SHRAPNEL HITS NEAR MARINES AT SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Oct. 2.—Japanese shrapnel shells exploded near the United States Marine outpost of the International settlement today. Japanese batteries in the Hongkong section, the Japanese-controlled eastern part of the settlement, opened a heavy bombardment of the north railroad station at Markham Road Junction areas. Shrapnel bursting from shells fired on the Markham Road endangered the marines on duty along the Soochow Creek Line of the International Defense Force. Japanese airplanes continued routine bombing of the Chinese lines after a lull in the fighting that had been on a fierce scale all week. During the day the Chinese asserted they had advanced two miles toward the civil center north of the city without meeting Japanese resistance or a trap, which they feared.

Tree Rings Show Drouths at Time of Columbus' Trip

WASHINGTON.—The year that Columbus discovered America the weather was dry—had been dry for 28 years—the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine of the Department of Agriculture has discovered. But it started raining before Columbus could get back to Spain to tell Queen Isabella about it. F. O. Keen of the bureau found by a study of annual rings of trees. He described these rings as almost infallible weather records.

A study of rings from trees cut in Oregon, some dating back more than 150 years, revealed that the ponderosa pine forests were in 1492 in very much the same kind of a growth depression as they have been since 1917, Keen said. But, he added, the punishment the trees have taken in the past 20 years is the worst ever, with insect attacks added to drouth injury. Billions of board feet of timber have been killed and desert has encroached on thriving pine stands, he said.

Keen said the long-time weather record revealed by these trees is more reassuring than some weather records which seem to indicate an 80-year trend toward increasing dryness. They show, he said, that there have been periods of relative dryness for longer than 80 years, followed by a return to more favorable moisture conditions. Keen said his tree calendar had not revealed definite evidence either for or against the existence of long term weather cycles, but that tests for the short cycles did not support any of the shorter cycle schemes for weather predictions that have been proposed. His survey included a study of records of 1,240 pine trees selected from five areas 50 to 50 miles apart. By cross checking average records from the several areas he was able to read not only the weather record but record of fires and insect attacks as well.

TAX SESSION BEGINS SECOND WEEK AS A NO-TAX MARCH LOOMS

AUSTIN, Oct. 2.—The special tax session will begin its second week Monday with increasing internal pressure for passage of an omnibus bill aimed at natural resources and a state business man's protest launched from without. Plans were underway to pass some bill to tax pipeline companies, as suggested by Governor Alfred. Because of legal doubt a proposal to levy a three per cent income tax on pipelines to raise an estimated $2,500,000 a year was laid aside for more study. Rep. Cecil Baker of Rosenberg had a bill that attracted attention. He said it would raise $11,000,000 a year in gross receipts gross income tax. Three-fourths of the money derived from the bill would be given to the counties that collect 90 per cent of their ad valorem taxes and made a $3,000,000 homestead exemption as the state now does. As a House sub-committee joined the omnibus bill prepared to present it for a hearing Monday, the economy movement collected speed in the Senate and South Texas. The Senate economy group, headed by Tom Holbrook of Galveston, made plans to block taxes and to force a downward revision of appropriations for the present biennium. The South Texas Chamber of Commerce, from its San Antonio headquarters, was sponsoring a no-tax march on Austin, when public hearings are held next week. General Manager Ray Leeman of San Antonio, predicted many South Texans would appear to protest additional taxes, particularly on oil and pipelines. Henry B. Baldwin of Corpus Christi predicted 1,000 would participate. Rep. Herman Jones' sub-committee drafting the bill for omnibus taxes, agreed on a 4 per cent increase in taxes on the following: Oil, natural gas, sulphur, carbon black, cement and gross receipts of telephones, water, lights, gas and power companies. The bill also proposes a reduction to 40 cents in the tax-exempt amusement tickets.

The cow was sent back to Meadow—and his board bill, to his dad.

BULLDOGS ARE BEATEN BUT RANGER'S ELATED OVER TWO TOUCHDOWNS

The Ranger Bulldogs lost to the Abilene Eagles 62 to 12, but everyone is elated. The players on the team were happy Saturday and the band was happy, the pep squad was happy and the coaches were pepped up. In fact, everyone but the town's No. 1 football pessimist was finally convinced that the Bulldogs could really put out, once they made up their minds collectively and individually, that they might do something by trying. At first the Bulldogs were somewhat depressed. Abilene scored two touchdowns in the first quarter and then added a couple more and kicked two goals for points after touchdowns before the Bulldogs started to go to town. When they started they started in a big way. Even the Abilene fans had to admit that it was no fluke when the Bulldogs connected for five straight passes from Whitefield to Brawner and then tossed one to McKelvin for the first score. But the half ended right there and the Bulldogs had time to cool off while the band got hot. Touchdowns were scored by Hill and Dorton in the first quarter and Hughes scored twice in the second before the Bulldogs put over their sensational aerial circus that ended in a touchdown. The third was Abilene's big quarter, 28 points being scored, with the same period seeing Ranger's second touchdown of the game coming on a pass from Whitefield to Brawner. On two other occasions the Bulldogs threatened seriously, but failed to score when the ball was fumbled. Beam scored three times in the third quarter with Hill making the other counter. In the last quarter the entire second team went in for Ranger in order that they might get the valuable experience they will need in the remaining games of the season when they are called upon.

Two points were added for Abilene late in the game when Ranger drew a 15-yard penalty to put the ball on the one-yard line and Whitefield's punt was blocked and recovered for a safety. The Bulldogs passed Abilene dizzily, throwing no less than 49 passes, completing 12 for a total yardage of 160 and having only one intercepted. Many more of the passes should have been completed but the receivers were unable to keep their hands on the ball.

The 10 first downs made by the Bulldogs also showed that they had a lot of fight in their systems once it was brought to light, and the defensive work of many of the players showed considerable improvement over that seen last week against Breckenridge. Hargraves, Houston, Hall and Anderson showed up well in the line, with Anderson probably showing the greatest improvement of any lineman on the squad. He is developing rapidly and will probably be one of the mainstays in the forward wall with a little more experience. Boney, who was out of the entire game with an injured knee, is expected to bolster the line in the Brownwood game. Houghton looked good, with Houghton being one of the best aggressive players in the back field, both on the offense and defense. J. H. McKelvin played a good game throughout and Whitefield's passing showed much improvement over his form in the Breckenridge contest. Adkins, although light, is also showing up better and should see lots and lots of service this season. Browner at end received most of Whitefield's tosses, and at times did a mighty fine job of it, as well as showing up well on the defense.

