Every Day Should Be Devoted To Mother

Mother's Day is going to be upon us one of these Sundays, and if the past is any guide to the future the occasion will be marked by a great deal of useless gush.

It seems to be a habit of ours to work ourselves up to a perfect lather of sentimentality about something one day in the year, and then to ignore it for the other 364 days.

Not that the sentiment isn't very pleasant and touching. There is something heart-warming about the custom of setting aside one day to let Mother know that she is loved and appreciated. The flowers, the little gifts, the extra attentions that appear on Mother's Day come from the heart, and it's good for us to give them.

But why, oh, why, must we try to pack it all into one day? Why can't we carry over a little of this sentiment for use the rest of the year?

In the first place, Mother isn't just the gray-haired old lady of the Mother's Day pictures. She's a lot of people, some of them old and some of them young, some of them rich and some of them poor.

She's the girl at the spindle in the textile mill and the woman back of the department store counter, the dining-room waitress and the telephone girl, the farmer's wife and the woman on relief.

Being all these people, and more besides, she has a few common wants that are in evidence every day in the year. She wants a decent measure of economic security and a chance to look forward to old age without undue fear.

She wants things for her children—a comfortable home, good schooling, a chance to grow through a happy childhood to useful manhood and womanhood. She wants a world that will stay put without dissolving, every so often, into the chaos of war or economic breakdown.

Are we doing a tenth part of what we could do, day in and day out, to provide those things for her?

We ignore the old-age pension movement so scandalously that it falls into the hands of brainless and irresponsible cranks and quacks. We put into one squadron of cruisers more money than we have spent on slub clearance since our nation was founded.

We find hundreds of millions for our army and cut down on the school and playground budget. We let children waste and die from diseases that our science could prevent, and we do next to nothing to abolish war from the world.

And—if you don't mind hard-boiled language—every time we do these things, or consent to the doing of them through our laziness or stupidity, we kick Mother right in the teeth.

Mother's Day is a fine institution. We could approach it with a clearer conscience if we did just a little more for Mother on the other 364 days.

For those Veterans of Future Wars, hasn't the government something in the way of a premature baby bond?

Mussolini apparently is going to civilize those Ethiopians if it takes every bullet he's got.

"THE FISH THAT TIME FORGOT." MILLIONS OF YEARS AGO, THE AUSTRALIAN LUNGFISH BEGAN TO CHANGE FROM A FISH TO A LAND ANIMAL, BUT ITS PROGRESS STOPPED, AND THE CREATURE REMAINS AS AN "IN-BETWEEN."

THE EGG OF THE MAYFLY IS PROVIDED WITH TENDRILS AND FLOATS TO BUOY IT UP.

AN ALMOND TREE, SIXTY FEET TALL, GROWS NEAR CLOVIS, FRESNO COUNTY, CALIF.

THE lungfish is known today as a "living fossil," a creature that is a sort of hang-over from prehistoric ages. It has evolved in the direction of land animals, but never has become one. When a stream of water dries up, the lungfish curls up in the mud at the bottom, to wait for the water to return, being able to breathe by means of its single lung.

He also served 13 months in the Montana state penitentiary for automobile theft.

WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Among the army of American industrialists, the New Deal finally has found one who is willing to provide factory employment for dwellers on a federal subsistence homestead. The great grief of the original $25,000,000 homestead program has been the fact that although a score or more of the projects were designed as industrial-agricultural communities, whose success would depend on the presence of factories to provide part-time employment and cash income for homesteaders, manufacturers have failed to move in.

The lee has now been broken at Mrs. Roosevelt's pet Arthurdale, W. Va. Julius Tuteur, president of the Electric Vacuum Cleaner Co. of Cleveland, O., has signed up to open an assembly plant for his product at Arthurdale. He will tory there from the Arthurdale Association, homesteaders' co-operative group, and employ 40 or 50 of the heads of the 165 homestead families which will occupy Arthurdale when it's completed. Tuteur has promised to abide by all provisions of the old NRA code for his industry.

Tuteur was an immigrant boy from Hanover, Germany. Explaining his distinction as the only manufacturer who has come to the aid of the subsistence homesteads, he says everything he has come from this country and that he "wants to help."

