Nation's Production

Of Oil Has a Decline

HOUSTON, Sept. 11.—The nation's oil production declined 88-085 barrels daily this week, average 3,630,025 a day, the Oil Weekly estimated today. Texas wells averaged 1,481,400 barrels for the week ended today, a drop of 70,000 from last week.

This was still 87,000 more than the federal allocation.

HICKEY WELL

BIG FEATURE

OF OIL WEEK

Save for 100-barrel completion of the Hickey et al No. 1 W. M.
Martin near Desdemona in Erath county, the oil week ending Saturday in Eastland county and adjacent counties was less active than those recently.

Further activity in the area of the martin was already evidenced and other wells pending.

The Arnold Oil company No. 1, McMillen, 1,700 feet west of the Hickey, was drilling around 175 feet, 330 feet from the south and east lines of the T. H. Dixon survey, abstract 1,103, also in Erath county.

The Hickey operation flowed the 100 barrels production, testing 41.8, through two-inch tubing.
Total depth, it was stated, was 2,867, 12 feet in sand.

A well eight miles south of Gorman, but in Comanche county,
the W. J. Dobbs No. 1 V. B.
Hogges, section 11, H. & T. C. survey, block 2, was spudded and at last reported was down 110 feet.
Location is 330 feet from the north and 450 feet from the east line of the Hodges 170-acre farm.

Koonce Brothers of Gorman are drillers on the test, proposed to go to 3,000 feet. The well is in a block of approximately 2,500 acres. Glenn McDonald is field manager of the company drilling the test. Work will be done in daylight until 10-inch casing is set, it was stated. Then a night and day shift will be inaugurated.

In section 2,004 in the Texas
Emigration and Land company, Earnest Loyd of Fort Worth has staked location for No. 1 J. T.
McClure on the 120-acre farm in Palo Pinto county, five miles northeast from Graford.

A 1,500 test, the well is 600 feet from the east line and 1,300 feet from the south line.

Gallagher-Lawson et al No. 1
Mrs. Bobbie I. Terry, N. H. Kyukendall survey, was reported still underreaming at 4,165 feet. It is in Comanche county, 100 feet west over from Eastland county.

Phillips Petroleum company
No. 1 B. P. Cozart, M. Cherry survey, 330 feet from the north line and east line of the farm, was reported completing cellar and moving in material in Callahan county. Like the Gallagher-Lawson, Hickey No. 1 Martin and the Arnold Oil company McMillen, the Phillips Cozart is slightly over from the county line. The Cozart is in Callahan county, projected as a 4,000-foot test.

Warmakers Try New Brand of Whitewash

In the progressive world treaties on war, the most elusive chapter for the backhome observer is the one entitled "Propaganda."

When those stories—often told in pictures—were exposed, after the peace treaties, as fakes, American indignation knew no bounds.

Then came Italy's invasion of Ethiopia, the Rebel "crusade" in Spain and the Japanese push in north China.

Mussolini pioneered the new style of wartime misrepresentation in depicting that his Ethiopian war was to liberate the slaves and illiterates...

Both sides in the Spanish civil war have followed Il Duce's lead. Best trick of the Rebels is to issue dispatches describing mercy dole for women and children...

Not to be outdone, the Japanese now are wooing world sympathy with the same finesse. What a thrill of deep understanding is conveyed by a photograph of a bent and aged Chinaman offering a Japanese invader a cup of hot tea!

Thus has the new propaganda come into being. Knowing as well as anyone that war can not be supported by any stretch of reason...

Anyone impelled by these crafty devices to feel that even a warring army has a soul, or that bloody conquest is justifiable when its motives are honest and unselfish, should call a halt and begin looking for the joker.

After all, war is still war and in its fury it sweeps men, women and children alike to destruction. In the same way, propaganda is still propaganda.

Mrs. C. W. Hoffmann
 Honors Mrs. Brown
 Mrs. Virgil Brown, nee Lucille Brogdon, was the honoree of a lawn fete and gift shower Friday night at the home of the hostess, Mrs. C. W. Hoffmann.

