Oil Men Told of Their Taxability By United Press DALLAS, Oct. 30.—The oil industry has practically reached its limit of taxability, John P. Morgan, tax commissioner of the Sun Oil Company, told the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association today.

Morgan was the principal speaker at the concluding convention. "Taxing authorities do not realize the inability of the industry to pay more taxes," he asserted. "Each district gives heed to its own needs and piles on more taxes without taking into consideration what the industry already is paying."

DARE-TO-DIE CHINESE UNIT LEAVE POSTS

SHANGHAI, Oct. 30.—The dare-to-die battalion of 150 Chinese, who for three days have defied Japanese efforts to storm their stronghold in two barricaded warehouses across Soochow Creek from the International settlement, began to emerge alive tonight, their flag still triumphantly flying.

With the cooperation of the British and American defense forces, the Chinese filed over the bridge behind a British-erected barricade into the British area of the settlement.

The Chinese marched into the British post, where they deposited their arms and awaited the arrival of trucks to take them to hospitals and shelter in the settlement.

TOKYO, Oct. 30.—The council on the current situation comprised of leaders of the Seiyukai political party and other important personages, tonight adopted a resolution favoring a movement to sever diplomatic relations with Great Britain.

PARIS, Oct. 30.—Japan has given China stringent conditions for peace in the far east Genevieve Tabouis, political commentator for the newspaper Oeuvre said today.

The first condition, according to Mlle Tabouis is that China recognize the independence of Inner Mongolia. China also must recognize the independence of five northern Chinese provinces, with the understanding the Inner Mongolian leader will be permitted to name local governments.

Japan also demands that China concede all territory around Shanghai, now occupied by Japanese troops.

Another condition would grant Japan fishing rights along the entire Chinese coast. A fifth would require China to retire from the League of Nations.

Olden Hornets In Worst Loss For Last Four Years

The Olden Hornets took their worst drubbing in four years Friday when they went down in defeat, 29-0 at the hands of the May Tigers. Every break of the game went against the Hornets and a bad case of fumbleitis helped in the defeat.

The Hornets showed plenty of fight but not enough to overcome the bad breaks against them. The Tigers took advantage of every break and scored two touchdowns on them.

The Hornets threatened only one time in the game and that in the second quarter, reaching the ten yard line only to fumble.

The Hornets play Gordon High school at Olden next Friday.

Negotiable warehouse receipts will be issued when peanuts are purchased and stored, and the receipts can be cashed at the local bank, it was stated today, thereby giving the peanut growers a ready market and a steady price for their product.

Teachers Advised On Continued Pay In Retiring Plan

Failure of the legislature to pass the omnibus bill should not discourage teachers in paying their part in the Teachers Retirement System plan, County Superintendent C. S. Eldridge has been advised by officials.

The suggestion was received by Eldridge, who was instructed to advise teachers from the Texas State Teachers association and officials of the Teachers Retirement System.

The letter from the Teachers Retirement System stated that operating expenses of the system were already partially provided for because of a previous appropriation of $25,000 of the legislature and the $1 annual expense contribution of teachers.

The omnibus bill carried an appropriation of $800,000 which failed to pass because of hasty-minute disagreement of the house and senate on certain parts of the legislation. The contested parts were not over the teacher retirement appropriation.

"We urged that the teachers do not exercise their option to stay out of the system and lose their prior service rights," the teacher association stated. "We urged them to continue to pay 5 per cent of salaries as required by statute setting up the retirement system."

"Success is merely delayed," commented the association which voiced certainty that the State will later make an adequate fund for the program.

Officials Saturday expressed gratification over the announcement of the stationing, effective Monday, of two state highway patrolmen in the county with headquarters at Eastland.

Milton B. Thomas of Mineral Wells is to be one of the patrolmen, aided by Truett Dillard, a recruit.

Another change in the district is the departure of Captain S. O. Hamm, area head, from Abilene because of his acceptance of a position with the Texas Ranger force, Captain Harry Hutchinson, formerly of Waco, will take Hamm's place in the district.

"With the highway patrolmen being stationed in the county," said Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., "officials request that all citizens cooperate in safety efforts in order that all traffic accidents may be eliminated in the county."

In recent years two highway patrolmen were stationed at Eastland but later were transferred to the Abilene office.

