ELLSWORTH AND CO-PILOT ARE FOUND ALIVE

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Lincoln Ellsworth and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, saved from the trackless Antarctic wastes after being marooned nearly two months on the Bay of Whales, were safe and well today aboard the rescue ship Discovery II.

The rescue of Ellsworth, American explorer who set out with his Canadian pilot from Dundee, N. Z., to fly across the Antarctic, was described in a terse message from Discovery II today recording in a few words one of the most thrilling episodes of polar exploration.

Hollick-Kenyon was taken aboard by a searching party early yesterday, having advanced from the camp at Little America to meet the rescuers. Ellsworth, suffering from a slight cold, remained behind.

Another party was sent out and took him aboard the ship last night. The message from Discovery II said:

"Chip's party with sledges returned with Ellsworth Jan. 16, at 4:37 p. m., E. S. T."

There was nothing further, but previous messages indicated both men were in excellent condition. The explorers were forced down on the ice barriers 20 miles short of Little America, where they ran out of fuel. They made their way by dog team to Admiral Byrd's base, where there was equipment and provisions. Transmitter trouble silenced the wireless of their plane.

Two Stills Found North of Eastland

Concealed by trees and situated on banks of a creek eight miles northwest of Eastland, two stills were discovered by the sheriff's department Thursday.

Making the raid were Sheriff Virge Foster, Deputy E. L. Woods, Constable Marion Seabourne and a former city police officer of Eastland county.

HOFFMAN TELLS WHY HE GAVE BRUNO DELAY

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 17.—Gov. Harold Hoffman issued a statement today justifying his reprieve for Bruno Hauptmann and saying he doubted the crime could have been committed by any one man.

In the face of much opposition in New Jersey to his last-minute action saving Hauptmann from execution tonight and demands from some quarters for his impeachment, he sought to explain his action to the people.

Earlier in the day he signed the official reprieve papers—one copy for Hauptmann and one for Col. Mark Kimberling, principal keeper of the state prison.

In explaining why he reprieved Hauptmann he said he questioned the truthfulness and mental competency of several chief prosecution witnesses and promised to bend every effort toward "calmly" considering some of the "baffling" phases of the crime and the subsequent trial of Hauptmann.

COLD WAVE IS HEADED SOUTH TOWARD TEXAS

RISING STAR, Jan. 17.—A little more than $25,000 worth of peanuts were marketed here during the week closing Saturday night, which is probably the greatest receipts for a single week in the history of local peanut production.

Most of the nuts brought from 70 to 75 cents per bushel, with some selling the latter part of the week as low as 65 cents.

The ruling of the supreme court on the AAA is given as the cause for the release of the peanuts. Most of the farmers had been holding back with the hope of getting around one dollar per bushel through co-operation of the government.

Four hundred and twenty-five tons, or nearly one million bushels of the peanuts were bought by the Panters Gin here for an oil mill which is to make a test run of some 2,000 tons by crushing for the oil. As pointed out by H. B. House, manager of the gin here, this is entirely experimental, but if it is found to be profitable thousands of tons of peanuts will be diverted each year for this purpose, and will put the oil mills in direct competition with the peanut

$25,000 In Peanuts Marketed During Week at Rising Star; AAA Ruling Is Believed Cause of Release of Nuts

RISING STAR, Jan. 17.—A shellers for the crop. Heretofore the only market has been to the shellers and too often the supply was greater than the demand making for lower prices and a glutted market.

In checking his figures Monday Mr. House found that he had bought 425 tons up to Saturday night, or 8,530,000 bushels, and had paid out $19,300 in cash for them. Other buyers here, buying for the shellers took in some $6,000 worth during the week, but taking only the very best grades, turning the total receipts for the week over $25,000.

It is estimated that about half the local crop was sold before the fall rains, most of it bringing above 90 cents per bushel. All the early part of the crop was bought by shellers and practically all sold was high grade. A great deal of the peanuts held over were damaged by wet weather, and had not the oil mills come into the picture no doubt would have been a drug on the market. It is hard to estimate just how many peanuts are left in the country, but it is thought that the big majority was disposed of the past week.