Guests registered at the table, presided over by Miss Clara June Kimble and were received by the hostess, Mrs. Hoffmann and Mrs. Brogdon, mother of honoree; Mrs. June Kimble, her aunt, and Miss Lillian Smith of South Ward school faculty, and presented the bride, who was seated in state at the head of a large circle on the lawn.

The entertainment provided a series of "make believe" weddings, the first, enacted by Mrs. W. A. Martin as the bride, Mrs. F. M. Kenny the bridegroom and Mrs. W. S. Poe, the minister.

A similar parody was staged by Mesdames Herman Hague, Claud Maynard and Griffin.

An acrostic of good wishes that employed the bride's initials was featured. A style show brought a clever dialogue by Mesdames J. F. Sparks and Joe Stephen for the showing of "What the Well Dressed Bride is Wearing." Presenting Mesdames Frank Crowell, O'Brien Ed Willman, M. B. Griffin, L. Y. Morris and Miss Smith, in a series of "back woods" attire ranging from afternoon, evening, washday and housefrocks to bathing suits, the old fashioned kind.

In the patio, the bride found a clothes line heavy with linens, held in place by clothespin dolls in pastel colors. Miss Maxine Coleman presided over the huge block of ice, flower wreathed and decorated, and in which the punch was deliciously cold. Small cakes were served with the punch, partaken at intervals.

Mrs. Brown received a quantity of gifts in silver, crystal, china and linens. Mrs. Brown is of the South Ward school faculty and in recognition of her preferring marriage to a degree a joke was played and she was presented a large "degree" on a clever sheet of paper.

. . . The man who owns his home, even though he may be retiring a mortgage, keeps his taxes paid and his place in neat repair, is a good neighbor, a good friend and a good citizen.

. . . Success and good luck to these couples who are making the right start in life!

Madman's Island

CAST OF CHARACTERS
 KAY DEARBORN—heroine who inherits a yacht for vacation.
 MELITA HOWARD—Kay's roommate and co-adventurer.
 PRINCILLA DUNN—the third adventurer.
 FURBERT BROTHERS and GRANT HARPER—young scientists whose expedition turned out to be a rare experience.

Yesterday, showing unusual hospitality, the madman invites Kay and Grant to share a drink of wine. After an hour's absence he volunteers to tell them the strange story of this underground home.

CHAPTER XV

"THE story of these rooms?" Harper exclaimed. "We certainly would like to hear it, wouldn't we, Kay?"

She nodded, trying hard to fall into Harper's game of playing for time. And despite her fears, she found herself curious about this strange place beneath the wood, and his stranger occupant.

"It is quite a story," the man said. "I do not believe I have ever told it before. But now—now there is no real reason why I should not tell it. Furthermore..." (he smiled again in that peculiar way that froze Kay's heart) "it will do no harm to tell it to you two."

"You see," he went on, "many years ago there was a man named DeWitt Montgomery who came from England. That was before the days of swift transportation—and before people in private matters were likely to invade one's privacy. He saw the island during a hunting and fishing trip, and he liked it very much. He brought a group of workmen to build him this underground apartment."

"His theory was that during the day he would enjoy the natural beauties of nature above ground. At night, he reasoned, it would make no difference whether he slept above or below ground. And this had another advantage—important one—if strangers happened to land here, they were likely to find no evidence of occupancy. The workmen, of course, decided that DeWitt Montgomery was insane. All of them left quickly, as soon as they were finished and paid. One story has it that none ever left at all..."

"THE narrator chuckled, left the fire to settle into one of the big chairs from which he started at Kay and Harper. "In any event, Montgomery's eccentricities were quickly forgotten. The island was forgotten, too, for it was off the passenger boat lane, and only a few hunters and fishermen saw it. "So DeWitt Montgomery lived here. For food he planted a garden, made traps, and did some fishing and hunting. Whenever he needed anything from outside he ordered it by mail, going in a canoe to the nearest settlement eight miles south. Sometimes an order would take months to reach him—but he didn't mind. Gradually the place was just about as he wanted it. Not, of course, as comfortable as now—because that was a great many years ago. He had no electric lights, no air conditioning."