NEXT MOVE OF GOVERNOR IS BIG QUESTION

AUSTIN, Oct. 30.—Political effect of the do-nothing session of the legislature furnished much grist for speculation here today. Chief question was whether Gov. Allred would attempt a campaign for a third term. Some thought he would do so with a platform of a one-body legislature. Failure to vote social security taxes they thought would give him a popular campaign topic.

Roughly 250,000 votes might be swung by the old age forces, it was estimated. There have been 128,000 persons on the rolls and each of the 128,000 is a voter exempted from poll tax payments. It was computed an equal number of relatives, who are interested financially in old age assistance for the 128,000, would double the number of voters considering it a major issue.

The unicameral session will be kept alive this winter by the state interscholastic league. It has been made the topic of the league's championship debate. Children all over the state are asking parents to supply arguments for and against it.

Gov. Walter Woodall and Speaker R. W. Calvert, who presided over the two branches of the session, both are candidates for attorney general. Both may be swung as the people decide if the house or senate was right in refusal to compromise.

All house members and 15 of the 31 senators will go before the people next summer, if they seek new terms. Some predicted that few would be returned. Others point to reelection of house members who opposed the submission of the constitutional amendment for old age assistance.

If Sen. Wilbourne Collier of Eastland runs for lieutenant governor, the next senate may have a majority of new members.

Hall of State at Dallas Is Closed

AUSTIN, Oct. 30.—John Singleton, chief of the Centennial Division of the State Board of Control, was in Dallas today preparatory to locking up the Hall of State at the Centennial Exposition grounds.

The Dallas building will be used for offices of state agencies in Dallas. Originally it was transferred to Dallas on an agreement for maintenance. A dispute over the terms led to the cancellation of the grant.

Singleton said he will recommend to the board of control here Monday that the murals, statuary and plaques be transferred to the San Jacinto Battlefield Memorial. The murals are valued at $40,000. The statuary at $30,000 and the plaques at $20,000. The plaques bear the names of the legislators who voted the $3,000,000 Centennial appropriation.

LONGVIEW, Texas, Oct. 30.—Four persons were in a Longview hospital today suffering from burns received in an explosion yesterday on oil lease near East Mountain, in Upshur county.

The blast occurred when Sam Arnold attempted to light a cigarette. The flames from his match ignited gas near an oil tank.

Arnold's wife was most seriously burned, and hospital attendants said today her condition was critical. Others injured included Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moody and their small child.

Arnold, despite painful burns, drove his wife and the other injured to the hospital.

Greatest Drive For Members In Legion Is Planned

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 30.—The greatest drive for members in the history of the American Legion in Texas will get underway on November 6, it was today by Dr. W. J. Danforth, Department Commander.

Division and district commanders and the numerous Posts scattered throughout the State have perfected plans for the membership "push."

Impetus to the drive was given by Gov. James V. Allred when he set aside the week of November 6-13 as American Legion Week and called upon every World War veteran in the State to align themselves with this public spirited and patriotic organization of men and women. In his proclamation the Governor said:

"The American Legion takes its rightful place among the top-ranking organizations of national importance, notably as an organization whose primary functions are the perpetuation of our American ideals and institutions; the rehabilitation of those suffering from service connected disabilities and the employment of all able to work adequate care of the dependents of those brave men and women who have paid the supreme sacrifice; the maintenance of lasting peace."

The American Legion program for Texas during the next 12 months has been shaped by Commander Danforth. It includes a 10-point public health program, continued child welfare work, a drive to find employment for men who have passed the 40-year mark, a vigorous campaign against all isms, a lasting and secure peace for the nation; a continuation of its work among the boys of the State; and a broadened service to the State and the communities in the State.

Memberships already are rolling into State Headquarters. Thousands of veterans who have never belonged to The American Legion are seeking membership and an opportunity to put their shoulder to wheel. There are approximately 135,000 World War veterans eligible for membership in The American Legion in Texas and it is the hope of Commander Danforth that at least half of this number be members of the American Legion at the end of the week's membership drive.

BULLDOGS ARE EASY PREY FOR MUSTANGS 64-0

SWEETWATER, Oct. 30.—The Sweetwater Mustangs found the Ranger Bulldogs easy pickings here last night and fattened their Oil Belt standing to the score of 64 to 0.

The Bulldogs never threatened, the closest they ever came to the Mustang goal being forty-five yards in the waning moments of the game when Whitefield hurled a long pass to Houghton which was good for twenty-five.