Munitions Committee Split Is Expected

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A wide-open split in the senate munitions committee today threatened collapse of the two-year-old inquiry into international arms traffic.

ALLRED STILL UNDECIDED ON EXTRA SESSION

AUSTIN, Jan. 17.—Gov. James Allred still undecided about a third special session of the Texas legislature, today was beginning to reach some conclusions. They are, to date:

A special session will be needed sometime in 1936.

There will be enough money in the old age assistance fund without new legislation to begin making payments as soon as it is possible physically, to prepare the pension rolls.

No session will be held during the normal political campaign.

Reasons for delaying the session were summarized by the governor in discussion with newspapermen today. One is a possibility that congress at its present session may change the provisions of the national security act. If the federal law is changed Texas law may need to be revised to get the maximum federal benefits.

MAVERICKS TO VISIT RANGER THIS EVENING

Three basket ball games will be played in the Ranger Recreation building tonight when the Eastland Mavericks and the Ranger Bulldogs meet in the first ever encounter between the two schools this season.

The first game will be between the Ranger Junior college quintet and the basket ball team from Hillsboro Junior college, which is scheduled to start promptly at 7:15. The Bulldog-Maverick game will follow immediately after the junior college contest and the Ranger High school girls will play the Alameda girls in the final contest of the evening. The doors will be opened at 6:45.

Indications are that the Ranger-Eastland affair will be one long remembered by both schools, as the two teams have played about the same brand of basket ball all season.

The Mavericks have lost two close games to Carbon, while the Bulldogs have lost once to the same team by almost an identical score. The Mavericks have defeated Rising Star, as have the Bulldogs, while the Breckenridge Buckaroos have defeated both teams this week, the Mavericks losing their game by one point while the Buckaroos had a two-point lead over the Bulldogs at the close of their game Thursday evening.

Although there is to be a junior college, high school and girls' game played tonight there is to be no advance in admission prices, 10 cents being charged for students and 25 cents for adults.

DEBATE STARTS ON BONUS IN UPPER HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Debate on the compromise soldier bonus bill began in the senate today with predictions it would be finally enacted into law "whether the president vetoes it or not."

Chairman Pat Harrison of the senate finance committee, sponsor of the "baby bond" measure, in effect defied a white house veto when he opened debate with the statement:

"I don't know whether the president will sign this bill or not. He has made no statement to anyone.

"But I say to you that whether it is signed or not it will become law because it is the best possible way to get out of this situation and because it is easier and lighter on the government."

Harrison, staunch administration supporter, did not say he would vote to override a veto, but indicated confidence there were enough votes to enact the measure regardless of the white house position.

World Should Agree To End War's Causes

If you have been indignant because the British and the French took to dealing from the bottom of the deck in the present League of Nations game of dealer's choice, it might pay you to think this matter of sanctions through to its logical conclusion.

In its fumbling way, the world has accidentally got hold of a weapon that could literally abolish war, if used properly. Get all the nations of the world together in a program of sanctions and you have an absolutely irresistible force—provided of course, that a Laval or a Hoare doesn't double-cross the whole crowd at the last minute.

But while the ending of war is one of the most tremendous booms which the human mind can imagine, it isn't the whole story.

If the world is going to club together to abolish war, it must also do something about removing the things that make people want to go to war. If it doesn't, its League of Nations would be only a new device for making injustice enduring.

People who get out in the street and whoop it up for war don't do so out of pure cussedness. Underneath the surface enthusiasm there is always a desire to get out from under something that can't be carried any longer. Horrible as it is, there can be times when war looks to be the only escape from an unendurable situation.

The most warlike nations today seem to be Italy, Germany, and Japan. Is this because the Italians, the Germans, and the Japanese are ogres, who delight in bloodshed and like nothing better than to drop bombs on nurseries and hospitals? Not at all. They are ordinary human beings like ourselves who are simply so far back of the eight ball that they are willing to suffer anything to get out.

These people, who are either fighting or preparing to fight, are doing so because they need a break. They need raw materials, or markets for their manufactured goods; if they don't get them, they are doomed to suffer progressively increasing economic depression. Naturally, they would rather fight.

