Imagine A Costly War Over a Dismal Land!

Just as if trouble already did not have enough spots to light on, Josef Stalin tells Roy Howard that Soviet Russia will most assuredly go to war if the Japanese make a pass at the far-off and little-known republic of outer Mongolia.

Experts of the Alexander Hamilton Institute surveyed the Mongolian question recently and concluded that for Russia and Japan to fight over Mongolia would be the essence of triple-distilled foolishness.

First, for Russia. It has virtually no trade with Mongolia. And although Mongolia has rich natural resources and offers much room for colonists, Russia—lord of the world's acres—has more than enough of that sort of thing to keep her busy at home.

She is devoting every effort to development and colonization of land she already owns. She simply has not the money, the energy, nor the people to spare for development of Mongolia, and won't have them for years to come.

The latter have bitten off a huge chunk in Manchukuo. Even now, Tokio financiers are beginning to wonder if they can find the money necessary to finance Manchukuo's continued development. If Mongolia fell right in Japan's lap, it would be many years before the Japanese could do anything with it.

Furthermore, Mongolia is not suitable for Japanese colonization, and its population is so scanty and poor that it offers no market whatever for Japanese manufactured goods.

What this all boils down to is that Mongolia is not worth, to either Russia or Japan, a fiftieth part of what it would cost to fight for it. And yet both nations are ready to fight, their border patrols are tossing stray bricks at each other, and the smallest accident may set off a war.

Surely, if there is any glimmering of ordinary sanity in either Moscow or Tokio, this far eastern war can be averted. If a situation like this can set the world ablaze, then the world has hardly enough good sense to be worth saving.

Buyers arrive from Portugal with orders for machinery to use in making cabinets. We could understand it if they were from France.

Success In Cake Baking

Knowing that baking powder is natural to a cake it is natural to assume that adding an extra half spoon to the amount specified in the recipe will give a cake greater volume. However, that is not the best plan to follow. The amount recommended in your baking powder can. Because of the increased efficiency of KC and some other bakers' powders in use today, representing about 80 per cent of the amount consumed, they should be used properly to insure successful baking.

The following rules will be helpful in bringing about desired results:

1. Always use the amount specified on your baking powder.
2. This proportion has been worked out as best for that particular type. With KC, one level teaspoonful to a cup of sifted flour is sufficient for most recipes.

Second, measure carefully—remember that an excess amount of any baking powder does not produce best results. A level teaspoonful means that you must level off with a knife.

KC Baking Powder, the brand used in the cooking school, is one of the most economical and efficient products entering the kitchen. Properly used it will produce for you the finest of baked goods. You will be convinced of this by giving it a fair trial and observing results obtained.

You can get additional helpful information and a number of practical, tested recipes by sending for the KC Cook's Book. A copy will be mailed, postage paid, if you will send your request together with the slip taken from a can of KC Baking Powder, to Jacques

Furniture Dealers To Have Instruction At A.&M. College

COLLEGE STATION, Texas.—Establishment of an annual short course at Texas A. & M. College for retail furniture dealers, the first to be held in June, has been announced by Prof. J. Wheeler Barger, head of the department of agriculture economics, marketing and finance.

The department will sponsor the short course in co-operation with the Retail Furniture Dealers Association of Texas.

The purpose of the short course, Prof. Barger said, will be to give retail furniture dealers and clerks, especially those in smaller cities, an insight into the design and manufacture of their products.

Subjects to be included in the course will be furniture designing, manufacturing and finishing, upholstery, fabrics, woods and metals used in furniture construction, interior decorating and furniture store management and display.

H. E. Dill, of Dallas, and R. Don Herrod, of Houston, members of an association committee, met with Prof. Barger recently to discuss details of the short course program.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

THE custom of eating hot cross buns (I hope you follow it) originated before Mother Goose ever wrote about them. In very ancient days buns, if properly made, were supposed to keep for years. They probably took the place of a pagan sweetmeat served in honor of Eostre, a Saxon goddess of fertility whose feast was celebrated in the spring. The sign of the cross on the bun proclaimed it a Christian cake. Often the housewife put the sign of the cross on her bread to prevent the evil spirit from interfering with her baking. As Good Friday was considered the most unlucky day of the year, she naturally took every precaution to guard against evil influences.

Because hot cross buns are made with yeast there are, of course, two good methods—the long process and the short one.

Short Process

One cup milk, 1 yeast cake, 1-4 cup lukewarm water, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 cup butter, 1 egg, 1-2 cup currants.

Scald milk and cool to lukewarm temperature. Dissolve yeast cake in lukewarm water and add to milk. Add sugar, salt, cinnamon and egg well beaten. Add flour, currants, and softened butter and work until thoroughly blended. Knead to a smooth dough and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. The temperature of this rising should be between 70 and 80 degrees F. It should take about one hour. Pinch off small pieces and shape in tiny balls. With a sharp knife cut two deep gashes, making a cross, on the top of each. Place in a buttered pan about an inch apart and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk. Bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (375 degrees F.) Brush over with a syrup made by boiling 1-4 cup sugar with 2 tablespoons water for one minute.

