MAJOR BATTLE IN CHINA IS NOW STARTING

By United Press
HANGHAI, Aug. 5.—A major battle, probably the largest of the new-Japanese struggle to date, is developing tonight along the Ping-Suiyuan railway north of Shanghai. The Japanese are following 24 hours of continuous bombing by Japanese airplanes Japanese brigade prepared to attack the re-inforced Chinese 11th Division.

Chinese said that damage to the railway inflicted by Japanese bombs had been repaired as "fast they occurred."
Sporadic explosions were heard Peiping, indicating the rival forces were exchanging artillery.

The Chinese held a line across a river which is shallow and are riding the railway, protecting the strategic entrance to the north. Their position is so strong that Japanese frontal attack was considered unlikely.
Indications were the situation was moving slowly toward a major battle.

ROOSEVELT TO GIVE AID TO PRICE PEGGING

By United Press
WASHINGTON, August 5.—President Roosevelt told cotton states congressmen today that if congress will assure him that farm crop control legislation will be considered next January he will take action toward a crop loan program at the present session.

The president's statement was made to eight representatives of a bloc of southern congressmen who had threatened to impede other administration legislation unless a farm price stabilization law is enacted this session.

Mr. Roosevelt said that assurance that congress would consider crop control legislation next session, should come from senate or house leaders, or from a democratic caucus pledge.

The congressional group called at the white house to urge the president to agree to crop loans, particularly on cotton, despite Mr. Roosevelt's former statement he believed a general farm program should be adopted first.

Chief concern of the delegation resulted in recent decreases in prices of farm products. This suggested that government loans such as made in previous years would aid in stabilizing prices.

Long-Term Planning for Public Health

For a great many generations, people regarded their physical ailments as something set apart for medical men alone to cure. There was no general moral compulsion to take interest in disease beyond submitting it to a man who knew how to deal with it.

Fortunately, through the efforts of leaders in the medical profession itself, a new attitude has come into existence; an attitude based on the responsibility of the individual to know exactly what causes disease, what he can do to avoid getting it, or once having it, how best to co-operate with the doctor in getting rid of it.

The question of public health, therefore, is becoming as much a matter of public policy as wages, working hours, or living costs. But it is a mistake to think that adopting the attitude settles the matter and has we are thus automatically ushered into an era of freedom from bodily ills.

Just released, the report of the Hospital Survey for New York indicates another big step necessary to the final success of the new public health policy.

The public already has an immense investment in hospitals and allied institutions, the report points out. And while this investment has been made with the best of intentions, it has been made haphazardly. The result is that in many cases the benefits are not properly distributed, facilities of many hospitals are never fully used, and new and more efficient methods of fighting disease are not placed universally within reach of the people.

In the light of expanding knowledge in medical science the hospital is an indispensable public utility because of the wide variety of resources for diagnosis and treatment that it offers.

For that reason, the report emphasizes that the organized care of the sick a generation hence will best be provided for by the orderly growth and co-ordination of present facilities.

Now the great majority of institutions for the care of the sick are provided and maintained by taxes or voluntary contributions of the local population. This, then, places the duty of forwarding a great humanitarian work directly upon those individuals who make up each community.

Untold sums of money and the genius of qualified experts have been turned to the co-ordination of our endeavors in many other fields, commercial, cultural, and philanthropic.

It seems that it would be good economy, as well as good sense, that the public health, through our facilities for guarding it, should have the same advantages.

On a sitdown strike, New Jersey gravediggers have been staying nights in a cemetery. It seems a problem that could be settled by arbitration or a "boo."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox, NEA Service Staff Writer

MEN may neglect their wives for their business, but women at this time of year often neglect everything else for canning. While the rest of the world is preparing for the next war, American housewives are preparing for next winter.

