Norris' Name Creates Commotion In Legislature

REFUSE SPEECH CHANCE

Senate Votes Down Proposed Invitation to Hear J. Frank Norris — One Senator Wants to Invite Aimee Semple McPherson.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 15 — The House of Representatives went into an uproar this morning with scores of members on their feet clamoring for recognition when a resolution, alleged to have been inspired by Rev. Frank Norris of Fort Worth was offered for a public hearing on the "race horse betting" bill.

Mr. Norris sought to call Rep. Duvall of Fort Worth who sent up the resolution, from a committee room just before the House met. The names of Representatives Duvall, Holder and Patterson are assigned to the resolution.

The resolution was left unacted upon when the roll call allotted for resolutions expired. Another to extend the time was voted down 38 to 63.

The resolution called for an open hearing in the House of Representatives Monday night, Feb. 18 to be addressed by both proponents and opponents of the bill. It recited that the speaker of the House should appoint the presiding officer for the hearing and that the House officers should preserve decorum.

Miller Votes Aye — The Senate declined to hear Rev. Norris.

A resolution that the minister be permitted to speak was sent up by Sen. Thomas Pollard. Upward broke out when Senator Greer moved to table the resolution. In the free-for-all remarks, Senator Greer was convinced that he ought not to move to table a courtesy resolution and withdrew.

The first vote as announced was a tie. Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller broke the tie with a loud "Aye."

When a verification was called for, an error was discovered which made the final vote 10 ayes and 12 noes.

"I say," called Senator Walter Woodul of Houston, "If this resolution goes through, can I invite Aimee Semple McPherson to speak to us?"

"I'll rule on that when we get to Aimee," replied Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller.

CHICAGO'S ASSASSINS AT LARGE

Police, With Intense Effort, Are Able to Round Up Only 40 Who Protest Ignorance — Higher-Ups Are in Hiding.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 — An investigation by Federal prohibition agents today turned up the theory that the Northside gang massacre in which seven men were killed here yesterday may have been executed by policemen in the pay of the liquor syndicate.

F. D. Sillway, who was assigned to the case by the prohibition department, told the United Press that he had "Confidential Information" indicating that policemen in uniform had participated in the killing because they were not properly rewarded for their part in hijacking a truck load of whiskey two weeks ago on Indianapolis Boulevard.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 15 — Five men, believed to be Chicago gangsters and possibly connected with the Chicago beer war, were captured by police here today.

The prisoners admitted, according to detectives, that they left Chicago at 5:30 p. m. yesterday. They came here in a large automobile which according to police records, was stolen in Chicago January 17. It carried license plates of another make of car issued to George Dobbins, of Hammond.

Nine automatic pistols were taken from the suspects.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 — Squads of patrolmen cruised throughout gangland districts in Chicago last night and early today, rounding up all persons with police records.

The drive was organized in an effort by police to find a trace of the five men who yesterday lined up seven men in a garage and shot them to death in cold blood.

The seven men had no suspicion of their doom when the murderers entered as two of the men wore the uniform of policemen.

Starting early, the police squads cruised throughout the night. The murders were the most spectacular in the long and bloody feuds of the liquor traffic and they served to arouse police to the most determined effort ever staged to rid the city of gangsters.

It is highly doubtful, however, that the men who committed the massacre will be brought to official justice. There is little question but that they were imported killers.

The State's attorney issued orders for all men picked up to be brought to his office immediately. John Egan, captain of detectives, was placed in charge of the questioning of the men.

However, the raids resulted in few men being brought in. As soon as news of the killings was flashed through the gang districts, there was a hurried holing-up movement. Those who might have had knowledge of the shooting were under cover and few men of importance were taken to the State's Attorney's office.

Not more than forty were taken in by the squads. Most of these were the lesser lights who declared vehemently they didn't know a thing about the shooting or about gangsters.

The daring of the men was breath-taking. Picked together from persons who were in the vicinity of the garage on the North Side where the murders took place, the story of the shooting has no rival in police annals for sheer audacity.

The seven men shot were: James Clark, Dr. Reinhart, Schwimmer, Frank Gusenberg, Peter Gusenberg, May and Alfred Weinstan's. They were henchmen of George "Bugs" Moran, one of the leaders

Gang Annals of "Chi" Form Bloody Story

Grasping for Gold from Sale of Beer Has Caused Many Assassinations by Two Rival Gangs — Reprisals Expected for Latest.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15 — Behind the execution of seven gangsters in front of a firing squad of rivals here yesterday lies a bloody saga of assassination for mastery of the beer trade.

