DEEP WELL NEAR CARBON ADDED TO COUNTY'S OIL IN NEW DEVELOPMENT

Eastland county oil activity was at a several-month high this week-end as active wells and announced locations mounted to a total of nine.

The area about eight miles northwest of Cisco was without exciting new developments as the Lone Star Gas company continued efforts to shut off bottom hole water on its No. 1 Van Farmer, showing as the fourth producer for the Ellenburger pool.

Operator had plugged back two feet from total depth of 3,988 1/2 feet. Prior to recent acidization with 5,000 gallons from top of the Ellenburger lime at 3,972 feet a good showing of oil—2,500 feet in the hole—was registered. The No. 1 Van Farmer is in section 477, SPRR survey, about 3,000 feet north and slightly west of the Hickok Producing and Development company's pool opener on another Van Farmer lease.

The territory immediately near Carbon gained its second operation when Dobbe Oil company of Dallas announced location for a 3,500-foot wildcat on the W. J. Greer and others' land two and a half miles south of the city. With spudding slated April 1 or sooner, the test well is in a block of 2,500 acres.

Five miles northeast of the famed old Pioneer pool—now noted for the immensity of its production—B. I. Daniels, contractor, was rigging up on No. 1 P. C. Larkin for Hayner and Reeves, oil operators. Located in the center of the northwest part of a 6,500-acre block, the well is three miles northwest of Rising Star. It is 527 feet from the south line and 960 feet from the west line, northwest quarter of section 40, block 2, ETRR survey. Drilling to a depth with a combination rotary and cable outfit is planned.

Six miles southeast of Rising Star, Eastland county, but in Comanche county, it was announced McCarter and Anderson No. 1 J. M. Smith estate, block 3, Lampasas county school land survey, was spudded in toward a goal of 3,000 feet. Location is three miles southeast of a 4,000,000 cubic feet gasser completed several years ago.

Also in the Ellenburger area northwest of Cisco, Hickok Producing and Development company was reported drilling at 300 feet on its No. 1 Grover S. Cleveland (D), section 476, SPRR survey.

This remarkable picture was taken as an onrushing "twister" hit Blytheville, Ark. Twenty persons were injured a few minutes later when the tail of the whirling funnel ripped through the community damaging a quarter million dollars' worth of property. J. E. HICKMAN IS SPEAKER AT ANNUAL PARLEY

Picking a goal early in life and working toward that aim was recommended by Judge J. E. Hickman, member of the Texas Supreme Court Commission of Appeals at Austin, at the annual 9-49 Bible class's city-wide father son banquet in the First Methodist church at Eastland Friday night.

Judge Hickman spoke to 300 fathers and sons, the largest number ever assembled for the event, officials stated.

The speaker illustrated his statement by pointing out that students obtain education yet have no specific goal in their economic life.

Thousands of children are each year graduated from schools yet the students do not have in mind the occupation in which they would like employment or the type of business of which they should work toward proprietorship, Judge Hickman continued.

Developments of the past several years have contributed materially to a situation whereby the youth of the nation is satisfied with "a job" and does not look forward to his own business, the speaker declared. However, added Judge Hickman, a recent trend indicates the independent and chainless type of business is becoming more popular.

"We have grown into a situation of bigness where people have become parts of machines," he asserted.

Fathers were told that their sons should be taught resourcefulness and should be so trained as to become dependent.

The speaker cheered the American system whereby the youth of today is not taught their lives are those of the state dedicated to the purpose of increasing the power of dictators as in Italy and Germany and other governments.

Frank Pierce, class president, served as toastmaster. Mrs. V. T. Senberry drew several pictures on paper, spread on a large board, while George Brogdon gave explanation in talk.

A feature of the meeting was the interpretation of the comic section of "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Adriaene Flurry, Bob by Keasler, Irma Ruth Hale, Fred Michael, Tom Davenport and Pat Owen.

Maurice Harkins of Eastland sang two numbers, accompanied by the piano by H. L. Bergh, of Cisco.

MEXICO SEIZES OIL INTERESTS OF FOREIGNERS

MEXICO CITY, Mex., March 19.—The Petroleum Workers Union seized the office building of the Mexican Eagle Oil company today and ousted American, British and Dutch employes.

