Shiva Temple, Where Scientists Seek 'New World'

On this verdant island in the sky, 4500 feet above the bottom of picturesque Grand Canyon, a party of scientists led by Dr. Harold E. Anthony of the American Museum of Natural History, searched for animal life which might show that the lofty temple was a "new world." This unusual aerial view shows at right the tortuous sandstone cliffs which it took five hours to ascend and seven hours to descend. Across the temple's heavily wooded terrain the scientists located their camp on the edge near the cleared spot in the center foreground. The first animals they trapped or shot all appeared related to specimens common to the vicinity. Pioneering prospectors scoffed at the "new world" theory, contending that animals had gone back and forth from the island to the mainland for centuries. To support their contentions, they cited that coyote tracks, but no coyotes were found, that deer horns, but no deer were discovered.

Nation Holds Remedy for Its Own Ailments

The vacation touring season is about over now, and some 40,000,000 Americans are back home again after having had a more or less extended look at their country. If they used their eyes and their brains while touring they ought to be in shape to think intelligently about some of the problems of the country faces.

If there is one thing that impresses itself on a thoughtful tourist in this country, it is that the United States is an everlastingly big and an unimaginably rich country.

That impression doesn't hit you at first. It grows, little by little, as you go on traveling.

You ride through the farm belt—any one of the numerous farm belts—and you see vista after vista of fat green farm lands, with bumper crops growing out of rich soil, with well-kept farm houses and big barns, with pleasant villages and neat, up-to-date cities.

The people you meet are intelligent, friendly, hard-working, decent—the kind we used to call the salt of the earth. And you casually sum up your impression by remarking, "Nice country and nice people around here."

And then, if you stop to think about it, you suddenly realize that it's all like that—mile upon miles of it, from the Berkshires to the Cascades and beyond, from the Minnesota lakes to the Gulf of Mexico; an endless series of fair horizons, rich farm land interspersed with tremendously busy industrial regions, the whole of it peopled by some of the finest folk who ever drew the breath of life.

Oh, there are bare spots, of course. We have our share of deserts where nothing will grow; of blighted cut-over areas that ought to be growing trees, of agricultural country that isn't quite fertile enough to give its people a decent living, of towns whose industries have gone to pot. But in the main, the picture shows a country that stood right at the head of the line when the good things were being passed out.

This picture is worth looking at. For if the human race ever got itself into a spot where the continued well-being of all the people ought to be assured, the United States of America is that spot. Its soil will grow enough food to feed half the world. Its mines will provide an infinity of raw materials, it has abundant factories to handle them, and it is peopled by a smart, active and kindly race.

What can go wrong—permanently wrong—in a setup like that? If we exercise only a little intelligence and ordinary horse sense we ought to be able to keep this country of ours smiling and happy right up to the day of judgment. Whatever may be wrong with things today, it certainly is nothing that can't be cured if we are willing to think things out and see a fair amount of forethought.

Says Mr. Lewis to the south: "I'm going to organize you-all."

Wrong, Well, yes—and no. The arithmetic of your school days taught that "If Mary had five dollars and spent two..." three dollars remained.

But that is mathematics—not shopping! In managing a home... guarding a limited family income... we've simply got to do better than Mary did. We must sharpen our buying wits... ascertain where the dollars of extra value lurk... take five dollars to town and get much more for the money spent.

Fortunately, there are ever-willing guides right at hand—the advertisements in this newspaper. Advertised merchandise is often exceptional value merchandise. It makes dollars S-T-R-E-T-C-H.

LUNCHEON: Toasted cheese sandwiches, fudge cake, tea, milk.
DINNER: Cream of spinach soup, mixed sea food grill, French fried potatoes, stuffed tomatoes, hearts of celery, surprise floating island, coffee, milk.

Caramel Cream (4 to 6 servings)
One-half cup sugar, 1 tablespoon plain gelatin, 2 cups milk, 4 eggs.
Cook sugar in an iron frying pan until it becomes brown, being careful not to burn. Heat milk in top of a double boiler, to this add gelatin which has been dissolved in a little cold milk, then add sugar, beaten yolks and stir until mixture begins to thicken. Remove from fire. When mixture is thoroughly chilled, add stiffly beaten whites. Turn into individual molds. Serve with a small teaspoonful of whipped cream.