COL. WILLIAM C. HARLEE of Dillon, S. C., has announced as an anti-New Deal candidate against Senator Jimmy Byrnes. The most remarkable thing about Harlee is the fact that he was 35 years in the marine corps, he came a high officer, served in many imperialistic occupations of foreign soil, and now has these things to say in his campaign literature: American occupation and overthrow of a Filipino government after the Spanish-American War was unjustified and the killing of Filipino patriots was shameful. The 1906 intervention in Cuba he proclaims, was brought about by New York sugar barons and the "insurrectos were their insurance policy," aiming to obtain a government suitable for the barons' purpose.

The 1914 landing at Vera Cruz which Harlee saw: "The Mexican forces had left the city to avoid having it subjected to a shooting, but blue jackets, not accustomed to such conditions and not trained in use of arms ashore, are hard to restrain and Vera Cruz got plenty of shooting. It was an inglorious affair."

DURING the war and after Harlee says, marines occupied the Dominican Republic, agencies of the National City Bank, "cleaning up dividends more than 1000 per cent a year on sugar, could control the government. "I found the only bandits were those engaged by the bank to deplete on a properties except its own." No American or foreigner was ever molested in Haiti, but marines set up a puppet government and for eight years "no more dramatic military government was ever fastened on a people," he concludes. Now we can't renege on a pact with Japan in China and Mussolini in Africa.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
LINDA BOURNE, 20 years old, pretty, is left almost penniless by the sudden death of her father, PETER GARDNER, newspaper reporter, who has left her with a small amount of money, but she goes abroad to study acting. When Peter asks her to marry him she agrees, but postpones the wedding.

HONEY HARMON, film star, comes to Newtown, making a "personal appearance" tour. Peter comes to interview her and sells her a scenario written by Linda. Peter turns down a job in Hollywood when Linda receives an offer there she accepts.
Linda is in Hollywood and pays attention to Linda until one day, in a conference, she suggests that COOPER VANCE, an actor, has been miscast, she is quoting Peter, though no one knows this. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII
FOR two months Linda had spent the days since her arrival in Hollywood sitting with her feet on the pulled-out drawer of her desk, idly reading old scripts. At lunchtime she had found a secluded table in the Commonwealth lunch-room, then wandered over the lots, watching the making of pictures and going back to write gay little letters to Pete in which she pictured herself as Alice in Wonderland. Studio life was fascinating to watch, but Linda had been bored.

Then came that fateful day of the conference. Linda had been invited out of courtesy. Directors, producers and writers had met to discuss the falling stars, the pictures that were not good "box-office," and out of it all had come one suggestion from the unknown Linda Bourne. And a falling star had become once more a brilliant possibility.

Linda was no longer bored. The studio had bought Myron's "Life of Kates" and they were already at work on the picture for Cooper Vance.
Linda was famous. Miracle girl, they called her. But, by this time, Linda was no longer surprised by Hollywood. And in a little time she forgot it hadn't been her own idea—that she had only said what Pete had written. She had long since thrown away the telegram from Pete. She accepted her increased salary as easily as she accepted her move to the executive offices and the services of a secretary.

When they brought her a copy of her original script, which Pete had sold to Honey Harmon almost half a year before, Linda thought the plot was really her own. If there was a third character that Pete had written into it, long before in the Blade office, Linda didn't remember and Pete had never told her what he had done.

WHEN Linda made the first speech that made her famous in movieland that day she took several rounds of the ladder of success at once, but when, three months later, lunching casually with Hogarth James who had played English character parts for the past five years, she suggested that he had a kind of message in his kindly face that was exactly right for a series of new mystery stories, she was made!

She forgot that Pete Gardner had pointed this out to her after a movie they had seen together at the Palace at Newtown.
It wasn't lonely for Linda in Hollywood after that. She had moved from the hotel to an apartment house, bought herself a modest car, and, like everyone else in Hollywood, went to the movies.

A young woman with power—and Linda had power since she was credited with "discoveries"—need not have feared loneliness. Linda could be useful and she was attractive.

She was chic. She learned to dress well. An old hat and knitted things didn't go. In Hollywood the fashion was sports clothes and evening clothes, and Linda's tailored white tweed, her broad-shouldered, slim-lipped tulleurs, her fresh violets, white or deep purple, which she always wore, her Paris-made evening frocks were distinguished where all clothes were beautiful. Her soft, clipped voice and her dignified bearing were often unkind contrast to her sensational sisters in the picture colony. Picture people wanted to know Linda for herself, as well as for what she could do for them.

