

COMMITTEE IN HOUSE VOTES FOR CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—The House reorganization committee voted 7 to 2 today to report favorably four measures as a substitute for the Senate bill, giving President Roosevelt broad powers to reorganize the executive department.

The Senate, meanwhile, approved the $549,227,842 navy supply bill, the largest sea force measure since world war days, amid charges that a campaign is underway to make the United States war-minded.

Brother of Three County Residents Buried In Ft. Worth

Otis Courtney of Carbon, in Eastland Wednesday, reported that funeral services for W. J. Courtney, 53, his brother and a Fort Worth policeman who died of an injury while on duty in 1931, were held last week at Fort Worth.

Mr. Courtney had been a member of the Fort Worth police department since 1925. His first service was in Riverside of Fort Worth as a mounted policeman.

The officer was struck on the chest by a drunken man arrested in 1931 and suffered a lung injury. The injury necessitated various leaves from duties. During many of his illnesses his friends on the force would work on their off days for him, turning the pay over to Mr. Courtney.

Police Chief A. E. Dowell and Police Inspector Dysart of Fort Worth paid high tribute to Mr. Courtney.

Other survivors are his wife; a son, Emmett U. Courtney, Dallas; a daughter, Mrs. Nettie Curry, Fort Worth; his father, H. M. Courtney of near Dublin; a sister, Mrs. E. W. Thomason, Gorman, and three other brothers, J. B. of Houston, Ira of Dublin and B. W. Courtney of Gorman. One grandchild also survives.

College Dean Is A Believer In the Social Security Plan

DALLAS, Texas.—Dr. Jack Johnson, head of the department of economics at North Texas State Teachers College, Denton, vigorously defended the federal administration's social and economic policies at a meeting of the Dallas Real Estate Board, here.

He agreed in principle with President Roosevelt's economic policies and declared that the undistributed profits tax was "correct in principle."

"We hear much of so-called economic law," Johnson said. "It is not law, and it is not natural. It is nothing more than a method of procedure arranged to meet the requirements of certain institutions."

"When the requirements change, most of this procedure is carried over into the new situation as a fundamental, causing endless confusion."

"We hear much discussion today that the government should not engage in business, that it should let business alone to run itself. That is the policy of 'laissez faire,' developed when the country was young, a policy of liberty and abundance."

"Today with mass production and large corporations, the whole thing is reversed. Today that policy means slavery instead of liberty, and not abundance but scarcity, because large corporations can limit production and hold up the price."

"We used to have competition to control prices. Now large corporations and monopolies have eliminated competition and it is ridiculous to say that we should turn them loose to do as they please. It would be suicidal to our whole civilization to say that we shouldn't have some social control."

"No one would want to say that every act of the administration has been perfect. The details are experiments that must be worked out, but the national policies generally are not only right but are essential to the preservation of liberty."

Criminal Appeals Court Refuses To Unseat Graves

AUSTIN, Mar. 30.—The Court of Criminal Appeals today refused to unseat Judge Harry Graves of Georgetown, appointed to succeed the late Judge O. S. Lattimore.

Graves' eligibility to the court was attacked because he was a member of the legislature when the pay of judges was increased. The opinion said Graves' eligibility could not be settled except in a civil court.

His eligibility was questioned in a case of a man given a two year burglary sentence in Ellis county. The two Waxahachie attorneys who sought to have Graves removed from the Court of Criminal Appeals said they might take the case to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Fewer Deaths Are Recorded in Traffic Mishaps in Texas

AUSTIN.—Texas traffic safety experts saw hopes for an appreciable decrease in 1938 crash deaths as February closed with 143 persons listed in that month's "Black Book." In February, 1937, there were 157 highway and street fatalities.

This does not mean, state police declared, that Texas drivers are having fewer accidents this year than last, but that more drivers, pedestrians and passengers are surviving the increasing smashes. The 1938 February accident count mounted to 1,129, as compared with the 863 crashes reported in that month last year. It may be "Lady Luck" smiling on many persons involved in the collisions but the state experts argued that Texans are becoming more aware of the almost certain death in high speed crack-ups. This year, during February, 116 of the 1,129 accidents resulted in fatalities, while last year—in the same month—120 of the 853 collisions were fatal.

Still, a further comparison showed that the pedestrian death rate has dropped by almost one-half since February a year ago, when 45 died from vehicular assault. Twenty-five lost their lives during February, 1938.