Delicious Apple Betty (4 to 6 servings)
Three cups of home-made or canned applesauce, 3-4 cup of cake or graham cracker crumbs, grated rind of 1-2 orange, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-2 cup seedless raisins.
Mix raisins with apple sauce. Put the mixture in a baking dish. Melt butter, mix orange rind, crumbs and butter and spread on top of apple sauce. Bake fifteen minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F). Serve with cream, either plain or whipped.

PART of Art Rooney's amazing race track winnings from New York bookies will build a mission church in China. . . . The Pittsburgh sportsman, you know, has a brother, Mike, who is a member of the Franciscan Order of the Catholic Church and when Father Mike was sent to China last winter he told Art that he wished that some day he would be able to build a church over there. . . . So Art, who won a roll so big that a greyhound couldn't jump over it, pooled off $50,000 and sent it across the seas the other day. . . . The Federal Writers' Project of the Works Progress Administration has discovered that it was once against the law to play golf or basketball, fence, ice skate, bowl, or use the shuffleboard. . . . The game of nine pins was banned in New York because of the excessive gambling by the players. . . . but they read the law carefully and jumped through the loophole by adding another pin. . . . That's how there comes to be 10 pins in the game today.

OUT OF THE NIGHT

CAST OF CHARACTERS
PRISCILLA PIERCE—heroine, young woman attorney.
HARRY HUTCHINS—Cilly's roommate, murderer's victim.
AMY KERR—Cilly's fiancée.
SERGEANT DOLAN—officer assigned to solve the murder of Amy Kerr.

Yesterday Dolan checks up on Cilly. He puts her in a call box at 12:30 on the night of the murder. That was the time Amy was killed. Dolan finds Amy's roommate, Harry Hutchins, who had been taken care of for four years.

CHAPTER VIII
SERGEANT DOLAN looked at the telephone number he had jotted down, the one which Harry Hutchins called the night before at 12:20. "Buckminster 11434. That's Brooklyn. Not your number, by any chance?" Cilly shook her head. "The Buckminster exchange is in Flatbush," she reminded him. She had an idea whose number it was. Dolan dialed "Information." He inquired the name of the party at Buckminster 11434 and wrote the name down in his little book. "Party named A. G. Harmon," he remarked to Cilly. It was as she had thought. Harry had hurried home to call Gloria Harmon. She was glad that she had made it quite definite that Amy was not in love with him.

SERGEANT DOLAN stood up. He looked in toward the bedroom. Cilly stood up too, and watched him nervously. "He's going to look around," she thought. "He'll find the postcard under my pillow. He'll surely find it." But he didn't go into the bedroom. To Cilly, he said: "I wonder if the young lady left any personal information . . . any letters, for example. Or an address book. Might find some relatives or friends in that whom you don't know about." Cilly went over to the bureau. "Amy kept all of her things in here," she offered. "I'll look through it." She opened the top right drawer. Amy's black pocketbook caught her eye. She handed it to the sergeant. Dolan went through the bag, glancing at each item and laying it on the bureau. A compact and lipstick. Five dollars and some change. A bankbook. (He noticed that it showed a balance of over two hundred dollars, made up of small, fairly regular deposits. That was not unusual for a girl with a good job.) A booklet on the care of a permanent wave. A timetable. . . .