If the world proceeds to make fighting impossible, it obviously must do something to meet such needs. In other words, it must make raw materials and markets easier of access to all. It must change its ideas on things like tariffs and colonies and "spheres of influence."

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—Along with its other troubles, the administration must almost certainly face a battle over relief at this session of Congress.

Its program apparently isn't meeting the problem. Surveys by the American Conference of Mayors, the International City Managers' Association, and national welfare groups all show that the plan to put the "employables" on WPA work relief and the "unemployables" on local direct relief without federal aid just isn't working out.

About a million "employables" haven't been covered by WPA, although that federal agency has about reached its quota of 3,500,000 put at work. It is estimated by Paul V. Betters, secretary of the mayors' organization, on the basis of partial results of a survey covering 188 cities and 48 states.

That would mean a load of from three to four million men, women, and children on community direct-relief facilities which was not contemplated in Roosevelt's work-relief program.

Nearly all city officials insist they can't handle that added load. A few say they can get by if the federal government will do its promised part. Others say they can't handle their "unemployables" even if WPA does take over the rest.

Few realize it, but the $1,082,000,000 allotted to WPA will be about gone by April and Harry Hopkins will need about half a billion more if the program is to carry through the fiscal year to July.

Some or all of this may be snatched from other allotments from the $4,000,000,000 work-relief fund. Meanwhile, WPA has no intention of expanding its program to take in the "uncovered" employables.

Like many of the Community Chests at this time, it figures its money will run out all too soon. Anyway, there's no other explanation of why it insists on counting in 500,000 CCC workers among its 3,500,000 instead of adding another half-million of bona fide employables now on relief.

Another year of WPA, employing 3,500,000, would cost about two billion dollars. The demand for further federal aid, both for the present fiscal year and next, may be effective enough to spoil Roosevelt's budget dreams even more than the AAA ruling did.

NOTES while gazing in great fascination at Mr. J. P. Morgan before the Senate Munitions Committee: Still reminding you of a great big nice old papa bear.

Mr. Morgan—his large bald dome fringed with gray, his black bushy eyebrows and his hook pipe—seems to be having fun as his huge frame shakes in frequent chortles.

He has an almost English accent. . . . Partner Tom Lamont, impeccably dressed, with what looks like an honest Irish face, and quick to explain everything in the most innocent possible way. . . . Partner George Whitney, always managing to look elegantly bored even when tense. . . . Partner Russell Leffingwell, tucked away behind marble pillars with the Morgan lawyer, John W. Davis, who presumably avoids the spotlight lest his many cases against New Deal laws be tied in too closely (in popular imagination) to his Morgan connection. . . . Great host of Morgan partners, clerks, lawyers, bodyguards (six), and other retainers. Also one spots six Secret Service men and a couple of "G-men."

Canada's Hangman Calls Rope More Cruel Than Chair

HAMILTON, Ont.—Hangman Arthur Ellis, Canada's busiest executioner, is opposed to the gallows as a means of carrying out capital punishment.

Ellis' views were revealed in a letter received by Sheriff J. W. Lawrason in which Ellis commended the sheriff on his stand in favor of the electric chair or lethal gas chamber as a means of execution in Canada.

Sheriff Lawrason proposed at a meeting of Ontario sheriffs in Toronto recently that the scaffold should be replaced by more humane methods of execution.

MONOPOLIES

are few in golf and have become rarer with time and growth of the game since Willie Park, Sr. and the Morrises held sway in the early years of the British Open—the '60s and '70s.

Robert Tyre Jones II came close to having a strangle-hold on everything in sight for eight years, and actually did bottle up the entire works with his grand slam of 1930.

Walter Hazen copped both the British Open and P. G. A. in 1924, made it four in a row in the P. G. A., and topped it off with victories in the British Opens of 1928 and 1929.

The job of taking the long end in the Los Angeles Open. When Smith quit the rolling terrain of Lakeville, Sarazen quit Fresh Meadow for the veteran Scotsman's golf house on the north rim of Long Island. Lakeville liked Sarazen and Sarazen liked Lakeville. The Italian also was fond of the Miami Open. Gene began winning it immediately and has succeeded in continuing the practice virtually uninterrupted.

