What Agency Is Equal To Task of Relief?

The government system of administering relief is a failure because it does not acquaint the public with the needs and problems of welfare work.

This, in substance, is what Albert D. Lasker, Chicago advertising man, told delegates to the Red Cross convention in Chicago.

Any appeal for development of an alert social conscience which will make the well-fed citizen see the hunger and misery of the unemployed man as his own personal problem is to be commended.

But to go on from there and say that to gain that end we must go back to the private administration of relief would be to take a step possible only to the possessor of seven-league boots.

This may not have been what Mr. Lasker had in mind. But it is a proposition that is brought up frequently these days. The relief problem is as full of headaches as a keg of corn liquor; it is easy to feel that most of the headaches would vanish if we only could take the whole business off the government's hands and turn it over to the Red Cross, or some similar group.

But would they?

We might as well understand, first of all, that it is sheer fantasy to suppose that this work could be financed by private contributions in the traditional style.

The WPA program could be eliminated, of course, and we could go back to the dole. But what would that cost us?

Direct relief today averages $33 a month a person. It is quite possible that this figure could be reduced considerably—although this enlightened social conscience which private relief administration is supposed to foster might be outraged if the reduction were too drastic.

Still, let us suppose that the cost could be cut to an average of $20 a month a person.

At the beginning of 1936 the federal and local governments had 5,000,000 people on relief. Returning prosperity has probably reduced that total somewhat; still, if we abolished the WPA, we would get an increase in the direct relief cases, so that for the immediate future we can hardly figure on having fewer than 5,000,000 people to feed and clothe.

Laying out $20 a month for each person, we would be spending $100,000,000 a month, or $1,200,000,000 a year, on relief. Does any mortal in his senses suppose that we could raise any such sum by public contribution in the community chest manner?

The money would have to come from the government; and if it comes from the government, what happens to that direct public participation that Mr. Lasker talks about?

The relief problem is one long headache, admittedly. But the headache will go away only when the relief problem itself disappears. No easy short-cut is open to us.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER NEA Service Staff Correspondent WASHINGTON—The big headache of the 74th Congress—to such few members as try to understand it—is the Patman-Robinson quantity discount bill.

If this so-called "anti-chain store" measure is passed in any of its various proposed forms, most government experts hope President Roosevelt will veto it and give them a chance to study the probable effects of such legislation on the American people and the American business structure.

Essentially, it is an amendment to the Clayton anti-trust act which would drastically curtail, if not prohibit special terms granted by manufacturers to mass purchasers who buy in huge quantities.

Independent merchants—especially retail and wholesale grocers and druggists—have brought heavy pressure for the bill, hoping such a law would stop the expansion of chain stores.

Although it is proposed to protect the small retailer from unfair competition such as "undue" quantity discounts and other allowances which mass purchasers sometimes can get from producers, an extreme interpretation would deprive consumers of all benefits of mass distribution.

One chain store representative testified that the nation's retail food bill would be increased $750,000,000 a year, which probably is an absurd estimate.

SENATE and House bills would bar quantity discounts, would confine allowances for "advertising" to services actually rendered by buyers, and provide against fake brokerage allowances. The important exemption as to quantity discounts would be for discounts based on actual differences in cost resulting from quantity sales.

Burden of proof would be put on the seller and buyer and the problem of showing costs is so complex that opponents and some neutral outsiders say the burden would be an impossible one.

When Col. Bradburn, in charge of Mexican customs collection at Anahuac, had his garrison prisoner Travis, Jack and other Texans and placed the settlement under martial law in the spring of 1832, the Texans sent to Brazoria to get two cannon to be used in the relief of Anahuac.

of the designing room opened and her employer appeared on the threshold.

"Good morning," said Gail quietly.

Madame Lizette ignored the greeting, as she flounced into the room. "Mrs. Travers is coming in this forenoon with her daughter," she said, "and I want you to get a frock ready for her immediately. Have Ariadne come here at once. This is the material." She pointed to a bolt of sheer, silky organdie in a delectable shade of blue.

"This is the style she wants," Madame said and Gail felt her spirits rise as she recognized one of the sketches on which she had worked the day before.

"Very well, Madame," Gail answered, a prayer of thankfulness rising in her heart as she watched her go.

Toinette and Selma entered the room a moment later. "Oh, Toinette," Gail said, "I wonder if you would find Ariadne and ask her to come here at once."

"All right, Miss Everett." The wily little Frenchwoman hurriedly departed.

