High social position and great wealth were linked in society columns upon the announcement of the engagement of Miss Marguerite (Peggy) Sykes, above, and Walter P. Chrysler, Jr., heir to the great automobile fortune. The bride-to-be has been called "the most-sought-after girl in New York society."

NORTH EXTENSION GIVEN DEEP LIME PAY AREA BY WELL WITH 280 BARRELS

Lone Star Gas Company's No. 1 B. T. Cozart, extending by nearly one mile north the Ellenburger lime production area northwest of Cisco, has completed 24-hour Railroad Commission potential production test by flowing 280 barrels through two-inch tubing, it was announced today.

Initial successful Ellenburger discovery in that area was the Hickok Producing and Development Company's No. 1 Van Parmer, eight and a half miles northwest of Cisco, which tapped in recent months the Ellenburger for 1,000-barrel production.

Unlike the Hickok discovery, the Lone Star production was obtained after two 1,000-gallon acidization treatments. Exact producing horizon of the Cozart was not disclosed although total depth was 3,971 feet, still in Ellenburger topped at 3,946 feet.

Two other wells in the Ellenburger were abandoned during the week. States Oil Corporation was plugging its No. 9 G. T. Parrack, seven miles north of Eastland, which found fater at 3,846 feet in the first break in the Ellenburger.

Other failure was Phillips Petroleum Company No. 1 Cozart, deep Calhoun test near Scranton and the Eastland county line, which was abandoned at total depth of 4,140 feet in Ellenburger topped at 4,034 feet.

Near Desdemona, but in Comanche county, in the center of the old Desdemona pool, Gallagher-Lawson et al were preparing.

Texas' Part In Two Expositions Is Being Planned

DALLAS, Feb. 5.—Members of the world's fair commission, appointed by Governor Alfred, embarked today on a campaign to raise $500,000 for this state's participation in the exposition, which will be held in New York and San Francisco in 1939.

This amount was set as a goal after an all-day meeting of the commission here yesterday.

"We have no time to waste if we are to do a good job," Karl Hohltzelle of Dallas, who was named president of the corporation, which will have active charge of the campaign and the fair exhibits, said. "If we can do this job right now we can do with 70 cents on the dollar which we could do with a dollar six or eight months from now. If we wait until the last minute we will burn it up in overtime and high prices."

McGlamery Plans To Attend Church Commission Meet

Annual meeting of the joint commission of the Southwestern System of Colleges, which acts as a supervisory organization over schools maintained by the five Texas Methodist conferences in Texas, will be Wednesday morning at Dallas in Kirby hall, with B. E. McGlamery of Eastland attending.

The commission is composed of 30 laymen and 30 ministers of the conferences. Conference schools over which the commission has authority are Texas Wesleyan College at Fort Worth, McMurry College at Abilene, Weatherford Junior College at Weatherford, Southwestern at Georgetown, University of San Antonio, Jacksonville College and Wesley College at Greenville.

States Voting On Beer In Town or Precinct Is Illegal

Elections for legalization of beer or wine in a justice precinct or in a town's corporate limits, which it is reported the objective of petitions assertedly being circulated, it is not possible in dry counties, according to information from Austin.

Commissioners' court was furnished a copy of an opinion from the attorney general office sent Howard county officials. It was in the opinion sent Howard county officials that Eastland county officials believe that, likewise, beer or wine cannot be legalized in a precinct or town unless and until the county votes as a unit.

The opinion by the state office stated that no political subdivision may be wet in a dry county.

Novel Law Suit Is Scheduled Monday In Eastland Court

A case of unusual interest, according to attorneys, is that of Winnie Tichenor against Marylany Casualty company which will be submitted on restatement of facts to 88th district court for consideration at 9 a. m. Monday.

The case, in which object of the plaintiff is collection on a $1,000 automobile accident special insurance policy issued her father, H. L. Mobley, who died Nov. 12, 1936.

Mobley's body was found on a road from Cisco to Gorman. The body was behind an automobile which was jacked up and a tire was deflated, showing that a flat was to have been repaired. It was agreed that heart trouble was the cause of death. Buster Mobley, a son, testified at a coroner's inquest his father was not in the best of health before leaving from Cisco.

Main questions in the case are if Mobley died of the heart attack from jacking up the car and preparing to repair the flat and if so, did the policy provide for payment in such a case.

The policy was issued to Mobley Mar. 17, 1936.