Beginning with the murder of Dion O'Banion in 1924 in his flower shop and culminating in the massacre of the seven, the battle for illicit liquor profits has been the story of the rise of "scarface" Al Capone. For the last few years his throne has been threatened almost daily by the notorious Aiello gang, whom police blame for the latest outrage.

O'Banion was the current "king" of the North Side liquor barter, under the guiding hand of Capone, who had been imported from Brooklyn by Johnny Torrio, pioneer racketeer, to put the syndicate on a paying basis by "big business" methods.

After incurring the enmity of the Italian wing of gangland, O'Banion was murdered, his crown passing to "Schemer" Drucci, son of a wealthy tile manufacturer and himself in that business as a sideline to his anti-prohibition activities.

Drucci was shot to death by police, the seizer of power going to Hymie Weiss, a suave lieutenant of O'Banion.

Weiss, true to gang law that those who live by the gun must die by the gun, was riddled by machine gun bullets in front of the Holy Name cathedral, almost the exact spot where his chief had died.

Next in the beer racket dynasty came George "Bugs" Moran, whose seven henchmen were killed yesterday with the precision of a Mexican execution.

The "Cartage company" where the latest hoodlum massacre took place was the favorite losing place of Moran.

Known as the luckiest gangster in the business, Moran happened not to be at his usual lounging place, thus missing the blasts obviously intended for him.

If history repeats itself, reprisals will come swiftly from out-of-town gunmen, usually imported for vengeance when a gang has been depleted by assassinations.

Reprisals for the reprisals may be expected and in that event more of Capone's co-workers may die in a spray of shotgun slugs or machine gun bullets.

Eddie "Potatoes" Kaufman, who gained his nickname because he is the son of a wealthy produce dealer, is first in line of Capone's henchmen to be marked for death.

Next is Jack McGurn, who bears a reputation as a killer and who gets as many death threats as Adolf Menjou does mash notes.

Jack Guzick, or Cusack, Capone's chief lieutenant in his country-wide domain, is in retirement but nevertheless keeps a watchful eye on the cash as it flows in from beer safes, gambling concessions and vice resorts — all a part of the interests attributed to Capone. He has been marked for death since Koe Aiello started trying to "muscle in" on the lucrative beer trade.

Judge Elzo Ben of the 88th District court had made no orders this morning setting down for hearing the injunction suit filed in his court Thursday by E. C. Ford and others against County Judge C. L. Garrett and the county commissioners seeking to restrain them from expending county funds in paying wolf trappers in accordance with an order passed recently by the Commissioners' court.

Buenos Aires Quivers Under A Great Blast

Fire Breaks Out in Government Warehouses and Explosions of Alcohol Shake City — Heavy Loss is Feared

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 15 — A big fire among the government warehouses in the south dock section started at about 4:30 a. m. today.

Heavy explosions, attributed to stored alcohol and other inflammables, shook the city. It was feared the loss would be great.

The city was awakened by a spectacular series of explosions like an artillery bombardment. A great volume of black smoke poured westward across the city. The fire is near the freight docks and many cars loaded with merchandise were reported endangered.

The explosions broke all windows in the neighborhood. Large crowds motored to the scene from all parts of the city to watch the blaze.

One fireman was killed and several were injured.

More than a thousand automobiles were destroyed and damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000 although no official figures were available.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15 — Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh took off from here today, bound for New York. Lindbergh left the Pan American airport in a Curtiss Falcon plane at 7:37 a. m. Before stepping into the cockpit, he said he "might" stop en route at Sapelo Island, winter estate of Howard E. Coffin millionaire automobile manufacturer.

Pan American Airways, of which Lindbergh is technical advisor, said if weather was good, Lindbergh should reach New York in 11 hours. A blue sky and bright sun greeted the monoplane as it took the air.

J. M. Eaton, traffic manager of Pan American Airways, the last to say goodbye to the flier when he left Miami, said Lindbergh hoped to reach New York tonight, but might be delayed.

While weather conditions here were perfect, fog and rain were reported farther north.

THINK ROBBERY IS THE MOTIVE

Greenville Man Found Dead After Three Shots Fired — Evidences of Struggle — Believe Slayer Used Fire Escape — Three Men are Held.