The lineups: Ranger: Dadds, le; Hargraves; Houston, lg; Frazier, c; Hall; Ames, rt; Brawner, re; Houghton, q; Whitefield, lb; Byers, rb; Adkins, f. Abilene: Simpson, le; Proctor; Chambers, lg; Virdee, c; Sibley, rg; Motley, rt; McAdams, re; Beam, q; Hughes, lb; Doss, rb; Dorton, f. Substitutions: Ranger—Jordan, Martin, Reese; Bishop, Palmer, Bryan, Briley, Smoot, Graves, Anderson. Abilene—Adams, Brown, Stovall, Hill, Nodrell, Brabney, Bell, Desmond, Leach, McClure, Ellis, Jones, Sewell, Osborn, Ables, McAllister, Warden, Oldham, King, Haines, Charles Jones. Scoring: Hughes 2, Beam 3, McKelvin Brawner, Points after touchdown Motley 4, Beam, Norrell, Safety, Whitefield. Score by periods: Ranger 0 6 6 0—12 Abilene 0 0 12 14 28—62 Officials: Vic Payne (Bethany) Tonto Coleman (ACC); Frank Kimbrough (Hardin-Simmons).

Crude Production In Texas Is Up As National Drops

HOUSTON, Oct. 2.—National crude production continued to decline this week, dropping 19,225 barrels daily, to average 3,640,050 barrels daily, the Oil Weekly reported today. The nation's total production, however, was 130,750 barrels daily above the estimates of consumer demands set by the U. S. Bureau of Mines for September. Texas averaged 1,501,000 barrels a day, or 4,900 more than last week, but 57,400 barrels above the recommendations.

Old Cattle Group Is Still Active Over Half Century

AMARILLO, Tex.—The Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, formed 62 years ago under a tree at Graham, Texas, by a determined group of pistol-toting cowmen to halt rustling, is keeping alive the romance of the west. It still finds work to do in fighting cattle rustlers and "bad men" who were not totally banished or exterminated in the re-making of the Western plains. The Association, now a corporation with far-flung operations, spends much time and money in tracking down cattle rustlers, and has widened its scope to include political questions affecting the industry. Its officials point out that when beef prices go as high as they are now, rustling invariably increases and usually does a good business but the crude, old branding iron in use since the days of the open range, still marks the path that leads to jail. It once led to the end of a rope dangling from the limb of a live oak tree on the western prairies.

Longhorns to Get Motion Pictures Of Every Game

AUSTIN, Tex.—Coach Dana A. Bible's University of Texas football team should set one speed record this season whether they do it or not on the playing field. Bible arranged with Braniff Airways to transport motion pictures to Kansas City each Saturday after the Longhorns' play and to have them back in time for the following Monday's practice session. The pictures will be taken in Austin, or wherever Texas plays and rushed to Kansas City via commercial airplanes for development in slow motion. The next Monday, the Bible-men will "see themselves as others see them" and witness their own mistakes. The Texas coach regularly took moving pictures of the games his Nebraska teams played. This year he came to Texas on a 10-year contract reputed to pay $150,000.

ALLRED SPEAKS ON TAXES AT COUNTY FAIR

CONROE, Oct. 2.—Gov. Jas. V. Allred carried his battle for taxes on natural resources into this oil field center today with an address on taxation at the Montgomery County Fair. He designated the opponents of new taxes as Holbrook & Co., taking the name of Sen. T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, chairman of the senate committee that reported the need for no new taxes. "This minority group," he said, "in my judgment does not speak for the majority of the senate, much less the whole legislature. If this prating about a deficit being a healthy thing is sound, then why don't these gentlemen suggest that the deficit be doubled to make the state's condition twice as healthy. "Although he has tried hard, Sen. Holbrook has not been able to talk the deficit away. The senators have been mighty long on appropriation and short on revenue."

Finding Middle Path Is Democracy's Job

Secretary of State Cordell Hull told the American Legion convention the other day that our government is trying to follow a middle path between isolation and entanglement in the affairs of other nations. He might well have added that it is an infernally tough job but one which is very much worth doing.

For the very essence of democracy, after all, is this attempt to find and follow a practical middle path—in foreign policy, and in domestic affairs as well. And what makes being a democrat so tough is that this middle path grows progressively harder to find as the problems of this modern world multiply.

A good part of the world has fallen into the hands of extremists of late. In one country after another the people have been won over to the idea that there is one plan, and one plan only, which can help them; and it is getting so that you can hardly pick up your newspaper without reading of some spot where people have been executed, imprisoned or bombed from the sky for daring to disagree.

When we say that as Americans and lovers of liberty we disagree with such measures, we tell only half of the story. The alternative to rule by one or another set of extremists is the charting of a course half-way between the rival camps.

Democracy can survive only by proving that it is possible to find such a course; by proving that men still have enough good sense and good will to compare ideas, to take the best that the rival extremists have to offer, to compromise and harmonize and blend them so that people do not have to be bombed and bludgeoned into obedience.

It isn't easy to do this. It calls for hard, sustained thinking, for critical examination of all slogans and panaceas, for recognition of the often-forgotten fact that there are few passable short-cuts to the millennium. It compels us to realize that they cannot gain respect for their own rights without respecting the rights of others, and that human nature is so constituted that an enduring social, economic or political system can be erected only on a basis of mutual consent.

All of this, to be sure, is perfectly familiar to us, as citizens of the world's oldest democracy. Yet we must remind ourselves constantly that democracy will continue to work only if we take the trouble to make it work.

Finding this middle course is unspectacular and uninspiring work. It would be a lot easier to resign everything to the hands of some leader and contribute cheers to the goose-stepping storm troopers. But in the end, if our vision of America is to survive, we must make a success of this unspectacular and uninspiring job—or see the brightest values of our national tradition dissolve.