The seizure was the first direct action by workers after a decree by President Cardenas expropriating the foreign oil industry, in which the United States and other foreign nations have investments totaling $400,000,000.

British, United States and Netherlands authorities were gravely concerned. Josephus Daniels, U. S. Ambassador, told American correspondents the situation was "most regrettable."

The permanent committee of congress called a meeting for tonight to arrange a special session of congress. Many details for operating the oil industry remained to be worked out. The vital question was who would be the customers for Mexican oil, especially if Royal Dutch or Standard companies refused to buy or transport it.

Cardenas said he wanted to sell oil only to democratic industries. Long lines of automobiles formed before filling stations seeking supplies before sales stop.

The Bank of Mexico and all other banks suspended trading in foreign exchange. There was bootlegging of dollars and gasoline at high prices.

LONDON, March 19.—The British oil industry, informed sources said today, will reply to Mexico's expropriation of foreign interests by a boycott of Mexican oil, designed to make it difficult for the Mexican Government to market its products.

NEW YORK, March 19.—American oil companies will fight for the return of their $200,000,000 properties which have been expropriated by the Mexican government, William Farish, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, said today.

The Odd Justice of English Law

England's method of law enforcement has often been held up to the United States as a fine example which we do not follow in this country. A recent case in London's Mayfair demonstrates so perfectly the manner of administering the law and the public reaction that administration found.

Four young men, all members of exceptionally "good" families, graduates of the best schools and all with rich relatives, were found guilty of robbery with violence. The crime itself was enough to shock the English public and press, for the four enticed a representative of a jewelry firm to a small hotel, beat him and robbed him of gems valued at $3,000 pounds.

The lord chief justice who heard their case listened to testimony of their backgrounds, their schools, their families and their surrounding of wealth and position—and then handed down sentences that haven't been equalled for severity in years in the British Isles.

He not only sentenced them to terms ranging from nine years to 18 months at hard labor, but he added penalties of from 15 to 20 strokes of the cat-o'-nine tails for three of them.

For, said the lord chief justice, the upbringing and the fine training these young men had received made their crime breater than if it had been committed by some warp-brained child of the slums. The fact that these four young men knew better and had been fitted by their rearing to become good citizens instead of thugs, made their conduct all the more inexcusable.

In the United States the very things which the English jurist held against the four youths would have bulked large in their favor. For we in this country have a way of excusing personable young men of good talent and upbringing. It may be to give them another chance to make good. Or it may be the influence which those "good" families bring to bear.

The English public opinion, carefully noted, was solidly with the court in the severity of its penalties. Americans might approve such sentences too. But they don't get much chance. They're too busy approving leniency and probation.

Germany, out to capture the Spanish film market, is making "The Barber of Seville," apparently believing there's so little excitement in Spain these days it's a good time for a hairraising movie.

Farm Security Administration working on lowest steel housing, might popularize their product with the slogan, "A steel at $2000."

EASTLAND TELEGRAM---WEEKLY CHRONICLE

COOKING SCHOOL

AND MERCHANTS' SPRING FAIR

HUSBANDS --- AND THE BOY FRIEND --- ARE WELCOME AS THE FLOWERS IN MAY ... COME EVERY DAY AND ENJOY THE FINE
LECTURES AND DEMONSTRATIONS BY ONE OF THE NATION'S OUTSTANDING CULINARY ARTISTS ...

Mrs. Arreva D. French

Mrs. Arreva D. French, southern home economist and food authority who will conduct the Eastland Telegram-Weekly Chronicle cooking school in this city, is an outstanding lecturer in her profession and will bring a wealth of knowledge to housewives who will attend the school, on many phases of cookery, home budgeting, household hints, and new cooking secrets.

New suggestions, new recipes, new dishes and many new ideas on the kitchen will be brought by the lecturer, to the attention of the housewives.

Mrs. French, while a native Texan, received her principal education in Oklahoma, studying at the Southwestern State Teachers College at Durant, Okla., with all major studies being confined to foods. She has taken several specialized courses in the art of cake baking, cake decorating, bread baking and meat cookery. She is an expert in home canning and is an authority on this subject. Before conducting cooking schools, Mrs. French did civic organization and county home demonstration work.

She will make her lectures while actually doing the things she is talking about. The dishes, both of the plain and fancy variety, which she prepares, will be on display at the close of each lecture, and you are invited to remain after the lecture and discuss your personal problems in cookery and home management.