Tomorrow's Menu

DINNER: Corned beef with horseradish sauce, steamed potatoes, browned parsnips, cold slaw, cherry pie, milk, coffee.

Long Process

One and one-half cups milk, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, 4 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 yeast cake, 1 tablespoon lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 egg, 1-2 cup currants, flour.

Scald milk and add butter, salt and sugar. When lukewarm, add yeast cake dissolved in water. Add 2 1-2 cups flour mixed and sifted with cinnamon. Beat hard and add egg well beaten. Mix thoroughly and add currants and flour to knead, from 1-2 to 1 cup more. Knead until elastic and put into a large mixing bowl. Cover with a cloth and let rise in a warm place (not as warm as for short process, however) over night. In the morning, shape as in preceding recipe. Let rise in a warm place for thirty minutes. Bake in a hot oven for twenty-five minutes. Brush over with syrup when taken from the oven.

Planning Board Ends First Year

AUSTIN.—The Texas Planning Board has had its first birthday, according to W. M. Massie, chairman. "Gov. James V. Allred signed the bill creating the Texas Planning Board on March 16, 1935. Since that time the board has adopted the following nine-point program for the utilization of all the resources of Texas, and for the improvement of the social and economic condition of Texas citizens:

- (a) Improvement of the public health throughout the state.
- (b) Determination of a sound land use policy.
- (c) Conservation and proper utilization of the surface and underground water resources.
- (d) Determination of the state's mineral resources and the rational use of these by industry.
- (e) Preparation of a reforestation policy for the timber producing areas.
- (f) A study of the transportation facilities.
- (g) A comprehensive industrial survey and the encouragement of the general industrial development of the state.

(h) Further improvement of the educational system.

(i) Suggested improvements for government and social aspects.

"Accomplishments to date," continued Mr. Massie, "are approval of state-wide Works Progress Administration projects amounting to $36,029,498, estimated to employ 57,890 Texas citizens; removal of regional offices of Re-settlement Administration from Oklahoma to Texas; approval of $5,900,000 Texas army program; preparation of proposed laws governing the grading of milk, the revision of taxes on forest lands, and the creation of mosquito control districts; focusing attention on the prevention of disease; encouraging the use of all the natural resources, including climate, scenery, forests, minerals, game, and marine life; the preparation of many maps, charts, reports; and the gathering of a large amount of useful data.

"For the amount of work that has been done, the expense to Texas citizens has been relatively small," said Mr. Massie, "since the cost of The Texas Planning Board has amounted to only $28,439.18."

The Texas Planning Board is assisted by 10 committees as follows: public health, land use, water resources, mineral resources, reforestation, transportation, industrial, educational, government and social aspects, and mapping committees. Each one, excepting the mapping committee, has a member of the Texas Planning Board as chairman, and remaining members have been selected from among the ranks of Texas business and professional men and women. Membership of these committees varies from five to 17, and represents every section of the state.

"Committees are assisted by the Planning Board staff," concluded Mr. Massie, "through the collection of needed information and the preparation of maps, charts, tables, and graphs. Committee meetings are usually held once a month, and a high degree of interest is maintained. None of the committees have power to act, purely advisory, and all approved must be referred to the Texas Planning Board for creation and approval before coming official."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

TOBY HAN, 18, works behind the jewelry counter of a large Manhattan department store. He has a photograph to be used in a store advertisement and needs a "camera face."

He goes to dinner with BILL HARRIET, who works in an advertising agency.

Two days later Toby loses her job, due to the scheming of jealous MARY HARRIET, who also works in the jewelry department. Toby's efforts to find another job are fruitless. Then she meets MARY HARRIET and she sends her to BILL HARRIET, who tells her she must have photographs in order to register as a model and arrange for Bill to take them.

After several anxious days, the model agency sends Toby to Bill that they have an assignment for her. She goes to the office, is told she must wear a white evening dress. Toby has none, so she goes on with the story.

CHAPTER XII

The girl at the desk looked thoughtful. "Maybe," she said after a moment, "you could borrow a dress."

Toby knew she couldn't. In all New York there was no one from whom she could borrow a white evening dress. And she couldn't possibly buy one. Her purse contained less than $10. She was going to lose the chance she had dreamed of, the chance she had prayed for—because she didn't have a white evening dress. She said, trying to hide her disappointment, "I'll—I'll see."

And then the amazing thing happened. The girl in the gray fur coat had been standing with her back toward the other two. She turned now. "Listen, Sally," she said. "I've got a dress she is, but we're about the same size otherwise."