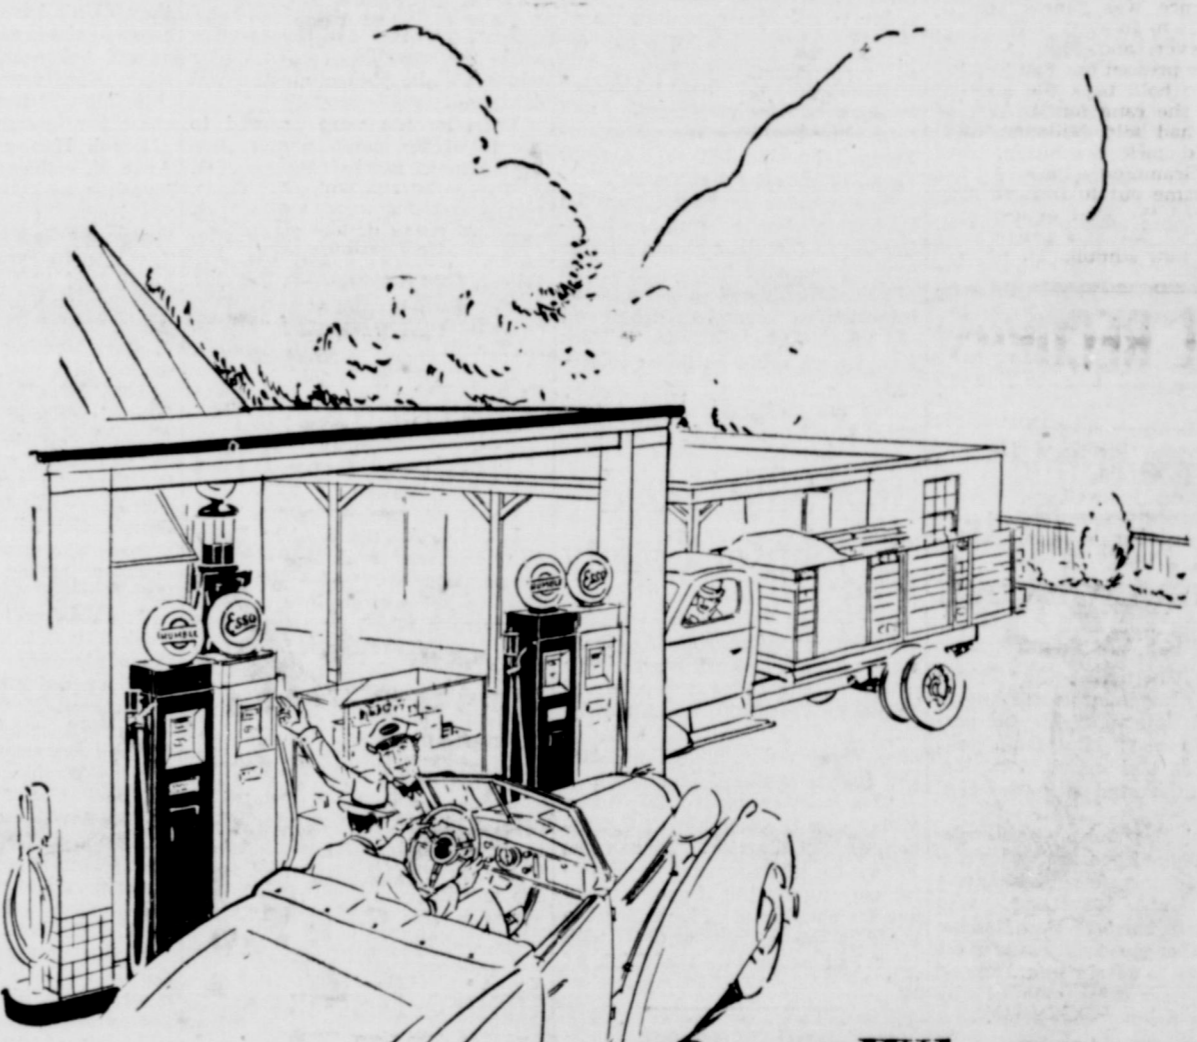

The only thing wrong with jams and jellies is that there aren't always enough of them on the shelves. Faddists rant about their harmful qualities. Expert dieticians deny. According to high authorities, jellies and jams having fruits and sugar in them are not only rich in flavor, but have high energy content and are easy to digest. They are particularly good for active children at breakfast and luncheon along with other foods.

Pectin Dictates Do you know your pectin? That knowledge is the beginning of sweet wisdom. A good jelly is made with juice that contains ample proportions of sugar, acid and pectin. Many delectable fruits are deficient in pectin and require a friendly lift from other fruits or from bottled or boxed commercial pectin. These fruits are usually unreliable on the pectin side—peaches, pineapple, cherries and rhubarb. But apples, crabapples, currants, grapes, quinces and plums are as reliable as Old Dog Tray.