GREENVILLE, Tex., Feb. 15 — Glen A. Coulson, 60, wealthy retired business man of this town, was found shot to death in his room at a hotel here this morning.

His body was found by employees of the hotel, lying in the middle of his room. A revolver lay on the floor several feet from the body. He had been shot through the forehead.

Coulson, before his retirement, had been in the jewelry business here for thirty-five years.

Three men are held by police for questioning. They were picked up in the hotel an hour after police arrived on the scene. The men said they were strangers in the town and knew nothing about the affair.

Evidence that a terrific struggle had preceded the shooting was found by police in their search for clues. A pair of trousers belonging to the slain man was found in the hall, several feet from the room in which Coulson was shot.

An empty money sack lay under the dead man's head and a stool had been hurled through a window and caught fast in the screen, preventing it from falling to the street.

Officers believe that robbery was the motive for the slaying and that Coulson had been followed to his room when he went to the hotel last night.

Police have sent to Dallas for a fingerprint expert to aid them in their investigation.

Mrs. Coulson and three children also residents of the hotel, were absent when the shooting occurred. Mrs. Coulson was in Dallas visiting a married daughter and returned home when word of the slaying reached her.

Coulson lived on the sixth floor of the Washington hotel. Occupants of the floor below were awakened by three shots in Coulson's room around 3:25 a. m. They investigated and found him dead, shot with a .38 caliber bullet.

The room was in disorder, showing signs of a violent struggle. A dresser drawer had been hurriedly opened as if the aged man had struggled to reach his gun when he saw the intruders. One shot shattered a mirror and another was imbedded in the floor.

The .38 caliber revolver with three chambers discharged was identified as the property of the dead man.

Chief of Police Sam Polk, who investigated, said the slayer apparently entered the room from the fire escape and left the same way.

Much of the Eastland county exhibit has already been sent to Fort Worth. In fact it was the first exhibit to be received for this year's exposition.

KNOW YOUR COUNTY

BY THE WAY

The Cisco bank robbers will die of old age before the electric chair claims them if the Court of Criminal Appeals takes much longer to decide the case.

Seven men were lined up against a wall and shot to death by a group of bandits. No; this is not an episode in Mexico or Central America. It occurred in peaceful, prosperous and progressive America, in Chicago where Mayor "Bill" Thompson has been so busy saving the city from King George of England that he doesn't have time to save Chicagoans from each other. Instead of sending missionaries to China, we might try Chicago for a while.

TEXAS-OKLAHOMA LAND CONTROVERSY.
BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD.
PART II.
It is a matter of history that in October, 1919, Oklahoma instituted a suit against Texas in the supreme court of the United States to determine the boundary between Texas and Oklahoma as far as same was marked by the Red river. In March, 1920, the attorney general of the United States intervened in this suit and a receiver was appointed to take charge of the property. The state of Texas filed an amended answer on the following April and in May following the supreme court granted leave to private parties to intervene and have their property rights defined. On Nov. 15, 1920, the supreme court heard all parties to the question as to whether or not the decree in the Greer county case was conclusive. The time for losing the testimony was extended 60 days and oral argument was heard on April 26, 1922. Judgment of the supreme court fixed the boundary line at the south bank and appointed two commissioners to locate and mark the same. Commissioners located the boundary, filed their reports which were approved by the supreme court in June, 1924. When the final decree was entered and the south bank of the river was fixed as the boundary line.

Spent Half His

Life Suffering;

Weak, Nervous

"Money couldn't buy the good Sargon treatment did me. It overcame troubles I have suffered practically half of my life. Ever since I was a boy I have been weak and nervous and frail. I was a constant sufferer from indigestion and constipation and I was greatly underweight. Nervousness made my sleep fitful and broken and in the morning I was always tired and not fit for study.

"I had to live on cereals, milk and soups and even they would disagree with me and my life was miserable with gas bloating and pain. Sometimes I would go days without any appetite and then at times I would be ravenous with hunger. Nothing I took did me any good.

"I certainly wish I had been able to get the Sargon treatment long ago because I am just like a new man now. I noticed an improvement the first week. Now, I eat three big meals a day. I've stopped the light diet and eat anything I want but it don't hurt me in the least. Nothing disagrees with me now and I am gaining strength every day. I sleep fine and up in the morning feeling good and I've already gained six pounds and I have only taken two bottles of Sargon.

