Windbreaks Provide Cover, Decoration And Color

by Ernest Moravec

Windbreaks planted around farmsteads add beauty to the home surroundings. They accent the home. Evergreens break the drab monotony of winter while broadleaf trees and flowering shrubs add color the rest of the year.

The effects and benefits of windbreaks have long been noted throughout the Great Plains of the United States.

As with any project, good planning is needed to avoid costly mistakes. Windbreaks are longterm investments, that, when properly maintained, will last 30 to 60 years.

An important consideration is tree selection. There is a large selection of trees suitable for windbreaks. These come in different sizes. Local nurseries are good sources of these trees. The Texas Forest Service also has a limited number of tree varieties available. Applications for

Some Yields Good, Grades Improving

Beautiful late fall weather has proven to be a lifesaver for many area cotton farmers. The old saying of "making hay while the sun shines" goes double in this West Texas community.

Some farmers are predicting that they will be through with harvest and out of the fields by Christmas if the weather holds good.

A survey of gins, recently revealed that the cotton turnout is not as good as farmers had hoped for.

Don McDonald, manager of Clay's Corner Gin reports approximately 150 to 175 bales ginned per day.

McDonald said that most of their cotton is being pulled in to modules and hauled for ginning by truck.

Calvin Meissner at Lariat Gin reported ginning about 140 bales a day and also said that approximately two percent of the cotton in that area has been harvested.

Each hunter may hunt on any part of the shooting preserve; however, there will not be any guide service provided by the Lazbuddie Volunteer Fire Department.

LOCAL YOUTHS HONORED.....Tim Sain and Tamara Gilliland were honored November 23 along with other District 2 4-Hers at the annual Gold Star Banquet in Lubbock.

Outstanding Youth Honored At Banquet

Forty-four outstanding members of 4-H Clubs in the South Plains were honored in Lubbock Monday night, Nov. 23.

In addition to receiving the Gold Star Award, highest honor presented at the county level, the youths were challenged by a top administrator of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service to strive for a good finish as a climax to their outstanding start in life.

Joining the youths at the awards banquet in the cafeteria of Coronado High School were parents, government officials, Extension leaders, fellow 4-Hers, educators, and other all, as with many farm products, the prices being paid to the farmer's for their labors this year are less than desirable.

Most area gins are now running full tilt, day and night, as farmers are able to get in long days in the fields.

Reports from Beck Gin, west of Muleshoe indicate that they are ginning 300 to 400 bales per day, running on a 24 hour basis.

McDonald said that most of their cotton is being pulled in to modules and hauled for ginning by truck.

Services Available Locally

The American Cancer Society in Bailey County announced today that it has a variety of services available to cancer patients without charge.

"Many people are unaware of all the services we can provide right here in this town," said Berta Combs, Service and Rehabilitation Chairman. "And all that is required in most cases is written permission from the patient's physician."

Loan equipment such as hospital beds, wheelchairs, commode chairs and walkers are available as well as expendable items including dressings, hospital gowns, bed pads, pillows and other items.

"These are all in addition to our basic information and referral services," said Mrs. Combs. "And, depending on location, we also have several rehabilitation programs including Reach to Recovery for mastectomies, esophageal speech lessons for laryngectomies, ostomy rehabilitation and related patient and family support groups."

The concept for these rehabilitation programs is the volunteer-to-patient relationship," added Mrs. Combs. "We have many volunteers who are themselves former patients and who are specifically trained by the Society to help other patients and even their families adjust to living with cancer."

Mrs. Combs cited that when most people think of the American Cancer Society, they relate the name to cancer research. "While it is true the ACS funds millions of dollars for cancer research, we are also a community-based organization providing many local services. These patient services as well as education materials of all types are just a few of the ways we can help."

Windbreaks are most effective when placed at right angles to prevailing winds. Windbreaks should be planted at least 100 ft. from the nearest structure and should extend 100 ft. beyond the area. A windbreak should contain at Dallas County, $10.8 billion, up from $9.4 billion in the second quarter of 1980.

Bexar County, $3.5 billion, up from $3.2 billion in the second quarter of 1980.

The Coop reports that grades of the ginned cotton received from the classing office are improving; however, some of the farmers have as low as 11 percent turn out and some as high as 23 percent.

Claunch Gin at Bula is averaging 219 bales on a 24 hour run. Both modules and trailers are filling the gin yard, with more to be hauled in as time permits. Harvest in the Bula area is probably less than one quarter through, since the early frosts missed the area. Grade cards at the Claunch Gin were reported to be improving with each batch.

Cotton-Quantities Call For Market Strategy

Cotton, cotton everywhere--and what to do with it. That's the dilemma facing Texas cotton farmers.

"Because of this year's bumper cotton crop, cotton supplies are plentiful, the demand is weak and prices are below the cost of production," points out Dr. Carl Anderson, economist in cotton marketing with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Thus farmers are trying to decide what to do with this year's crop--sell now, hold and hope for a higher price, or try to work a delayed pricing strategy.