The man was silent a moment, staring at the two young people before him. Kay stirred uncomfortably, glancing toward Grant Harper. He was sitting easily in the big leather chair, his eyes fixed pleasantly on their "host."

"Please go on," Harper invited. Slowly the man passed a hand over his face, seemed to resume with an effort. "DeWitt Montgomery was a studious man. He went on, waving an arm toward one of the doors. "I still have his library. Naturally, in a place like this, living by himself, he had a great deal of time for study. He developed many ideas which, no doubt, the outside world thought mad. And—this was his crowning achievement—he developed a new religion."

The man paused again, allowing this information to settle in the minds of his listeners. "After all, there is nothing so strange about that. Why should we always accept the religions of the past? Why wasn't DeWitt Montgomery inspired as well as man another? Don't you agree?"

"He must certainly have been a remarkable fellow," answered Harper with well simulated enthusiasm. "What were the tenets of this religion?"

"THE narrator sighed. "It would take a long while to explain them. It is a religion not to be taken lightly, not to be learned swiftly, as children learn in Sunday school. Suffice it to say that DeWitt Montgomery was chosen to disseminate its good upon this earth."

"He had a well defined plan for doing this. His idea was to teach it to women who would in turn go out and spread its gospel. He then I made the improvements which you enjoy, and which you have been so kind to admire." "Might I ask your name?" suggested Harper. "Certainly, I am DeWitt Montgomery."

The man rose slowly, went back to the roaring fire at the hearth, and stood silently. "And was his plan successful?" asked Harper quietly.

"The other shook his head. "No..." he said. "You see, the women all fell ill. Perhaps it was the rigorous winters of the island. Perhaps some taint in the water, to which DeWitt Montgomery had become immune. At any rate, all died. One by one they came in answer to his advertisements in the English and Australian newspapers—and never left the island."

Kay paled. Involuntarily she gasped out, "You mean that they all—"

"All except one," the man interrupted with strange swiftness. "One returned to England. Unfortunately she had not grasped the meaning of DeWitt Montgomery's teachings. She brought charges against him, claiming that he had investigated the women into settlements as to their money, then murdered them."

"Do you believe she was right?" asked Harper quietly, reaching for a cigarette from the little table.

"THE man shrugged. "Who are we to say? After so long a time it would be futile to argue that little point, would it not? Nevertheless the law came to the island to take DeWitt Montgomery into custody. DeWitt Montgomery was taken back to England and put into prison. Perhaps you both were too young at the time to remember the newspaper articles. As are all great religious leaders, Montgomery was misunderstood. People insisted in believing that he had tried to operate a love cult. They called him a murderer and a rascal and his trial was quick. Yet he escaped death because so little could be proved, and he was committed to life imprisonment."

"You see, I happened to know this story—and in more recent years, when this government put the island up for sale, I bought it. Then I made the improvements which you enjoy, and which you have been so kind to admire." "Might I ask your name?" suggested Harper. "Certainly, I am DeWitt Montgomery."

 Wednesday, testimonial service, 8 p. m.
 Public cordially invited.
 "Substance" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, Sept. 12.
 The Golden Text is: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty" (1 Chronicles 29:11).
 Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Wisdom and knowledge shall be the stability of thy times, and strength of salvation: the fear of the Lord is his treasure" (Isaiah 33:6).
 The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following message from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Substance is that which is eternal and incapable of discord and decay... Spirit, the synonym of Mind, Soul, or God, is the only real substance" (page 468).

CHOICES IN A NATION'S LIFE

Weekly Sunday School Lesson
Text: Deuteronomy 11:8-12, 26-32

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
 Editor of Advance

THE teachings of this lesson on choices and their consequences in a nation's life are set forth very clearly and simply. The children of Israel were facing the prospect of entrance into the promised land. It offered them the opportunity of a land flowing with milk and honey; it was a land of hills and valleys, with fruitful fields watered by the rain of heaven.

