HEARING ON A FARM BILL WILL BE HELD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Senate agriculture sub-committee announced today that hearings on a general farm bill will be held throughout the country until late October, indicating congressional action on crop control is unlikely before January.

The indication of delay was regarded as important, in view of recent forecasts that President Roosevelt might call a special session in November to take up farm problems.

Chairman Marvin Jones of Texas of the house agriculture committee, announced he expects to save his own general farm bill 'ready the first part of the next session.'

Political warfare for control of the democratic party was foreseen from the bitter session of congress which scrambled through the wreckage of President Roosevelt's program Saturday and adjourned.

Co-Op Inspection Itinerary Listed

Ten or more car loads of farmers from Eastland county will leave Monday, Aug. 30, for a three-day trip to several towns in northwest Texas for the purpose of studying farmers' cooperatives which are operating successfully.

The trip, sponsored by W. B. Starr, who is president of the southwestern Peanut Growers association and president of the Eastland County Agricultural association, will be made also by representatives from Erath, Comanche, Brown and Callahan counties under leadership of county agricultural agents.

Itinerary which is being arranged by C. E. Bowles, extension specialist in cooperative marketing, follows:

Farmers or others interested in taking the trip are being requested to contact County Agent Elmo Cook, W. B. Starr, or one of the occasional agriculture teachers, stating whether they will furnish car or will want to go with someone else. A small charge of $2.00 will be made of each person for furnishing a car to pay for car expenses. The night stops will be made at tourist camps.

Slow Rains Fall Over Most of State

Slow, soaking rain fell over most of North Texas Sunday night and Monday, promising a bumper cotton crop and improving chances for a good, late feed and winter crop.

Waco Falls reported the heaviest rain, 2.3 inches. McKinney registered 1.2 and Dallas 1.1 inches at 6 a. m. Monday rain was still falling.

Heavy rains were reported in other parts of the state. Cloudy skies were clear Tuesday.

Transfer Johnson To Eastland Jail

Tony Johnson, charged with two automobile thefts, was to be brought Monday from Barstow by Ward County Sheriff Dyer.

Johnson is charged in two cases, according to Deputy Sheriff Tug Underwood. One was to have been tried in Ward county but was transferred to this county because several witnesses live in this section.

Buffalo Bones Are Traced to a Hunt

McINTOSH, S. D., Aug. 23.—Because a group of Cheyenne Indians chose late summer instead of fall for a bison drive, a "buffalo graveyard" exists near here today which is so large it recently was mined for material for home markets.

Mrs. Joseph E. Waggoner of Keldron, whose mother was a member of Sitting Bull's famous command, tells the story of the mass of bones and traces it to the years of 1825 or 1835.

At that time the Cheyenne, having driven other tribes from the Dakota region only to be themselves forced westward by more powerful tribes, decided on one last hunt. Accordingly, they scattered and started driving herds of bison toward a high bluff on the Grand river.

When the animals were milling near the bluff they were driven over, the wounded dispatched and great quantities of meat removed from the carcasses. The stack of bones slowly settled and consolidated, making the bed which appears today in the cut bank of the river. The state stopped the mining when it learned the "graveyard" was on publicly owned land.

Motorist Has Snakes As Theft Insurance

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 23.—Instead of locking his automobile when he parks, Howard Weldin, Jr., carries several black snakes as insurance against auto thefts.

When the snakes are hibernating in the winter Weldin places stuffed snakes in the front seat which has the same effect.

Conceiving the idea after watching Hopi Indians train snakes in a motion picture, Weldin has used the plan successfully for two years.

Boy Trades $50 For $10 and Says He Thinks It Worth It

HOUSTON, Texas.—Carl Phenix traded $50 for $10 and liked it. That's what happened when Carl's model gasoline powered airplane won first prize in a contest sponsored by the Houston miniature aircraft club, then soared away and was lost.

Carl stood puzzled as his $50 plane flew out of sight after circling about for 18 minutes and 58 seconds. He might win, but was it worth it?

The prize was only $10 but when a loving cup donated by the Houston handicraft and hobby service was handed him, he grinned.

"I'm losing money, but it's worth it," he said.

The plane was a one-cylinder, five-pound, 10 ounce model with a seven foot wing spread. It flew five miles before disappearing, and used approximately nine-sixteenths of an ounce of gasoline. Raymond Harly, official timer, said. Search failed to find the plane.

Prices Go Up, but Ponderous Porker Stays Down

Pork is headed upward but this ponderous paradox of porcine pulchritude is staying down, declares Matt Shibles, of Nodburg, Me., owner of the living mass of fresh pork, on the hoof. Ten feet long, and nine feet in circumference at the shoulder, the hog, and he really is a hog, requires 10 quarts of milk twice daily, with four or five dozen eggs tossed in occasionally as a tonic. A pulley and sling are used to life, and hold him on his feet. Shibles charges five cents a person for a glimpse of Goliath, and says he was collected $800 since the fame of his beast spread far and wide.