Sarazen hasn't rolled along with his old valor since the Masters' Tournament of last April, when he did the seemingly impossible in holing out his 230-yard brassie second on the 15th of the Augusta course.

Sarazen's game around the greens has developed some serious lesions.

In the Miami Biltmore Open, the stocky squire of Connecticut took three and often four strokes from within 35 and 40 yards of the stick. Often he went to three from the edge of the carpet.

Miami Open Tonic to Sarazen

That isn't Sarazen golf and many wise ones are telling themselves and others that the Italian is in for a licking in his favorite tournament. Talk of this kind has been heard before.

There have been times when Sarazen's golf seems about to fall apart at the joints. But always the barrel-chested agrarian plodded back to bag the Miami Open and stick out a Puckish tongue at the regular singers.

Gene Loses Magic Around the Greens

There are more aspects to his peculiar combination in restraint of prize money than appear on the surface. When Smith started winning the Los Angeles Open as an every spring job, he was the professional at the Lakeville Club on Long Island. Smith didn't leave.

Mrs. J. E. Derrick and daughter, Mrs. Cyle McEntire and baby, returned on Tuesday night of last week from Kilgore, where they had been visiting for a week with Mrs. Donald Howell (daughter of Mrs. Derrick), and her family.

Mrs. Annie Daniel, who had gone as far as Fort Worth with them and had visited her sister, Mrs. M. R. Turner, came home with them.

Rev. W. M. Ford of Lawton, Okla., came down Friday and on Saturday Mrs. Ford, who had been visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Henry, and their new baby, went home with him.

The Methodist Missionary Society met Monday afternoon at the church. The president, Mrs. Charles Lee, called the meeting to order and Mrs. C. O. Bragg, secretary pro tem, called the roll and members responded with answers to questions on the Book of Leviticus. A short business session was held in which plans were made for selling vanilla in order to have some money in the local treasury.

Mrs. W. H. Whitworth, superintendent of study, then took charge of the meeting and conducted a very interesting Bible study with "Prophecy of Israel" as the commentary on the study. The prophet, Ezekiel, was the subject of the study and much valuable information gained by the study. Those taking part in the study were: Mmes. E. M. Daily, Charles Lee, G. S. Bruce, Preston Sparks, C. O. Bragg, W. C. Bedford, and the leader, Mrs. Whitworth. The members regretted very much the absence of two of the most faithful members, Mrs. S. E. Snoddy and Miss Mollie O'Rear, both of whom were ill.

Wills Mathis, J. H. Rushing Jr., and W. C. Bedford were business visitors at Gorman Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Jackson went over to Gorman Monday to be with her niece, Mrs. Frank Ballard, of Brownwood, who was seriously ill at the Blackwell sanitarium. Mr. and Mrs. Ballard formerly lived here and their many friends hope she may soon recover.

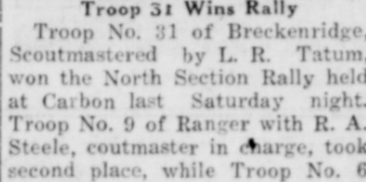

A large number of members of the Church of God from Strawn, Ranger, Breckenridge and other places were here Sunday attending an all-day fellowship meeting held at the church here, of which Mrs. Earl Alexander is pastor. Besides good sermons and talks, there were many good singers present and quite a number who played different instruments. Three Jones brothers from near Lingleville were present and added much to the program by playing the violin, mandolin and guitar. The meeting was considered quite a success in day morning for Robstown to make their home. Mr. and Mrs. Jones also visited his mother, Mrs. Eula Jones.

W. H. Whitworth was a visitor in Eastland Monday. Born Saturday, Jan. 11, 1936, to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sparkman, a nine-pound girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Lee Anderson and their sister, Miss Pauline Moore, drove over to Gorman Monday night.

Bridegroom Forgets He's On Probation

By United Press
NEW BEDFORD, Mass. — It took a 2,500-mile trip to jog Peter Messinger's memory.

Messinger failed to report once a month to the federal probatio department here, so they sent an officer to Great Falls, Mont., where he had made his home.