SHE spent money recklessly on clothes. She bought a good car, not because she wanted to create an impression but because she liked to drive a good car. She gave parties. They were small and intimate. Dinners for four or six, at the most, and never for more than four. Sundays she was "at home" from 4 to 7, serving a discreet number of cocktails and excellent food. It became smart to be invited to a Bourne Sunday afternoon.

Linda knew the stars, the important directors, the producers. She went to the fights, the football games, to Palm Springs and Arrowhead for week-ends. She spoke a few words into the "mike" at the important openings at Sid Graumann's Chinese Theater. She became a celebrity among celebrities, and she still wrote to Pete, but her letters grew less frequent and told him more than she thought. Pete knew he had lost her, and pride kept him from intruding into the life she had made for herself.

Pete put himself into his play. And one day it was done and he sent it to New York.
Linda was in Hollywood 18 months before she met Basil Thorne. Not that she didn't know him by name. Or by reputation. Thorne was the director who had made the great money-making musicals. His pictures had brought a new medium to picture making. Extravaganzas, they were like their creator. Dazzling, gargantuan, filled with contrasts, romantic, worldly and incredible.

LINDA met Basil Thorne at Honey Harmon's bungalow at Malibu. She drove down with Cora Jarrett, editor of a movie fan magazine.
"Maybe you'll like him, and maybe you won't. Most women do," Cora, speaking of Thorne, said to Linda. "It would be hard to describe him. I don't know whether he is a cad or a gentleman. I don't even know whether he is ugly or handsome. He's that kind. Most women are crazy about him, but maybe it's just Hollywood. He is having a cycle of blonds now."

"Cycle of blonds?" Linda asked.
"Yes. When he first came it was the Dietrich type. Then he went in for gamins. Then he took the sophisticated ladies in his stride, so to speak, but now it's blonds. Must I say more?"
"You might mention one," Linda answered.

"Honey Harmon."
"Oh Honey, my patroness!"
"Your hostess, will do," Cora answered. "We all know Honey bought your first script, but don't let her get the idea that she has anything to do with your success. Honey has a way of making unexpected use of any little thing she thinks belongs to her. Incidentally, she thinks Thorne belongs to her. I thought I'd tell you just in case—"

"I remember someone who belonged to me once and she wasn't above appropriating him."
"In Hollywood?" Cora asked.
"No," Linda answered briskly. "Just what I thought! You've been out here a couple of years and I haven't heard about a single romance, Linda. Is it this someone back east?"

"It isn't anybody at all. No romances. All work." Linda wanted Cora to get her mind off the subject. Cora was a Hollywoodite and she could use any information herself. Not that Linda had any to give her. There had been no romance in her life, unless she counted Pete, and after so many months that was so remote that Linda forgot most of the things she thought she would always remember about him. She thought of him now, and missed him suddenly. Not because he was Pete, but because she was a girl and she had no one to love. And then she met Basil Thorne.

Co-ordinating the movement as a National Waterfowl Refuge contest, heads of national conservation organizations seek to show municipalities, organizations and individuals how to establish simple wildfowl havens at almost any public park, farm pond, slough or marsh. Heads of the U. S. Bureau of Biological Survey, the Isaac Walton League of America, the Conservation division of the General Federation of Women's clubs and others comprise a national committee for the movement.

Following recent announcement of the voluntary refuge idea, the response was almost immediate from 23 states, the Foundation declares. The Berry Schools, of Mt. Berry, Ga., entered the first project—a 30,000-acre tract with four lakes—to be developed by pupils.

Among other participants who have entered projects in the movement are: Arrowhead Farm, Eagle Point, Wis.; Future Farmers of America, Vienna, Mo. Dr. John E. Hammett, Andover, N. J.; Reid R. Blair, Idaville, Ind.; Bear Lake Cottagers' association, Bear Lake, Ind.; George O. Burland, Francesville, Ind.; C. H. Fuller, Sidney, Neb.; L. L. Cooke, Ocean Springs, Miss.; A. C. LeDuce, Chena, Ill.; Dr. Harvey H. Roberts, McClung, Va.; S. R. Livergood, Wilton, N. Dak.; C. F. Hewitt, N. Stonington, Conn.; Louis Vacula, La Grange, Texas; John H. Mulholland, Milford, Del.; George P. Millington, Philadelphia, Pa.; Junior Rukasko, Loyalty, S. D.; Three Village Garden Club, Stony Brook, N. Y.; Willis County Gun Club, Joliet, Ill.; Western Cuyahoga Sportsmen's association; Cleveland, O.