Told New Jersey Assembly "No"

Coolly, calmly—but oh! so definitely, Alice Seglie, above, said "No" to the august State Assembly of New Jersey. She is a clerk for Registration Commissioner Charles Stoebbing, of Hudson County, Jersey City Mayor Hague's bailiwick. The Assembly Committee sought to investigate election records in Stoebbing's case. For two days the defiant clerk refused even when an expeditionary force of State troopers was dispatched to the Stoebbing office. She said she would open the strongbox only on orders from her boss.

Eastland Citizen's Mother Is Buried At Friday Service

Funeral services for Mrs. G. W. Preslar of Ovalo, 80, mother of Tom Preslar of Eastland, were conducted Friday afternoon at the Primitive Baptist Church in Dewey.

Elder W. L. Barrett of Arlington officiated, assisted by W. P. McNeal of Mullin. Burial was in the Dewey cemetery.

Mrs. Preslar was born December 3, 1858, in Henderson county, Tennessee. She came to Texas 55 years ago and settled in Paris. In 1900 the couple moved to Taylor county. Mr. Preslar died in 1920.

Mrs. Preslar had been a member of the Primitive Baptist church 55 years.

Other children are Mrs. Elsie Dean of Olavo, Mrs. Lizzie Beecham of Watsonville, Calif., Wilson and Bert Prasler of Lawton, Houston Preslar of Seymour and Arthur Prasler of Gladewater.

Mrs. Ida E. Brown To Be Buried In Ranger On Sunday

Funeral services for Mrs. Ida E. Brown, 66, who died at a sanitarium in Cisco Friday, will be conducted from the First Baptist church of Ranger this afternoon at 2:30, with Rev. K. C. Edmonds in charge of the services. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery, following the church services, with Killingsworth, Cox in charge.

The decedent, who had been a resident of Ranger for the past 24 years, was born May 25, 1872. Survivors include three sons, C. Y. Brown of Ranger, O. C. Brown and George Brown, Olney; two daughters, Mrs. Eva Rice of Ranger and Mrs. Josie Blackman, Wink; three brothers, Cordas and Frank Gabriel of Mineral Wells, and Lee Gabriel of Louisiana; one sister, Mrs. Hattie Roe of Thurber; 15 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mother and son were doing fairly satisfactory, it was explained.

BATTLESHIPS HULLS TESTED BY U. S. NAVY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The U. S. Navy, anticipating that Japan will spurn America's ultimatum to reveal her naval plans, was revealed today to have designs in preparation for construction of superdreadnaughts of 40,000 to 45,000 tons displacement.

Exhaustive tests of model hulls have been underway for some time by navy construction officials at the navy's model ship basin, the United Press learned, to determine the most suitable designs and sizes of battleships, exceeding the present 35,000 ton displacement.

Construction officials have hinted that some radical new features for battleships may result from the tests.

Definite announcement of future construction plans is expected to be delayed until after Feb. 20, the date by which the United States, Great Britain and France today demanded that Japan reveal her plans.

The ultimatum informed Japan that unless the government agrees to reveal its naval building plans, and in case the plans reveal the intention to build capital ships in excess of 35,000 tons, "it will be necessary for the American government to exercise its right," after consultation with other naval treaty powers, to construct super-battleships of its own.

Many Expected at Dr. Thompson Talk Wednesday Night

Officials of the Civic League and Garden club Saturday stated that many visitors from surrounding towns are expected to attend a public meeting Wednesday night at 7:30 in Community clubhouse at Eastland when Dr. Sam E. Thompson, speaker of note, discusses "How We Can Conserve the Health of Our Young."

Dr. Thompson will be introduced by Dr. J. H. Caton, Eastland, a friend of the speaker. Another feature of the program will be delivery of a health committee report of the Civic League and Garden club by Mrs. Joe Stephen.

Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, chairman of the beautification committee, also will give a report.

Dollar Devaluation— a Good or Bad Thing?

It is now almost four years since the dollar was devalued.

And today the effect of that epoch-making shift of monetary policy is lost in the welter of national and international factors that bear on the relation between the things bought and the money paid for them. Few economists have been hardy enough to attempt to pick out the exact effects of dollar devaluation.

Yet four years ago the nation gasped at the daring of the step. The more conservative shuddered at what they felt sure was a gate opening directly on inflation that would destroy us all. They may yet be right. No one knows. But certainly no sign of it has appeared yet, and right now the United States is in a period of deflation and falling prices.