HE laid the empty bag on the bureau and looked more closely at the timetable. Cilly looked at it too, a little fearfully. "What's this?" he asked. "Southern Pacific timetable. Was Miss Kerr planning any vacation?" "Southern Pacific," Cilly thought. "Why, that goes to . . ." With elaborate carelessness, she said: "Not that I know of, I suppose we all consider a trip to Hollywood at one time or another." She wasn't really sure that she found it under her pillow? He looked at Cilly sharply as he held the note out to her: "Who wrote this?" he demanded. Cilly read it. As she did so, the color left her face. She felt as if she had been struck a surprising blow. Her knees trembled. A sudden nausea overcame her. She scribbled words on the paper said: "Meet me up on the roof after we break up here." And they had definitely, undeniably been written by Jim Kerrigan. "Who wrote it?" Sergeant Dolan repeated. He looked back at the score-pad, as Cilly hesitated. "It wasn't Hutchins, because this is his writing here. So it must have been the other young man. Your friend Kerrigan. Isn't that so, Miss Pierce?" "It would seem so," Cilly admitted, weakly. She sat down in a chair. Her legs refused to support her any longer. She was frightened—wildly frightened. "So that's it!" Sergeant Dolan went on brutally. "Mr. Kerrigan was up on the roof with the young lady. Now the question is, what were they doing up there? Was it a friendly visit—or did they have a quarrel? Doesn't look so good, does it, Miss Pierce?" Cilly did not answer. "You're quite sure," Sergeant Dolan asked, "that last night was the first time Kerrigan and Miss Kerr met? Sure they didn't know each other before?" "I'm sure they didn't," Cilly replied. Yet even as the words left her lips, she remembered the sudden light that had dawned in Amy's eyes as she met Jim. . . . (To Be Continued)

WASHINGTON.—There is in the United States a certain publisher who sold 10,351,203 copies of his various publications during the past fiscal year, for $813,000. He has one best seller on his list that has sold 2,130,162 copies, another that has sold 1,735,066.

You'd think such a publisher would be quite a factor in the publishing field, wouldn't you? And you'd be right, too. It was the U. S. Government Printing Office which sold the 10,000,000 copies. "Classroom Growth Record," and "Infant Care" were the best sellers.

TODAY, about 5500 people work for the GPO, a fabulously efficient production machine that is about to get a new plant costing almost $6,000,000. It is a $20,000,000-a-year business, this printing and publishing plant, and some idea of the amount of work turned out can be had from these items listed in the current annual report:

A little matter of 7,000,000 copies of a Baby Bond booklet for the Treasury Department. Printing, punching, and packaging (within a month's time) of 31,830,000 cards for the Bureau of the Census.

Printing, perforating, and pasting into sets 8,750,000 forms for the WPA.

Printing nearly two billion postal cards.

Printing $870,100 worth of the Congressional Record for the year. (This runs up to a million some years.)

Printing 17,000,000 copies of various documents for the Agri-

Family Ironing is Equal to Moving Six Tons of Bricks

"The housewife moves the equivalent of six tons of brick each time she does the ironing for an average family." Fred Maytag II of Newton, Iowa, pointed out to Texas Maytag Managers at a convention and school held recently in Dallas.

Mr. Maytag, vice president and sales manager for the Maytag Company, Newton, Iowa, which is the largest manufacturer of washing machines in the United States, introduced to the Texas Organization, six new model Ironers at a price to meet every purse. He said, "We are now completely in the home laundry business, as the Ironer solves the other half of the laundry problem."

Researchers report that the old belief that the tomato is poisonous still has some following in the lower level of the theatrical profession.

Mrs. J. E. Hickman Is Honored

Mrs. Virgil T. Seaberry honored Mrs. J. E. Hickman of Austin, with an appointed one o'clock luncheon, Wednesday at the family residence.

The luncheon table was set with pink and white, fruited punch and the cake was served, with table favors of dolls for the girls and toy autos for the boys.

The larger luncheon table in the dining room, was laid in cream lace over yellow satin and centered with water lilies on a blue mirror, circled with yellow lighted tapers in crystal holders.

The personnel included Misses: Cyrus B. Frost, Carl Springer, Grady Pipkin, James Horton, Dan Childress, W. K. Leslie, Joseph M. Perkins, W. K. Hyer, John Turner, W. E. Chaney, Clyde Grissom, R. A. Larner; honoree, Mrs. Hickman, and hostess, Mrs. Seaberry.

Has Returned Home From Mountain Trip

Mrs. J. R. Tolbert has returned from a six weeks' summer trip, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Jennie Tolbert, and is located at her home, 908 South Swan.

Mrs. Tolbert met them in the South and the return was made in their car. Miss Jennie has entered T. C. U., as a freshman. Other Eastland girl friends there are Misses Doris Lawrence, and Louise Flack.

