Legal Profession Has Own House to Clean

The next time some lawyer gets up to weep in public about the undue publicity which attaches itself to the trials of prominent criminals in this country, someone will have to remind him of the closing flurry of the Bruno Hauptmann case.

The Hauptmann case is by way of becoming the horrible example of modern legal history, because of the "circus atmosphere" which surrounded it from the moment Hauptmann was overtaken by the cops.

Running true to form, it flared up with a new spattering of black headlines just the other day. And this flare-up, you might note, was strictly the work of the legal profession.

Convicted of murder and under sentence of death, Hauptmann hired a new lawyer for himself. This lawyer held a series of conferences with the condemned man, to see whether he could take the case with any chance of success. In the end he decided that he could not, and withdrew.

All right, so far; that sort of thing has happened in hundreds of criminal cases. But note how it came out in this case.

These final conferences between Hauptmann and the new lawyer were accompanied by all the spiritual and emotional effects of a brass band and a sound film. The country at large sat in on them, vicariously.

With remarkably little lost time, it learned what the lawyer had said to Hauptmann, what Hauptmann had said to the lawyer, and what the lawyer thought about it all.

And then, to cap the climax, the lawyer announced publicly that he could not take the case because his talks with Hauptmann convinced him that "Hauptmann is guilty as hell."

Now there is one thing that irritates the august legal profession more than any other, and that is "trying the case in the newspapers." By and large, the bar has spent almost as much energy denouncing the press for this custom as it has expended in collecting its fees.

But what has just happened is an example of this very thing in its most striking form.

If "trial in the newspaper" prejudices a man's case, in the public mind, how must Hauptmann's case be prejudiced now?

To be sure, the man has already been convicted, and the electric chair is not far away. But insofar as he has a chance left; insofar as there still is room for him to put up a fight—does not a performance like this put Hauptmann still farther back of the eight ball?

And this, mind you, was not the work of the press, but of the legal profession itself.

As the fight to evade the electric chair again approaches a crisis Lloyd Fisher, his retiring counsel, reveals that Bruno Hauptmann has taken command of the strategy for the desperado's struggle. Two Court Victories

Principal victories of the New Deal as upheld by the Supreme Court were won on the question of the gold policy and the TVA program.

Many phases of the New Deal program still face final test.

Among these are various provisions of the PWA program, including the right to make loans to municipalities for power purposes, legality of the Guffey Coal Act, set up to replace NRA provisions in the coal industry, legality of PWA slum clearance methods, minor points in connection with monetary policy, the new banking and securities legislation, the utilities control measure, social security and the labor act.

A fair share of these cases, it is believed, are likely to be ruled upon by the high court before the election.

Only One Cabinet Change

Personnel changes in the New Deal have been frequent, although only one cabinet shift has been made and that early in the New Deal regime. This was replacement of William Woodin as secretary of treasury by Henry Morgenthau, Jr.

Among advisors and secondary officials, however, many changes have occurred. Both heads of the original twin recovery agencies—NRA and AAA—have departed.

They were General Johnson and George N. Peek, who remained as head of the Export-Import bank, but finally quit the administration this winter.

Principal changes have occurred in the treasury, where an almost constant succession of appointments and resignations have been made.

Speaking of the mean annual temperature, isn't it, though?

Your Income Tax

AUTOMOBILE DEDUCTIONS

With the number of automobile owners registering in the millions, the question of deductions for the cost of operation and maintenance of a motor car frequently arises. The purchase price of an automobile, whether it is to be used for business or pleasure, cannot be deducted from gross income. If used for business, it is a capital expenditure; if used for pleasure, it is a personal expenditure—both deductions being expressly prohibited by the income tax law.

Several deductions, however, are allowable in connection with the cost of maintenance and operation of an automobile, used either for business or pleasure. If used exclusively for business, deductions may be taken for the cost of gasoline, oil, repairs, garage rent, and other necessary operation and upkeep expense. Depreciation, based on the cost of the car and its estimated useful life, also is deductible.

Other deductible items are as follows: Sums paid during the taxable year for registration fees, drivers' licenses, personal property tax, and municipal taxes; interest on money borrowed for the purchase of a motor car, either for business or for pleasure; loss sustained by reason of damage while car is being used for business, provided such loss is not covered by insurance or otherwise; damages paid for injury to another, provided that the car was being used for business at the time, and the damage was not covered by insurance or otherwise; and the amount paid for insurance on motor vehicles used for business purposes.

CRUISE TO NOWHERE

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 JANE WINTON feels her dreams have come true when she sets out on a three weeks' ocean cruise. Accepted in payment for the salary due her when the magazine for which she works as typist suspended publication.

On board the ship she meets handsome DIRK STROM, expert ski jumper, as pretentious as her self. The two are much attracted to each other. Then a misunderstanding comes between them. Jane is flattered by the attentions of TINO ROSNI, opera singer, and Dirk becomes the frequent escort of NOIRA LANE, famous actress and owner of the Kakulur diamond.