VOTING LIGHT IN ELECTION OVER STATE

AUSTIN, S. D., Aug. 23.—Texas voters balloted lightly today in deciding if the state shall extend aid now being given 117,000 old people to adult blind persons and dependent children.

Both proposals were expected to receive a favorable vote.

Closing of liquor stores, banks and state departments caused some confusion among persons who had forgotten this was election day. A light vote was forecast because of rains and general lack of interest.

Victory was expected for five amendments. Whether the amendments to permit return to the fee system of paying county officials would carry, was doubtful.

FOREST FIRE DEATH TOLL NEAR A SCORE

CODY, Wyo., Aug. 23.—Forest rangers who already have brought out of the raging fire in the Shoshone National Forest the bodies of 12 firefighters, today searched for six missing men. It was feared they also perished.

In three Cody hospitals, 25 men suffered from burns. Only four were considered out of danger.

A truck driver reported to forestry headquarters that six CCC enrollees were missing. A roll call was impossible with more than 700 men fighting to check the flames which have roared through thousands of acres of timberlands in three days. Rangers said they might bring the fire under control this afternoon if they get a change in the winds.

Experienced rangers and conservation corps youths were among those burned to death.

Officers Seeking Six Jailbreakers

GREENVILLE, Texas, Aug. 23.—A manhunt spread over North Texas today as officers in adjoining counties took up the search for six men who, Sunday, with Albert Giles, escaped from the Hunt county jail.

Giles was recaptured four blocks from the jail. No trace was found of the other six.

Giles said the men were unarmed and had no plans for getting out of town when they escaped.

The men told the jailer they had dropped a pillow through the bars into a small room. When he entered the room through a door from the outside they overpowered him.

Famous Clock On Its 99th Year

STRASBOURG, Aug. 23.—The astronomical clock of Strasbourg Cathedral, which has attracted more than 5,000,000 visitors during its career, will celebrate its 100th anniversary next year.

Started in 1388, the famous clock tells the time of day, indicates religious and civic festivals, the hours at which the moon and sun rise and set, eclipses, and the average revolution of each planet.

Allegorical personages figure in the action of the clock and at noon visitors come to see the Twelve Apostles appear and kneel at the feet of Christ Jesus while the cock crows three times.

The present clock is considered a mechanical masterpiece, and is the third to be erected on the cathedral. The first clock, begun in 1352, was used for 200 years and in the latter 16th century a second astronomical clock replaced it, remaining in use for more than 300 years.

CART OF CHARACTERS
KATHLEEN O'SHAN—heroine, writer of greeting card verse.
BOB McTAVISH—hero, detective writer.
PAT—the janitor who played Cupid.
THE DUCHESS—patron of surrealist art.
PROFESSOR BRACEY—Egyptologist.

Yesterday Bob checks with police on the identity of an Egyptian mummy expert who turned out to be a jewel thief. Can this be Professor Bracey?

CHAPTER X

FOR the next 10 days, the studio apartment house was buzzing with preparations and excitement. The Duchess' fancy dress ball was the subject of much comment in the papers and among the various art groups of the city.

"It's batty as a loon she is, and all the rest of 'em will be the same, I'm thinking," Pat told Bob one day. "We're all done up with wires and riggin' enough to drive anybody nuts that ain't already that way." Then he came closer and asked softly of one corner of his mouth, "You're goin', ain't you?"

"She invited me all right," Bob answered. "and I'll be there, though not for the reason she thinks. I suggested she have my friend Steve Carnahan, from headquarters, and not tell anyone he's coming, if she's stuck to wear her famous emerald."

Pat nodded. "She'll wear the emerald, all right. Always does when she gives a big blowout. We'll like to be murdered in our tracks some day on account of it. This Steve now?"

"He's a detective, and a good one," Bob pulled him inside the room and closed the door. "Say, you're helping the electrician, aren't you? Think we could fix it so that everyone would pass in front of a big light—to show off their costumes or something?"

PAT thought a minute, then he grinned. "Sure. Some of 'em dums would like nothin' better. I can put it up to the Duchess so she'll fall for it in a big way. Leave it to me. We'll rig up a regular shadow-box like's down at the night club, and give 'em one over in foine shape—or for foine shapes rather."

The night of the big ball, Kathleen listlessly put on her Irish peasant costume, and tied a green ribbon around her head. All the pleasure and excitement over the party had gone, because it was Professor Bracey who was to be her partner for the evening. Once or twice she had heard Bob and his dog pass her door and had hoped they would stop. But always they had gone on, while she reluctantly turned back to her desk.

