Proper Dusting of Cotton Is Approved

Proper dusting of cotton to control boll weevils and flea hoppers is a paying practice, A. C. Cooper of Rising Star and G. C. Bennett of Kokomo have reported County Agent Elmo V. Cook. Cooper reported cotton dusted with calcium arsenate to control boll weevils to be heavily loaded with mature bolls while cotton not dusted promises to yield only about 2 as much lint per acre. Bennett reports convincing results in favor of dusting with phosphorus to control the flea hopper. He started the dusting after the hoppers had knocked all the cotton off the bottom half of the plant, then the plant set a crop of cotton in the top. The bottom half of the cotton stalks, explained the agent, are bare of bolls while the top half is well filled with cotton.

Pegging the Cotton Price at 12 Cents

Tumbling prices in face of the bumper crop, and the President's agreement to place a 12-cent-a-pound foundation under each bale raised in the United States, apparently has reopened a straight road for the crop control of cotton.

Three reasons are usually given for the present plight of the cotton farmer.

First there is the world race for self-sufficiency which has led almost every nation on the globe to planting cotton, either in its homeland or in territorial possessions. Italy has Ethiopia and Libya and Japan has Manchukuo, to name only two.

Second is the entrance of other countries, notably in South America, into the world cotton market. Price pegging in the United States on one hand, and cheaper production basis in foreign countries on the other hand, have placed U. S. cotton under an almost fatal handicap.

Third is the U. S. tariff barrier which has been raised against importation of goods from other countries through which they once offset a balance in trade with tremendous purchases of cotton.

There is still another fact sometimes pointed—that much of the Old South has so depleted its soil with constant cotton crops that the product is not the excellent long staple of half a century ago. Newer cotton lands farther west, however, do produce cotton that compares with any grown in the world.

The President's bargain with Congress, whereby he agreed to the 12-cent peg in return for a promise that crop control would be restored at the next session, was pretty expensive.

The loans to be made, probably at nine cents a pound, will not necessarily cost the government anything. They will be made to all farmers agreeing to sign up for cotton control the following year, but cotton is not expected to drop below nine cents a pound. The money is loaned through commercial banks and is all on a call basis, underwritten by federal signatures. By placing the lending on call with the crop held as security, the government can regulate marketing by the simple process of calling loans when necessary.

Subsidy payments to bring the price up to 12 cents a pound will, however, cost the government an estimated 150 million dollars, even if the payments are made on only 65 per cent of this year's output.

To become eligible for this subsidy, the farmer must prove to the satisfaction of the AAA that he is complying with the government's crop control program. To cinch the bargain and to be positive the control program is carried out, the subsidy will not be paid, probably, until the new crop is in the ground and the acreage measured.

Big sums in government expenditure don't mean much any more, they come so frequently, but $150,000,000 is still a lot of money to pay out as a palliative. If the expenditure paves the way to a permanent solution for the cotton farmers' problem, that will be different.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE
 Written Exclusively for This Paper and NEA Service, Inc.

THE Republicans are the opposition. And as dissatisfaction develops with the methods and failures of the New Deal, the Republican party will be the only place for dissatisfied voters to go. To regain first the confidence of the people and then control of the government, the Republican party must do several things.

It must develop a genuine and realistic 20th century Republicanism. It must have a personnel at its national conventions which will include actual representation of the rank and file of the people. This country no longer votes for parties. It votes for men—or women. Platforms usually are about the same. The Republican platform last year proposed at least as much to labor, for instance, as did the Democratic platform. And the Republican party can get the vote of the working man, which it conspicuously failed to get in the last election, if it puts up the candidate who will convince labor of his sincerity.

LABOR continues to be non-partisan. There is no doubt that a larger Republican congressional contingent will be elected in 1938 than in 1936 and it is reasonable to suspect that some of them will have labor support. Personally, I don't make routine speeches damning the New Deal. I have no quarrel with its larger aims, but I do insist that Roosevelt and the Democratic Congresses have not achieved results. The President in the recent session of Congress placed all his executive energy on attempts to enlarge the executive power and spent practically none at all in improving the condition of the people. I have accepted the fact since the last election that the administration aims are almost unanimously accepted by the people. But let's achieve them! And let's achieve them within the Constitution. The strong tendency toward enlargement of executive power still continues, although it has been checked in certain of its extreme manifestations. The Republican party is the only instrument which can check it adequately.