"Oh—would you!" Toby's voice was eager.

"You'll probably have to turn up the hem," the girl in the fur coat went on, "but that's easy. I've got slippers to match—I think they'll fit you. What size do you wear?"

"Four-8."

"Then that's all right. Mine are four-8, but nobody will know the difference."

The girl called Sally said, with some uncertainty, "If you're sure the dress will be all right, Harriet—"

"Of course it will be all right! It's the one I wore for those movie camera ads a couple of weeks ago. Don't you remember? It's white satin—with sort of a square neckline and a couple of rhinestone clips—"

Sally suddenly she looked at her wrist watch. "Heavens! I've got to run or I'll be late." Turning to Toby, she said, "I'm going to be working for about three hours, but after that I'll be home. Can you come over to my apartment—say about 5 o'clock? You can try on the dress and if it needs to be taken in or anything there'll be time to fix it."

Sally gave Toby the address. "I'm not there," she finished, "wait for me."

"I'll wait," Toby promised. "I don't know how to thank you—"

"Oh, you can do something for me some time," the other said sally. "See you later. Goodbye, Sally." The door closed on the words.

Toby said, "That's terribly nice of her. Why, she'd never even seen me until this morning!"

"Harriet's a good scout," the girl at the desk said. "Let's see—did I tell you the time you're to be at the studio—?"

THE house in which Harriet Holm lived was in a row of houses, all much alike, on an east side street boasting, to left and right, much more pretentious dwellings. Toby had no difficulty finding the address. She arrived a few minutes after 5, expecting that Harriet would be late. But she was mistaken; the door buzzed, releasing the lock, almost immediately after Toby pressed the bell.

She went inside, climbed the first flight of stairs. Then, from above, a head appeared over the banister and a voice called, "I hope you don't mind climbing! It's the top floor—"

Toby went up two more flights. Harriet Holm, clad in a becoming blue negligee, met her at the top step. "Those steps are terrible," she said. "I've climbed them myself so often I'm beginning to feel like a mountain goat! But I keep the place because it's rather nice, once you get up here—"

It was rather nice. The apartment was a huge room across the front of the house with three windows looking down on the street. Pale yellow draperies had been drawn back so that none of the afternoon light was lost. There were book shelves, well filled, in the space between the windows. On one side a dark green davenport faced a coffee table on which was a copper tray and vermilion coffee set. In the center of the opposite wall a piece of Chinese embroidery hung. Low, comfortable chairs stood before the windows and a leather footstool was pushed against the wall. There were splashes of color—dall blue, gold, sea green, and henna—in cushions and pictures and bits of pottery.

Toby said, "How lovely!"

"Like the place?" Harriet asked. "Here—let me take your coat. Sit down and make yourself comfortable. You need a rest after that climb—"

But Toby, instead, went to the window and looked out.

"It's the nicest room I've ever been in," she said. "How you must love it here!"

"I do like it," Harriet admitted. "I spent more furnishing the place than I should have, but, thank goodness, it's paid now. Well, I suppose you want to see that dress—"

SHE crossed the room and opened a door. "Here's another reason why I like this place. It's so hard to find an apartment with closet space."

Toby, following, let out a low exclamation. The door opened on a closet that was almost another room. Hanging on bars, closely packed together, were rows and rows of dresses, suits, coats.

"Are they all yours?" Toby exclaimed. "All these dresses?"

Harriet stepped into the closet, emerged with a white dress over her arm. "Yes," she said. "You'll find you have to have a lot of clothes if you do much modeling. The best-looking clothes I have are from fashion shows. After dresses have been worn in a show they usually let the models buy them for half price. That's how I got this white one—regular $39.50 and it cost me $19.75."

and those who go hunting should never kill or destroy robins, because they make their living by helping others, making their lives a blessing to the world. They eat worms and insects that harm and destroy farmers' crops, gardens, and fruits. One robin will eat thousands of insects in one year's time and what little corn grain or fruit the robin eats will not be missed.

Just think what a miserable place this world would be if all the

She held the dress up before her. "What do you think of it?"

"It's beautiful! But do you think it will fit me?"

"Easy enough to find out," Harriet said. "Try it on."

Off came Toby's own dress, and over her head went the soft folds of satin. Harriet snapped the fasteners, stepped back and eyed the other girl critically. "Well," she said, "you can see for yourself. There's a mirror—"

Toby moved to the mirror, stared at the image reflected. "Oh!" she said, and then again, "Oh!" She couldn't believe, for an instant, that the girl in the mirror was herself.

Harriet said softly, "I'll have to sell it to you, Toby. After seeing you in that dress I'd never have the nerve to wear it again myself. It was made for you! Of course it will have to be turned up about an inch, but that's easy. Wait, I'll get the slippers—"

AN hour later Toby departed, carrying the borrowed evening dress and slippers in a pasteboard box. One hand on the door, she halted. Toby said earnestly, "I'll never forget what you've done for me."