Fittingly enough, Professor Bracey chose to come to the ball dressed as an Egyptian Pharaoh. Kathleen gasped with astonishment when she opened the door to the stately figure, whose black eyes only seemed to be alive. In his hand he carried a tiny statue of an Egyptian god.

"My!" she told him, "You actually gave me a start, you look so regal and—and so sinister."

"While you're so beautiful and young," he replied.

THE Duchess' huge studio had been transformed into a tropical garden, where brilliant birds fluttered among the palms and colorful flowers, and little fountains sprayed jets of water. The soft music of stringed instruments drifted dreamily over the whole scene, weaving a magic spell of glamour that suited the fantastic, colorful costumes of the guests.

"Like it, Colleen?" asked the tall classman coming up behind Kathleen.

For a minute she turned to him bewildered, then, "Bob! How wonderful you look! With your kilt and sporran and Glengarry bonnet. You must look exactly like some of your ancestors. What did Schmatz think of you?"

"Not much of the smell of moth balls, which my clothes have been packed in. I knew they had these duds at home, so I sent for them. My family is certain now that I am crazy. Want to walk around and give the place the once-over? Your Pharaoh seems to be busy with the Duchess. She beckoned to him when you came in. Get an eyeful of that big emerald she's wearing. It's tons with jewel connoisseurs, I understand."

KATHLEEN looked at their hostess, then her eyes widened in astonishment. "Did you ever see anything so amazing? No wonder she came dressed like a queen. She's more beautiful than anyone in the room."

Kathleen looked again at the Duchess, who was sitting on a marble seat before a bank of roses. Professor Bracey was leaning over her, his smoldering gaze on the beauty of her white neck and shoulders which her elaborate velvet costume displayed to the best advantage. Around her throat was a flashing necklace of diamonds, and lovely gems gleamed from the small train on her head. But the famous emerald surpassed them all. It hung from a thin chain low against her breast. Its magnificence was breath-taking.

"Not many men could resist her tonight, could they?" Kathleen asked a little wistfully. "And of course to a man of the world like Professor Bracey, she would be especially interesting."

Before Bob could reply, a swift dart of light came winging across the room from the bow of a huge electrical Cupid, which seemed to be hovering above the tall bank of ferns, and fell full on the Duchess and Bracey. This brought a burst of applause, and made the Pharaoh put up his hand as though to shield his eyes from the brightness.

"That—that's Pat up there," Bob told Kathleen. "He's working the beam from the Cupid's bow. Can't you imagine how that would appeal to his sentimental Irish soul? He was telling me about it yesterday. Since your other partner seems detained, how about dancing?" He held out his arms and they drifted away to a dreamy waltz, weaving in and out among the crowd of gypsies, nymphs, cowboys, Indians, and harlequins.

FOR Kathleen all the months of heartbreaking work and worry were swept away and she was conscious only of a feeling of ecstasy that Bob's arms were about her, and his eyes were looking into hers.

"Cutting in, McTavish, and the queen orders you into her presence," said the Egyptologist's voice behind them.

Bob scowled and reluctantly relinquished his partner, made his way to the side of the Duchess, who held out her hand and drew him down beside her.

"I've been waiting all evening to hear you say you love me, Bob dear," she began with regal audacity. "Most of the other men have already told me, but you're the only one who could really make it mean something to me."

Here was a dangerous woman with wealth and beauty and position, actually making love to him, an unknown writer. It was too ridiculous, too—

"You see I can't possibly believe you, Duchess, because I'm in love with someone else," he said slowly as though just realizing for the first time that this was so. "I'm in love with a girl who doesn't love me," he added.

Sport Glances. . . . . By Grayson

BY HARRY GRAYSON
 Sports Editor, NEA Service

NEW YORK—Gene Sarazen considers Ralph Guldahl's 281 in the United States Open at Oakland Hills the greatest golf exploit of the year—more impressive even than Henry Cotton's 290 in the British Open at Carnoustie.

Sarazen still can't figure how anybody could annihilate Oakland Hills as did Guldahl.

Yet the Squire of Valley Ridge Farm calls Cotton a finer shot-maker than Guldahl. He classes the Chicagoan as a streaky player—doesn't like the way he loosens his grip at the top of his swing.

Like everybody else, Sarazen rates Harry Cooper as this country's finest shotmaker, but says that Lighthorse Harry is less effective than Cotton because he lacks the Briton's physical strength and unwavering determination.

Cotton's long game has no equal in modern golf.

Sarazen asserts that Sam Snead has greater potentialities than any other American golfer, but points out that the young man from White Sulphur Springs must develop headwork if he doesn't want to wind up among the might-have-beens.