Betty Jean Walker Celebrates Birthday

A birthday party was given Monday afternoon, honoring the ninth birthday of their daughter, Betty Jean Walker, by her mother, Mrs. Clyde Walker, at the family home, at the Consolidated Gasoline company camp. Games and stories passed a happy hour for the little guests. A big birthday cake, iced in pink and white, was topped with nine lighted pink tapers, each blown out for each year by Betty Jean.

Members of Los Angeles Team

Above is Jack Berry, slugging first sacker for the Red Devils of Los Angeles which will play in Eastland Friday and Saturday night on the Fire Department Softball field.

Fire Department officials Thursday announced the Los Angeles Red Devils will play two games in Eastland, one Friday night and the other Saturday night on the Eastland softball field.

Friday night the Red Devils will play Eliasville, with Jack Johnson pitching for the Texas team. Johnson is remembered by fans as the crack pitcher for the Eliasville team entered in the recent Amateur Softball Association of America tournament at Eastland.

Hanson of Breckenridge will play the Red Devils Saturday night. The Saturday game is to start at 8:30 and the Friday game at 8:15.

Ten cents will be charged for gate entrance and 10 cents additional for the grandstand.

Demand for Cotton Pickers Relieves a Demand on WPA

By United Press

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—Robert J. Smith, deputy state administrator for the Works Progress Administration, announced today that demands of Texas farmers for cotton pickers had been the major factor in reducing current WPA employment to 45,000 workers—the lowest number in the history of the federal agency.

He said WPA records revealed that since Sept. 1, thousands of workers had voluntarily left projects or had been released for agricultural employment.

Smith pointed out that during the month of August, there were 70 counties in Texas in each of which less than 50 WPA workers were employed on federal projects. In 24 of those counties, no workers were on the federal payroll during this month.

In the entire state, WPA workers earned a total of $1,799,115 during August, 60,637 persons having performed 5,547,553 man-hours of labor.

played on tour of 37 states and Canada this year. Schoolboy Rock pitched no hitter against Briggs Body at Detroit 3 weeks ago. Last week Briggs won the national championship at Chicago last week. King Kong Kelly threw no hitter against Virginia Champs in national tourney. It was his 11th no hit game of the season.

Rock was undiscovered until the middle of last season when he pitched a no-hit game for Colton. In one game last season he fanned 25 of a possible 27 batters. He is also a windmill, speedball, artist. We are also carrying Chick Saunders, the curve ball chucker, who won the Los Angeles Examiner, Southern California tourney last year, and Carl Midkiff, who is an expert with the 13 inch ball.

Earl Caplinger led the Long Beach Class A League in hitting last year and at this writing is second in the same league this year. John Montgomery is another youngster who broke into the big time last season. He will hold down a regular outfield assignment for us.

Last year we defeated thirty of thirty-three teams faced. Our tour took us to the southeast coast, through the middle west and back through the gulf states. We played state and city champions wherever we could and sports writers were astounded at the team's tremendous pitching and batting strength.

Over-Hunting Kills Off Jungle Beasts

By United Press

LONDON.—Unless protective measures are taken, the eventual extinction of many of the larger African animals is inevitable, the Animal Year Book, just published by the University of London Animal Welfare Society, declares.

The slaughter of the hippopotamus during the last 50 years has been appalling, it is stated, and the animal has practically disappeared except in a few haunts on some of the large African lakes and rivers.

The elephant, although in no immediate danger, has been largely exterminated in many parts of Africa. The total number killed annually is approximately 36,500, the Year Book estimates.

Other animals facing extinction are the giraffe, the white rhinoceros and the sable antelope.

IT'S IN THE News!

There are two classes of news in these columns every day:

- (1) Interesting stories about events all over the world; and (2) The advertisements. Yes, the advertisements are news, and in many ways the most important of all, because they affect you more directly and personally than any other.

A new and better method of refrigeration is devised — and you learn about it through advertisements. Improvements are added to automobiles which make them safer than ever — again advertisements carry the story. Styles change in clothing — and advertisements rush the news to your doorstep. A manufacturer finds a way to lower the price on his products — he advertises to tell you about the savings.

You'll find that it pays to follow this news every day. Reading the advertisements is the sure way to keep abreast of the world ... to learn of new comforts and conveniences ... to get full money's worth for every dollar you spend.