In making up their summaries of 1937, economists should not neglect to mention that the bottom fell out of some Idaho farm land.

Record-Breaking Oil Tax Collections Showing Increase

DALLAS, Tex.—Record-breaking tax collections on Texas oil are showing a rate of increase far above the increase in national and State demand for crude oil, according to facts just released by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association. Business recovery and increased automobile registrations have up to now created an increase in demand for Texas crude oil over 1934 of 30 per cent but taxes collected from Texas oil producers are now 74 per cent more than they were in 1934. Projecting the demand and tax trends through August 31, 1939, shows that while the demand for Texas oil will have increased 58 per cent over 1934, taxes collected from this one branch of the State's largest industry will have shown an increase of 112 per cent.

State revenue from oil production taxes for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1937, not counting local ad valorem levies, amounted to $22,104,467, which was an increase over 1936 of $7,135,558. Gross production taxes collected from Texas oil producers in August of this year were double the amount collected in the same month a year ago, increasing from $778,000 to $1,500,000.

Constant search for new sources of future oil supply in every section of Texas has built up an underground reserve in the State of more than six billion barrels of oil, upon which the State, counties and many independent taxing agencies expect to collect their principal source of tax revenue for many years to come. But, the present handicap of excessive federal, State and local taxes stands as a practical obstacle against the full development and ultimate production of these and other undiscovered oil reserves.

CHRISTIAN SONSHIP

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

FROM the far-off scene of the early life of Israel, we return now to a three-months' course of studies in the Christian life, based on various passages in the New Testament.

We have seen how the great and basic moral and spiritual principles emphasized and illustrated in the early history of Israel and in the leadership of Moses have applied to our own time. But in this lesson on Christian sonship we have a striking illustration of the way in which the New Testament fulfills the Old and goes beyond its teaching in lifting us to a higher plane of vision and privilege.

We ought, of course, to remember always the words of Jesus, that he had come not to destroy, but to fulfill. In many respects, his teaching and his emphasis alike were new.

Where moral leaders of early Israel had said, "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," in itself some real progress in justice from the blind vengeance that would demand a life for a tooth, or a life for an eye, Jesus had said, "I say unto you that you resist not evil."

He taught men to love their enemies, where in the ancient story enemies were only to be fought and cast out, or killed.

BUT Jesus did not give this new emphasis and teaching as a denial of the old; rather it was a fulfillment bringing up the ancient teaching to a higher plane and a higher light. There is the justice that measures the

Gerald C. Mann Is Still a Follower Of Football Teams

DALLAS.—If former Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann decides to enter the attorney general's race, he will have to wait until the football season is over to do any serious campaign work.

Football, it seems, runs a formidable interference against political aspirations if the aspirant happens to be famous in pigskin annals. That's Jerry's trouble. He made history more than a decade ago as ace quarterback of the S. M. U. Mustangs, and the football gentry hasn't forgot it. His love for the game today is just as ardent as it was in 1927 when he was wowing the fans with spectacular passes and touchdowns.

Traveling about the state during the past month, Mann says he has found it difficult to attend to his personal business affairs because everybody is more interested in football than politics. When the word is passed that the former Mustang star is in town, he is usually besieged by a crowd of football enthusiasts and hustled off to the high school grounds to give the local rookies a talk on gridiron tactics and show them some of the finer points of the game.

His Bite Worse Than His Bark

"I ruined a new pair of pants last week getting into a scrimmage line and my arm is sore from passing footballs. But it's lots of fun, and if I can help the boys I'm always glad to take time out to do it."

"It doesn't leave much time for court house business but it doesn't make much difference after all. I usually wind up by finding everybody from the county judge and leading preacher to the town barber out on the football field."

Mann likes to show young football aspirants the backfield tricks that won him fame and the All-Southwest quarterback title more than a decade ago. He has frequently spent an entire afternoon with some small-town football squad, showing the boys how to make short and long passes.

Jerry was captain in his high school football team at Sulphur Springs, and lettered in football at S. M. U. where he was elected captain in 1927. He studied law at Southern Methodist University and finished at Harvard, and he is now practicing law in Dallas.

ARCANE, N. Y.—A group of farmers in New York state have gone into the railroad business. They operate the Arcade & Attica railroad, one of the most unusual in the United States. One train is run daily between Arcade and Attica, a 26-mile stretch. The railroad is 100 years old, but when private management threatened to abandon it, the farmers along the line pooled their resources and purchased the entire system and equipment. The owners are the railroad's best customers. Their milk shipments, together with the milk freight of several milk companies, keep the railroad in the "black."

Students to Censor Editorials For a University Paper

AUSTIN, Tex.—Editorials in The Daily Texan, student publication at the University of Texas, will pass through a student council "censorship" before publication this year.

The plan was adopted after editorials last year led to faculty censorship and protests by students against the censors.

Dr. Paul J. Thompson, chairman of the Department of Journalism, said the council would have a representative from each of the schools and colleges in the University. The resulting editorials were expected to reflect more clearly campus opinion than the writings of any one student.

Last year's furor followed editorials criticizing the Colorado River project sponsored by the late Congressman James P. Buchanan of Brenham. Buchanan had been equally active in sponsoring projects that aided the University of Texas building program.

An Opportunity-- For Young Men and Women

At a great expense for their efforts to find the screen stars of the future, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company, producers of motion pictures for the entertainment of American citizens as well as world-wide releases, are this month holding preliminary searches for talent throughout the entire nation.

Heretofore all of this kind of work has been confined to the metropolitan cities and those who would seek their possibilities for the screen made their way, paid their own expenses to Hollywood and had to take their chances to meet the producers and directors and display their talents.

Today the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company has led the field of what is to come in the future by extending their activities in search for talent right into the heart of the nation's home towns.

EASTLAND SELECTED---

Eastland is fortunate in getting the privilege of having been selected as one of the smaller cities in which the most outstanding officials in the business of selecting possible talent will be here personally to conduct the "Search for Talent" program. This promises to be instructive dignified and of great value to those who will take advantage of the opportunity.