But the children of Israel were facing this land with its opportunity with two clear choices before them, and with the alternative plainly stated of blessing or of curse. If they gave themselves to the commandments of God and other observance of right principles, there was before them the prospect of blessing; if they turned from these commandments to selfish and evil ways, if they established corrupt worship in place of truth and right, there was for them only a curse, rather than a blessing.

It turned out in the history of Israel exactly as these prophetic words foretold. Ruin and destruction came upon the people when they forgot God, and turned to their own selfish and evil ways. Yet, in exile and in adversity, when the people really turned to God, a glory shone upon the nation even in its seeming defeat.

THESE things have not changed. Nations and peoples today are confronted with exactly the same choice and with exactly the same consequences.

Wrong and evil courses in America are just as sure as American society will be in the life of the people, while the turning hearts and minds to right principles and sound conduct bring us blessing just as upon any people devoted selves heart and soul and right.

Sound laws and order, the setting of the feet of all against the welfare of few, regard for justice, care for the lowliest, consideration for the weakest and most in need of God's bounty, the widest and deepest needs—these are the things that bring blessing in the lives of the people. These are the things that are associated with the blessing of God and the satisfaction of his goodness. How can one teach claim these things so will take deeper hold today and turn the hearts of people from selfishness to consideration for the welfare of all? A nation's choice has in the choices of individuals are influenced by the attitude of the whole which they live. Sound education and ideal where education and have a profound part in so teaching and inspiring that they may value the right and choose the right.

Sport Glances. By Grant

BY RICHARD McCANN
 NEA Service Sports Writer

IT does a man's heart good to read about fellows like Johnny Goodman getting something out of life. Johnny, you know, won the National Amateur golf tournament. He was one of three amateurs he had won in his life, and a hatfoot boy toting a heavy bag up hill and down for him across the railroad track.

Some day, the little boy had thought, I'm going to win the Walker Cup team, and win the National Amateur. The boy grew older and now he's done all three.

The story of Johnny Goodman is not a new one. It's as old as 1492. It's the typical American story of a man with a rising above the squalor and hardships of cruel poverty. He is the golfing counterpart of boxing's Jack Dempsey, the rails and scratched the prairies for a living; of Frankie Parker, born to a poor garbage truck driver; and of Dizzy Dean, who picked cotton in the steaming sun until he got out that there was magic and might in his lanky right arm.

GOODMAN came out of a cabin in the packing house of Omaha. He was one of nine children. His father was a man getting something out of life. Johnny's mother worked to support the hungry little brood. . . .

One day Johnny happened to climb atop a freight car some men with funny, skinny sticks hitting balls up and wide, long lawn. Johnny found out that the boys who were the men were paid for carrying those bags of sticks. So Johnny became a caddy and helped out at home.

He played his first round of golf with a rather sad left-hand iron that he had picked up and patched up after an iron had splintered it against a tree. . . .

It took him two years to collect his first full set of club warped, second hand antiques, which had seen better days better golfers. . . .