Selecting fruit for preserving is a lot like selecting a man for marriage. There may be more sweetness or more acid than you bargained for. In other words, don't rely on a set formula for success—you must test out your fruit for its acid, sugar and pectin and change your basic recipe according to your luck in the lottery. Too many jelly makers la-

Sport Glances. By Grayson

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON—Having seen the American golf and tennis teams, the British now turn their eyes toward the United States because T. O. M. Sopwith once more is over there with a yacht, Endeavour II, with which he hopes at long last to lift the America's Cup in the series off Newport, starting July 31.

It always seems to be a British Tommy who challenges Uncle Sam's yachtmen. For years it was Tommy Lipton. Now it is Tommy Sopwith. Ten supplied Sir Thomas Lipton with the kale necessary for such an expensive sport as the America's Cup lifting. Airplanes are the foundation and mainstay of the Sopwith fortunes.

All his life Sopwith has been playing about or working with things that motor engines will make go and all his life he seems to have spent coming over to America to lick or try to lick the best the U. S. A. could put up against him.

His father was a brilliant engineer. He had seven daughters in succession. Then Mrs. Sopwith presented him with a boy. So one of this child's names was made Octave and he was at once destined by his proud parents to be an engineer like his father. He went to Seaford Engineering College.

THROUGH with school, Sopwith for a time worked with motor cars, but they did not interest him for long.

He began to tinker with boats, into one of which he fitted a motor engine. The thing ran. He called it the Maple Leaf.

He took Maple Leaf to the United States and defeated many of the crack motor boats there.

In 1910, a year after getting his pilot's certificate, he won a $20,000 prize offered by Baron de Forest for the longest flight from England to the continent of Europe.

With that money he founded the Sopwith Aviation Co. at Kingston. He visited America once more and flew against American competitors, licking a lot of them in Boston, New York, and Chicago.

When the World War started Germany had a long lead on all its enemies, not only so far as a big army was concerned, but also with airplanes.

Sopwith had been busy manufacturing planes for the English army. He was famous by queer animal names—Pup, Snipe, Dolphin, Salamander.

THEN one fine day Sopwith handed over to the army a unique plane with a hump. He called it a Camel. It was a fighter and faster than the Gothas. It could pursue and bring down Gothas. From that time German superiority in the air began to vanish.

After the war Sopwith became associated in business with Harry Hawker.

With a companion, Hawker was one of the first entrants in the $50,000 trans-Atlantic flight financed by the Daily Mail.

Hawker and his associate had to land in mid-Atlantic and were rescued by a Danish steamer. He was killed in 1921 while making a test flight at Hendon.

Before that he had founded an airplane company the name of which was manufacturing military planes. It still exists as the Hawker Siddeley Aviation Co. Its chairman is Sopwith.

Hawker machines will play a large part in Britain's aircraft forces. Sopwith's business is making them.

Sopwith's play is trying to lift the America's Cup.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By HERBERT HOOPER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Herbert Hoover stayed in New York on his last visit far longer than any but his closest friends suspected.

He held forth as an elder statesman of the Republican party, he conducted a long series of conferences with party leaders from various states at his tower apartment at the Waldorf. Hoover sought support for an early convention of some sort between 1936 and 1937.

This was the latest episode in a Landon-Hoover feud which began, perhaps, when Hoover made his speech at the last Republican convention, and the Landon leader, who would develop a conservative Republican policy and at the same time re-establish his own power and prestige.

Ex-Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas completely spoiled the whole party by flatly refusing to attend any such convention.

Landon was the latest episode in a Landon-Hoover feud which began, perhaps, when Hoover made his speech at the last Republican convention, and the Landon leader, who would develop a conservative Republican policy and at the same time re-establish his own power and prestige.

During the campaign Hoover made two speeches. Landon didn't want him to make any. Landon didn't even want to see Hoover after the nomination and didn't, until Roy Roberts of the Kansas City Star persuaded him. Landon felt Hoover was bad medicine for the party and Hoover felt insulted at his attitude.

Landon has always been more or less sympathetic to much of the New Deal, although some of his advisers led him away from such positions in the campaign.

More may be heard from this feud. Hoover can exert control over a conservative majority of his party's national committee.

It is true that Senator George Berry of Tennessee has resigned as president of Labor's Nonpartisan League, but it is not quite clear when the event occurred.