CONDUCTED WITH DIGNITY---

There should be no hesitancy in young men and women participating on the occasion of the tests to be conducted at the Connellee Theatre at 9 p. m., Wednesday, October 6, and Thursday, October 7. There will be no embarrassment . . . no embarrassing questions asked . . . it's all free . . . no cost or obligation is involved . . . no exploitation of any person nor for any gain. . . it will be conducted under the highest dignity.

REGISTER EARLY---

Although registrations can be made up until 9 a. m. Wednesday morning, October 6, yet it is convenient for all concerned to have those who will be on hand to register either with the Eastland Telegram or the Lyric-Connellee Theatre management before that time.

FOUND WORTHY---

The Eastland Telegram has made the closest investigation as to the merits of the "Search for Talent" procedure and have found it worthy of consideration of every person interested and no parent need fear the slightest fears that the entire program is clean . . . honest and sincere.

Those whose ages are between 16 and 28 are eligible for the test. We sincerely commend this effort on the part of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Producing Company to find new talent to all our readers without selfish interests involved, and trust that Eastland young men and women will take advantage of this opportunity.

Circus Equilibrists Go To New Limits To Create Thrills

When Russell Bros. Circus comes to Eastland on Friday, Oct. 8, a featured act will be presented which invariably causes people to gasp with amazement and ask, "What next?"

For in executing this act, the Rebras seem to have established new limits of human possibilities. Incredible as it may seem, here is what these two ingenious French equilibrists do: The man supports and balances without aid, a perch surmounted by a large upright cylindrical track in which his charming blonde wife loops-the-loop with a bicycle.

The weight which Monsieur Rebra must keep aloft by his strength and uncanny sense of equilibrium is said to total 450 pounds. As for Mme. Rebra's part in the feat, to loop-the-loop with a bicycle is no mean achievement in itself, but to do it under such perilous circumstances is indeed an expression of supreme confidence in another person's ability. Here is one wife who will make sure of keeping in her husband's good graces.

The Rebras' thrilling perch and loop exhibition is but one of the various novel features and surprises which distinguish Russell Bros. circus from all others. Yet, given with all its innovations,

Dividing Up Texas Bobs Up Regularly

By United Press
AUSTIN.—Proposals to divide Texas bob up from time to time.

A division was advocated once by Vice President John Nance Garner. His purpose was to obtain greater strength in the United States Senate. Some West Texans suggested the division when they became dissatisfied with the treatment of that area by a legislature, but the people of West Texas, generally, disavowed any such wish.

Arthur W. Piggott of Harlingen now has prepared a map for creation of five "watershed" states out of Texas. By his map South Texas would be the territory of the Rio Grande, Nueces and Pecos river watersheds with a northeast boundary line running in a straight line from Corpus Christi to the southeast corner of New Mexico. Texas would be in the San Antonio, Medina and Colorado river watersheds with its northeast boundary running from Fort Lavaca to the junction of Red river and meridian 100. Central Texas would be formed of the Brazos river watershed northeast of "Texas." Its northeast boundary would start between Dallas and Fort Worth. Middle Texas would be the Trinity river watershed, and East Texas the Sabine-Neches river watersheds.

Recurrence of the suggestion for additional states is due to a clause in the treaty of annexation between the Republic of Texas and the United States. The clause provides that four additional states may be set up in the annexed territory.

Finding Middle Path Is Democracy's Job

Secretary of State Cordell Hull told the American Legion convention the other day that our government is trying to follow a middle path between isolation and entanglement in the affairs of other nations. He might well have added that it is an infernally tough job but one which is very much worth doing.

For the very essence of democracy, after all, is this attempt to find and follow a practical middle path—in foreign policy, and in domestic affairs as well. And what makes being a democrat so tough is that this middle path grows progressively harder to find as the problems of this modern world multiply.

A good part of the world has fallen into the hands of extremists of late. In one country after another the people have been won over to the idea that there is one plan, and one plan only, which can help them; and it is getting so that you can hardly pick up your newspaper without reading of some spot where people have been executed, imprisoned or bombed from the sky for daring to disagree.

When we say that as Americans and lovers of liberty we disagree with such measures, we tell only half of the story. The alternative to rule by one or another set of extremists is the charting of a course half-way between the rival camps.

Democracy can survive only by proving that it is possible to find such a course; by proving that men still have enough good sense and good will to compare ideas, to take the best that the rival extremists have to offer, to compromise and harmonize and blend them so that people do not have to be bombed and bludgeoned into obedience.

It isn't easy to do this. It calls for hard, sustained thinking, for critical examination of all slogans and panaceas, for recognition of the often-forgotten fact that there are few passable short-cuts to the millennium. It compels us to realize that they cannot gain respect for their own rights without respecting the rights of others, and that human nature is so constituted that an enduring social, economic or political system can be erected only on a basis of mutual consent.

All of this, to be sure, is perfectly familiar to us, as citizens of the world's oldest democracy. Yet we must remind ourselves constantly that democracy will continue to work only if we take the trouble to make it work.

Finding this middle course is unspacious and uninspiring work. It would be a lot easier to resign everything to the hands of some leader and contribute cheers to the goose-stepping storm troopers. But in the end, if our vision of America is to survive, we must make a success of this unspacious and uninspiring job—or see the brightest values of our national tradition dissolve.

In making up their summaries of 1937, economists should not neglect to mention that the bottom fell out of some Idaho farm land.

Record-Breaking Oil Tax Collections Showing Increase

DALLAS, Tex.—Record-breaking tax collections on Texas oil are showing a rate of increase far above the increase in national and State demand for crude oil, according to facts just released by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association. Business recovery and increased automobile registrations have up to now created an increase in demand for Texas crude oil over 1934 of 30 per cent but taxes collected from Texas oil producers are now 74 per cent more than they were in 1934. Projecting the demand and tax trends through August 31, 1939, shows that while the demand for Texas oil will have increased 58 per cent over 1934, taxes collected from this one branch of the State's largest industry will have shown an increase of 112 per cent.

State revenue from oil production taxes for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1937, not counting local ad valorem levies, amounted to $22,104,467, which was an increase over 1936 of $7,135,558. Gross production taxes collected from Texas oil producers in August of this year were double the amount collected in the same month a year ago, increasing from $778,000 to $1,500,000.