Messinger was found in the west and returned here. The court asked why he had violated his probation. His answer was that he was married on "fob" to Montana and "forgot" to keep his terms.

Local Firm Aiding In Scrapping Cars

How the Chevrolet Motor Company is cooperating in the war for traffic safety by staging a $1,000,000 old car scrapping program was described today by O. E. Harvey of the Harvey Chevrolet Company, upon his return from an all-day meeting at Dallas, Texas, conducted by H. C. Howard, Zone Manager of the Dallas Zone.

"Chevrolet's old car disposal program," said Harvey, "is by far the most aggressive thing of its kind undertaken to date. For a limited time, under the Chevrolet plan, dealers will be reimbursed at a fair figure for every dangerously old motor vehicle taken in trade and scrapped. Since the program is in effect throughout the whole country, a tremendous reduction in the number of such cars on the highways is certain to result.

Besides providing for the scrapping of outworn automobiles, the Chevrolet plan has a cooperative feature whereby the factory and the dealer set up a fund for salesmen who do an outstanding job on used cars this month. The fact that so many good used models have been taken in trade on new 1936 Chevrolet has boomed dealer's used car business, enabling Chevrolet to break all records for November and December, while new car sales records were also hitting new high marks. The purpose behind the present plan is to maintain this fast movement of used cars, thus keeping the decks cleared for maximum new car selling."

Heavy advertising outlay in 1936, with the emphasis, as always on newspapers as the backbone of the entire program, is a major feature of Chevrolet's plans, Harvey explained. "During December," he explained, "the Chevrolet Motor Company made extensive use of newspaper space in selling used cars."

In conversation with Mr. Lotief he said, "You can tell all the folks that I will again be a candidate in the coming primaries for re-election to the legislature from the 106th district and will make my formal announcement in the near future."

The Eastland Drug Company are having their entire front of the store remodeled. Messrs. Herring and Davis hold the key jobs of serving the folks of this community with drugs and sundries and in keeping with the progress of Eastland they are doing things to attract attention towards their store as being one of the community's leading institutions.

Many cities over the Eastland and western section of the state are establishing cheese factories. There is no better location in the state for a cheese factory than right here in Eastland. The Chamber of Commerce can well give this important industry their first hand consideration. It will put thousands of dollars in circulation in the community that will mean extra business for the merchants that they couldn't get otherwise. It bears serious looking in to.

difficult process most people think they are "potential novelists," the author said. "There are many who believe in the inspirational or untaught songbird theory about authors. According to this, an author is a kind of wire; and if you run enough electricity into him, he'll turn on a light. The reaction of an author to a situation is like that of a slot machine. Actually, inspiration is the molten metal of literature, but unless there is a mold for the metal in the writer's mind, it is splashed about and wasted. Benet, who was chairman of the Yale Literary magazine when a Yale undergraduate, said the greatest necessity for a writer is constant curiosity concerning the personality of everyone with whom he comes into contact. But he also must have time to find out in what fields he can write to best effect. He recalled that when Sinclair Lewis was at Yale, he was writing about knights and troubadours. "An author is fortunate to realize $700 a year from his writings," Benet asserted. "On the other hand, one successful book might make as much as $70,000." PREFERRED TO WALK By United Press PORTLAND, Me. — Although Mark Howard, 63, owns an automobile, he walked 40 miles to attend a Grange convention. He left his car in a barn because he believes long walks "keep a man in trim."

Julia read, "When you give her a try-out remember I'm in love with her—"