"Sargon Soft Mass Pills are wonderful, too. My bowels became regular the first week after I began taking them and their action is so mild and natural that you are not sick or upset in the least."

The above statement was recently made by Mack Springle, 827

 law student at the Capital City school of Law.

Mrs. Blake Bryant was a very pleasing hostess to the Blue Bon-

HIGH SCHOOL P. T. A. AT CHAPEL HOUR:

The new chapel hour of the high school, Thursday 3:15 p. m., held a double attraction in the program, the observance for chapel services, as well as the presence of the Parent Teacher Association as guests of the students, who afterwards held their regular P. T. A. session, hitherto in order on Tuesday, and which transacted the usual business routine.

The chapel hour was given over to the presentation of two pretty little plays, introduced with a reading by Gwendoline Jones of South Ward School, entitled, "Viva At the Milliner's."

"The Maker of Dreams," was given by Beth Judkins, Laura Maye Frost and Louise Day, who had the character parts in the little play.

The second reading, "Cinderella Dyes Them Black," presented by Laura Maye Frost of West Ward school was the prelude to the playlet, "Hearts to Mend," with characters taken by Ruth Hearn, Polly Rumph and Marjorie Spencer.

The work of these young people was very delightful, and reflected great credit upon their coach, Miss Mary Sue Rumph.

Announcement was made of the three one act plays to be presented tonight, in the high school auditorium by Miss Ina Ruth Kelley's class in public speaking.

The proceeds from the sale of these tickets which are fifty cents, will be donated for the benefit of letters for the ball team.

Parent Teacher association session was conducted by Mrs. B. E.
 McGlamery, first vice president, in the absence of Mrs. R. J. Raines, their president, who is ill at her home.

Mrs. W. C. Baker was recording secretary. Reports of the banquets were presented, showing $72.00 realized from the tickets sale, and $21.00 from the auctioning of a donated cake.

The association will make two payments on the piano this month.
 This is the first instance in which they could take up more than one at a time.

On motion, a rising vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. W. K.
 Jackson for press articles about Banquet and the Eastland Telegram for publishing the same, and in putting the banquet before the public. A rising vote was also tendered the menu committee, the committee on table decorations, the school lassie waitresses, the members of the high school faculty for their cooperation in ticket sales, and the gallant song leaders for banquet.

The session closed with a talk by Superintendent P. B. Bittle, who presented tentative plans for the beautifying of the high school grounds.

There was a fair sized attendance only of members. The P. T. A. adjourned to the second Thursday

 delightfully at the family residence yesterday afternoon in observing the seventh birthday of her little grandson, Carl Bryant Jr.

A pink and white color scheme was developed in the birthday cake iced in white and topped with light-colored pink tapers, centering a beautifully decorated table in these shades.

Mrs. Van Geem was assisted by Mrs. Will Van Geem in entertaining the youngsters with a number of jolly games.

CHURCH OF GOD

A MILLION PEOPLE
 to Cook for
 and to Keep Warm

—that's Lone Star Gas' winter job!

"Keeping the home fires burning" is not merely an echo of the world war to Lone Star Gas Company—but an every day job! There's food to be cooked—there are folks to be kept warm in winter. And supplying natural gas for the cooking and heating needs of 200,000 homes, and thousands of hotels and restaurants—well over a million people—is no small job. It takes ample resources—and a large and well trained organization, animated by the spirit of service.

Such are the resources and the organization of Lone Star Gas Company—producer, transporter and wholesaler of natural gas—which serves you through your local gas company. Over 3,200 miles of main pipe lines—and 20 giant gas compressor stations with 33,000 horse power capacity—are required to bring gas from 21 important gas fields to more than two hundred live and growing communities.

And, here's a point to remember about Lone Star Gas Service. While the gas demand falls off in summer to one-fifth its winter volume, this giant organization (and most of the expenses involved) must carry right on through the warm weather when there is no heating demand—to be ready to serve you, and a million others, when cold weather comes again. Twenty years of dependable service—is the record of Lone Star Gas Company —and we strive each year to make our service better—more complete—more dependable.