Constant search for new sources of future oil supply in every section of Texas has built up an underground reserve in the State of more than six billion barrels of oil, upon which the State, counties and many independent taxing agencies expect to collect their principal source of tax revenue for many years to come. But, the present handicap of excessive federal, State and local taxes stands as a practical obstacle against the full development and ultimate production of these and other undiscovered oil reserves.

Gerald C. Mann Is Still a Follower Of Football Teams

DALLAS.—If former Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann decides to enter the attorney general's race, he will have to wait until the football season is over to do any serious campaign work.

Football, it seems, runs a formidable interference against political aspirations if the aspirant happens to be famous in pigskin annals. That's Jerry's trouble. He made history more than a decade ago as ace quarterback of the S. M. U. Mustangs, and the football gentry hasn't forgot it. His love for the game today is just as ardent as it was in 1927 when he was wowing the fans with spectacular passes and touchdowns.

Traveling about the state during the past month, Mann says he has found it difficult to attend to his personal business affairs because everybody is more interested in football than politics. When the word is passed that the former Mustang star is in town, he is usually besieged by a crowd of football enthusiasts and hustled off to the high school grounds to give the local rookies a talk on gridiron tactics and show them some of the finer points of the game.

"They don't give me much time for speech-making these days," Jerry says. "Even since the football season opened, I have been dedicating new stadiums and scrimmaging with high school teams."

CHRISTIAN SONSHIP

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance FROM the far-off scene of the early life of Israel, we return now to a three-months' course of studies in the Christian life, based on various passages in the New Testament.

We have seen how the great and basic moral and spiritual principles emphasized and illustrated in the early history of Israel and in the leadership of Moses have applied to our own time. But in this lesson on Christian sonship we have a striking illustration of the way in which the New Testament fulfills the Old and goes beyond its teaching in lifting us to a higher plane of vision and privilege.

We ought, of course, to remember always the words of Jesus, that he had come not to destroy, but to fulfill. In many respects, his teaching and his emphasis alike were new. Where moral leaders of early Israel had said, "An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth," in itself some real progress in justice from the blind vengeance that would demand a life for a tooth, or a life for an eye, Jesus had said, "I say unto you that you resist not evil."

He taught men to love their enemies, where in the ancient story enemies were only to be fought and cast out, or killed. BUT Jesus did not give this new emphasis and teaching as a denial of the old; rather it was a fulfillment bringing up the ancient teaching to a higher plane and a higher light. There is the justice that measures the reward of evil exactly according to the amount of evil done, but there is also the justice that is patterned after the mercy and grace of God. It is this higher element of mercy and forgiveness that we have brought to light in the conception of the Christian life.

We have had a lesson from the life of Israel on the need that a nation has for religious homes. Here this old matter of home and family life is lifted up into a divine atmosphere. The writer of this lesson calls on us to behold "what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the children of God."

Could there be anything higher or more sublime than that men are the children of a loving and gracious father, who really cares for them, and whose love and grace become the example and pattern for their own attitude and their dealings with one another?

Here we have not only a fine and beautiful teaching concerning family life, but we have the revelation of the very highest ideal. The test of the reality of this sonship of God is whether we have in ourselves toward others the love that God has for us. The 10 commandments are not lost out of our lives, nor are they weakened, but they are lifted up into this great positive higher commandment, "that we should believe in the name of Jesus Christ, and love one another." This is God's commandment, but it is first of all God's way of dealing with us.

"I ruined a new pair of pants last week getting into a scrimmage line and my arm is sore from passing footballs. But it's lots of fun, and if I can help the boys I'm always glad to take time out to do it.

"It doesn't leave much time for court house business but it doesn't make much difference after all. I usually wind up by finding everybody from the county judge and leading preacher to the town barber out on the football field."

Mann likes to show young football aspirants the backfield tricks that won him fame and the All-Southwest quarterback title more than a decade ago. He has frequently spent an entire afternoon with some small-town football squad, showing the boys how to make short and long passes.

Jerry was captain in his high school football team at Sulphur Springs, and lettered in football at S. M. U. where he was elected captain in 1927. He studied law at Southern Methodist University and finished at Harvard, and he is now practicing law in Dallas.

Students to Censor Editorials For a University Paper

AUSTIN, Tex.—Editorials in The Daily Texan, student publication at the University of Texas, will pass through a student council "censorship" before publication this year.

The plan was adopted after editorials last year led to faculty censorship and protests by students against the censors.

Dr. Paul J. Thompson, chairman of the Department of Journalism, said the council would have a representative from each of the schools and colleges in the University. The resulting editorials were expected to reflect more clearly campus opinion than the writings of any one student.

Last year's furor followed editorials criticizing the Colorado River project sponsored by the late Congressman James P. Buchanan of Brenham. Buchanan had been equally active in sponsoring projects that aided the University of Texas building program.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ Scientist, on Sunday, October 1.

The olden text is: "Thou saith the Lord, What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain?" (Jeremiah 2:5).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God . . . All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made" (John 1: 1-2).

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. "Everything good or worthy, God made. Whatever is valueless or baneful, He did not make, hence its unreality" (page 525-2:5).

Some of the farmers are picking cotton and taking up peanuts. They are hoping it won't rain for a while.

Circus Equilibrists Go To New Limits To Create Thrills

When Russell Bros. Circus comes to Eastland on Friday, Oct. 8, a featured act will be presented which invariably causes people to gasp with amazement and ask, "What next?"

For in executing this act, the Rebras seem to have established new limits of human possibilities. Incredible as it may seem, here is what these two ingenious French equilibrists do: The man supports and balances without aid, a perch surmounted by a large upright cylindrical track in which his charming blonde wife loops-the-loop with a bicycle.

The weight which Monsieur Rebra must keep aloft by his strength and uncanny sense of equilibrium is said to total 450 pounds. As for Mme. Rebra's part in the feat, to loop-the-loop with a bicycle is no mean achievement in itself, but to do it under such perilous circumstances is indeed an expression of supreme confidence in another person's ability. Here is one wife who will make sure of keeping in her husband's good graces.