NEXT: Representative Maury Maverick, dynamic Texas congressman, outlines a definite program for the future, a goal to which all must work, regardless of politics.

FIVE MINUS TWO LEAVES FOUR

Wrong, Well, yes—and no. The arithmetic of your school days taught that "If Mary had five dollars and spent two..." three dollars remained.

But that is mathematics—not shopping! In managing a home... guarding a limited family income... we've simply got to do better than Mary did. We must sharpen our buying wits... ascertain where the dollars of extra value lurk... take five dollars to town and get much more for the money spent.

Fortunately, there are ever-willing guides right at hand—the advertisements in this newspaper. Advertised merchandise is often exceptional value merchandise. It makes dollars S-T-R-E-T-C-H.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox NEA Service Staff Writer

SOONER or later every household has an invalid. A sick child is difficult to feed, a sick husband even more so. But it is all part of family life and must be done with skill and patience. Keep the invalid happy—feed him regularly, cheerfully, and make his food so attractive that he cannot resist it.

When the doctor says, "Give him a liquid diet" he means fruit juices of all kinds, water ices and poached eggs on toast, stewed apricots, tea or milk.

When the doctor says your patient may have a light diet, he means that you may serve everything the family eats except meat. When he orders a full general diet for the patient, he means that things are coming along and that the patient may eat everything the family eats except pork and veal.

In serving food to invalids, always give small quantities. Serve more if wanted, but never try to get everything in on one serving. The invalid appetite may rebel and refuse everything. Keep the tray spotless, interesting, even gay. A flower on the napkin, a toy from the five and ten cent store for children, a late news paper for the adult invalid—all these things will help you accomplish your purpose. And the purpose is to nourish your patient back to vigorous health.

Keep the tray spotless, interesting, even gay. A flower on the napkin, a toy from the five and ten cent store for children, a late news paper for the adult invalid—all these things will help you accomplish your purpose. And the purpose is to nourish your patient back to vigorous health.

When the doctor says your patient may have a light diet, he means that you may serve everything the family eats except meat. When he orders a full general diet for the patient, he means that things are coming along and that the patient may eat everything the family eats except pork and veal.

In serving food to invalids, always give small quantities. Serve more if wanted, but never try to get everything in on one serving. The invalid appetite may rebel and refuse everything. Mayor Gets Sick of Routine of Position

By United Press

FORT WORTH, Texas—Mayor W. J. Hammond of Fort Worth, who entered politics from a professor's chair at Texas Christian university, was so tired of wrestling with political problems last month that he bought a car for $50 and drove west.

"He said he didn't want to see a newspaper or hear a telephone for two weeks," explained Mrs. Hammond. He put a cot in the car and left by himself.

Hammond's administration has been fraught with trouble. Four city managers served in three months. The city council which had promised to reduce bus fares and utility rates has been deadlocked from the start over the question of city managership and political appointments.

Fish Are Saved In Streams Drying Up

KERRVILLE, Texas.—Game wardens have salvaged 1,150 perch and 2,500 bass and a number of catfish from rapidly drying smaller streams in Kerr county.

Bill Garrett and Tom Shannon are the county wardens and they salvaged the fish from Town, Quinlan and Indian creeks.

The fish were liberated in the Guadalupe river between Ingram and Legion. A great many of the fish, particularly the perch, were large.

This work was to continue as the water gets lower in the small streams.

Biting Dogs Are a Bane to Milkmen

AMARILLO, Texas.—Dogs with quarrelsome dispositions are the bane of the milkman's life, according to J. C. Weaver, local milk dispenser.

They range in size from a poodle that bit Weaver on the ankle to a full grown collie who charged the milkman without warning and had to be beaten off with a bottle.

"About the biggest scare I ever had," said Weaver, "was the time a man mistook me for a milk thief and came out in his gowtalls with a shotgun all cocked and ready for business."

"Another time, I stepped on a cat's tail and the cat started climbing up my pants leg. We both got excited."

The milk man's trade is no place for a man with a vivid imagination. And you can't afford to be absent minded, Weaver said.

"Once I picked up a morning paper to throw on a porch. In my other hand I had a bottle of milk. I absently minded threw the milk instead."