The Ponies struck for their first counter before a minute of the game had passed. Sweetwater recovered her kickoff on the Ranger 32 and with Webster and Young alternating, moved the ball down to the six, from where Wetzel bounded over. Young's placement was blocked.

They struck again shortly with a sustained drive from their own thirty-six, this time Mayfield counting with an end around play. Young converted.

Two more markers were chalked up in the second quarter, with Hendrick, subbing for Wetzel, and quarterback Thomas crossing the stripe.

In the last half Pap Hendrick marked three times, Webster twice and Wetzel once. Young converted twice more.

Scrubs Make Heroes but Get No Glory

We Americans have the success bug, and we pour out admiration on the man who can lead the field. This is a pretty good trait, as it creates an atmosphere which produces successful leaders; but we might well spend a little time paying tribute to the great army of second stringers who make the success of the leaders possible.

A pointer comes from—of all places—the football field of Yale University.

When this season ends, some time in November, the inglorious members of Yale's "scrub" team are to be formally banqueted; and then one of them will be given a big silver football about the size of a pumpkin, to honor him, his teammates, and the whole mute line of scrubs who have gone unhonored and unsung through many football generations.

The scrub leads a tough life. He has to get out on the field four or five days a week all through the season and take his bumps while the varsity polishes up its play. He never has the slightest hope of actually playing in a regularly scheduled game. His classmates never honor him with their cheers. He gets all the grief and none of the glory. But because of him the first team is able to win games. If there were no scrubs, the varsity would be in a sorry state. Behind every great gridiron victory there stands a battered scrub team, which rates a good share of the glory but never gets it.

All right; that's part of the game, and the scrubs love the game or they wouldn't be playing it. But the football field isn't the only place you'll find scrubs. The world is full of them. Most of us are scrubs; part of the great army of second stringers who contribute what we can to victories for which we can never get either fame or fortune.

John Jones may become famous as president of a transcontinental railway. But he himself would be the first to admit that he doesn't run the railroad single-handed. Under him there are innumerable section hands, firemen, train dispatchers, master mechanics, shop foremen and so on. If they didn't do their part, John Jones wouldn't be a famous railroad president.

Bill Smith may be a steamship captain, acclaimed for the heroism of his rescues in mid-ocean storms. He didn't make those rescues unaided. He had stout guys down in the engine room with sweat rags around their grimy necks, keeping his ship a jump ahead of Davy Jones in its fight with the storm; skilled seamen in the deck force, ready to take a small boat across tossing waves at their captain's command. Bill Smith gets the glory; the scrubs made it possible.

And so it goes. It is true in every walk of life, from banking to politics, from coal mining to war. A few men have the gifts to be great leaders—the star halfbacks, as you might say, of the game of life. The great majority have to stay on the scrub team. They'll never be either rich or famous, and they know it and don't mind much. They do their jobs and do them well and the gifted ones get the cheers.

But the service the lowly scrubs render is something that should never be overlooked.

Indians pass cake instead of pipe at council meeting. That's better than some of these banquet cigars.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson CHRISTIAN SPEECH AND CONDUCT Text: James 3

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of Advance

JAMES, reputed to be the brother of our Lord, is one of the most direct and practical of teachers. The counsel that he gave to early Christians in his general epistle is very good counsel for our own time. It is reinforced by very striking figures and illustrations.

Here in our lesson he is dealing with Christian speech, and strikingly he emphasizes the need of restraint and adequate discipline. He draws his illustration from the bridle by which a horse is controlled, and from ships, which though they are great and driven by rough winds, are turned about by a very small rudder.

"So the tongue," he says, "is a member, and boasteth great things." But the tongue needs control. "It is a fire: the world of iniquity among our members is the tongue."

How true that all is! The power of words, the way in which they can create wrong impressions, and convey injuries from which there may be no recovery! James sees the tongue as a sort of untamable beast, a restless evil full of deadly poison when it is not controlled. "With the tongue," he says, "we bless the Lord and Father, and with the tongue we curse men made after the likeness of God. Out of the same mouth cometh forth blessing and cursing."

WHAT is man to do with this dangerous weapon of the tongue, that may affect his whole body? He is to seek wisdom, and he is to find that wisdom from above; the wisdom that is pure and peaceable and gentle; full of mercy and without hypocrisy.

There is no use hoping to control the tongue if there be not a right attitude of mind and heart; if there be not mercy in the soul, there will be little mercy in one's words, and if there be not a peaceable disposition, the tongue will be a breeder of strife and bitterness.