The Rebras' thrilling perch and loop exhibition is but one of the various novel features and surprises which distinguish Russell Bros. circus from all others. Yet, even with all of its innovations, we be there to greet her and live thru one eternal day. In the Bible we read of heaven. That wonderful home on high. Where the saved thru Christ dwell ever and their souls there never can die.

O, Mother, darling, how we miss you. Our grief no tongue can tell. But where we think of you dear, Mother, we know with you all is well.

Yes, Mother, you were ever faithful. You did all a mother could do. Our promise is to you dear Mother. To meet you there beyond the blue.

Yes, Mother, we will all live faithful. Will live for Christ into the end. Then we will meet you over yonder. And a new life with you begin.

assurance is given that none of the time-honored favorites of the big-top will be found lacking.

This community was made sad by the death of Mrs. Charley Denton, Sept. 14th, near Gorman.

Mrs. Denton was well known here as Grandview was her home a number of years and she is a sister of L. B. Cozart of this community.

She leaves her husband, six children. Three brothers, two sisters. A host of relatives and friends to mourn her passing. She was laid to rest in the Gorman cemetery with funeral services conducted by her pastor, Rev. Willie Scaggs.

Dividing Up Texas Bobs Up Regularly

By United Press

AUSTIN.—Proposals to divide Texas bob up from time to time. A division was advocated once by Vice President John Nance Garner. His purpose was to obtain greater strength in the United States Senate. Some West Texans suggested the division when they became dissatisfied with the treatment of that area by a legislature, but the people of West Texas, generally, disavowed any such wish.

Arthur W. Piggott of Harlingen now has prepared a map for creation of five "watershed" states out of Texas. By his map South Texas would be the territory of the Rio Grande, Nueces and Pecos river watersheds with a northeast boundary line running in a straight line from Corpus Christi to the southeast corner of New Mexico. Texas would be in the San Antonio, Medina and Colorado river watersheds with its northeast boundary running from Fort Lavaca to the junction of Red river and meridian 100. Central Texas would be formed of the Brazos river watershed northeast of "Texas." Its northeast boundary would start between Dallas and Fort Worth. Middle Texas would be the Trinity river watershed, and East Texas as the Sabine-Neches river watersheds.

Recurrence of the suggestion for additional states is due to a clause in the treaty of annexation between the Republic of Texas and the United States. The clause provides that four additional states may be set up in the annexed territory.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
FRISILLA PIERCE—heroine, young woman attorney
AMY KERR—heroine's roommate and murderer's victim
HARRY HITCHINS—Amy's strange visitor
SERGEANT DOLAN—officer assigned to solve the murder of Amy Kerr

Yesterday, Sergeant Dolan bludgeoned Cilly when he reveals that out in Bluefields, Utah, Jim's father is serving 10 years in prison for theft.

CHAPTER XVI

Cilly grasped the arms of her chair; she leaned forward, her eyes dilated with horror.
 "What did you say, sergeant?"
 "You heard me, Miss Pierce. I said that Kerrigan's father—and incidentally his name isn't Kerrigan—is serving a 10-year sentence out in Bluefields, Utah, for the theft of $50,000 worth of bank securities."

Cilly sat up tall in her chair; she squared her shoulders. She did believe in Jim, no matter what! If this were true about his father, it was no fault of Jim's. She believed in him! She held her chin a little higher as she looked into Sergeant Dolan's eyes.
 "What if this is true?" she demanded. "What if Jim Kerrigan's father is in jail? He did not want to tell me because I would be unhappy about it, naturally. But what has it to do with the murder of Amy Kerr?"
 "Plenty, Miss Pierce, plenty. It provides the motive for the killing."

"How?"
 "Amy Kerr knew all about the old man. Kerrigan didn't want her to tell you. He slipped her that note, asking her to meet him on the roof. Perhaps he tried to make her promise to keep her mouth shut. But she was fond of you; she didn't want to see you tied to the wrong sort of man. So she refused. And then—well, you know the rest."

"No, I don't, Sergeant Dolan." Cilly's dark eyes flashed. "I don't know the rest. I don't know how she got down from the roof after Amy was killed. Suppose you tell me that. But don't tell me now that you think I hid the money in my apartment, until after she left."

"No, Miss Pierce," he said. "I can't tell you that. Frankly, I don't believe you did. But someone did. Let's suppose it was the person who threw away those Bluefields newspapers."

Cilly thought of that, and felt just a little ill. Instead of following Jim, she had aided Dolan in building a tighter case.
 "If we find out," Dolan went on,

"that this Wheeler woman has really skipped, it might be well to look into her past. She might be the connecting link. Meanwhile, let's get back to this Kerrigan-Kerr case. It's not a pretty picture."
 Cilly listened apathetically.
 "As I told you, Kerrigan's not the gentleman's right name. His name is also Kerr; he and Amy Kerr were first cousins—"

"Cousins?" Cilly interrupted in surprise. Jim and Amy cousins? Then that explained the recognition in Amy's eyes when Cilly introduced Jim to her. That explained Jim's note to her. He had surmised all along that the Amy Kerr who lived with Cilly might be his own cousin. And Amy, dear loyal soul, knowing the secret of his father, pretended not to know him.

"Their fathers," Dolan went on, "were natives of Interlaken, N. H., as was Aunt Harriet. James Allen Kerr went west many years ago. He found a job in a bank, married and settled down. Things went pretty nicely for him; in time he was made vice president of the Bluefields National Bank. He had one son, James Allen Kerr, Jr., whom you know as Jim Kerrigan. Out in Bluefields, he was known by his middle name—as Allan Kerr."

"That was the reason, Cilly realized, why Amy didn't recognize the name of Jim Kerrigan. Dolan continued:
 "For many years the elder Kerr enjoyed a pretty good reputation in Bluefields. Then along came the depression and he was hit hard. Lost his home, I understand, and most of his stock holdings. What bothered him most, it seems, was that the future looked so dark for his son. Apparently he idolized the boy. At any rate, an opportunity came along to pick up $50,000 in negotiable bank securities, and he took them. He was tried and convicted. They never found the securities, but shortly after the old man went to jail, young Kerr—or Kerrigan—disappeared. The police in Utah believe that he has the money, and they're still looking for him."