CHAPTER XIV
'She come right back up. I heard her tell Mr. Hayward she'd forgot her bank book, and aw, gee, boss, I didn't mean nothing by what I said, Mickie Moran protested unhappily. 'Honest, she couldn't a-killed him! Why, boss, you oughta take a look at Miss Ruth to see she couldn't hurt a fly—'

'Stick to your story, Moran!' McMann barked. 'Miss Lester come right back up to her office, you say, Mr. Hayward with her?' 'Naw, she told him to wait for her in the lobby, and he did. I took her up and was gonna hold the car for her, but I got a signal from the fifth floor, and had to shoot, down again. Mr. Hayward was walking up and down in the lobby nervous-like, and looked awful worried when he saw I had not brought Miss Lester down with me. Pretty soon—'

'How long?' 'Oh, four or five minutes, I guess, maybe six or seven. I dunno,' Mickie protested miserably. 'I dunno! Mr. Hayward kept draggin' out his watch and lookin' at it, then finally he rushed into the car and told me to shoot up to the seventh floor. We was nearly there when the seventh floor signal flashed on, and there Miss Lester was, breathin' hard, like she'd been runnin' and tears in her eyes—'

'Tears!' McMann interrupted. 'You're sure of that, Moran?' 'Sure!' the boy affirmed eagerly. 'She'd banged her head against the door and hurt her lip. She was holdin' her handkerchief up to steady toward the desk. 'Please Mr. McMann, I ask you to believe me when I say that I didn't see Mr. Borden when I return to my office to look for my savings bank book. The door between the offices was closed, and Mr. Borden was talking over the telephone.'

McMann's pencil tapped an ominous accompaniment to the slow, painful beating of Ruth's heart. Finally she could stand that slow tapping no longer. She stepped toward the desk. 'Please Mr. McMann, I ask you to believe me when I say that I didn't see Mr. Borden when I return to my office to look for my savings bank book. The door between the offices was closed, and Mr. Borden was talking over the telephone.'

McMann looked up at her from under his heavy-lidded eyes. 'And I'm to believe, too, that you spent four to six minutes looking for your bank book?' 'I did! I had filed it in Mr. Borden's bank folder by mistake, instead of in the folder I use for my personal papers. I looked everywhere before it occurred to me that I had done so. I tell you, I didn't see Mr. Borden, that my lip WAS bruised against the door when I swung it open. I was in a hurry to rejoin Mr. Hayward—'

'Moran, your car was down at the main floor all the time you were waiting for Miss Lester, wasn't it? You couldn't have heard a shot if one had been fired on the seventh floor? Or did you hear one?' 'I didn't hear no shot!' Mickie Moran denied emphatically. 'Aren't you forgetting, McMann, that Mrs. Borden has already told of seeing Mr. Borden ALIVE at 20 minutes of two?'

Jack Hayward lunged toward McMann, trying to free himself of Ruth's conclusive embrace, but a mild, diffident voice halted him. 'Before you arrest anyone, especially Miss Lester, my dear Sherlock,' Dr. Nielson spoke from the doorway. 'I advise you to interview the woman who cleaned these offices Saturday afternoon. She, at least, would have no reason to conceal the murder. The chips from the morgue will be here any minute now, and I'll phone you a report of my findings after I complete the autopsy. Good day—and step softly, McMann.'

Ferber, the finger print expert, shouldered his camera and picked up his kit. 'I'll bring on, too, McMann. I'll develop these negatives and send you copies in an hour or so.'

A choked scree mewed his too-realistic pantomime of the falling of a mortally wounded body. 'Stupid, eh?' he gasped, as he righted himself, without a glance at the dead man whose last movements he believed he had imitated. 'Moran! At what time did Hayward return to his office?' 'He didn't - so far as I know!' Mickie Moran retorted.

McMann was wondrous only for a moment. His pointing finger aimed itself at Otto Plunger, who had been leaning, silent and sullen, against the wall during the entire time he had been in the room. 'You, there, tow-head! You run the car nearest Hayward's office, don't you? What time Saturday afternoon did you bring him up?' Ruth did not scream again. Now that the inevitable had happened strength and courage came to her from somewhere, possibly from the thought that whatever Jack had done, he had done for love of her.

(To Be Continued) And now Jack Hayward is accused. Exciting developments in the next chapter.

Athletics Plan Few or No Changes from 1929 Lineup

Edman Hume, Star Football Player of S. M. U., is to Receive Tryout as Pitcher — Cobb and Speaker Will be Missing — Three New Southpaw Hurlers in Squad.