Even the most radically-minded among financial authorities took a firm grip on the handles and prepared for some kind of a fast sleigh-ride when the price of gold was artificially advanced so that the 100-cent dollar became a 59-cent dollar in relation to the price of gold. And when the Supreme Court up held the course, it was Justice McReynolds who cried out at the "shame and humiliation" of it and lamented that "the Constitution, as we have known it, is gone."

Something is gone, all right, but nobody seems to know quite what it is. Prices did rise, steadily, until last fall, when they began to slip, and have been slipping ever since. How much of that price inflation was due to dollar devaluation, and how much to lavish spending by the federal government, the soldier's bonus farm-aid payments and the like, no one can measure, and few are hardy enough to try.

The effect of devaluation on the pocketbook of the average man is even harder to measure. He still goes to the store with paper dollars, and buys with them about what he did before. The fact that they are theoretically worth less gold has not up to now made any appreciable difference to him.

It is quite likely, however, that there has been a definite effect on foreign trade. Devaluation placed the American dollar in a workable relationship with foreign moneys, and export of U. S. steel, farm machinery, cotton and automobiles have steadily increased to the point where they were a worthwhile cushion to the recession.

Gold continues to pile up in the federal vaults under the standing offer to purchase at an artificially-high fixed price. Many economists believe this is a danger, and that the rest of the world may suddenly give up gold as a monetary measure, leaving us with most of the world's supply and nothing to use it for but to fill teeth. But that, too, is mere crystal gazing.

Dollar devaluation and its history thus far prove nothing at all except that we once took what we thought was a daring step, and that its results four years later were neither the heaven promised by its advocates nor the hell forecast by its opponents.

'NOW, ABOUT WAGE CUTS AND PRICE BOOSTS—'

Mind Training is Urged as An Aid To Spastic Child

By United Press
By ROBERT L. SPENCER
United Press Staff Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—Spastic paralysis, muscular disorder which afflicts children, can be cured if given proper treatment at an early age, in the opinion of

Dr. Earl Carlson, noted specialist in spastic disorders and member of the Neurological Institute of Columbia University. Mental exercise in treatment of this paralysis, he said, was as important as physical exercise.

Dr. Carlson, in an address here, said: "A sound mind within a crippled body also will become crippled unless adequate chances for expression and recreation are provided."

He explained that he had suffered from the disorder for more than a year during his own childhood. Dr. Carlson's physical coordination was impaired at birth by a brain hemorrhage. He overcame the paralysis, educated himself and now devotes his life to the motor disorders of children.

"In the gradual cure of the spastic suffered the exercise of the body and mind is important," he said.

Dr. Carlson pointed out that a spastic child, unable to control his muscular movements, is sometimes considered mentally defective.

"In reality," he said, "he may be mentally bright."

Mann Is Candidate For Attorney General

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 5.—Former Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann of Dallas today became an active contender for the office of Attorney General of Texas.

Bidding for the State's highest and most important post next to the governorship, Mann definitely announced, in a statement issued here, his candidacy in next summer's Democratic primaries.

His brief announcement was colored with a declaration of war against political racketeering which, he said, has become a disgrace to the State.

"I have never before asked the people of Texas for any office," his statement said. "I have been too busy practicing law and studying the fundamental defects of our state government to run for office."

"Often the children are laboring under purely motor handicaps," he continued, "with little or no mental disturbance, and have a possibility of extremely good recovery if given proper treatment at an early age."

Dr. Carlson proposed establishment of schools which, in addition to teaching these children suffering from paralysis, muscular coordination, would also enable them to gratify their desire for personal worth by individual development.

The answer to the present problem of hundreds of spastic children in the United States, he believes, rests in proper use of physical and mental training so that the development of the child will be well rounded.

"By compensating for his affliction with the development of the unimpaired areas of the brain," Dr. Carlson said, "the spastic loses his fear, increases manual control and becomes a useful citizen."