"Cilly shook her head dully. "The story isn't true," she insisted. "There's a catch somewhere. Granted all you say is true—that this Mr. Kerr is Jim's father—it wouldn't be the Jim Kerrigan I know to run away and leave him. I'd never believe that!"

"He did, nevertheless. Oh, what's the use, Miss Pierce? I admire your loyalty to the fellow, but you've got to face the facts.

And the fact is that he skipped with $50,000 which his father stole."
 "That may be a fact to you," Cilly said firmly. "We'll grant that this Allan Kerr did just that. But you haven't proved that Jim Kerrigan is Allan Kerr—not by any means."

"I may be wrong, Miss Pierce. But I don't think so. It all fits together too perfectly. Kerrigan knew Amy Kerr, or he wouldn't have asked her to meet him alone on the roof. You can understand that. If it were just a case of his meeting her for the first time and being attracted to her, there were a dozen ways he could have arranged to meet her again. It wasn't that. They knew each other. They were pretty close to each other."
 "Amy's parents, by the way, died some years ago. Aunt Harriet raised her. When the old lady died, Amy went west to live with her uncle and this young cousin. I guess Kerr—or Kerrigan—was mighty glad to see her. She was his only link with Bluefields, and he wanted to hear what had happened since his departure. It was a natural gesture for him to suggest a meeting up on the roof where they could talk privately. What happened later may have been the madness of a moment. The young man, according to reports, has a pretty violent temper. He flew into rages at his father's trial—had to be removed bodily from the courtroom on more than one occasion.

"I'm convinced Kerrigan is young Kerr. Even the similarity in names is striking. He registered at his hotel as James A. Kerrigan. That's an easy change from James A. Kerr, isn't it?"
 "A mere coincidence," Cilly said doggedly. "It doesn't prove that they are the same."

Dolan reached for the telephone. "Give me Higgins," he ordered. Then: "Say, Higgins, have you got those photographs yet—those Kerr pictures they were rushing from Utah? O. K. Send me down a proof, will you?"

Ten minutes later, he was handing them over the desk to Cilly. "Here are the pictures of James Allan Kerr and his son," he said. "Is this your Jim Kerrigan?"
 Cilly held out a trembling hand for them. She stared at the picture of the younger man, and as she did so, her heart contracted. The picture in her hand was a perfect likeness of Jim Kerrigan! And the older man, his father, was the one whose photo Amy had carried in her locker!

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Members of the House, 435 of them, and 10-odd senators will be up for re-nomination and re-election next year. Most of them are home checking on their chances. Some have to worry as to where campaign cash is coming from and some do not.

The writer happened to be with a congressman of the more honest type who was musing over a batch of canceled checks arising from his campaign for re-nomination in 1938. He had spent about $5000 on getting renominated; re-election was no problem.

The checks, he explained, were drawn under two or three names "so the banks wouldn't know too much."

There was a check of around $600 to the postmaster for postage stamps and one of $500 representing a gift to the state Democratic party.

Checks amounted to about $125 for telephone service, including long distance calls. The congressman explained that there are "lots of things you have to say to people that can't be put on paper." And a contribution check of $200 to the Democratic National Committee.

Then some $5 and $10 checks for "social clubs," similar organizations, dances, programs, and things the congressman called "rackets."

TENS of thousands of copies of the congressman's speeches from the Government Printing Office in Washington ran to $303.34. Other printing jobs—circulars, handbills, and the like—"at extra high rates for political stuff," explained the congressman—were paid for by checks amounting to $248.

About $150 was given to veterans' organizations and magazines to sweeten the ex-service vote. Advertising in a Catholic newspaper cost $37, in a German language weekly $65, and an Italian newspaper $45. A labor newspaper got $100 and another foreign language newspaper $50. Regular newspaper advertising ran to $195.50. Stenographic and headquarters help cost $444.

The biggest check was to the Democratic county chairman, required to help pay primary election costs. In many congressional districts, the congressman said, this considerable sum is "borrowed" by a favored candidate from public utility interests.

"Here's one for $75 to cash which I've forgotten about," the congressman went on. "And $29.76 to the telegraph company, and the checks show $450 for some 15-minute radio speeches. Here's $65 for an alleged precinct worker, partly a bribe to keep him from selling me out."

"Here's $500 which went for primary election advertising, and I remember we used about $500 in cash at the same time. Here's another check that was to pay up various campaign debts—for $425, so we wouldn't have too many checks. Here's $500 to an independent organization which I set up. And a lot of checks of $50 or so to my secretary so he could disperse cash."

"Here's one for $500 that you could say was for stealing or buying votes if you wanted to. It cost that much just to make sure that one election judge stayed honest. Then there are some checks for $125 to $175 to certain key political workers. My opponent was paying them $500 apiece, but they knew I didn't have much money. Draw your own moral. This congressman has a good reputation for integrity, here and at home.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS - TEXANS

Q. Who made the first recorded references to the Indians as "Texians" or "Texas," to describe their friendliness?
 A. The historian of the Coronado expedition, Castenado, thus referred to the Indians he came across on the plains in 1541.
 Q. How long had Indians lived in Texas before the advent of white explorer of the early part of the 16th century?
 A. Texas Indian tribes were all nomadic and had no decipherable written language and no dependable traditions upon which reliable history as to their ancestry could be based. Evidently Indians had lived in this country hundreds of years, but how long can only be conjectured.
 Q. What precautionary steps did Viceroy Mendoza take before financing an outfitting Coronado expedition?
 A. He awaited the report of Friar de Niza, who, with Estabancico as a guide and interpreter, was sent ahead to "spy out the land." Father de Niza confirmed what had been heard of the imaginary wealth of Cibola before Mendoza started Coronado, on his rainbow chase.

the mountain tops are damp, timber covered oases, some 8,000 feet above sea level, having tall pine timbers, oaks, spruce ferns, grasses and animal life as much alike as if the peaks were a continuous range.