MRS. ARREVA D. FRENCH

When the housewife is confronted with the knowledge that her cooking is in a rut, that she is always serving "the same old thing," it is wonderful to see what an inspiration she can receive from the practical demonstrations given by Mrs. French.

There's a lot more to cooking than just dashing into the kitchen and starting to boil, fry and bake. Menu planning, buying judgment, food selection, and economical preparation all occupy a place of extreme importance.

Then, too, in every home there is always a supply of leftover foods that can be made as pleasing and palatable as the original dish, thus varying the menu and at the same time creating new economy in feeding the family.

All of these subjects and more too will be discussed by Mrs. French in her series of lectures. Remember, the lectures are free, and a cordial, urgent invitation is extended to every woman of the community to come and take advantage of the opportunity offered.

Remember the dates, and make a date with yourself to attend each day. We have been fortunate in securing the Connellee Hotel Roof as the scene of the cooking school. Although no seats can be reserved, every effort will be made to provide comfortable seats for all who attend, as it is expected that a large crowd will be on hand each day.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MAIDWELL— heroine; the stand-in.
DEREK MANTHO— an artist who loved money first.
HILDEGARDE THORVALD— Derek's cousin; her portrait.
DR. ROGERS— he met his most difficult case.

Yesterday, at work again, Constance hurried home the first night, expecting that letter from Derek.

CHAPTER IX

BUT there was no letter from Derek—only a forgotten bill from her dentist. When Constance realized that she sat down on the lower step of the stairway—limp and sick with disappointment.

In a moment, however, she was able to tell herself that she was unreasonable. Of course no letter could have come from California yet—even by swiftest airmail.

The Thorvald ranch was probably miles from the postoffice. . . . It was doubtful if Derek had her letter yet, although she had written it the day he left and sent it by air with a special delivery stamp.

Derogues even at this moment Derek too, had turned away from an empty mail box—hurt and angry. She knew how tragically unceremonious Derek could be when time and events did not keep pace with his own desires.

She wrote another long letter to him that night. It was a little difficult to frame the paragraphs without telling him more than she wanted him to know. . . . She did, at length, tell him about Bartlett's—making high comedy of her experiences of the afternoon before—making it all sound like a lark to lighten the tedium of their separation.

Bartlett's was quite the swankiest store in the city. So exclusive was it that an anecdote was gleefully told concerning one reverend former who, going home after a day's shopping, complaining bitterly that people had coughed and sneezed around her all day, finished hopefully, "But then, I was Bartlett's all the time. I don't suppose I've caught anything very bad."

CONSTANCE learned a great deal during her first few days at work. She learned that, although Papa Anton was nominally head of the publicity department, and appeared to lend Continental lustre to all public occasions, it was Lisa O'Dare who did most of the work, and made most of the important decisions.

Papa Anton was celebrated for his spectacular exhibitions of temperment, during which he shrieked and gesticulated with a fine falsetto Gaelic frenzy that delighted many of his subordinates and intimidated few; because, underneath, he was the most harmless and spineless of men. Constance came to suspect that these theatrical outbursts were often deliberately staged and encouraged as a smoke screen to cloud the battle front when some under-cover inter-departmental war—of which there were many—was under way.

Elsa O'Dare, on the other hand, could be as soft as silk and hard as nails when it came to getting her own way—and all without raising her voice or lifting an eyebrow; could say things to meddling department heads or shiftless subordinates that left the victims helplessly gibbering with rage or speechless with humiliation.

"And she's got the right idea," Gertrude, the tall blond, confided to Constance. "In her job, when they start trying to damn her, what she's got to do is to damn them right back—in a perfectly lady-like way, of course."

But Elsa O'Dare knew, too, how to be tactful and wise—and above all, fair. . . . When she could be, she was kind as well.

As for the other models, except for a few amateurs who appeared only occasionally, some of them gave themselves the airs of cinema stars; most of them hoped sometime to work into positions as buyers or as executives—like Elsa O'Dare; and they played politics with a silken feline ferocity that left Constance sometimes amused—sometimes a little frightened.

THERE was no letter from Derek the second day, nor the third. On the fourth, Constance played a game with herself. To keep from hoping too painfully on the way home, she counted all the cars that passed on her side of the bus, betting with herself that there would be 5000. But she soon lost count. . . . And this time the letter was there.