"You're going to drape that on her?" questioned Selma.

"Yes, Madame has a customer coming this forenoon, so we'll have to hustle." "Well, you haven't much else to do today," remarked Selma, glancing around the room.

"That's good, for I understand this dress is for one of Madame's special customers." "Oh, Miss Everett, they're all special customers according to the Madame! She likes to make us think they're important. As if it would make any difference in the work we put on the dresses. That cuts no ice with me any more. I've heard it too often."

"You've been here quite a long time then?" asked Gail.

SELMA shrugged her heavy shoulders. "It's better than being in a wholesale house... not so many people. Maybe it's worse too, for Madame can make... she laughed. "You know what I mean! But there, such is life." She held out her hands expressively.

"Well, you seem to be quite happy."

"And why not? Toinette, Frank and I have worked for a long time together. We're friends. So long as we're together everything is all right."

"That's fine," commented Gail, as Ariadne sauntered in.

For the next half hour hardly a word was spoken, though the sharp snip, snip of shears cutting through the organdie and an occasional little cry from the model as Gail, in her enthusiasm, stuck a pin a little farther in than the thin satin slip Ariadne was wearing, revealed the progress of the work.

At last Gail exclaimed, "There! Take a look at yourself in the mirror. How do you like it?"

"Not bad—but don't you think the ribbons might be changed a little here?"

"Yes, I believe that's better," agreed Gail, quickly unpinning and explaining the ribbons. "Now I'm going to call Madame and tell her you're ready to show her the frock." As she lifted the ribbons, she door on the right opened.

"The dress is ready—yes? Why did you not send for me at once as I tell you?" Before Gail could answer, Madame Lizette had reached Ariadne, and, with a plump hit's hand on the girl's shoulder, turned her around as though she was a dummy. Then she shrugged her shoulders. "Have Selma and Toinette help you take it up right away so we can show it to Mrs. Travers. There won't be time to finish—all she wants today is to see the effect. You understand?" With a curt answer word Madame tripped away.

"So!" exclaimed Ariadne. "What does it mean?" She glanced at Gail with quizzical eyes.

BUT Toinette, always quick as a flash, cried, "It means that Madame is pleased—that she can find no fault. Yes, that's it!" Then, hurrying toward Gail, she said, "Can I help you, Miss Everett?"

"Thank you, Toinette! I think we've got them all out." Together they slipped the fragile creation over Ariadne's head.

At half past 11 Lita came hurrying into the room. "Is that organdie dress ready?" she asked. "Miss Travers is in the show-room and Madame wants it at once. Quick, where is it?"

"Hold your horses, Lita," replied Frank, removing the dress from the pressing machine and slipping it on a hanger, while Toinette with quick, eager hands, straightened the boucles.

"Now you may take it," said Gail, snipping a tacking thread from the front.

Noon came and the others hurried from the room. Gail straightened her desk and, picking up her gloves and handbook, slanted across the room. Suddenly the door opened and Lita called, "You're to go into the show-room at once, Miss Everett!"

he Kokomo boys' 4-H club met Wednesday, May 22, at the club. Mr. Barnhart, assistant county agent, gave a talk on and demonstrated how to do patching on peach trees. After Barnhart's discussion we disussed the 4-H club encampment to be held the 19th and 20th of June. The Kokomo club are planning on entering teams from our club in every event. Those members present were: James Dupuy, Clinton Revels, Otto Dupuy, Marvin Dupuy, Albert Hendricks, Dwight Ernest, Raymond Laudie, Jack Caudie, and our club sponsor. Our meetings from now on will be held on the first Wednesday of each month at which time we invite our parents to visit our club.—James Dupuy, reporter.

Length of Pillow Slips

The length of pillow slips should be in good proportion to the width of the pillow and should be long enough to cover the end of the pillow completely. Nine to 10 inches longer than the pillow is a general rule to follow. This measurement is for the finished slip," stated Mrs. Charles Starr, bedroom demonstrator for the Dan Horn Home Demonstration club. Each cooper in the home demonstration clubs will make one pair of pillow slips as one of the goals in the bedroom work and they are to make the slips long enough for the pillows.

The Ranger 4-H club met at the Ranger Chamber of Commerce Friday, May 22, at which time Hugh F. Barnhart was present and gave an interesting talk to the club on the subject of budding trees. Those present were Louis Pitecock, J. Duff Pitecock, Joe Don Meroney, Marlin Sneed, Raymond Smoot, Howard Hinman and Byron Gordon, a new member of the club.