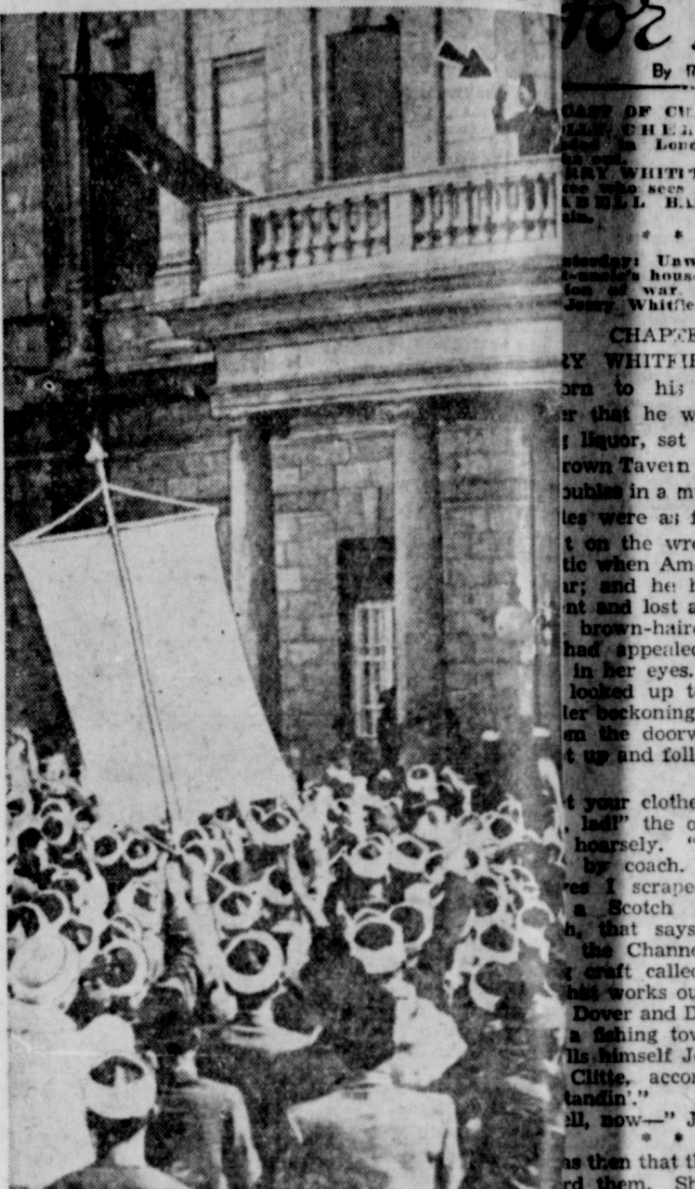

Pointing out that there were adequate facilities in all the large cities for careful diagnosis and treatment of the spastic, Dr. Carlson said a cure could not be obtained by prescriptions filled at "the corner drug store."

"A spastic school, with simultaneous physical and mental training, is the only answer," he said.

Dr. Carlson directs the training of thousands of spastics in the Presbyterian Medical center in New York where he puts his theories into practice daily.

When a machine is well oiled, it makes the least noise with humans, it's just the opposite.

Cheers for Royal Bridegroom

Hand in the air in a gesture of kindly gratitude, Farouk, youthful ruler of one of the world's oldest countries, stood on the balcony of the Abdin Palace in Cairo and acknowledged the cheering of the populace which has gathered to celebrate his wedding to the daughter of the King of the Belgians.

The ceremony, which was held in the presence of thousands of guests, was a magnificent affair. The bridegroom, who is 27 years of age, is a member of the royal family of Egypt. The bride, who is 21 years of age, is the daughter of the King of the Belgians.

The wedding ceremony was held in the presence of the British monarch, King George VI, and the Queen, Elizabeth II. The ceremony was a grand affair, and the bridegroom was seen in a military-style uniform.

Army Engineers Move Entire Village To Make Way for Ohio Flood

SANDYVILLE, O.—Sandyville, once a snug little village near Sandy creek, has been moved a half mile to a new site so that flood-fearing towns along the Muskingum river will be safe from future high waters.

Sandyville homes were moved—attics, cellars and everything—not because the citizenry of 275 did not like the 123-year-old background, but because U. S. Army engineers needed a nearby plot to build a dam to lessen flood dangers.

The dam, the engineers told the townfolk, would have to be built there to hold back water in Sandy creek, which is a tributary to the Tuscarawas river, which in turn is one of the main tributaries of the Muskingum.

It is the Muskingum which cuts capers when snow melts and rains begin. When the gates of the dam were closed, they said, water would back up into Sandyville, inundating the lower sections.

The government provided the new site on an adjoining farm, and the villagers, looking longingly at shade trees their fathers planted 100 years ago, began their strange exodus.

The new village is laid out in accordance with modern village planning. It is subdivided into 83 lots. Each person was permitted to choose his own lot for his home. Thirty dwellings moved

MEMPHIS SOLVES THE PROBLEM OF ECONOMICAL HOME BUILDING

For $2340 a home can be built in Memphis. In either of the two designs above—or in a great variety of other designs. At the left is the modern plan English home and at right a variation to the Colonial type. The floor plan of each home is identical. Widely divergent elevation styles are possible with only a slight shifting of porch and chimneys.