"Deciding when and at what price to sell is not easy," says Anderson. "However, developing a 'feel' for the market and following a good marketing program can pay off big."

"With a current depressed cotton market, many farmers are trying to decide whether to place cotton under the government loan program or to try a delayed pricing strategy such as the seller's call contract," notes the economist.

Under the government loan, cotton comes off the market and provides some cash flow for farmers. But it costs about a cent a pound per month to hold cotton in the loan program. Eventually, it has to move to market, so the loan program may not help market prices that much.

Under the seller's call contract, the farmer's price for cotton is tied to the futures market price, explains Anderson. This gives the farmer an opportunity to actually establish a price for his cotton after delivery. However, the farmer must be sure to understand contract terms and conditions.

Here's how it works. The farmer agrees with a broker or buyer to deliver his cotton and to transfer ownership at that time. In Texas, terms of most seller's call contracts call for a cash advance to the farmer of an amount equal to the loan value at delivery time. Also, most contracts specify the loan value as a price floor.

"Once he delivers the cotton, the farmers has no further storage costs but he can participate in a market upswing," explains the economist. "The seller's call contract specifies that the farmer's price will be a certain number of points off a given futures month. The farmer decides the date for the price relationship to the futures contract month."

Anderson gives this example. Assume a farmer selects the March 1982 futures for his contract. If cotton in the March Strict Low Middling 1-1/16-inch futures contract is trading at 68 cents a pound and the farmer's current spot price is 58 cents for the same quality, his spot price is fixed 10 cents under the March futures contract if he signs a call contract. Thereafter, if the March futures goes up or down, the farmer's price will be 10 cents a pound less.

"A seller's call contract should allow for changing to a new contract month for a small fee," notes Anderson. "This allows the farmer to watch the market and sign the call contract when the difference between the futures price and spot price is relatively small. In other words, the smaller the difference between the two market prices, the better off the farmer is."

To use the seller's call contract wisely, a farmer must follow changes and reasons for changes in both the futures and spot markets, emphasizes the economist.

"The key point to remember is that the farmer benefits from the call contract when prices increase," notes Anderson. "However, the spot price must have been fixed under the call contract or there would be no price protection in a falling market."

"While both the loan program and the call contract can benefit a farmer if market prices increase, carrying costs tied to the loan can be excessive, depending on the length of storage. On the other hand, the call contract offers immediate transfer of cotton and gives farmers more flexibility in changing market, believes Anderson.

Tax Practitioner Workshop Scheduled

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service is cooperating with the Internal Revenue Service in offering 38 Tax Practitioner Workshops across the state reports Spencer Tanksley. The nearest workshop to our area will be held in Lubbock on November 30 and December 1, 1981 at the Lubbock Civic Center. What's an average day worth?

On an average day you probably get out of bed, adjust the thermostat, make a pot of coffee, cook breakfast . . . perhaps use the dishwasher.

Later, maybe you do a load of laundry and listen to the radio. Then you cook dinner and put the leftovers in the refrigerator. You may turn on the television or settle down in your favorite chair next to a lamp to read.

For all of you, all of this and more adds up to one day . . . just 1/30th of your average monthly electric bill.

Letters To The Editor

To the editor of "The Bailey County Journal":

Although this letter is addressed to the editor, I really would prefer to address those citizens of the Muleshoe ISD who voted down the bond issue in yesterday's election, and those who, out of apathy, failed to vote at all.

No words can adequately express my disappointment over the outcome of the bond election, although having lived here in Muleshoe all my life, I must say that in my heart, I half expected it to end as it did. Time and again in my twenty-eight years, I have seen the blind conservatism and ignorance of certain groups within the county turn "thumbs down" on progress and relegate Muleshoe to the status of a "backward" community with no forward-looking ambition, a town content just to sit and exist with no plans for future improvements unless they are free. Unfortunately, people get exactly what they pay for and this fact causes me great concern over the future of my home town. It is my opinion that this narrow-minded, backward-looking attitude is killing Muleshoe and it breaks my heart to see it happen.

As I sat at my desk in the high school today, watching my students at work, I could not begin to understand how such a fine group of broad-minded, creative young people could come out of a totally non-progressive, narrow-minded, stagnant atmosphere. I must conclude that by some miracle they have escaped the influence of those people in the Muleshoe ISD who voted against the bond issue and those who simply did not care enough to vote. It never ceases to amaze me that these people who have spent most of their lives doing nothing and caring nothing for the community can suddenly swarm out of the woodwork like cockroaches when the light of progress is switched on. They are so afraid they will have to give their fair share!

I submit that our students are Muleshoe's hope for a future, for these students have a great deal of pride in their school and community. I can only hope that some of these young men and women will find their way back to Muleshoe with their families and help turn Muleshoe around, get it going forward instead of always sitting on its "mule" letting the world go by. Heaven knows they have the stamina for it, for they have learned, in spite of leaking roofs, freezing classrooms in the winter, broiling classrooms at the beginning and end of the school year, and "breezes" through uncaulked and broken windows that have been known to send papers flying across the room! Together we have sat and choked as a West Texas dust storm fogged the air in the room as if the windows were wide open. Just imagine what these students could have accomplished under decent, humane conditions! That these young people, the hope for Muleshoe's future, could mean so little to certain members of the community is beyond my comprehension. I can not begin to understand such a total lack of pride and concern, for I was not raised that way.

