GOOD BUSINESS WILL CONTINUE BANKER SAYS

HOUSTON, May 19.—The banker's association here today expects continued improvement despite the present election year slump, according to a statement issued by the Texas Bankers association today in its annual convention here.

With excess reserves at their highest figures, the bankers are expected to make sound loans to reliable individuals and concerns all over the state, according to the statement.

The speaker at the opening session of the 52nd annual meeting of the association, which will continue through Thursday.

HOUSTON, May 19.—Texas Governor Allred today said the annual convention of the Texas Bankers association, which will cost about $3,000,000, is a big thing for the state. He said that amount would be added to expenditures for the Texas Centennial celebration which will cost about $3,000,000, highway program larger than before; increased rural aid appropriations of $2,000,000 and great and sinking fund payments of $2,731,000 toward the bonded indebtedness.

During the same period we witnessed the reduction of maximum ad valorem tax rate from 77 cents to 62 cents, saving the taxpayers of Texas about $4,750,000, the governor said.

Packing Plants On Texas Coast Are Sought by Texans

DALLAS, Tex.—W. B. Mitchell, Marfa livestock producer, believes the next step in Texas' cattle industry should be construction of packing plants along the Gulf coast.

"Slaughtering plants along the Gulf coast would solve the problem of exports and that of Texas returning from Chicago and her points by rail," he said.

From such slaughter houses meat could be shipped directly to different parts of Texas and to the east-coasting states of the Atlantic seaboard by water, cheapest of present-day methods.

Because such a program will take years to get under way, Mitchell told the Dallas Agricultural Club recently that it should be started immediately.

"What we need in Texas is a definite livestock program," he said. "The day has come when livestock men must find new markets for their animals. With the eastern and middle-western states going in for cattle-raising on a larger scale than ever before, Texas should develop home markets and find a way of cutting out the needless time and freight charges now employed in getting beef to the heavy meat-consuming states along the Atlantic seaboard."

TOWNSEND "HAD WORLD BY TAIL," HE TOLD AIDE IN A LETTER, INQUIRY BRINGS OUT

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Dr. Francis Townsend told the chief lieutenant of his $200-a-month pension drive, that "you and I have the world by the tail on a downhill pull, Earl, if we handle it right," Townsend's letter read. The letter added there would be a hatful of money for those who stayed.

The disclosures were made before a crowded committee room, including 40 members of the Townsend caravan.

Before introduction of the correspondence, Townsend denied having called supporters of the pension scheme "old fossils" or starting the drive for motives of "cold cash."

Townsend, his correspondence revealed, urged a national Townsend weekly be started in Washington, "where it is possible to maintain supervision of both senators and congressmen and learn their characteristics and particular leanings."

He said he had no doubt that funds to finance the paper would be forthcoming from Townsendites. However, he knew "where the fund could be supplemented."

Townsend also revealed a "militant" third party to defeat Republican and Democratic opponents of the pension scheme.

G-MEN SUCCEEDED BECAUSE "JOB IS NEVER DONE"

Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles describing the workings of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the man who makes it run—J. Edgar Hoover.

With the spectacular capture of the remaining four desperadoes, all alleged kidnapers in the past 11 days, Hoover was asked if the job was nearly done.

With a wave of his hand, he explained: "The job is never done."

That phrase, motto of J. Edgar Hoover, aptly sums up the outlook of the No. 1 G-man toward his task

Royal Welcome for Budding Queen

If Princess Elizabeth should become England's queen, as is possible since she is second in line of succession to the throne, she is apt to prove a democratic as well as pretty monarch. There's not the slightest diffidence in her manner as she shakes hands with an official at the Royal Tournament in London. Tiny Princess Margaret Rose is at right, and behind them stand the Duke and Duchess of York, their parents.

Americans Win Franklin Medal

PHILADELPHIA.—Two Americans—Frank B. Jewett and Chas. F. Kettering—will receive the medal of the Franklin Institute when the annual citations are made May 20.

The honor is conferred each year upon those workers in "physical science or technology who, without regard to country, who have done most to advance knowledge of physical science or its applications."

Dr. Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and director of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, will receive the medal in recognition of "his many important contributions to the art of telephony."

Dr. Kettering, who will be cited for "his significant and timely contributions to the science of automotive engineering," is vice president and director of General Motors and general manager of its research laboratories.

Dr. Jewett enjoyed a brief teaching career before transferring his research to the laboratories of private industry.

It was while acting as research assistant to A. A. Michelson at the University of Chicago that the young scientist became interested in the problems of telephone engineering.

During the World War Dr. Jewett was associated with the Western Electric Co., and it was during his tenure that important advances in the fields of communication were made.

These included development of the vacuum tube, developments in inductive loading, transcontinental telephone line construction, development of the telephone repeater, and perfection of the high speed submarine telegraph cable.

Dr. Kettering received his early education in the rural district schools of Ohio and the state university. After spending 12 years in research and development along various lines, he established his own laboratory in Dayton.

In 1920 this unit was absorbed by General Motors and combined later with all research operations in Detroit. This group of scientists and engineers now functions under the supervision of Dr. Kettering.

