they have in the past, utterly uninflected by any form of governmental direc- tion or control, Karl A. Bickel president of the United Press, said in an address before the Chi- cago Association of Commerce. "The United Press is an Ameri- can press association," said Bickel, "but it is by no means an Ameri- can propaganda agency any more than it is a French or British propaganda agency. The old fash- ioned form of government subsid- ized 'official' agency has seen its day. "Any government that seriously tries to control the natural ebb and flow of news inevitably finds in the end that such a policy leads to disaster." Bickel said that the United Press is the largest American worldwide distributor of news directly serv- ing the newspapers of forty dif- ferent nations, has but one func- tion—the transmission of an honest and accurate picture of the world's events each day. He paid a tribute to the memory of the late Melville E. Stone, founder and for many years gen- eral manager of the Associated

Notes Throw Light On Odd Situation

CHICAGO, April 6 — A tangled skein of a dual domestic life; was untangled today by two notes left by William Ross King, also known as William Fish, who took poison and died as two wives wrangled at his deathbed. The notes, one written to each wife, brought out that Mrs. Mildred King was his legal wife and that Mrs. Ida Nell King was mar- ried to him a few days ago in Oklahoma City after she and King had left his suburban home here. In Mrs. Mildred King's letter was a $100 banknote and to Mrs. Ida King he sent $25.

Unopened 37 Years, Champagne Bottle Is Hotel Man's Memorial

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., March 18.—For 37 years Mrs. Max Mohn has dusted a bottle of imported French champagne and has treated it as an ornament and keepsake of her husband, the late Max Mohn, proprietor of a local hotel.

The bottle still has a place on the sideboard in the home of the widow and is looked upon by Mrs. Mohn as one of the cherished possessions of her late husband.

"Many times I have seen my husband wave his hand toward the bottle of champagne in response to an inquiry from a curious guest and remark, 'That bottle is on President Cleveland,'" Mrs. Mohn recalls.

And, in a way, President Cleveland is directly responsible for the bottle of champagne which Max Mohn refused to drink when it was given to him because he objected to drinking any intoxicant that was stronger than beer.

The bottle came into the possession of the Mohns through a bet made between John T. Hazen of Avoca, at that time sheriff of Poland violation of training rules has Lena Blackburne up in the air. The White Sox manager has benched the $123,000 shortstop and probably will start Hunefeld at shortstop. Art Shires also may be benched in favor of Bud Clancey at first base.

Donie Bush's plight might be worse but the scrappy little Irishman would hate to think so. Pie Traynor's injury may keep the Pirates' captain on the bench and force Bush to shuffle his infield around again. With Traynor on the bench, every place in the Pittsburgh infield is uncertain. Sheeley may play first, Grantham may play second, Bartel may play short and Adams may play third. Again Bush may shuffle up his infielders and draw a new lineup.

Until Glenn Wright's arm is definitely pronounced sound, the Brooklyn infield is problematical. Even with Wright well and at shortstop, Uncle Wilbert Robinson has problems at second and third bases. Jake Flowers will play second if he is physically able, and Wally Gilbert will start at third base but how long he will remain there is a question.

UNIQUE DISEASE HOLDS MAN IN TORTUOUS GRIP

Edward Johnson in Torontoland of Consciousness for Nine Years.

By GENE GILLETTE
United Press Staff Correspondent
MILWAUKEE.—A disease akin to sleeping sickness—and yet more cruel—for nine years has tortured the body of Edward Johnson and baffled physicians.

It was in 1920 that an attack of influenza sent Johnson to his bed in his Chicago home. His strange sickness developed and he has spent most of the nine years since in fitful slumbers.

Johnson was 33 years old and well-to-do. He was taken to the best hospitals in Chicago and Detroit. Specialists in paralysis and rheumatism studied the case.

But it was to no avail and when doctors no longer could give encouragement the wife of the sleeping man came with him to Milwaukee where he was placed in a monastery to be given meticulous care.

And in his single room there Johnson lives a life of deep sleeping and acute pain. His nurses often are called to his side at night to find his eyes closed but his hands working as in great pain and his lips uttering moans.