Peter Kemp. He smiled his good morning, and took a sealed envelope from his pocket. On its face was neatly typed "Mr. Henri Lamb, The Green Club." "Oh, thanks, Peter..." Julia returned his smile. "I really do appreciate this a lot." "That's okay," Kemp told her. "If you're sure it's what you want, then I'm glad if I can help Henri's office is on the second floor of the club. I think the best time to catch him is about 3 in the afternoon." "Then I'll have to ask Mr. Woodford to let me off." Peter grinned. "At least you're not going to give up your job first." "Maybe I should it," Julia hesitated. "Nonsense, Julia. Woodford's out of town today. Why don't you run over to Henri's this afternoon?" "This afternoon?" repeated Julia, frightened a little at the thought. Then, "I... I think I will." Kemp patted her arm. "Good girl! And—good luck!" "Thanks, Peter. I'll need it." And when the neat little electric clock on her desk told Julia it was 29 minutes until 3, she did just as if she would need all the luck in the world. More nervous than she had ever been in her life, she sat on her hat, glad that it was the smartest and most recent in her meager wardrobe. Then, with a final and careful look into the mirror, she pocketed Peter's letter and pristinely few steps she was in a tiny anteroom which held only three things—a photograph of Henri Lamb and his orchestra, a scarred bench, and a very young man who sat on the end of the bench smoking a cigaret. He surveyed Julia critically and said, "You want to see Mr. Lamb?" "Yes," she faltered. More than once she had faced Ira's Woodford clients and turned them away harmlessly. But somehow she was afraid of this very young man. "I—I have a letter to him." "I'll take it in," the young man said, holding out his hand for it. In a very short time he was facing her again. "Come on in," he said. "Mr. Lamb'll see you." THE quick magic of Peter's letter gave Julia immeasurable courage. She found Henri Lamb a short, heavy, dapper individual, who lost much of his personality out of the black jacket in which he held his hand. But he seemed sincere, and Julia liked him. "Friend of Pete's, eh? Ever do any professional singing?" Julia had to admit she hadn't. "Well, maybe that's all the better." He turned to the door. "Jim... Jim, turn the spot on the mike. Then go down and pick up Miss Craig. She feels like singing." "Okay," Jim said. Then to Julia: "What'd you want to sing?" "I know most of the new things." She looked at Henri Lamb. "How about 'Accent on Youth'?" Lamb nodded. "That's a good number. Let's have it. And leave your hat here. I want to see your hair under the spot." When Julia removed her hat he gave a little exclamation of approval. "Say, that ought to look good!" As Julia went downstairs and across the empty dance floor to the platform, she walked as one in a trance. The spotlight was blinding at first, but she was grateful for it because it hid the emptiness of the room—and it hid, too, the disconcerting figure of Lamb. But when Jim started in at the piano, Julia forgot everything but the plaintive, haunting song. And she sang it well. She knew she did. On the final chorus, Henri Lamb walked close to the microphone. When she had finished he patted her hand. But he was shaking his head, too, and she heard him say: "Not quite yet. But you're coming along." "You mean I—I won't do?" "I'm afraid that's it," he looked at her seriously. "It's a tough racket, anyhow girls. Why don't you forget it?" Stammering her thanks, her eyes dimming with tears of humiliation, Julia rushed from the platform. She was almost out the door when she remembered she had left her hat upstairs. She ran for it, hoping she wouldn't confront Henri Lamb again. Inside her hat on his littered desk she saw the half-open letter which Peter Kemp had written to Lamb. Peter had typed it out in four capitals which even her slowness could not miss. It said: DEAR HENRI—THIS IS JULIA CRAIG WHO WANTS TO SING IN YOUR CLUB BUT WHEN YOU GIVE HER A TRY-OUT I WISH YOU'D REMEMBER I'M IN LOVE WITH HER AND DON'T WANT HER TO BE A SINGER. (To Be Continued)

Easier Reading.. Writing with Glareless Light

Good lighting is needed wherever eyes are used for prolonged seeing tasks. At the writing desk, for reading, sewing or studying, the right amount of glareless light is a protection against eye fatigue and the troubles that are caused by straining the eyes to see under a poor light.

Too often this strain isn't attributed to the lighting. Some people think that because they have enough light to see by, they have enough light. But scientific tests have revealed that the human eye is a poor judge of what is enough light. Only a careful check by someone trained to make lighting tests will show accurately whether you have proper lighting in your home.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Life" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, Jan. 19.

The Golden Text is: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son" (1 John 5:11).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? the Lord is the strength of my life; of whom shall I be afraid?" (Psalms 27:1).

The lesson-sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Life is without beginning and without end. Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of life, and time is no part of eternity. . . . Life is the everlasting I AM, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase" (pages 468 and 290).