Well-Built Houses Cost as Little as $2340 and Cheating Is Eliminated

BY ALFRED C. ANDERSSON
NEA Service Special Correspondent

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Would you like a new five-room home for $2,340?

You can get one in Memphis, because cut-throat and haphazard conditions in the local building industry have been remedied by a non-profit, cooperative organization known as the Memphis Small Home Construction Bureau.

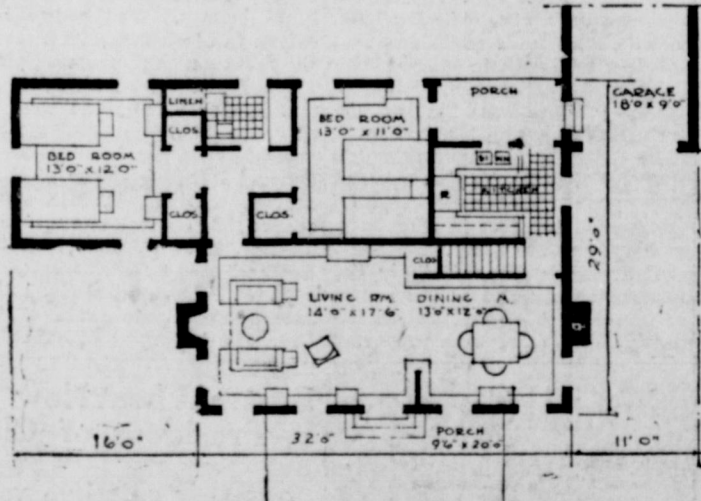

For years small house construction here was a sorry business. The architect, getting from 3 to 10 per cent for his work, was too expensive for the little man. The contractor, bidding against cut-throat competition, often was forced to substitute and cheat to come out ahead. The owner, having no architect, often tried to plan his own home, with little success.

The supply men faced a serious situation, too, with unscrupulous contractors using green lumber that popped off the stacks, stretched the floors and plucked the windows.

Finally came the depression, forcing foreclosures by the thousands. The loan companies found their homes in bad repair. The lumber dealers organized to correct abuses.

They Got Together

NEXT, the FHA stepped in to work with the dealers. The architects were persuaded to come down to a fee of 1 per cent for plans and 1 per cent for supervision, providing they did not have to contact the owner. The mortgage bankers came in at last to protect their investments and out of the whole affair came the Memphis Small Home Construction Bureau.

Supposing you want to build a home in Memphis. You go to a member of the bureau, who may be a building supply dealer or a mortgage banker.

He shows you an attractive book containing architectural plans for a series of houses ranging in price from $2340 to $6000. There are about 50 plans in all, which can be varied to produce an almost unlimited number of designs.

You decide on the $2340 house. And it will be a good house, built of kiln-dried lumber on a concrete foundation, with two roomy bedrooms, a tile-floored bath, a combination living dining room, a sign a check chart as a registered architect and over his official seal. He has authority to stop the job if the contractor fails to meet specifications.

Using the standard contract form of the American Institute of Architects, the architect checks for lot plan, test of soil and drainage, location on lot, excavations, plumbing, tree stumps, bracing, joist level, lumber, general progress and general workmanship.

Everyone Safeguarded

When the house is finally approved you get a certificate. You are assured the house you wanted, the mortgage company is protected and the architect has safeguarded his reputation.

The bureau itself has no paid secretary or central office. Individual members subscribed sufficient money to build two demonstration houses under the bureau name. Several more of the houses have been started by private capital and negotiations are under way for more.

The bureau's idea of home service is copyrighted and is available to any city which will carry out the service without alteration or omission of any phase.

The final model specifications for these homes were the result of months of designing by Memphis architects. One architect and the Tennessee FHA director were appointed to assemble the drawings into a book of final plans. And no one but a member of the bureau has access to the plans.

For Love of Polly

elaborate pretense of studying the sky.

Jerry asked, "Are you the daughter to Trepid Chelsey who lost the brig Proud Lyme off Nantucket a few years back?"

"Yes. That's my father."

"Then you're my cousin, Polly Chelsey!—Far distant, I mean," Jerry added hastily while his eyes paid ardent homage. "My mother's got Chelsey blood. We live in Massachusetts, Newburyport."