GEORGE KIRKSEY, United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Connie Mack believes the ball club which finished two games behind the New York Yankees last season will be good enough to win the American league pennant this season.

Consequently the Philadelphia Athletics' lineup will be practically as during the latter days of the 1928 race.

Only 27 players will be taken to the A's training camp at Fort Myers, Fla. Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker, who went south with the club last season, will be the most important departures.

Southpaw pitching will figure prominently in Connie Mack's strategy for the coming campaign. Despite the fact that there have two of the best left-handed pitchers in baseball in Lefty Grove and Rube Walberg, three of the seven new players are southpaw pitchers.

Carroll Yerkes, who was farmed out to Portland last season and recalled late in the year, has a year reserved for him on the Philadelphia pitching corps.

He pitched the final game of the season for the A's, and although allowing five hits, was beaten 1-0. He won 11 and lost 11 with Portland. He is 25 years old and has been pitching professionally only three seasons.

Two former St. Louis Browns, Stewart Bolen and Ernie Wingard are the other new southpaws. Bolen won 20 games and lost 15 for Baltimore last season, pitching 22 complete games and striking out 157 batters. Wingard, a former pitcher of Alabama star, won 24 games and lost 10 for Milwaukee last season. Bolen and Wingard are the same age, 26.

The other pitching addition is Bill Shores, a young right-hander who was headed for a regular berth a year ago when he injured his pitching arm.

The veteran pitchers include Grove, Walberg, Ernschaw Ehmke, Quinn and Rommel.

Micky Cochrane voted the most valuable player in the league last season, and Ralph Perkins will take care of the catching.

The infield lineup probably will be Foxx at first, Bishop at second, Boley at short, Hale or Dykes at third. If Mack decides to use Orwell at first, Foxx probably will be used at third. Joe Hauser also will be available.

Orwell, listed as a pitcher on the Philadelphia roster, is likely to be used in the outfield or at first base because of his batting skill.

Al Simmons, Maie Haas and Bing Miller have first call in the outfield. Three new outfielders have been acquired. They are Homer Summa, who batted over 300 during his six years with the Cleveland Indians, Nick Borel, signed as a free agent, and Redman Hume, the S. M. U. football star.

The Athletics' probable squad follows:

Catchers — Cochrane, Perkins; Pitchers — Grove, Walberg, Ehmke, Rommel, Quinn, Ernschaw, Wingard, Yerkes, Shores, Bolen; Infielders — Foxx, Bishop, Boley, Hale, Dykes and Hauser; Outfielders — Simmons, Haas, Miller, Orwell, Summa.

LOBOS VICTORIOUS

By United Press.

CISCO, Tex., Feb. 15—A hard fighting Breckenridge Buckaroo team, struggling to break a six year jinx against them, went down to defeat to the Cisco Lobos last night, 26-24, in a thriller requiring two extra periods to break as many ties. The Lobos, by virtue of their victory, again rule the oil belt, and now are to meet the winner of the four-county bracket consisting of Hood, Erath, Somervell and Palo Pinto counties.

BIRTHPLACE OF REPUBLICANISM IN CONTROVERSY

Plan to Honor 75th Anniversary Reveals Conflicting Claims.

By ROBERT MOOREFIELD United Press Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The question, "where was the Republican party born?" has been asked at the White House following requests that President Coolidge endorse plans to commemorate the 75th anniversary of the party with a celebration in Kansas City, Mo., this year.

President Coolidge has made known he is in favor of observing the 75th anniversary of his party with appropriate ceremonies, and he is endorsing the plans of Kansas City.

However, it was pointed out on behalf of the President that the birthplace of the party is in controversy. The White House said Jackson, Mich., and Ripon, Wis., also claim the honor. The encyclopedia Americana states the origin of the party cannot be properly ascribed to any particular date or place.

Horace Greeley, New York publisher and political leader, is believed to have first mentioned the name in a letter setting forth his political views. The first important convention to adopt it was held at Jackson, Mich., July 6, 1854, the Americana says. Virtually at the same time, however, there were conventions in Maine, Illinois, Massachusetts, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa. The name "Republican" does not appear on the roster of Congress until December, 1855. The party held its first national convention in Philadelphia, June 17, 1856, and nominated John C. Fremont of California for president. This convention met as a result of a call by an "informal" convention in Pittsburgh the preceding February, Americana says.