Others among the passengers are SNOWBUSH, a detective; MADAME DOHEMUS, wealthy and eccentric; DUTCH LENZ, and ANNIE JACKSON, blackmailer; KEN MARTIN and LINDA BAYES, floor show entertainer; Nora Lane to turn the Kakulur diamond over to the pursuer. They go to her stateroom to get it and find Madam Jackson, dead from a bullet wound.

Snowbush takes charge of the investigation. Most of the passengers are not aware of the murder, though they know of the theft. They are allowed to go ashore when the boat lands at Nassau. That night, as they are leaving the island behind, a storm comes up.

Jane sees Tino talking to Linda Bayes and apparently threatening her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIX

JANE'S voice made Tino jump back from the rail. "Darling!" he said, in his soothing voice. "You frightened me."

Jane's challenge was direct. "I follow your little act, anyway?" she said.

"You are too observant, my dear!" he countered.

Her eyes were ablaze. "I saw your wrist, and that isn't a nice thing for a man to do to a girl."

"Darling—you American girls! On the continent—"

"I don't care what you do to girls over there, but it's still a quaint way of showing your—"

She hesitated. "Just what was the simple little act, anyway?"

"And what does it mean?"

"Darling," he said again, trying to soothe her. "After we were married you are not going to ask me about all my girls—in the past?" he said.

"This took Jane by surprise. She didn't feel that Linda had been around with Tino; it simply didn't occur to her. "Oh!" she said, and her tone now was much more conciliatory. "I didn't dream—oh, well, you Continentals are a case! And I suppose your artistic temperament accounts for that attitude toward sex."

"Darling," he said, his voice a little pathetic. "You are wrong. My attitude is so wrong. But I can forgive. Tino is full of forgiveness! The fine spirit you show intrigues me! You are like a fighting tigress. I would know you better. But you are too exclusive," she repeated inexorably.

"I'm sorry about this," she said. "But promise me you'll leave Linda and Ken alone. They're so terribly in love; nothing else matters. Let her keep all her secret from Ken. Why do you threaten her?"

Tino said, "I wanted to find out if she was in the know on that crime. I saw her talking to a Dutch Lenz."

JANE threw up her hands. "Now, I've done nothing but meddle in an affair which was no

Funeral services for Charles J. LeClaire, who died Wednesday of last week were held at the Church of Christ in Eastland Thursday afternoon, Feb. 27. The church was filled to capacity by friends and loved ones and a beautiful service was conducted by Rev. Bills, pastor of Eastland Church of Christ. Interment was in the Eastland cemetery. Mr. LeClaire who lived most of his lifetime in Olden county was born in Llano in 1880. He lived in Olden a number of years before being transferred to Electra by the Magnolia Petroleum company. Prior to his connection with the oil company, he was a school teacher in this county. To those of us who know and love him, he needs no eulogy. He wrote his own obituary with his energy and using his time and helping those who were less fortunate. During the trying winter before there was any WPA, RFC or any other federal relief, it was this writer's privilege to work with him in community chest work, to learn the patience, the effort, the earnest desire to help that was in his heart for his fellow man. He is endeared to us all as a neighbor and friend. A neighbor who knew the meaning of neighborliness and a man who rated the name of friend.

Mr. LeClaire leaves a widow, two sons and two daughters as well as four grand children and several brothers and sisters to mourn his passing. Mrs. LeClaire, a son, J. D., and daughter, Billie and another daughter, Mrs. Faye Russell and two grand children, Joyce Ray and Earl Russell live in Electra. Another son, Claude LeClaire and wife and two children, Eula May and Christine live in Corpus Christi. A host of friends here, in Electra and throughout this county join his relatives in grieving at his death.

Leuders Field Gets No. 1 Rotary Drift Test
ABILENE.—First rotary-drilled test in the new Leuders field will probably be spudded this week as the Lesh & McCall No. 1 J. W. Jennings, in the northwest quarter of section 207, BBB&C survey, three miles northwest of Leuders.

It will be a test for both the Hope and King sand horizons, located northeast of the City of Stamford reservoir well producing from the Hope at 1,937 feet.

Bridwell & Fikes No. 1-B Jennings, in the southwest quarter of the same section, was underreaming six-inch pipe at 1,704 feet, about 30 feet of bottom of the hole. It is the first test to be drilled immediately east of the King sand production discovered last summer.

Bridwell & Fikes No. 3 J. W. Jennings in the southeast quarter of section 207, was drilling at 690 feet.

New Yorker jailed for stealing a bathtub to buy liquor. To many people, since prohibition, liquor doesn't taste right unless mixed in the bathtub.

Better Coffee Electrically

There is a difference in coffee made in an electric percolator or an electric coffee maker. The steady and regulated heat from the heating element takes all of the flavor and aromatic oils from the coffee grounds—none of the bitterness. See the percolators and coffee makers at our store.