"Not I had to fight for two passages at it was. Get to France yourself, lad. Then send for her," Jerry looked hard at Chet Wheeler. "I'll not leave her stranded here," he said. The two seamen understood each other as well as if they had argued for hours. Jerry Whitfield would stay on, knowing that every hour that passed must make more precarious the life of an American sailor in London. They shook hands and parted, old Chet looking as sour as if pickled in brine.

JERRY took Polly into the tavern where he was able to engage a small room overlooking the stable yard. He explained to the innkeeper, Mr. Toby: "I will use that room. My cousin here, Miss Polly Chelsey, will take my former room. Send up fresh linen and have the room cleaned for her. We'll have our supper there for privacy, if you can serve us. Miss Chelsey has a little dog with her. I'll want bones."

Soon they were together in the room that had been Jerry's. Polly was helping the porter lay out the supper.

Polly was impressed. "Have you learned all this from the English?" she wanted to know. "I ought to be on my low-neck muslin dress and my dancing slippers, ready to go off a minute!"

"You ought to be just the way you are," Jerry answered. Somehow the words carried the meaning he wanted to convey. He was a particular New Englander, in love for the first time in his 29 years of eager living, and he was a little dizzy from it. "Tell me about old Mr. Dart now," he suggested.

Polly told him, and he listened thoughtfully. After that he told her about himself, and how he had become stranded in London. "We are both in some danger here," he said simply, "but things will be all right. I'll take care of you, Polly, and get you home to your father if it's the last thing I ever do."

POLLY said, "You'll never know how I felt when I realized I'd walked up to a perfectly strange young man and put my hand on his sleeve and spoken to him!"

Jerry said in return, "And you'll never know how I felt when I found you were gone!"

There was a stifled silence which Polly hastened to break by calling Nuisance to her and telling the story of his life, so far as she knew it, to her distant cousin from Massachusetts. "Don't you think he's got points?" she wanted to know.

"None that I can see," Jerry answered. "But I reckon he'd die for you if he was put to it.—Polly, do you think a man could fall in love just like falling off a cliff, without working up to it?"

"I think," replied Polly, striving to be sensible and clear headed, "that we're apt to do that sort of thing when we're far away from home, and lost like I'll try to remember that, and I'll thank you to do the same.—Do you think we ought to hold hands like this, for no reason at all?"

"Yes," Jerry Whitfield said huskily. "Yes."

At that moment a street musician struck up a tune on a flute, very sweet. Polly ran to the casement window and threw it wide while she leaned perilously out. Jerry crossed the room and stood beside her.

Darkness had fallen. It was enchanting to Polly. Outside were the noises of London—the sounds of a strange hostile city settling to rest, and the sweet minor notes of the flute that seemed to pipe of love and danger. Within was candle light and a table set for two, and Jerry's arm around her. For he had put it there, and she had let it stay. . . . And when she turned from the window it was inevitable that she should find her face near to his, and his arm yet closer around her. Her arm crept around his neck, and when he kissed her, she answered the kiss shyly, experimentally. . . .

Presently she drew away from him and whispered, "What must you think of me, Jerry Whitfield?" She put her hands against her burning cheeks, looking at him in wide-eyed consternation. "I've seen you only twice. Both times I've thrown myself at you. And now I've let you kiss me in a tavern room, like a wanton."

"Hush, Polly!" he said, holding her to him. "I can't bear it if you belittle yourself. Will you marry me tomorrow?"

other countries, even including Mexico, that would be decidedly detrimental to United States business interests.

Q. Did Austin live long enough to know of Jackson's message to Congress favoring delay of Texas recognition?

A. Austin died Dec. 27, 1836, without knowing Jackson's official attitude, as announced in a congressional message, which was regarded by most Texans as "cold-blooded" and "ungenerous." He had a positive conviction, though, that recognition would soon be attained, if it had not already been obtained. It is related that just before his death, he said, in awakening from a dream: "Texas recognized, Archer just told me so. Did you see it in the papers?"

Q. What persons and in what order served at cabinet members in Houston's first administration?

A. In the order named: Stephen F. Austin, R. A. Irion, J. Pinckney Henderson, secretaries of state; Thomas J. Rusk, William S. Fisher, Bernard E. Bee, George W. Hoelcy, secretaries of war;

Henry Smith, secretary of the treasury; S. Rhodes Fisher, William M. Shepperd, secretaries of the navy; J. Pinckney Henderson, Peter W. Grayson, John Birdsall, A. S. Thurston, attorneys general; Robert Carr, postmaster-general; E. M. Dease, Francis R. Lubbock, comptrollers; John W. Wood, J. G. Welshinger, auditors; William G. Cooke, stock commissioner.