The only promise for any community is through its schools. How can ignorant, apathetic citizens expect any decent, self-respecting people to move here and enroll the children they love in a school system which has no support from a "majority"? (463 of its citizens? Do they expect newcomers to ignore this lack of concern for the welfare of Muleshoe ISD students and teachers, and this backward attitude toward spending money for progress? Who, other than those who voted against the bond election and those who failed to vote at all, wants to sit and stagnate? How can these backward, unconcerned people expect Muleshoe to progress if they have no facilities with which to entice the talented, ambitious teachers away from higher paying, larger school districts? How can they hope to keep the excellent teachers that they already have? What teacher thinks little enough of himself or herself to work under existing conditions and still be held accountable for student learning? I guess I do because I intend to fight for my home town. I will not let the selfish pessimists flush it down the toilet through their own confounded, narrow-minded greed and apathy!

This morning as I unlocked the door to the freezing dungeon cell that I have tried so hard to make a habitable classroom conducive to learning, I was overcome by a sick, sinking feeling that this was all there was. I simply was not going to get any better! It is hard to describe the shame I felt for My school district, the disillusionment with my job and teaching conditions that I am sure was shared by 125 other teachers, as well as by our administrators. Is this what our community thinks we deserve for doing our best to educate their hope for a future for Muleshoe? Do they really care so little about their own young people? I said at the beginning of this letter that no words could adequately express my disappointment in the school district that educated me and brought me back here to teach, but I hope that through this letter, I can at least begin to express this feeling of helpless frustration and rage over this giant step backward for Muleshoe, and perhaps invite those of you who do care about our community to join with my fellow educators and me to combat the plague of cold indifference, lackadaisical attitudes, selfishness, and gross ignorance that threatens to engulf our school system.

Pat M. Black, Teacher
Muleshoe ISD

Dear Editor,

In response to the recent bond election to improve the Muleshoe School, I stand totally irate. One may shirk off the comments as that of a selfish, angry employee. I will not contradict that statement; however, I am totally confused about the parents' indifference to their own children's conditions. One does not excuse shabby teaching nor poor test scores which make our community not fair well nationally; however, it seems perfectly permissible for the "dangerously doubly" walls of our schools to crumble the learning atmosphere in which those required tests are taken. Melodramatic as it may seem to the outsider, (in an air-conditioned office), it is still impossible to teach over a box fan, (purchased with the teachers own money), chase papers blown from students desks, blink as a ceiling chunk grazes your eye, and listen to the rattling of the wind against the venetian blind while reading Romeo and Juliet. Perhaps pride is not poetry to the layman who is apathetic to the problem. Yet, some parents are quick to respond to their child's desperate need for other luxuries. That brand new 1982 Chevrolet pickup has priority, (before they even have a license), over a few more dollars in taxes paid for a desirable place to learn. Some students learn regardless of poor teaching, poor conditions, and poor facilities, yet some are distracted when a falling ceiling tile grazes the temple of his favorite friend.

Texas ranks fourth in production output

COLLEGE STATION — Texas factory workers out-produced their counterparts nationwide by 34 percent during the late 70's, lifting the state to fourth in terms of value produced per dollar paid in wages, according to a Texas A&M University industrial researcher.

Production workers in Texas added an average of $4.99 for every dollar they received during 1977, compared to the national average of $3.72, Dr. Charles Slatkovich recently told participants at a Texas Industrial Development Conference.

Zlatkovich developed the figures in conjunction with the Industrial Economics Research Division of the Texas Engineering Experiment Station, a branch of the Texas A&M University System.

"The chemical industry is largely responsible for lifting the overall productivity level of Texas industry so far above the national average," said Zlatkovich.

BOVINE-O-METRICS ... the exercise program for cattle! Although the sight of a 600 pound cow exercising on a treadmill may be a little hard to swallow, that's exactly what animal scientists at Kansas State University are doing. It's being done so researchers can learn more about stress in relation to bovine respiratory diseases. Significant losses, primarily because of reduced growth rate, have been traced directly to respiratory diseases in cattle. Early symptoms are deviated body temperatures, nasal discharge, inflamed nasal passages and lethargic behavior. The K-State veterinary researchers are trying to pinpoint and alter the factors which make animals susceptible to the diseases. The end result, hopefully, will be preventive measures which can be taken by every cattleman to reduce this potential animal killer.

A Look at the Cross on THANKSGIVING

"Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted."

"But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed."

"All we like sheep have gone astray: we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all." Isaiah 53:4-6

Our prayer this Thanksgiving Season is that everyone will attend the house of God, giving thanks unto him for his great gift, which is eternal life through his son.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