The club will meet again Thursday, June 4 at 8:30 o'clock instead of the regular meeting time and date.—Joe Don Meroney, reporter.

Tufting Stitch

"The tufting stitch on the candlewick spreads should be made by the following method, use the tufting yarn double and about 18 inches long for the best work and with a running stitch pick up about one eighth of an inch of the material and then make the stitch one half inch long on top of the spread," Mrs. Lillian Neal Eastland, bedroom demonstrator for the Ranger Co-Workers Home Demonstration club instructed her co-operators. "A gauge needle is more satisfactory in making the stitches all the same. When the pattern has been outlined as given, clip each stitch exactly in the center. It is necessary to have good sharp scissors in order to have the tufts even."

Okra Girls' 4-H Club

The Okra 4-H club girls met on a regular meeting day at the school, May 7, at 9 o'clock. Cornelia Faye Stewart, assistant home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration showing us how to make a slip fit. If the slip was made out of silk rayon, it is better to either french seam the side seams or stitch twice and overcast them. This will prevent them from unraveling. Since silk rayon shrinks more than slip shen, it will be necessary to make them fit more loosely.

The following club members were present: Quida Brazzil, La Verne Claborn, Hazel Neely, Bobbie Sue Burns, Lola Bell Grisham, Wilma Claborn, Nellie Jack Burns, Dorothy Russell, Johnnie Russell, Dorothy Chambers, Blanche Tye, Faye Dewre, Tommie Jean Cla-

Galion, Ohio, Only Town Of That Name

GALION, Ohio.—The town of Galion has one distinction that few others can boast—its name is exclusive. As far as officials here can learn, there is no other town named Galion in the United States. There is a Galion in Michigan and a Galion in Louisiana and Alabama, but that's as close to Galion as they get. Nobody here knows what suggested the town's name. It was given by a postmaster general many years ago.

The blow fly has been elevated to a much higher plane in the estimation of man during the last few years. The disease of the bones known as "chronic osteomyelitis," can be treated effectively by placing blow fly larvae on the wound. These scavengers devour the dead tissue and give the living cells a chance to repair the damage.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MARY E. DAGUE NEA Service Star Writer

LAMB, new peas, little new potatoes, hot biscuits, with a bit of mint jelly on the side—that's my idea of a fine late-spring dinner.

Leg of lamb is handy because even the bone may be turned into a basis for broth. Have the butcher take the bone from the joint, then fill the leg with good bread stuffing. This gives you the bone at its best for broth.

To make broth, put onion in a kettle, add one small onion and two teaspoons salt. Add cold water to completely cover and heat slowly to the boiling point. Simmer until stock is reduced from one-third to one-half. Let stand over night or until the fat rises to the top and forms a firm layer. Remove fat and strain out bones and onion. Reheat with 1-4 teaspoon white pepper and serve. One or two tablespoons tomato catsup can be added to give a pleasantly piquant flavor.

After filling with stuffing, sew the cut edges of the meat together to hold the stuffing in place and make the joint neat for serving. Rub salt and pepper into the meat until place on the rack of roaster without water. Cover and place in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F.).

Remove Outer Membrane Allow thirty minutes per pound for roasting. Remove all strings when the meat is tender. When the roast is done, take from roaster and remove the rack. Pour off all fat and add two cups of water. Put roast back and simmer over low fire for a few minutes. Blend two tablespoons lamb fat with 2-1/2 tablespoons flour. Stir and cook until frothy. Add liquid from pan, stirring vigorously with a wire whisk to keep smooth. Bring to the boiling point and cook until thick and smooth. Serve in a gravy boat.

Most butchers remove the thin membrane skin spotted with fat which covers the flesh of lamb, but it's a good idea to make sure this has been done before cooking. This skin is called the caul and is responsible for the strong taste that has made lamb unpopular with some people.

After the first day, serve the left-over lamb in jelly sauce.

Sliced Lamb in Jelly Sauce One-half cup currant or apple jelly, 2 tablespoons tomato catsup, pimento-stuffed olives, 4 slices cold roast lamb.

Add catsup to jelly and mix over the fire while melting in a shallow sauce pan. Bring to the boiling point and add slices of lamb. Reduce heat and simmer below the boiling point for ten minutes. When ready to serve, garnish each slice with slices of stuffed olives and serve very hot. You may like to add two tablespoons sherry to the jelly sauce for special occasions.