Few counsels for living life well are of more practical value than these plain words of James; and it ought to be remembered that "the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace for them that make peace."

Peace does not come by chance. It comes through the attitude and action of those who prepare for it. The world is full of dissension and bitterness today because men have not sought peace and prepared for it. They have lust for wealth and power and have cared more for their own way and interest than for the common good. James enforces the truth that peace and welfare do not come that way.

JACK WENTWORTH, Jill's brother.
SYLVIA SUTTON, old actress.

Yesterday Learning from Arden the secret of his $2000 sale. Alan breaks with Jill, leaving her heartache, lonely.

CHAPTER X

Jill hadn't been herself since the day the angry young man had come to her home. Mrs. Wentworth decided. But what was an angry young man with a city full of young men all ready to be agreeable?

She thought it might be a very good time to mention Milo's devotion, and discovered she was wrong. "She's looking a wreck, for some reason," Mrs. Wentworth told Barry one day. "She'll end up by being an old maid."

"I guess she has a right to be one, if she wants to," Barry retorted. "When—" Mrs. Wentworth ventured, realizing she was on forbidden ground, "when is Sylvia planning to announce her engagement?"

"Ask Sylvia," Barry said, knotting his tie viciously. "I thought you said there was an understanding?" Mrs. Wentworth persisted.

"If you insist on knowing, the understanding seems to be going haywire. I suspect your big, blond stepson, Jack, is the reason. Really I don't much care—there are a dozen girls who are better company. And I know of one who makes Sylvia look like a piece of very pale cheese?"

"Who?"
"Oh, skip it. Don't worry, I'll probably bring you Sylvia Sutton on a silver platter served with all her pedigree and social prestige."

MRS. WENTWORTH felt better. Evidently, Barry was still planning to marry Sylvia. But who was this other girl? If her plans didn't carry through for Barry's brilliant marriage, it would be a terrible disappointment.

Then, there was the problem of Jill. It didn't matter whether Jill married brilliantly or not, just so she married. Jill passed her stepmother with some letters in her hand. Jill, thought Mrs. Wentworth, always manages to be at home around mail time. She ought Jill looked excited.

Jill was, one of the letters in her hand was in a clear-cut masculine writing that was new. Even before she opened it, she knew it was from Alan.

She tore open the envelope. A check fluttered from the folded page. Alan had written: "I hope you will forgive me. I realize now you meant to be kind. But it was impossible for me to accept. However, there seems no way to escape obligation. Moving was evidently the right idea. I've sold several pictures which made it possible to send a check, closing the transaction. Sincerely, Alan."

Closing the transaction! He might just as well have said: "Ending everything. He had asked forgiveness for hurting her, but he had not forgiven her. Which was the greatest hurt of all."

Mechanically, she opened another letter. It was from Ellen Beckwith inviting her for a visit. For a long while Jill sat very still, holding the letters in her hand. One of them shutting the door to romance. The other opening the door to a temporary escape from life here at home—which had become in a moment a barren oasis. She would accept Ellen's invitation. There was nothing to wait for now.

SYLVIA SUTTON had come over to say goodby to Jill.

Jill knew that her stepmother expected Sylvia to announce her engagement to Barry soon. But she was far from certain about it, herself.

There was none of the happy excitement about Sylvia that marked girls engaged to the men they loved. She was sure Sylvia was unhappy. Jack was not himself either. The two facts added up and made a complete conclusion.

Watching Jill assembling her wardrobe efficiently, Sylvia said: "You're simply wonderful Jill. I could never pack a trunk—or do anything, really."

"I think I'd make a swell poor man's wife," Jill said slowly, carefully placing a sky-blue evening gown on a padded silk hanger.

Something, Sylvia thought, had happened to Jill. She isn't the same. Jill was the grandest girl she knew. She'd hate for things to go wrong for her.

They went down stairs, and found Mrs. Wentworth waiting. Impulsively, Sylvia put her arms about Jill and kissed her warmly. Jill looked so woe-begone and lonely. As though she didn't want to go and as though she didn't want to stay.

"Won't you go to the station with us, Sylvia?" Mrs. Wentworth asked eagerly.

"Thank you, no," Sylvia replied. "I must hurry home."