The league is the beginning of a possible sometime Labor party. C. I. O. leaders John Lewis and Sidney Hillman put Berry in charge of it because he was president of the A. F. of L.'s Pressmen's Union, and would take away some of the C. I. O. flavor. Berry was appointed a senator May 6 to fill a vacancy. A week or two later Lewis and Hillman went into conference with him. They suggested in a nice way that it might be better not to have a Democratic senator as head of an organization whose very name insisted on its nonpartisanism. They left with the impression that Berry would announce his resignation or write a letter about it within the next day or two.

Youths Here Honor

Departing Members: The home at 320 West Commerce street of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Allison was the scene of a recent evening gathering of young folks invited by the hosts, John Lovell Allison, and Percy Harris Jr., to spend an "au revoir" hour with Wortham Seale Jr., and Ralph Crouch Jr., who left for Odessa a few days ago.

Music by Percy Harris and the radio and merry games prefaced the gift shower presented the honor guests.

The personnel included friends and classmates. The refreshments of ice cream and angel food cake, were served by the mothers of the young hosts, assisted by Misses Verne Ella Allison and Winifred Pitzer. Plate favors were large lemon drops.

The living and dining rooms were opened for the occasion and decorated with California marigolds, ferns and verbenas. Mrs. Allison and Mrs. Harris presented to each of the honor boys, bouquets of flowers in appreciation of their mothers.

Personnel: Misses Marjorie Murphy, Fannie Pitzer, Maxine O'Neill, Melba Ruth Wood, Winifred Pitzer, Gladys Hoffmann, Verne Ella Allison, Edith Allison, Ralph Crouch Jr., Wortham Seale Jr., J. D. Pitcock, John L. Allison, Percy Harris. Others were unable to attend on account of sickness.

Free Reading Months For Children Here

August, the "Free Reading Month" given the children by Eastland Public Library, has again rolled around and children are invited to take advantage of this chance to browse in the library, use the comfortable reading room and select their books.

A big stock of new books for children has been received lately and includes, the Junior Library Guild output, to which the library subscribes.

The library days are Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and each week until the first library day in September, books will be free to children.

The month of July was one of the best reading months the library has had in a long time, showing an increased list of readers from out of town as well as locally.

The library chairman for Thursday Afternoon club, Mrs. J. M. Perkins, and Library committee, Mrs. R. A. Larner and W. A. Martin, stress, the many new books bought in readiness for the children's free reading month.

Eastland Party Off To the West

A motor party traveling in the Hamner car, left at five o'clock Tuesday morning on their way to Colorado, on a two weeks' vacation.

Texas Efforts to Court Industries Are Mostly Local

DALLAS. — Citing a contract noted by the Beaumont Enterprise "between the new Louisiana spirit and the Texas attitude toward new industries," a report of the All-South Development Council today pointed out lack of statewide participation in efforts to attract new industries to Texas as being "similarly in contrast to the Louisiana drive."

The selection of Ernest Lee Jahneke, former assistant secretary of the Louisiana Board of Commerce and Industry was termed "another indication of the new spirit that is abroad in Louisiana, which is conducting an aggressive and successful campaign to increase her industries."

"One of the strongest inducements Louisiana offers for investment of outside capital in new industries is a 10-year tax exemption. Louisiana wants new industries and stands ready to make it worth their while to locate in that state," the paper said. "Texas talks a good deal about attracting new manufacturing enterprises, and some efforts are made to this end, but the attitude in Texas, it must be confessed, is different from that in Louisiana."

Describing Louisiana's program as "a challenge to Texas and other states which hope to benefit by the extension of northern industries into the South, the paper concludes that "the only way for a state to get new industries is to go after them and offer substantial inducements. Capital responds to good treatment, even as human beings do."

That Texas needs to offer "substantial inducements," especially in the form of tax exemptions, in order to be attractive to either outside or local capital, is debatable, in view of her natural advantages, and the possible unfairness to establish industries in tax-exempting newcomers, says the council's report.

However, the efforts being made in Texas to attract new enterprises are confined to certain "industry-conscious" cities and regions—with negligible statewide participation in the effort, despite a growing recognition of the need.

A renunciation of the Texas legislative habit of depending on punitive, single-shot natural resource tax measures to carry pyramiding state financial burdens—a habit which cannot help discourage industries otherwise looking favorably upon prospective Texas locations—would tend to put Texas on a better competitive basis with her sister state, which "already has signed contracts with some two dozen corporations to build plants estimated to cost $250,000,000," in the bidding for new industries, the report concludes.