"Well," said the other girl, "if that's true it'll be a record—in this town. But I'm glad we happened to meet this morning, Toby. There's something about you—I don't know what it is—but I think we're going to be friends."

"I hope so!"

Toby said goodbye then and hurried down the stairs. She had 25 minutes to reach the studio and Harriet had told her it was important, never, under any circumstances, to be late.

She worked until midnight that night and earned $17.50. Two days later she spent a morning posing as a housewife making a bed. One afternoon she worked for three hours while a photographer made picture after picture of her feet, clad in smart footwear. At the end of the week Toby's earnings had mounted to $46.30—more than three times what she had earned at Berneman's.

She paid part of her registration fee at the Models' League, bought herself a pair of black pumps and paid Harriet Holm $10 of the $15 they had agreed upon as the price for the white satin dress. She still had more than her old salary left.

It was almost Toby told herself, as though she had stepped into a new world. She felt that she had been going about with her eyes closed. There were so many new things in this strange world—new people, new places, new things to do and to think about. She met other models, photographers, artists, advertising salesmen, art directors. She caught glimpses of the workings of that most complicated of modern businesses, advertising.

It was all absorbing, exciting. Toby worked hard and enjoyed it. Her eyes sparkled more gaily; her smile was brighter. Each morning she woke eager to see what the day would bring. At night she dropped into bed, tired but content in the knowledge of a day's work done.

And then—just when Toby felt that she had never been so happy—something happened that changed everything.

The Meadow Lark and My Bird
By Cathleen Conet

The meadow lark likes to live in the meadow. He looks something like a flicker if seen apart, but the meadow lark has a white spot on his tail feathers and the flicker hasn't. The meadow lark builds its nest on the ground. The nest is made of grass and sticks and is arched over with grass. That is why it is hard for the hawk to see it. This bird eats many worms which destroy the grass and also eats many grasshoppers, cut worms and army worms.

I have a little bird named Mack. He makes me up every morning singing. I like him because he tries to talk to me. I feed him every day and he is most always as fat as a mud ball. When he hears other birds outside singing he stops when they come around you can

WASHINGTON IN PERIL

The preliminary overflow from the historic Potomac presaging record highwater when the crest of the flood reaches the capital, Washington, D. C., worked frantically to build a levee to hold the torrent in check. In the distance, across the already overflowing tidal basin, stands Washington Monument, in the vicinity of which sand-bagging efforts were concentrated.

Spiritual Service
Held by Methodists
The "Retreat," a special service conducted Sunday afternoon at 7:30 in Methodist church had a large attendance with Rev. E. R. Stanford, the pastor, presiding. This spiritual meeting was given to questionnaires to christians with the spirit of these illustrated at times by a verse from a hymn, sung by Mrs. Grady Pipkin.

These exemplify in a measure the service, the hymns being "Take Time to Be Holy," "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and others that developed the thought in hand.
The service was a refreshing one, and appreciated by those attending.

Mrs. Charles W. Estes Leads Bethany Lesson
In the absence of other officers, the Bethany class of Presbyterian church had their Sunday morning session opened by their class teacher, Mrs. Charles W. Estes, with the current lesson, "Jesus Teaches Values," from Luke 12, 22-34.
The round table discussion was taken part in by Meses. Robert M. Tierce, C. W. Mayo, H. E. Craven.

A TREAT WHICH YOU

SHOULD NOT MISS . .

THE KITCHEN CHAUTAUQUA

Now and again some particularly fine feature or program of entertainment is available to you. It may be a lecture or a play, an Uncle Tom's Cabin show or grand opera.

One of the finest of such programs—and a feature that comes for your enjoyment but once a year—is the KITCHEN CHAUTAUQUA. The Kitchen Chautauqua is a cooking school—but what a cooking school.

Whether you're a bride of a month or a grandmother, you'll enjoy these sparkling programs with the age-old theme of cookery. There are many short cuts and many roads leading to culinary success and perfection—the Kitchen Chautauqua gathers them all up and shows them to you, right before your very eyes.

Every recipe and every kitchen suggestion that has a part in this cooking school—the theme of which is "the happy kitchen"—has been tried and tested by a whole staff of practical housewives. Don't come expecting to see nothing but a batch of party dishes—they'll have their part, of course, but the main things you'll see and hear at the Kitchen Chautauqua will be the simple, easy, little workaday hints and time savers that make cooking a REAL pleasure. And without these hints and time-savers, your three-a-day are likely to become a drudge.

Cooking can so easily be turned into romance—the thrill of discovery and the satisfaction of seeing a thing well done. Attend the Kitchen Chautauqua—then try the frying-pan recipe on the family's grouches!