He has contributed in numerous ways to technical advance and during the World War turned in some outstanding work in developing the electrical, mechanical, and aeronautical divisions of the armed service.

Other distinguished men of science who have received the Franklin Medal are: Sir William Bragg of England, Prof. Philipp Lenard of Germany, Dr. Paul Sabatier of France, Sir James Jeans of England; and Drs. Willis Whitney, Albert Einstein and Ambrose Swasey, all of this country.

SABOTAGE IS CLAIMED BY HAROLD ICKES

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Public Works Administrator Harold Ickes testified in district supreme court there was "clever sabotage" in his own work relief agency.

Defending his PWA program of making loans and grants for construction of municipal power plants, Ickes charged the power interests sought to hinder his activities by working in his own agency.

"I was lead to believe there was clever sabotaging in my own organization on power applications," Ickes testified.

Because he thought the public utility proposals had not been getting "a fair break" in considerations for approval," Ickes said he ordered all such applications expedited.

Utility companies contending that PWA's $200,000,000 publicly owned electricity program is unconstitutional, previously had cited the administration orders to show an alleged policy by the new deal to drive them out of business with federal funds.

Politics Regains Poise of Better Times

Perhaps the most encouraging single thing about American life today is that the lunatic fringes have been pretty well cut away from both of the major political parties.

These fringes are a sign of bad national health. They flourish when the country is ailing, and decline when it is enjoying health. And their growth or decline can be a pretty fair barometer of the state of Uncle Sam's body politic.

It wasn't so long ago that both Republicans and Democrats had very gaudy and decorative lunatic fringes.

For the Democrats, there was the late Huey Long, breathing forth fire and brimstone, proclaiming that he would make every man a king, and setting forth one of the most completely dizzy economic gospels ever offered to a puzzled world.

There was also Upton Sinclair, spinning threads of Socialism into the Jeffersonian fabric and stirring up the west coast to a frenzy of hope and fear; and there was Gene Talmadge, snapping his suspenders and treating the south to some of the most confused syntax ever heard in American politics.

These men made up the lunatic fringe of the left. The right had its fringe also, clinging hopefully to the edge of the Republican party. It had its Liberty League and its list of similar outfits, all demanding that the country forget about reform and turn everything over to the men who hold the largest money bags.

The confused radicalism of the left was balanced by the equally confused torism of the right.

The point is that these two groups, each making a tremendous amount of noise and attracting a certain number of followers, were visible evidences that things were not at all well with the republic.

People had had a bad time, and a great many of them doubted that they would ever have a better time under the existing order. So crude and destructive radicalism developed on one side; crude and destructive torism on the other.

But the situation has changed. Huey Long, dying, left no successor, and "Every man a king" sounds as ancient and as far off as "Fifty-four forty or fight." Sinclair has gone into the long decline. Talmadge has—well, what ever did happen to him, anyhow?

It is the same with the other fringe. The blind Tories have been shouldered aside. Al Smith and the Liberty League have given each other the kiss of death.

The Republicans are talking about forward-looking men like Landon and Vandenberg, and are returning to the intelligent conservatism which is their party's tradition.

And all this means that the country has got over its despair. Whatever it may be about to do in the coming campaign, it isn't going to follow some crackpot radical or blind reactionary down a steep place into the sea.

The people have regained their old confidence in American institutions and the American way of doing things.

Referring to his bout with Joe Louis, Max Schmeling said, "I can't lose." Not if there's a big gate.

"See that your windows, doors, and porches are screened so that the stray fly from some careless neighbor will not molest your family. See that your grocer keeps meat, vegetables, and fruit screened from flies."

"Organize health measures to destroy the breeding places, control the flies' access to your home and food, and establish standards of cleanliness in your community that will eliminate the fly."

Fly Control Will Prevent Disease

AUSTIN.—Thousands of children and adults die every year from diseases carried by the fly. Typhoid fever, tuberculosis, summer complaint, cholera, intestinal diseases, and frequently death follow closely in the trail of the common house fly.

"The control of fly menace comes at the top of the list of necessary public health measures which should be applied by every city and community in the State," urges Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer.

"The most effective measure for control is to prevent breeding," he said. "Flies breed in filth, and about eight days are required to complete a life cycle. During life time of several months, one house fly lays from 600 to 1,000 eggs. Thus it can easily be seen that in a season which usually begins in the spring of the year, the descendants from one fly number also true that in certain favorable environments an appreciable amount of termites damage actually occurs. According to Dr. T. E. Snyder, Senior Entomologist of the Department of Agriculture, and the world's outstanding authority on termites, there has not been, however, an invasion of the United States by tropical termites. Neither is the termite situation in this country getting worse. It is simply that the public has in recent years become aware of termites.

Further, according to Dr. Snyder,

Termites are being attended by 631 boys and girls.

Expressing gratification for the results of the program, Drought said: "It is difficult to estimate the value of this service in counteracting the psychological effects of unemployment and enabling nearly one hundred thousand Texans to broaden their understanding, develop skills that will keep them out of the ranks of the unemployable, and them to adjust themselves to economic conditions."