C.M.T.C. Riflemen Practice for Matches

FORT SAM HOUSTON.—Candidates for places in the Civilian Military Training Camp matches at the National Rifle Matches, Camp Perry, Ohio, during the period August 22 to Sept. 11, are sighting along rifle barrels in five C. M. T. Camps in the Eighth Army Corps area.

Col. E. A. Keyes, civilian components officer, said 31 men would be selected from the Eight Army Corps Area. Tryouts will be held among members of the squad of 31, he said, and a crack team of 10 men with one alternate. A regular army officer as team coach will accompany the team to Camp Perry.

ROOSEVELT INTRUDER GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y. — Charged with stealing boat models from the home of Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt, at Hyde Park, Samuel McWhinney pleaded guilty to unlawful entry and was sentenced to 11 months and 27 days in the county jail.

A Philadelphia advised fencing for grace and poise, but that doesn't help a congressman. His big problem is now how to jump, but which way.

Three Men Control Greatest Commodity In Entire World

BY RICHARD M. MOREHEAD United Press Staff Correspondent FORT WORTH.—Three men—members of the Texas Railroad Commission—who administer regulatory laws for the world's greatest oil supply, control probably the most valuable commodity in the world.

The three men are elected by Texas' 1,000,000 voters and the term is six years, although all have served more than a single term. Chairman of the commission now is C. V. Terrell, and members are Col. Ernest O. Thompson and Lon A. Smith.

Once each month they issue a general order, authorizing each of the state's 70,000 wells its prorata share of oil to be produced during the following month. The estimate is based on market demand, as estimated by the United States Bureau of Mines and on the amount of oil in storage.

For July 1, and the next 30 days with minor changes, these three ordered a daily production of 1,385,476 barrels in Texas—one-fourth of all the oil produced in the world. If permitted to produce all they could, those 70,000 Texas wells could literally flood the market with oil—ruining the market for a precious commodity.

The Texas conservation system has been developed in a little more than four years, but already its efficiency has been proclaimed by the World Petroleum Congress at Paris as "the greatest program of conservation by law, one that has not been approached anywhere else on the globe."

"So effective has the program proved," Col. Thompson told the Congress, "that all need for federal regulation of the oil industry has vanished, and there exists only a federal statute to prevent interstate violation of the regulations promulgated by each state."

"In fact, so far has state control advanced that the National Congress this June saw fit to extend the life of this statute for two years only, indicating that at the end of that period further necessity for federal assistance would exist no longer."

While Texas holds the balance of power for oil in the United States—and indirectly for the world—the lack of petroleum may help Europe keep its peace, said Thompson, a colonel during the World War.

The mechanized armies of the world need oil—which makes gasoline for the airplanes, tanks and tractors. The navies need crude for fuel.

Just how important is the oil industry in helping keep peace probably will be contained in the report which American delegates to the World Petroleum Congress will make to Secretary of State Cordell Hull. At the moment, Roumania is the controlling factor on the "oil for war" market, although its reservoir is small compared to the oil pools of Texas, Thompson said.

Auto Thieves Now Steal Older Models

By United Press HOUSTON. — Automobile thieves are turning from shiny new models to cars creaking with age, police report, because of soaring scrap iron prices resulting from foreign construction and armament programs.

A small 1924 model car nets the thief about $50 when broken up and sold to junk dealers, it was estimated.

DIZZY SPELLS

How To Help The Passing Of Women's Most Critical Years — 40 to 50.

"I suffered from dizziness for years and decided to try Kruschen. Of course I know it is my age that is the cause of it all. I am 47 but I have been told this and that would help me so I tried all I could but still had the same old dizziness. Now I'm on my 3rd jar of Kruschen and don't get dizzy nearly so often. I used to get so muddled at times. Now I feel different—altogether much better. There must be hundreds of women like me. They must stick to Kruschen every morning." Mrs. L. B. N., August 24, 1934.

Kruschen Salts is sold the world over—millions of jars a year. If you want to help avoid headaches, dizziness, smothering spells, weakness, fits of depression—if you want to keep feeling more healthy and happy—up and about your work—take a third teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning.

Take it for 30 days and if not joyfully satisfied get your money back. — Tombs & Richardson, Drugs.