She started walking toward her coupe. Got in and turned on the ignition. As the occupants of the big car waved, Sylvia's hand went up gaily. A moment later the Wentworth car was lost around a curve of the drive.

Then, very calmly, Sylvia switched off the ignition and got out. "Anything wrong, Miss Sylvia?" queried the gardener, coming toward her.

"No, Andrew, I was just thinking I would like to see your garden. Could you show me about?"

"Gladly, Miss Sylvia. There's not much to see at this time of year. The chrysanthemums are fine. And there are some pretty things in the conservatory. Some tropical plants I'd like to show you."

It was while they were in the conservatory that Sylvia heard the car on the drive. It was too soon for Mrs. Wentworth to be back. If she were very lucky—"Whose car is that?" she inquired, trying to make her voice sound casual.

"Mr. Jack's," answered the old man, absently.

"Andrew," said Sylvia, "will you tell Mr. Jack someone wants to see him here?"

"Certainly, miss."

Jack came striding into the conservatory, stopping abruptly when he saw Sylvia. His face went white.

"If the mountain won't come to Mahomet," began Sylvia. "I've been calling you worse names than a mountain. I've been calling you..."

"How could I come?" Jack's voice was low, tense and unhappy. "You couldn't unless you cared as much as I do," Sylvia replied simply.

And then, suddenly, she was in his arms. "It's no use, darling," Jack said unsteadily. "I can't give you up now. Though I tried. I had the feeling that you had planned to marry Barry, and would have, if I had not come along."

"I never would have gone through with it," Sylvia said. "I realized it long ago. Even before you came back from school. But you wouldn't notice me, wouldn't dance with me, rushed past me on the streets. This was the only way I knew."

She stopped talking. For the very good reason that it was impossible to talk and be effectively kissed at the same time.

A mocking voice reached them: "Smooth work, Jack. Everywhere I turn, I have evidence of your superior attainments."

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BETTER whip up a cake, for tomorrow night the friendly goblins may drop in for a few pranks and a Halloween greeting—and goblins are notorious cake-bounds. Everybody forgets their cares on Halloween, so why not join in the fun even though you had decided to let it pass unnoticed? The following recipe produces a handsome cake and watch the witches and the black cats and the goblins brighten when they see it.

Halloween Cake
(Two 9-inch layers)

Three cups sifted cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup butter or other shortening, 1-2 cups sugar, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup water, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1-4 teaspoon almond extract, 3 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 1 can moist, sweetened coconut.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add flour alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add flavoring; fold in egg whites quickly and thoroughly. Bake in two 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 20 minutes. Spread tinted fluffy frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake, reserving about 1 cup of frosting. Cut pattern of pumpkin out of waxed paper and place on top of cake. Cover rest of cake with moistened, sweetened coconut. Remove pattern and fill in with reserved frosting to form pumpkin. Make face of pumpkin out of raisins.

Tinted Fluffy Frosting
(Orange)

One teaspoon vegetable food color (orange), 1-2 cup water, 3 egg whites, unbeaten, 2-1-4 cups sugar, 2 teaspoons light corn syrup, 1-1-2 teaspoons vanilla.

Dissolve tint in water in top of double boiler; add egg whites, sugar, and corn syrup, and beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater, and cook 10 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire; add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers with about 1 cup extra frosting for special decorating.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Official repudiation of the theory that isolation and neutrality acts could save this country from war has disturbed many peaceful dreams and probably there have been few times when so obvious a demand existed for some fellow with a feasible recipe for world peace.

The most able and simplified summary in this field of study has just been brought out by the Foreign Policy Association in the form of a small, illustrated booklet, "Peaceful Change—The Alternative to War," by William T. Stone and Clark M. Eichelberger.

This is a brief digest of their summary, which attempts to tell what the "dissatisfied nations"—Japan, Germany, Italy—want, the extent to which their demands are justified and what can be done about it.

Search for economic solutions and peaceful change, the authors say, shows that the crux of the whole problem is "the question of trade and markets, and the factors which limit the purchasing power of consumer nations."

How to achieve conditions of justice which will make possible the maintenance of peace by diminishing the "have-nots" demand for new territory, raw materials and markets?

Ability to buy is just as vital in the case of nations as individuals. If nations are to have equal access to raw materials, those who produce them must be willing to sell at a fair price, and those who wish to buy must have enough purchasing power.