Nine of those listed as dead in February "Black Book" received their fatal injuries in January, state police said. In the location analysis, 71 were killed on open highways while 72 died from accidents within city limits.

Following are the types of collisions that killed the 143 people: Motorcar with motorcar, 56; motorcar with train, 7; motorcar with bicycles, 2; motorcar with horse-drawn vehicles, 1; motorcar with fixed objects, 16; non-collision, 27.

Lecturer Believes In Early Dates for Girls

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Dr. Henry Neumann, writer and lecturer, believes the modern girl should have dates as early in life as she pleases.

"Apron string girls have the facts of life tossed at them in one big lump," said Dr. Neumann.

"Wouldn't it be better to make it a gradual process?"

"Youth today is better morally than were his predecessors of a century ago. Our modern youth is more frank and exercises more freedom of thought. Compare him with the youth of yesterday, who was bossed and scared into correct thinking," Neumann invited.

Speakers Urge State Plan To Court Industry

DALLAS.—Increasing sentiment for marshaling all Texas interests—industrial, political and social—behind a more realistic and aggressive program for industrial development of the state is seen by the All-South Development Council in the tenor of addresses made here before the Institute of Natural Resources and Industrial Development.

The task of placing Texas in the dominating position which its wealth of resources, population and marketing potentials, and climatic and other advantages justify, said R. L. Thornton, president of the Mercantile bank of Dallas, is one for all of Texas, for all would share in its rewards. He said the task "demands the prompt beginning of a well-organized, consolidated, continuing program."

That there is no lack of independent agencies, commissions, associations and other industry-developing bodies in the state was acknowledged by Louis W. Hickey of Dallas, representing the Associated General Contractors of America. But he emphasized that the time has come for consolidating them into a state-wide group, determining positive policies by the state to support their efforts, and "terminating the period of talk in favor of a period of productive action."

Both speakers pointed out that there is plenty of native Texas capital ready to go to work in new industrial fields, and that out-of-state industries are finding increasing need for many raw materials still dormant in Texas, but warned that capital, like labor, merits a just return and cannot be expected to venture without reasonable expectation of legitimate profit.

Commenting on the successful raising of cotton, cattle, corn, wheat, sugar and rice and citrus fruits, long Texas agricultural standbys, and the "gratifying development" of timber, oil, sulphur and gas resources, Mr. Hickey pointed out that there has been little systematic endeavor applied to "the vast wealth of as yet untouched resources." He said developers of these resources had "risked their time, efforts and money, and surely deserved the rewards they gained indeed, were it not for the perfectly legitimate prospect of private profit it would be idle even to talk about the development of resources and industry."

Attention was called, the Council's report said, "to the strides being taken in the field of industrial chemical research, and the opportunity for applying to Texas as the practical and profitable results of this research. Industry needs the agricultural and mineral resources of Texas, both those developed and those latent, in its many new products and processes, it was pointed out.

"Anyone who reads trade journals," Mr. Hickey said, "know what other states and groups of states are doing in the field of tying chemistry and agriculture to vantage of all three pursuits; yet industry, to the tremendous advantage of all three pursuits; yet he is forced to admit that Texas, with probably more latent assets than any other, is doing nothing."

But, he added, the next will be fought in the air and intends to "dominate the sky." Coincidentally it was disclosed at Washington the United States and England will act to cancel exculator clause of the 1937 naval treaty, enabling them to build battleships beyond the 35,000-ton limits.

As Mussolini spoke, Spanish loyalist leaders at Barcelona pleaded for another 200,000 "who are not afraid to die," strengthened the front lines against the powerful nationalist offensive in Catalonia. The nationalists may threaten to cut the B. Iona electric power supply.

NAMES in the News

Names make headlines. Newspapers, today as always, are made up of what people say, think, propose, dissent from. Governments, institutions, businesses—and all their activities—are only the lengthened shadows of men!

What is true on the front pages is true, also, on advertising pages. Advertisements are simply signed statements of men, banded together to form a business who seek your patronage. They back their good name against the products they ask you to buy. They say, in cold black type, that theirs is a name you can trust.

People who get the most for their money in the market-places are people who know the value of familiar, trade-marked products. They buy with confidence. They buy by name—and save time, tiresome searching, and money! Are you doing likewise?