Courses are built for strong backs and thoughtful heads. The British contend that you've missed your shot if you hit a 240-yard drive straight down the middle into a bunker.

MANY of the so-called second-fighters hit the ball better than the top-fighters, but do not win championships because they park their brains in the locker room.

"Snead is a natural swinger, but plays too many dumb shots at critical moments," explains Sarazen.

"His judgment was poor at Carnoustie. I saw him take a brassie on the sixth hole, when he should have had a spoon, and pull the ball 70 yards off line and well beyond the green."

"Sam complained about driving into cross-ditches and mid-fairway traps, but the hazards could be seen plainly from the tees. None of the Carnoustie holes are blind."

SARAZEN chuckles about winning the Chicago Open, the biggest money event of the season.

They suspected that he was finished as a competitive golfer.

Sarazen reveals that his trouble of late years has been the inability to wage the uphill fights that made him famous—swept him to victory at Fresh Meadow and in many other major battles. He got away well in Chicago.

"In the old days a bad opening round acted like a shot in the arm for me," says the Italian. "I fought harder and played better golf when I had to come from behind."

Sarazen kicked away a hard-earned big time title by a stroke or two because of one bad hole, and fears that at this late date he gets to brooding over a mistake. He says it is something he must lick now that he has demonstrated that he wasn't as far from a comeback as some of the boys suspected.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—It is rather generally understood here now that Belgian Premier Van Zeeland's first visit to Washington had as his chief objective a loan for Germany.

What isn't so generally known is the extent to which interested nations, including the British government's leadership, have been peeved because Van Zeeland failed to impress even the elevator boys at the treasury.

Van Zeeland was asked by the British government to offer Britain's enthusiastic help in calling a world economic-arms conference if the United States would sponsor that German loan. Premier Neville Chamberlain had gathered the idea from Germany that she would try to be nice in European politics if she got the loan.

"THE PROGRESSIVE," a weekly describing itself as "LaFollette Magazine," the president of which is Senator Bob LaFollette and the secretary Gov. Phil LaFollette, both of Wisconsin, has started a poll reaching various states on the issue whether Franklin D. Roosevelt would seek a third term.

The question is: What was in the minds of the LaFollette boys, who are now allied with Roosevelt?

WEEK after week, usually in magazines and seldom by newspaper correspondents—who know better—those presidential candidates Tom Corcoran and Ben Cohen have been accused of hatching the plan to pack the Supreme Court.

Corcoran and Cohen, according to their friends, don't appreciate the accusation. They heard about it in the newspapers.

But the man who gets good and sore about those reports is Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, the Shrewd Connecticut Yankee, who actually sold the six-new-judges plan to Roosevelt and who is proud of that achievement.

Children's Free Reading Month Going Over Big:
 The Free Reading Month for children, established by Public Library, thru the active arrangement and support of Thursday Afternoon club, has assumed a most creditable existence, there being nearly twice as many children readers during this free month, as there were before this custom was established.

The taste of the young folk is very catholic and runs from tales of adventure to fairy stories, then out for life, and a little, but not much, romance.

A large edition of new books for children and two new magazines, coming periodically, are constantly called for.

The children have shown their liking for the free reading month. Sunday afternoon Mrs. W. A.

Martin, one of the group of chairmen for the library, visited the City Park with her family and saw two little fellows with their mother, the three sitting under the trees and reading. Incidentally she noted the books were from the library. When the children left they carefully gathered their books up, strapped them, and went happily off, down the hill.

Returns From Camp
 A group of Eastland young girls who attended the Y. W. C. A. Camp from Monday to Saturday, have returned with praises for their experience.

Misses Elizabeth Ann Sikes, Marie Plummer, Elaine Crossley, Donice Parker and Mava Lou Crossley, with Miss Virgie Sue Wyatt of Olden were motored to the camp by Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Crossley, who were enroute to their vacation in Galveston, and were called for Saturday by Mrs. Wyatt of Olden for their return journey.

Their activities included the "morning watch," a Bible study hour, classes in handicraft and first aid. Rhythmic games; courses in swimming and instruction in bicycling laws. The day closing with gospel service each night.

Moving Day:
 Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Brown moved Thursday to 103 Lena Street, to go to housekeeping.

Illinois Climate Grows 'Em Tall

Copyright, 1937, Herbert George. There must be something about the Illinois climate that produces proportions in both man and corn, such as shown above. Robert Wadlow, right, of Alton, 7 feet 7 inches tall, is shown as he admires a prize-winning stalk of corn standing 16 feet 2 inches tall at the Illinois State Fair at Springfield. If you don't think Robert or the corn is tall, compare them with the average-sized man standing at the left.

Mrs. Brown has finished her summer course at Hardin-Simmons and is prepared to resume her duties as a member of the faculty of South Ward school, in September.