But it has become more and more difficult to transact business between nations because of large walls of export restrictions, international tariffs, trade preferences and discriminations, quota and exchange controls and other trade barriers growing out of economic nationalism. World production has scooted far ahead of the volume in world trade, with an intensified scramble for markets.

After asking, "Is there a way out?" Stone and Eichelberger cite such suggestions as an international agreement providing that export duties should in no case discriminate between consumers, some international supervision of cartels and monopolies, an open door principle for colonial areas—admitting all goods on an equal footing, mandate supervision over primitive and undeveloped countries, international planning for the exchange of goods some plan for co-ordination of national economic policies, currency stabilization with temporary gold credits to such nations as Germany and elevation of labor standards by international agreement so that reduction of trade barriers wouldn't cause fear of unfair competition.

"Economic and military disarmament must be achieved together if any solution is to be found," and two prime requisites are "a will to permit change, and machinery to provide adjustments." The United States must be part of co-operation is to become the normal method of conducting world affairs.

LET'S KNOW TEXAS AND TEXANS

WILL HAMILTON
AUSTIN, TEXAS

In this column answers will be given to inquiries as to Texas history and other matters pertaining to the State and its people. Address inquiries to Will H. Hamilton, Austin, Texas.

Q. Who was the first Baptist church of any kind organized in Texas?
A. The Province Primitive ("Hardshell") Church, on the Colorado River, 12 or 15 miles below Bastrop, organized March 29, 1834 by Abner Smith. Rev. Daniel Parker's "Pilgrim Church of Predestinated Regular Baptists," organized before the Parkers colony left Illinois, was established in Texas Jan. 20, 1834.

Q. Who was the first Baptist Missionary to Texas?
A. Rev. Z. N. Morrell, who made a trip into Texas as far as the Brazos near Marlin, returning to Nacogdoches, in January, 1836 where he preached to a mixed audience that had gathered for the election of Feb. 1 to select delegates to the constitutional convention, taking as his text the prophetic words: "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them; and the desert shall blossom as the rose."

Q. What is the tradition as to earlier Baptist missionary work in Texas than that of Rev. Z. N. Morrell?
A. It is that in 1834 or 1835 a Rev. Rose ("Old Rose") established a Baptist organization at "Hangman's Hill," San Augustine County, after which he moved on in other church activities in Nacogdoches and Harrison counties, but if this is true the church must have died when he left it for nothing more is known of it.

Q. Was La Grange ever favorably considered as the location for the capital of Texas?
A. By a majority vote of both houses of Congress the John E. Lin league, on the east side of the Colorado River, adjoining La Grange was selected as the site for the capital of the Republic, April 17, 1838, on a favorable report of the majority of a committee composed of Patrick C. Jack of Brazoria, George Sutherland of Jackson, P. O. Lumpkin of Houston, G. W. Barnett of Washington and Emory Raines of Shelby county, but the action of Congress was vetoed by Pres. Houston.

Q. On what grounds did Pres. Houston veto the action of Congress in locating the capital at La Grange?
A. The reasons stated for the veto were that as the seat of government was not to be removed from Houston before 1840, the act was premature, inasmuch as any intervening Congress might at its will change the location, and further, that a greater financial outlay would be required than he was willing to approve.

Q. What was to have been the name of the seat of Texas government under the act of Congress locating it at La Grange?
A. The capital was to have been called Austin.

Q. Who was charged by members of the Mier expedition with leading in the raid upon the homes at Laredo?
A. President Houston, in a letter to Hamilton Stuart, dated Dec. 21, 1845, stated that Gen. Thomas Jefferson Green, according to assertions from many of the army, was the first to break open a house at Laredo and that he had incited others to perpetrate this outrage.

Church Women Buy Beer Tavern For Sunday School Room

MARLIN, Texas—Another way to close up a beer tavern has been discovered by the women of the First Baptist Church at Reagan, 9 miles south of Marlin.

It was purchased, removed to the church premises and renovated so that it would accommodate Sunday School classes.

IS IT THE INDIVIDUAL OR HIS ENVIRONMENT? Some writers take the position that success depends entirely on the individual; others say its his environment that puts him ahead, while still others combine the two, and say both are necessary. We are neutral and profess no superior knowledge on the subject, but we see all about us every day many folks who are working away at their tasks—some farmers, some business men, some at the business of making homes—all achieving success. Whatever may be your ambition, or your work, do not neglect the business of home ownership. When it comes, let SUCCESS find you in your own home!