"RIFFRAFF" HITS DYNAMIC PUNCH; JEAN HARLOW AND SPENCER TRACY TRIUMPH

Jean Harlow has never displayed her versatility as an actress to better advantage than in "Riffraff," which opens today at the Connellee Theatre.

She follows her smashing hit in "China Seas," with another sparkling role, again against the background of the sea, but in a vital, romantic story, which gives her the finest opportunity of her career.

Teamed with her for the first time is one of Hollywood's finest actors, Spencer Tracy, and the two miss no opening to get the most out of the powerful and sweeping story, which mixes the most hilarious comedy with the most touching pathos.

Convinced that the trend of public preference is for red-blooded stories with virile power and sweep, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has scored in starring its two strongest personalities.

The story of "Riffraff" invades a brand new locale, the commercial fishing fleet that plies the waters of the Pacific off Southern California. Much of the story takes place in the fishing village adjacent to the great California metropolis—a community affiliated with the city, yet entirely separated as though in a different world. There the fishermen and their families live their lives, and work out their destinies without contact with outside influences.

"Riffraff" tells of the love of Miss Harlow and Tracy, a love that transcends man-made laws, yet is masked with a veil of rough badinage that cannot entirely conceal its depth and sincerity. It presents Miss Harlow in one of her most unusual roles, an angel of the waterfront who marries a braggart and a bully and spends the rest of her life trying to reform him.

TWO AGAINST THE WORLD

Mary Astor and Phillip Reed have tragic roles in the thrilling murder mystery drama "The Murder of Dr. Harrigan," the first National picture showing at the Connellee Theatre Tuesday. This film is sponsored by the Clue Club.

Tracy is shown as a swaggering skipper of a taut clipper, a two-fisted strong man who rules the fleet with an iron hand. Into the story are woven economic problems as vital as tomorrow, and thrills such as the screen has seldom seen.

The characters, as only Frances Marion can create them, are powerful. Una Merkel, whose forte is considered to be comedy, is amazing as Lil, Jean's sister, a down-trodden wife with two children, overburdened by life's problems. Joseph Calleia, who gave such promise in "Public Hero," again comes through with a brilliant portrayal as Nick Lewis, wealthy vicious cannery owner.

Miss Merkel and Calleia head a strong supporting cast, which includes Victor Kilian, Mickey Rooney, J. Farrell MacDonald, Roger Imhoff, Juanita Quigley, Paul Hurst, Vince Barnett, Dorothy Appleby and Judith Wood.

"So Red the Rose" is a costly production, tastefully mounted, and authentic in every detail. It has spirit and charm and humor and is paced swiftly, event dovetailing with event in exciting and dramatic sequence.

Miss Sullivan's performance as the heroine, Vallette, is easily her best to date. Charming in costumes of the period, Miss Sullivan makes Vallette a vital, sympathetic, interesting young woman.

Randolph Scott plays Duncan, the man in love with Vallette. Other important roles are in the expert care of Walter Connolly, Elizabeth Patterson, Janet Beecher and Harry Ellerbe.

The direction of "So Red the Rose" is credit to King Vidor. Mr. Vidor's pictures have been officially mentioned each year among the ten best since 1926. There seems little doubt that "So Red the Rose" will continue this record and add new laurels to Mr. Vidor's past achievements.

GEORGE O'BRIEN DARES DANGER FOR ROMANCE

As the danger defying young railroader who whispered by preference, but who could shout when he wanted to, George O'Brien returns to the screen in an action-filled story, "Whispering Smith Speaks," now at the Lyric Theatre.

The plot of the story revolves about the love that arises between George O'Brien, working as a railroad man, and Irene Ware, who manages a dilapidated old railway.

She has no way of knowing that he is really the son of the president of the great Transcontinental railroad system, and tries to hold back from falling in love with him.

The climax of the picture shows how the young adventurer turns a whole railroad system upside down and races a switch engine desperately for hundreds of miles, when his girl is in danger.

Kenneth Thomson, Vic Potel and Spencer Charters fill the most important featured roles of "Whispering Smith Speaks," which was directed by David Howard. The story was adapted from Frank H. Spearman's novel.