Q. Who represented the Republic as ministers to foreign countries in the first Houston administration?

A. William H. Wharton, Mennican Hunt, Anson Jones, ministers to the United States; J. Pinckney Henderson, minister to Great Britain and France.

Q. What features of the Tyler annexation proposal of 1844 were so objectionable to Texas that it likely would have been rejected by the Republic?

A. Texas was to be annexed as a territory, not as a state; the United States was to have control of all public lands in Texas and assume the debts of the Texas government.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

Sunday school, 9:45 a. m.
Morning worship, 11 a. m.
Wednesday testimonial service, 8 p. m.
Public cordially invited.

"Spirit" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 6.

The Golden Text is: "Grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed into the day of redemption" (Ephesians 4:30).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "God is a Spirit; and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth" (John 4:24).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Spirit being God, there is but one Spirit, for there can be no infinite and therefore one God. . . Spirit is the only substance, the invisible and indivisible infinite God" (pages 334 and 335).

PRUNES SWELL, BURST BARN

By United Press
CHICO, Calif. — Housewives know that prunes soaked in water swell, and now California prune growers know it, too. During the California floods, a large barn, filled with prunes, was swept several feet deep by flood waters. The prunes swelled until suddenly, with a terrific explosion, the barn burst.

No great teacher or prophet can emphasize the truth concerning goodness of character and rightness of human relationships and of man's dealing with man without coming quickly into conflict with those who are out to serve their own interests, regardless of considerations of goodness and justice.

It was not long until Jesus in His earthly mission and teaching came very directly into conflict with false characters, attitudes, and customs. Our lesson tells us how Jesus, as He passed by, saw Levi, the son of Alphaeus, sitting at the place of toll. He invited Levi to follow Him, and Levi left his job to become His disciple.

When He came into Levi's house and was being entertained there, many publicans and sinners sat down with Jesus and the disciples. The scribes and Pharisees, who were the conventionally religious people of the day, did not like this.

They had the common notion that a man is known by the company he keeps. They could not perceive the motive and purpose of a good man in mingling with publicans and sinners that he might bring to them the truth and invite them to a new way of life.

They were very critical of Jesus, and asked, "How is it that He eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?" The reply of Jesus, when He heard it, was very wise and pointed: "They that are whole have no need of a physician, but they that are sick; I am not come to call the righteous but sinners."

He did not see these with whom He had sat down as men free from fault. He did not

Sport Glances.By Grayson

A GREAT baseball player doesn't always make a good manager. All-Americans frequently flop as football coaches, and what is true of the two top American games also holds good in hockey.

King Clancy's long major experience as a shining defense man, his courage, intelligence, and militancy, seemed to blend in a happy mixture for manager. . . . success. Clancy was a pilot with the London Totes, a blare of trumpets, but the club developed a defeatist complex from the outset of the current campaign, and the loss was elected for the sacrifice in less than six weeks.

Newsy Lalonde, one of the fastest and canniest centers in the annals of the glistening game, failed to ring the bell as a pilot.

Sprague Cleghorn, an old defense forward of Clancy and a teammate of Lalonde, was one of the best former braves to ever body in opposition. Cleghorn became manager of the Newark Bears in the Canadian-American League. The showing of the team was no inspiration for the promoters, and the Bears went out of the picture after a single season, due to their owners' inability to finance a rink.

DIE CLEGHORN, brother of Sprague and also for many years a major star, took over the helm of the Pirates, nee Yellow Jackets, but that made no change in the cellar complex of the Pittsburgh delegation in the National Hockey League.

Frank Patrick, who with Lester, long head of the New York Rangers, did a brotherly playing act in both the east and far west, when each side of the continent had major league representation, was unable to establish the Boston Bruins on a winning basis.

Clem Loughlin starred as a forward in the toponotch hockey sphere for some years before making his bow as a pilot with the London Totes, a blare of trumpets. Loughlin did well with the Totes, and was booked into the Chicago Blackhawk camp as playing chief. But the Blackhawks remained in the National League basement, and at the start of this season Loughlin was ousted in favor of Bill Stewart.

BULLET JOE SIMPSON

called to bit the bull's eye as manager of the Americans as well as the New Haven Eagles. In short whirls as playing manager of the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and the Americans, Lionel Conacher's success was not anywhere near his standing as a combatant.