Senses Another's Presence
Although seemingly asleep the patient becomes immediately aware of the presence of another person in his sick chamber. He will listen to his nurses tell him that his cries disturb others in the monastery and then will clench his hands tighter and nod his agreement to be silent.

When meal-time comes Johnson is hungry and it is this way that the strange disease is more cruel than sleeping sickness. Instead of lapsing into a void of unconsciousness Johnson seems always on the brink of returning to life.

He cannot use his hands to feed himself but he can masticate the food given him and swallow the milk placed to his lips. Immediately after eating, the flood of energy enables Johnson to walk up and down his little room on the arm of a nurse. His eyes may open a few seconds, but they close shortly and he is ready to go back to sleep. Occasionally he talks a little.

Mrs. Johsson visits the bedside of her stricken husband regularly. With his eyes closed he has come to know her tread on the floor of much longer—three years at the most, doctors believe—but she has obtained work here and become resigned to the misfortune.

JACK RABBITS BIG EATERS
Preliminary experiment conducted in Arizona by Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture as to the quantity of food consumed by jack rabbits have thrown some light on the question of how much damage may be caused by these injurious rodents. These studies indicate that on the average a jack rabbit will consume 0.68 pounds of green alfalfa a day. According to the Arizona Agricultural Experiment Station, a 120-pound ewe sheep will consume approximately 8 pounds of green feed a day. Hence, it would take the equivalent of only 11.8 jack rabbits to consume as much green forage as a sheep. A 750-pound cow will eat 40 pounds of green roughage in a day. Therefore, the equivalent of 58.8 jack rabbits would consume as much feed as a cow.

The average quantity of dry feed or alfalfa hay consumed by a jack rabbit was 0.28 pounds a day. A 120-pound ewe sheep will eat approximately 4 pounds of dry feed in a day; consequently, 14.2 jack rabbits would consume as much hay as a sheep. The consumption by a 750-pound cow is approximately 20 pounds of dry feed a day. Accordingly, it would take the equivalent of 71.4 jack rabbits to consume as much dry feed as a cow.

Infield Problems Confront Majors

By United Press.
NEW YORK—Infield worries are occupying the attention of several major league managers in these last few days before the opening of the season, less than two weeks away.

Doubt still exists over the makeup of the infields of the Philadelphia Athletics, St. Louis Cardinals, Detroit Tigers, Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago White Sox and Brooklyn Robins.

Connie Mack left the Athletics in charge of his first lieutenant, Eddie Collins, with the infield still undetermined. Max Bishop at second base is the only fixture in the A's inner works. Joe Boley's sore arm probably will not allow him to start the season at shortstop and Joe Hassler probably will occupy that position. Ossie Orwoll's play during the next ten days will determine whether he will get the first base job. If Orwoll remains at first base, Jimmy Foxx will play third base. Otherwise, Foxx will go to first and Sammy Hale will start at third.

Injuries to Shortstop Charley Gelbert, second baseman Carey Selph and Third Baseman Fred Haney have upset Billy Southworth's plans in picking the St. Louis Cardinals' infield. Eddie Delker, the brilliant recruit, may crowd his way into the infield if circumstances prevent the regulars from getting back into playing condition before April 16. Jim Bottomley will play first base, Frankie Frisch probably will play second base, Gilbert will play short if he is in shape, and Haney third on the same condition.

Failure of Heinie Schuble to make the grade at shortstop has complicated the Detroit Tigers' lineup. Bucky Harris is considering moving Gehring from second base to short stop and taking Gehring's place himself to round out the Tigers' infield.

He Captured 17 Single Handed

Ten years after the war, a rival to Sergeant Alvin York, famous hero, has been discovered. Lewis Poppe of New Bremen, Ohio, above, has been revealed as the unnamed, single-handed captor of 17 German soldiers at an outpost in France on Oct. 9, 1918. Max Christochowitz, below, German veteran who headed the captured squad, bears out his story, and is aiding in an effort to get him a medal. Poppe, going for water, came upon the Germans in a dugout and bluffed them into surrendering by telling them he had 50 Americans at his back. Later Poppe and Christochowitz met in a hospital and became fast friends, with the result that after the war Poppe induced him to come to this country. Christochowitz is now an accountant in Lima, Ohio.