To supply the necessary information on how to create the migratory bird refuges, free booklets are being distributed from the Foundation's headquarters, 500 Fifth Avenue, New York. Anyone who can be instrumental in establishing a refuge of three acres of water or more may secure copies. Over $500 in cash and other awards are to be distributed for the most helpful refuges voluntarily created.

Irish Culture Dates Back to 2,000 B. C.

By United Press
BELFAST, Ireland.—Excavation of a prehistoric tomb near Dunloy in County Antrim has revealed the burial customs of people who inhabited Ireland 2,000 years before Christ.

Archaeologists of Queen's University here said the discoveries showed "an astonishing variety of structural skill and culture among the people who evidently brought to Ireland the first knowledge of civilized life."

In the ancient tomb or burial chamber the excavators found traces of the cremation of human bodies as well as gifts to the dead, including two arrow heads, several knives and beads. The most important find was two finely polished stone axes, keen enough to cut paper sharply, which lay at the door of the tomb.

Texas Farmers Are Organized to Aid In New Program

COLLEGE STATION — That the Soil Conservation Allotment program is progressing is evidenced by the many hundreds of meetings being held throughout the state by county agricultural agents and the organization of county boards to administer the new farm program.

Farm demonstration councils and key farmers have divided the counties into "communities" of about 500 farmers. Each of these "communities" has elected three representatives who will constitute a County Soil Conservation Board.

Officials point out, in reviewing some of the highpoints of the program, that all crops will be classified into two classes—soil depleting and soil conserving; and that a neutral classification has been set up to include idle land, fallow land, woodland, pastures, vineyards, tree fruits, small fruits and so forth.

Payments will be made to farmers upon proof of having cooperated in the program. This money, which will be paid in one check, will include payments for replacing certain percentages of soil depleting crops with soil conserving crops and for using soil building practices.

Bases established on the old reduction contracts will be taken as a guide for establishing the base for 1936 on the soil conservation program, with due allowance for crops not included in former contracts.

About 20 per cent of the base acreage in soil depleting crops in 1936, must be replaced by soil conserving crops in order to qualify for participation in the program.

The soil conserving payments will be based on the productivity of the land; for cotton it will be 5 cents per pound; for peanuts 14 cents a pound based on the average yield per acre of the farm; for rice it will be 20 cents for each 100 pounds of the producer's domestic consumption quota, subject to certain specified agreements.

Rate of payments for soil building practices is being approved, according to officials of the program.

McCarthy said that at the dangerous crossings of the division, flashing lights will be placed to warn tourists.

The announcement also was made that a granite monument with a bronze plate will be erected by the Highway Department in the vicinity of Mount Pleasant on which will be given a short history of the county.

Cripples Rank As School's Star Pupils

SYDNEY, N. S. W.— Children who triumph over great disabilities to obtain an education are the star pupils of one of the strangest schools in the world.

This is the Blackfriars Correspondence School in Sydney, which has 5,388 primary and 241 secondary pupils scattered throughout the state, mostly in the wilds where no school is available. So they receive their lessons by post and they make the most of their opportunities.

For instance, there is Beryl Morrin, who lost both hands in a shark attack. By holding a pencil in her teeth or between the stumps of her arms, she has done her school work amazingly well, and her report reads, "Art work sent in so far is excellent." She hopes to be fitted with artificial hands some day.

Then there is "Billy" Maguire, who also has no hands. Using his toes he writes letters in ink or pencil on ordinary paper "which would do credit to one of equal years and full physical abilities."

Another cripple who writes with his left foot is Donald Dansey. While little Peter Fletcher, of Bullamacco, has just passed an examination which the Education Department allowed him to take orally because he is paralyzed and cannot write. Other stories of brave children are told by the teachers who supply this correspondence education.

Meteorite Blamed For 1908 Quake To Be Sought By Planes

MOSCOW.— Airplanes will be used this spring in a renewal of the search for the largest meteorite known to have fallen during recorded history.

The meteorite, which fell in 1908 in the valley of the river Podkamennaya Tunguska, Siberia, remains unlocated despite numerous searches by the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R. The huge meteorite caused an earthquake in Siberia and felled and burned 36 miles of forest.

This year airplane photographs will be taken of the area when the snow melts and the trees are still bare in the hope that both the direction from which the trees were knocked down and the craters formed by the impact will be shown.

HOLLISTER, Cal.—John Dill, the last of the veteran teamsters here, has just retired from business. "I can't compete with auto trucks," he declared.