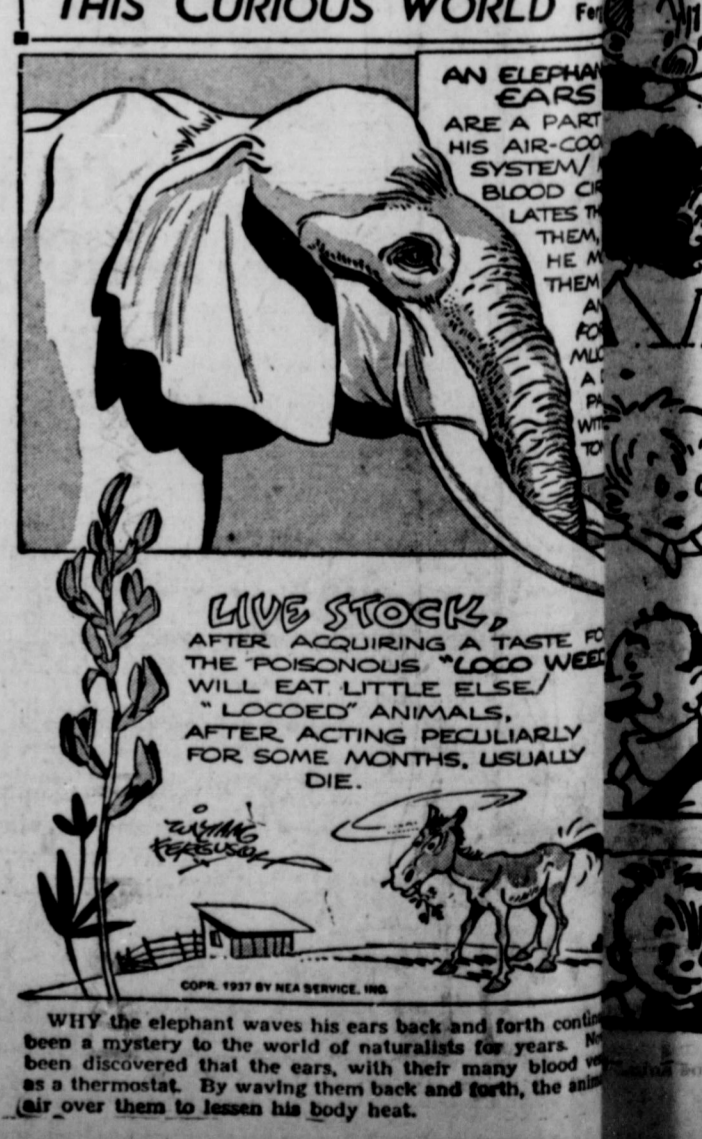

THE historians say that Johnny rode the rails to get to earlier major tournaments. But Johnny says this instead, he traveled in ease. . . . "in a nice, comfortable car, the end of a cattle train."

He rode to the 1929 Amateur in rather stylish fashion, a passenger in a swanky 1925 model jalopy. This smart mode of travel had its effect. You see that was the tournament Johnny defeated the great Bobby Jones, 1 up, in the first hole had started out on his journey without breakfast. When home he was the guest of honor at 11 o'clock breakfast. . . .

But he has thirsted for the glory that goes with being a tournament champion. Several times he has been on the verge of time the lassie that's known as Luck has snubbed him. . . .

He was not to be denied this year. And, to be sure, golfers who join him in his rejoicing. You can't help but get hole in Success.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

LET'S KNOW TEXAS - TEXANS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Mayes, Austin, Texas.

Q. What was the first name given to the city of Victoria?

A. Mexicans called it Las Sabinas, which American settlers translated into Cypress Grove. The county and city were renamed Victoria by Martin de Leon, the empresario, in honor of Guadalupe Victoria, an assumed name for Juan Felix Fernandez, first president of the Republic of Mexico.

Q. Are all Indian mounds in Texas Indian burial places?

A. Many mounds that are supposed to be Indian burial places prove, when opened, to be kitchen middens, where Indians piled bones, trash, ashes and refuse of all kinds, which they covered with dirt to keep down offensive odors. Midden is an archaic word to describe these refuse heaps.

Q. What Texas school claims to have the largest mess hall in the world?

A. Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, where more than 9,000 meals are served to students daily.

Q. Where was Camp San Elisario?

A. San Elisario, a former military camp, and now a town on the Rio Grande river, about 22 miles below El Paso between Sleta and Fabens, was established as a Spanish presidio in 1718, and in 1850 was garrisoned by U. S. troops, but was abandoned after a few years and reoccupied by the California Volunteers in 1862.

Q. What was the name of the large pleasure boat on the lake at Austin prior to the destruction of the Austin Dam, and what became of it?

A. Ben Hur, the boat being dashed to pieces in the flood of April 10, 1900, that destroyed the dam. The Ben Hur could accommodate several hundred passengers and was the scene of many dances and other brilliant entertainments that attracted people from all parts of Texas.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS - By Blosser

Q. What Texas town boasts a rosebush in every yard?

A. Quite appropriately, Rosebud makes and sustains that claim.

Q. Cotton is grown in all parts of Texas?
 A. Cotton is grown in all but 14 counties and could be successfully produced in these.