The "Dictionary of American Politics" says: "The Republican party was formed in 1854 by a number of mass meetings held in different parts of the West. At the Pittsburgh convention of 1856 the national organization was perfected and the name 'Republican' adopted."

Ripon, Wis., has always made a strong claim to being the birthplace of the Republican party. Apparently it is a controversy which, having existed for 75 years, probably never will be settled.

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church

February 17, Mass at 10 a. m. by Rev. P. Ruano. This is Quadragesima or the first Sunday in Lent. The Gospel is taken from the Gospel of St. Matthew IV.1-11. At the age of thirty, Jesus manifested his Divinity, which was hidden in his infancy and youth. He manifested himself first to the Jews because the promise of the Messias was first made to them and to their forefathers. He then publicly received the baptism of John upon which occasion the heavens were opened and the Holy Ghost was seen to descend upon him in the form of a dove, and a voice was heard from Heaven: "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." Immediately after his baptism, he retired into the desert, where he fasted forty days and forty nights, and was then tempted by the devil. He who was God could not sin, yet he permitted himself to be tempted, that by his complete victory over the tempter of mankind he might merit for us the grace by which all temptations are overcome. Fasting within reasonable limits is good for soul and body and conducive to health and long life. The Trappists (monks of a very strict order in the Catholic Church) live long lives though they never eat meat and cancer is unknown in their order. More people die from eating too much than too little. A change from meat to fish is good. So is a change from pleasure to prayer.

JEWELRY GOES MODERN; REIGN OF GOLD ENDED

Fancy Filigrees No Longer Popular in Paris Gem Shops.

By United Press.
PARIS.—The French theory that a woman's jewelry definitely establishes her position in elegant and fashionable society has not been overlooked in the many transformations that have taken place in arts and crafts since the war. Jewelry itself has been modernized. Moreover, the flashing facets of cut jewels formed by prisms in all their angular and slanting reflections, synchronize perfectly with the trends of modern art.

For a while at least, the days of fancy filigreed gold and silver and gem-encrusted jewelry are over. Madame now must wear big clear stones set in cold platinum, rectangles, cubes, triangles, in amethyst, emerald, aquamarine, rubies and diamonds. There are many points and acute angles in the new jewelry. There are flat surfaces that scintillate lights in the manner of a cubist painting. Sheer elegance calls for simplicity defined by clear cut lines... a smooth sable manteeau, a neat felt hat with a triangular pin, a bracelet in alternating platinum and crystal rectangles, an emerald set lengthwise along two alternating semi-circles, and brooch of brilliant set in the form of a tiny sailing yacht or the helmet of a knight at arms... such is the modish Parisienne of today.

It was the exposition of decorative arts in 1925 that brought about the transformation of jewelry. Modern art was followed in the same trends that we see in architecture, in interior decoration, and in furniture.

The new jewelry started with the "Gitanes" or so-called gypsy bracelet. It was set with big stones, usually jade or semi-precious pieces, and anywhere from a half inch to two inches wide. Its success was immediate and now the Gitanes is expressed in even bolder forms.

Modern jewelry, to quote a prominent Paris designer, is inspired by the exciting and rapidly moving pace of present day life. He says "modern jewelry is inspired by our enthusiasms, it has a certain coquetry with negro art, with pre-colombian arts, its inspirations is derived from cubism, and its manifestations are also affected by the marvelous technique realized by the Persians and the Chinese."

"The jewelry of today is nourished by the life we live, the automobile wheel, the airplane, the radio, sport and a thousand evidences of modern events."

by many ships in past years, claiming as its prey, the lives of many men.

The greatest loss of life, caused by the foundering of a vessel off this coast line, was the sinking of the American steamer Pacific, Nov. 4, 1875. The disaster occurred approximately 30 miles south of Cape Flattery, with more than 235 persons losing their lives.

With the coming of the coast guard, the loss of life from sea disasters in this section of the Pacific coast has been low compared with that of former years.

In 1919, the trim, five-masted schooner Jannette Caruthers, founded in a gale eight miles south of here with a loss of nine lives. The weather-beaten hull of the once proud sailer is practically covered with the sands.

As the years roll by, the Tenapaian Maru, too, will probably have become buried in the hands of the beach, protecting its remains from further battery by the lashing breakers.