"My darling," Derek wrote, "you can't imagine what a picturequely lovely place this is—with an old-world atmosphere of legend which I cannot put into words."

"The ranch house, itself—El Rancho del Oro—is set in a vast open valley, with mountains just close enough to break the flatness and make a majestic blue and violet backdrop, without crowding in upon you."

"The house was originally built, I am told, by a Spanish gracie, Don Felipe Sedillo, but has been added to extensively. The older part of the house has walls two feet thick. It is U-shaped, and its three inner walls are constructed about a flowering patio with a pool and fountain, in the Moorish style. The fourth side of the patio is bounded by a high wall with a wrought-iron entrance gate beyond which you see masses of fruit blooms against the blue of the mountains.

"My studio, with a bedroom and bath adjoining, is in one of the outer wings to get the best light, for the inner rooms about the patio are very shadowy."

"The spaciousness and shadow of the old house will be very agreeable in the near future, for already it is very warm here. The patio is a mass of flowers and shrubs, and some of the dozens of climbing roses about the inner galleries are in bloom. Such variety and magnificence of color! . . . If you were only here to share it with me."

CONSTANCE read that line repeatedly.

"I have taken time," Derek went on, "to look about a little for a small house for us. But except for the shacks of the Mexican laborers, which would be impossible, there are no small houses on the ranch. When you come, we shall either have to live in the nearest town, which would be rather inconvenient for me—or here at the Thorvalds'. As soon as I can, of course, I am going to try to pave the way for that."

Rather inconvenient, Constance repeated to herself a little blankly. Pave the way—

There was more. . . . The Thorvald family consisted, besides Ernest Thorvald and his daughter, of a son, a year or so younger than his sister. "A good deal of a spoiled brat," Derek wrote.

"Hildegard is the Baron's companion and confidant, but George, I gather, is the apple of his eye. "I shall be glad," Derek finished, "when I can actually get down to work. For that will mean that I can be with you much sooner in case there should be any slip-up about your following me here."

That last sentence gave Constance a bad night. So bad that she dreamed the next day at Bartlett's. However, the Museum would have been infinitely worse, with its barrage of pitying eyes and carefully phrased inquiries about Derek. Anne Cable, thank heaven! had gone out of town. And at Bartlett's every one was too much concerned with his own plans and ambitions to have any interest in hers—or so she thought.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

WRONG IDEAS OF RELIGION

Text: Mark 7:1-13.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance

THIS lesson deals with about as large a task as could anywhere be faced—that of correcting wrong ideas of religion.

The more we study the work and teachings of Jesus, the more we must realize that this was very largely what He had to do. He pointed out again and again that He had not come to destroy but to fulfill, and that He was not so much offering a new teaching as endeavoring to bring home to men the realities of the truth concerning God and man that they had failed to put into practice in daily life and relationships.

WHAT were the wrong ideas of religion that Jesus endeavored to correct? There was, first of all, the idea that religion consisted of outward and external things and insistence upon forms and rituals. Even in so important a matter as cleanliness in washing the hands, Jesus intimated that one could attach much more importance to it as a matter of ritual and ceremony than as a matter of actual cleanliness. It is as important not to be censorious toward those who do not follow our particular customs and practices as it is to follow the customs and practices that we approve.

In the second place, Jesus corrected the idea that religion consists of lip praise as a form of worship. It is the religion of the heart that is the real religion. It is in the observance of the Commandments of God, not in bowing down in professed obedience, that the true worship of God is found.

In the third place, Jesus insisted upon the difference between truth and tradition. The fact that a thing had been long taught and practiced did not make it true. The truth of religion had to be tested by something higher than that.

In the fourth place, Jesus was insistent that the real requirements of religion—that is, the demands of honesty and love—could not be set aside by some formal code or practice. We have learned in our modern world how even good laws can be nullified by non-observance or non-enforcement. A few years ago, the nations joined in a pact against war, yet we have seen how nations that entered into the pact can be engaged in actual war, though by avoidance of the declaration of war they profess—technically, at least—that they are not breaking the pact. Jesus found the same thing in existence in His day in relation to the demands of the Jewish religion. The finest teachings and ideals had been set aside by convenient practice that modified or ignored them.