Monday's Menu
 BREAKFAST: Cantaloupe, griddle cakes, country sausage, syrup, coffee, milk.
 LUNCHEON: Lima bean loaf, lettuce and green pepper salad, grape tapioca pudding, cream, tea, milk.
 DINNER: Hot tomato consommé, cold sliced lamb, grape conserve, stuffed baked potatoes, green peas, orange floating island, coffee, milk.

Grape Tapioca Pudding (4 to 6 servings)
 One quart stemmed Concord grapes, 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar, 4 cup quick-cooking tapioca, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Cook grapes in water for about 5 minutes, then press through sieve to remove skins and seeds. Add sugar, tapioca, and salt to grape juice and pulp and cook for 25 minutes in double boiler. Add lemon juice. Stand until cold. Serve with cream.

If you like to make grape jelly remember this little hint from the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. "To prevent lumpy crystalline formations in grape jelly, the simplest way to eliminate them is to allow the juice to stand overnight. Then the next day, the juice may be siphoned off and strained from the crystals and the sediment, and made into jelly."

In season, here's another use for Eastern grapes.

Thursday Afternoon Club Opens Season with Brilliant Entertainment

Eastland is favored in having a galaxy of brilliant and prominent club women, many of whom are filling important places in State Federation of Women's Club work, and State Federation of Music Club offices, as well as community work with the local organizations in school and civic affairs. In the opening of the Thursday Afternoon Club season on September 30th an "Almuerzo" translated "Morning Coffee" at nine o'clock, Community Club House, the year book committee, Mrs. Art Johnson, brilliant in red and black with bolero and Spanish fin; Mrs. W. course of the year's coming study, based on book title "Forward March." Mrs. O. E. Harvey opened the formal program in a travelogue "Old Mexico," that featured the famous cathedrals familiar through a recent journey to Mexico City. Mrs. Ben Scott in description of the Pan American Cavalcade in Dallas brought out the background of South American history. A brilliant musical program was presented by Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, a veritable senorita in her black and gold lace with high coiffure and comb, and large three cornered black thread lace mantilla from the Rosen collection of St. Joseph, Missouri, and representing the absent club member, Mrs. W. K. Jackson. The numbers played opened with Tarantelle by Dennee; Piano Suite by Carl Bohm, and closed with the Spanish Dance by Sarasate, translated in rhythmic cadence in the Spanish feeling. The Thursday Afternoon Club organized and federated in 1916 and now in its twenty-first year, has provided club members of unusual merit and beauty, that of this season built about the subject chosen, presenting programs on Health and Safety; Poetry and Drama; International Relations, Bible Day, the fitting precursor of the Christmas party, December sixteenth. Interesting Tryouts For Screen Roles To Be at Connellee

Would you like a chance at becoming a movie star? If you would, take advantage of the change given to you by the Eastland Telegram. Some Eastland person is definitely going to get a real screen test by a crack Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer test crew working officially for and in behalf of the MGM studio. Have you ever thought secretly that, given the proper chance, you could make good in motion pictures? Have your friends ever remarked that you possessed voice appeal and personality enough to bring you fame and fortune on the screen? Well, here's the opportunity of your lifetime. For, the Telegram is giving you a chance to demonstrate your ability and personality before the same cameras and microphones that have recorded the pictures of Joan Crawford, Norma Shearer, Clark Gable, Greta Garbo, Myrna Loy and all the other great stars of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is turning Texas into its own private hunting ground in an intensive search for new talent and is offering, through the Telegram, to consider anyone between the ages of sixteen and twenty-eight within the circulation area of the Telegram. Naturally, screen tests cannot be made of all who apply. Only those showing the most marked possibilities can be tested. Accordingly, some process of elimination must be employed and so Connellee Theatre and Telegram in cooperation with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will conduct local auditions for the purpose of selecting one person to be given screen tests. All that is necessary to do is to clip the coupon printed in the Telegram, paste to the back of a photograph of yourself and send to the MGM Search for Talent

Editor and mail under first class postage no later than 9 a.m. Oct. 8. Auditions, which will take place at the Connellee on Wednesday and Thursday are open to all between the ages of sixteen and twenty-eight excepting employees of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the Telegram and Connellee or to anyone who has been registered with the Central Casting Agency or has had screen credit in any nationally distributed motion picture. So, there really isn't much to do to qualify for this golden opportunity for a screen test and chance at being one of four Texans to be sent to the MGM studios in Culver City. There will be seventy five tests made in all and from among the seventy five tested four will be selected by the MGM test director, C. Edward Carriac, for studio tests. These four will have all expenses paid to and from the studio and while there. Expenses will also be paid for the one selected in Eastland to Fort Worth for the screen test. All seventy five tests made in the four key cities, Dallas, Houston, Ft. Worth and San Antonio will be sent to the MGM studio for examination by studio executives and talent scouts, so there are chances that more than four persons will be selected for the additional studio tests. The screen test which some Eastland person will receive will be complete in every respect. Each one tested will be made up, voice tested, photographed and directed by experts. The test crew is consisted of: made up by Bernard McDonnell; studio makeup artist photographed by chief cameraman Charles N. David and his assistant, Philip Greco, and voice tested by sound technician Steven Jones. Local auditions will be judged by a representative of the Telegram, Connellee, and a special representative of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Black Bass Adopted By Canadian Town By United Press CANAQUOE, Ont.—The villagers here have adopted a fish.

Several weeks ago a black bass, weighing about 3 1/2 pounds, appeared in the water near the town bridge and a villager began killing flies and feeding it. Soon the fish became so tame that it appeared at the same spot regularly four times a day, waited to be fed. The villager placed it on a meat diet, and now eats about a quarter pound of meat daily. The fish is a town pet, and a crowd gathers daily to see it

PEOPLE OF WEALTH DO NOT WASTE MONEY! That is the reason they have more than the rest of us. They first learn to save, then to invest wisely, and material gain usually follows. From that source has most wealth come? The answer is known by every school boy and girl. Real estate has formed the base of nearly all the great fortunes built up in modern times. We do not hold to the view that material wealth is what we need. But we do believe that everyone should own his own home. Home ownership may not in itself represent great wealth, but it brings happiness to millions of people every day in the year. EARL BENDER & COMPANY Abstracts — Insurance — Real Estate — Rentals