Harry (Happy) Holmes, Cyclone Taylor, Bad Bill Couto, Normie Hines, the late Goldie Progers, Clint Benedict, Ken Randall, Harvey Rockbur, and Jimmy Gardiner are other splendid players of the misty past who either failed to get any great distance as managers or who currently are encountering plenty of obstacles.

A number have suffered because of a lack of material, of course, but hockey headlines frequently lack patience with players who lack the ability of themselves, and there is a vast difference between making the most of your knowledge and skill in combat and imparting it to others.

Hour of Birth Is Factor In a Game

EL PASO, Texas.—Intricacies of age limits in a basketball game here failed to halt Jack Billings. With fast thinking he proved himself equal to an emergency.

Billings, member of the Old Hickory Pioneer team, had to play in a crucial game with the Pee Wee Leaders.

At game time, Billings was challenged on the ground that his card showed him to be 13 years old on that date.

"Just a minute," said Billings. "I was born at four minutes after 5 o'clock."

"It was then 2 p. m., Jack won his argument and played, scoring all of his team's six points. The Pee Wee Leaders made only two points.

Light Foot, Gentle Hand Advised For Automobile Drivers

Don't drive impulsively! That driving "Don't" from Charles A. Chayne, chief engineer of the Buick division of General Motors, covers a multitude of sins and, brought down to cases, rules out about every bad driving habit accountable for the majority of motor accidents.

"A light foot and a gentle hand should be the slogan of all motorists," said Chayne, who, besides designing cars that are famous for their dependability and safety, is an ardent driving fan. Chayne spends a lot of his time behind the wheel of an automobile. He drives back and forth to his office. He likes to get out on the highways. He frequently takes on the role of a Buick tester and puts the cars he designs through their paces at the General Motors Proving Ground.

"Don't be impulsive covers all driving conditions summer and winter," he said. "You can crack up on a dry pavement with perfect driving conditions as quickly as on a wet or icy road under bad conditions if you are not doing the right thing. You have to be careful under all conditions and the increased hazards of slippery roads must increase your care and the complete control of your car under the more dangerous circumstances.

"Winter and wet weather driving brings added hazards and I believe every motorist should follow a few simple rules which, if carried out faithfully, will enable him to keep his car under control at all times.

"The traction between the tires and the road cannot be the same on ice and snow or on wet pavement as on dry roads. Did you ever try walking or running across a glaring sheet of ice? It's not so easy and you are likely to take a spill. The motorist must not forget this when he is driving on ice. It's easier to slip and slide. You have to exercise very careful control of your car.

"Under such conditions, a motorist need remember only one fundamental rule, and that is: Don't do anything perkily. This rule applies to steering the car and to increasing or decreasing its speed.

"The carburetor adjustment should be right to prevent stalling and to insure efficient operation of the engine which is one of the most important factors in control of the car.

"Don't forget to keep the steering mechanism in good condition. Don't neglect to keep the engine running parts well lubricated. Other words, the car should be in normal 'feel' so that support follows when roads become undetermined. Proper lubrication helps the 'feel' of your car's run.

"The traction between the tires and the road cannot be the same on ice and snow or on wet pavement as on dry roads. Did you ever try walking or running across a glaring sheet of ice? It's not so easy and you are likely to take a spill. The motorist must not forget this when he is driving on ice. It's easier to slip and slide. You have to exercise very careful control of your car.

"Under such conditions, a motorist need remember only one fundamental rule, and that is: Don't do anything perkily. This rule applies to steering the car and to increasing or decreasing its speed.

"The carburetor adjustment should be right to prevent stalling and to insure efficient operation of the engine which is one of the most important factors in control of the car.

"Don't forget to keep the steering mechanism in good condition. Don't neglect to keep the engine running parts well lubricated. Other words, the car should be in normal 'feel' so that support follows when roads become undetermined. Proper lubrication helps the 'feel' of your car's run.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ONE BOY AND THE OTHER . . .

Two high school graduates of equal mental capacity and opportunity stood side by side at the railroad station as the train pulled in to take them on a long journey—to college. Both separated, and in due time, both finished their courses, with honors. Each secured employment in his respective line. One saved his money, bought a home, and settled down. The other chose the easy way, spent his earnings as fast as possible on foolish things.

Did you meet these two boys twenty years later? You did, so we need not finish the story.

To save and succeed, one must plan and invest wisely. Home ownership is no easy task, but as an investment in happiness and contentment, it's as sound as it is wise. Remember the name