But Jesus was not content simply to correct wrong ideas of religion. Rather, perhaps, we could say that He corrected wrong ideas of religion by asserting true ideas of religion and by making plain and simple, for will and conscience, the two great commandments concerning love to God and love toward one's neighbor.

one-half mile northeast of the discovery. Lone Star Gas company No. 2 Van Farmer, 1,321-foot north offset to the discovery well, section from 2,537 feet to 2,710 feet. Casing was set at 2,525 feet. Considerable water was reported.

J. D. Beckelman of Fort Worth was making preparations to drill No. 1 Herman Zellars, D & A survey, one mile north from Sips Springs, Comanche county, to 1,000 feet. Location was 750 feet from the west and south lines.

A completion for Coleman county was shown by Anzac Oil corporation on its No. 12 M. T. Overall estate, section 9, GH&H survey, which registered 1,300,000 cubic feet of gas through two-inch tubing from a sand 2-274 feet. Pressure was 230 pounds. No. 12 Overall was recently deepened from 2,160 feet.

An 830-foot test, also in Callahan county, is due under plans announced by E. E. Thate of Cross Plains who plans to drill No. 1 A. Reeves and Alice Reeves, John C. Goodrich survey No. 245, abstract No. 227, 15 miles south from Coleman, 150 feet from the west line, 830-feet from the east line and 315 feet southeast from a well drilled by Reeves et al.

Goodnight and Henderson filed application with the railroad commission to drill No. 1 W. E. Gray, sections 169-170, M. Scott and P. Pope survey, six miles southwest of Burkett, Coleman county, to 400 feet.

One new location for Brown county was registered in George Christie No. 4 Kilgore Brothers, Hugh McClure survey, 15 miles southwest of Rising Star, 750 feet from the west line of the lease and 750 feet from the north line of the lease and 300 feet from the No. 3 Kilgore Brothers. Drilling to 1,350 feet is planned.

Two completions, both dusters, also were marked up for Brown county. E. M. Curry plugged his No. 1 J. T. Arledge, N. B. Mitchell survey, at total depth of 1,412 feet, after having a slight show of oil in a sand at 1,814-25 feet. The other duster was W. W. Lin-

SOME like their curry hot. Others want it to taste like something else. Here's a good compromise—round steak with a mild curry sauce. Inexpensive and tastes like an India love lyric when served with a mound of steamed rice.

Curried Round Steak
(Serves 4 to 6)
One and one-half pounds of ground round steak, 1 medium onion, 1-2 clove garlic, 1-2 teaspoon ground ginger, 1 tablespoon curry powder, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1-2 cup cubed raw apple, salt and pepper.

Heat butter in large saucepan. Add onion and garlic and fry until brown. Add ginger and curry powder and chopped meat. Stir meat continually until it is thoroughly browned. Slowly stir in milk. Simmer 1-2 hour. Add cubed apples and sift in flour. Simmer another 15 minutes, adding more milk if necessary. Add salt and pepper after removing from stove. Pass a small bowl of coarsely chopped peanuts with the curry.

Here's another variation of a well known kitchen theme. It cuts costs without cutting any joy out of living.

Best Liver in Casserole
(Serves 4 to 6)
One and one-half pounds beef liver, 1-8 pound salt pork, 1 onion, 3 large carrots, 2 celery, 1 cup medium sour cream, salt, pepper, cayenne flour. Slice onion, carrots and celery. Cut liver into 6 pieces. Cook pork into small slices. Soak in salted cold water for 1-2 hours. Drain and dry. Roll in flour. Fry in bacon fat until brown on both sides. Arrange in casserole and scatter salt over them. Cover liver and pork with the vegetables. Bake with seasoning dusting with flour. Add just enough water to cover. Bake in electric oven (350 degrees F.) liver is tender, about 1-1/2 hours. Stir in sour cream, mix well. Bake another 10 or 15 minutes. Have a few fat baked potatoes to help you celebrate.

Monday's Menu
BREAKFAST: Sliced banana and sliced fresh dates, brown sugar and cream, hot-corn muffins, crisp toast, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Tomato juice, corned beef hash, poached egg, Boston brown bread, baked apple, milk.
DINNER: Curried round steak, chopped peanuts, steamed brown rice, green peas, lettuce and grapefruit, strawberry Bavarian, coffee, milk.