Girls Advised To Drop Rouge For One Night's Date

BLUFFTON, Ohio.—Feminine members of Bluffton college's popular class in marriage who are being "squired" will give their faces a good soaping on "date" nights if they heed the warning of Dr. Frank Slutz, Dayton, O., to "remember, there comes a time in courtship when cosmetics will do no good."

He emphasized there is a time in every courtship when there is real appraisal of the prospective wife by the "beau" and at this time no amount of paint or powder will influence the thinking young man's decision.

Five pillars of mating given by Dr. Slutz were as follows: Health—"Make sure you don't marry a hospital," he warned. Family background—"The prospective bride represents a whole group of persons who will call on you after marriage," he said. Likeness—"The couple should have similar likes and dislikes."

Ages recommended for marriage by Dr. Slutz are from 22 to 26 for girls, and from 25 to 29 for men with no marriage for college students until their school days are over.

Road Beautifying Program Planned

MOUNT PLEASANT, Tex.—At a meeting of section foremen, R. E. Sexton, with others interested in beautification work for Division 19, which was held at Atlanta, it was announced that one of four beautification projects from Federal funds will be located on Highway 1 in Titus County.

The other three are located in Harrison, Upshur and Marion Counties.

According to Division Engineer McCarthy, the project will extend the full length of his highway from Mount Pleasant to the Morris County line, and will include two roadside parks, one of which has already been decided to the Highway Department and the other is being negotiated for. Work on this project probably will not begin immediately.

The division, he said, is planning to experiment further "to find out how far we can go in using planes in combatting fires."

Pioneer work in this field has been done by forest service officers, he said, and the next step will be experimenting in dropping

Relief Records Are Last Memento of $20,000,000 Bonds

AUSTIN.—Reams of relief records soon will be, with an exception, the last memento Texas will have of a $20,000,000 philanthropy.

The only permanent expenditure authorized from the "bread bonds" was construction of an addition to the state tubercular sanitarium plant.

An effort was made to permit use of the fund in erecting a state records building with relief labor. Some members of the legislature thought Austin already had a lion's share of relief expenditures and blocked the plan.

The relief records would have gone into this proposed building. Now officials will soon have to worry about what to do with the records. More important records from State Relief Headquarters will be placed in a building in the rear of the State Pasture Hospital. Federal authorities are expected to order their records in the various counties is a puzzle.

Relief is being tapered off but still functioning from state headquarters. Assistance and commodities will continue to go out in May. There may be some aid in June. After that it is hoped that more than 30,000 cases of old age assistance and that there will be other provision for other unemployed. No definite time has been set as a dead line on relief.

Bombs Retard Fire In Forests

WASHINGTON.—A program, featuring the use of airplanes and the development of new ground equipment, will be launched by the forest service of the agricultural department, Roy Headley, chief of the fire control division, announced.

Headley, after his return from a fire control meeting at Spokane, said that "aerial fire control, which is opening up an entirely new field of forest fire combat, is perhaps the most important effort in combatting the menace of fires."

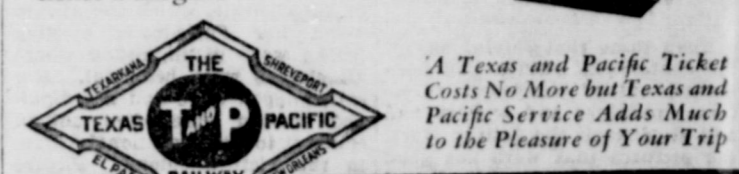

The division, he said, is planning to experiment further "to find out how far we can go in using planes in combatting fires."

Pioneer work in this field has been done by forest service officers, he said, and the next step will be experimenting in dropping water or chemicals direct on small fires to retard their progress. "Merely dropping chemicals on fires cannot solve the whole fire problem, however," Headley continued. "If it ever became practical to carry chemicals in airplanes to drop on fires, it probably would answer most of our present problems. As yet, the conventional type of plane is not adaptable for this work."

Fire forces also are experimenting with dropping bombs on small flames to retard progress of the flames until ground crews arrive at the scene, he said. The bombs retard small fires by smothering the flames when dirt is thrown over them.

"So far, however," Headley continued, "we have found aircraft most valuable for transporting supplies and equipment quickly. Remarkable success has been evident in dropping supplies of ground crews. Such work is great help in fighting fires deep in the 'back country.'"
