HIGH COURT DENIES TEXAS TWO PETITIONS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The supreme court today denied a new petition that it review validity of the Texas intangible property tax, levied on oil pipelines, railroads, bridges and ferries.

The court also denied Texas petition for a review of the fifth circuit court of appeals decision that interstate freight rates are applicable to cotton shipped from points of origin in Texas to Houston warehouses and cotton brokers.

The state contended that such shipments actually are in interstate commerce and that rates prescribed by the Texas Railroad Commission—higher than the interstate rates prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission—should apply.

Associate Justice Hugo L. Black aligned himself again with the supreme court's liberal minority in a six to three decision involving a technical interpretation of the federal bankruptcy law. At the same time the court dismissed two new challenges to Black's eligibility.

Family's Share In School Discussed

Discussion of "The Family Share in the School Program" featured the recent meeting of the Morton Valley Parent-Teacher association at the school auditorium.

CONDITIONS NOT DRASTIC SAYS MESSAGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—President Roosevelt committed himself today to limited tax law revision to remove injustices and proposed to an extraordinary session of congress a four-point program as a defense against "marked recession in industrial production and industrial purchases."

The special session met at noon after the president conferred with congressional leaders and read to them his message. He did not deliver the message to congress in person.

Committing himself to tax revision to remove inequities for small business and non-speculative investors, Mr. Roosevelt asserted his belief the supreme court hereafter would interpret the constitution more in conformity with the new deal to allow crop control.

He asked congress to provide: 1—Wages and hours legislation. 2—An "all-weather" crop control program. 3—Reorganization of executive departments. 4—National planning for better use of natural resources.

He explained that conditions now are not parallel with those in 1929. Mr. Roosevelt reiterated his intention to balance the budget. He demanded that congress provide new revenues for any expenditures now.

Mr. Roosevelt said he would have further recommendations including proposals to encourage private capital to undertake housing construction on a big scale.

The president merely reaffirmed his agricultural crop control program. The reorganization of executive departments and the project for seven regional planning bodies to coordinate use of natural resources.

He insisted that "immediate congressional action" is necessary to maintain wage income and purchasing power.

Asking for Trouble in Quest of Health

Announcement by the American Medical Association that 13 deaths have been caused by the use of a new remedy, despite previous warnings against the dangers of the drug, directs attention again to the credulity of the American public in matters of medicine.

In the face of clear pronouncements that the full properties of the preparation were as yet unknown, patients readily subscribed to its use—with tragic results.

A companion case is that of a reducing compound which produces artificial fever, and which added another life to its toll on the same day the other fatalities were disclosed.

Inexplicable is the tendency of Americans to try out new medicines, with their own bodies as test tubes, disregarding truly scientific knowledge. Many of these preparations are produced under semi-secret formulas, compounded with pseudoscientific ingredients, manufactured not for improvement of health but for sale alone.

Equally inexplicable is the refusal of the purchasing public to accept the factual findings of acknowledged experts such as the crops of analysts employed by the American Medical Association, solely for the enlightenment and protection of the public.

Before any drug or medicinal preparation is accepted by the association it is subjected to most exhaustive tests and analysis. Only after all tests are complete and results correlated is the drug accepted and given to members of the association for use. All preparations found unfit are so branded, and physicians are warned against their use.

The human race should be old enough to realize that there is no mystical fountain of youth, and that equally remote is the possibility of finding panaceas for all ills. But with the same abandonment of common sense that keeps get-rich-quick promoters in wealth, man follows a will-o'-the-wisp in his search for health, willing to accept almost fantastic medicaments before he will turn to the advice of a qualified physician.

If science were to ask any man to submit his precious body to medical experiment that might endanger his life, he would scorn the idea as ridiculous. But without thought of future, without slightest concern for consequences, thousands and millions of invalids blandly accept the ballyhoo of high pressure quacks in the face of sound, accepted medical knowledge.

Remember when a load of camp chairs trundled down the street signified a wedding or a funeral, instead of a sitdown strike?

High Schools Select World's Great; Roosevelt Leads, Hitler, Mussolini Next

COLUMBUS, O. — President Roosevelt is the choice of American high school students of current events to lead the 10 most important persons living in the world today and those most likely to be remembered by historians 100 years hence, Every Week, national high school weekly newspaper published by the American Education Press, reveals.

Here is the way American high school student rated the world's great:

1. Franklin D. Roosevelt.
2. Benito Mussolini.
3. Adolf Hitler.
4. Charles A. Lindbergh.
5. Josef Stalin.
6. Albert Einstein.
7. Henry Ford.
8. Duke of Windsor.
9. Chiang Kai-shek.
10. King George VI.

Closest contenders to the leading 10 were: John L. Lewis, the Duchess of Windsor, Pope Pius, General Francisco Franco, Mahatma Gandhi, Eleanor Roosevelt and Madame Chiang. Such heroes of youth as J. Edgar Hoover, head of the G-men, and Admiral Richard E. Byrd also received a heavy vote.

Compilation of numerical votes was impossible since some selections were made by individuals and others by entire classes.

The survey was in the form of a contest and reached students studying current events and history in every state.

Awards were given to the three students whose selections most nearly matched the general opinion. The awards went to Margery Benton, Columbus, O., first; Edwin Jacob, Detroit, second; Arthur Laalis, Milwaukee, third.

Part of County In Brazos Area Receives Study

County Agent Elmo V. Cook forwarded Saturday a survey on the portion—95 per cent of Eastland county which is in the Brazos River watershed. The survey and findings was sent Vice Extension Service Director Jack Shelton, College Station, at whose request Cook made the survey in cooperation with other agencies and the soil conservation service.

Lending assistance to Cook in the making of the survey were members of the county court, vocational agricultural teachers and leading farmers, ranchers and business men.

The five per cent of the county not included in the watershed of the Brazos is in the southwestern section.

Trends in agricultural enterprises is shown in the survey, Cook's report stating that the main enterprise changed from livestock to cotton in 1890, from cotton to peanuts in 1912 and peanuts to diversification in 1933.

It further stated that 2,000 acres of once cultivated land in the county now is not under cultivation because of frequent water overflowing; that 200 acres have been ruined by deposit of debris during floods and that overflow on lands is more frequent because of water running off land faster, getting into streams quicker causing congested channels and overflows.

Thirty dollars was fixed as the average value decrease of each acre suffering overflowing and that $50 would be the value if overflowing was stopped. Thirty-five years records were covered in the arrival of estimates.

Total damage each year on land because of overflowing was fixed at $10,000 from use of records covering 20 years. Damage to man, Cisco; Burnside Motor Co., Eastland.
1938 Chevrolet Sedan, Lewis E. Starr, Cisco; Gorman Sales Co., Cisco.

farm property each year has been $10,000, the report also stated. Road damage annually and number of miles each year from overflow was fixed at 17 miles and $18,000. This covered federal, state and county roads.

Annual cost of repairing highway and railroad bridges from damage of excess water was fixed at $5,000; city street, $5,000; city recreational center, $1,000 and city bridges, $1,000.

The survey estimated that during a navigable flood each year in the portion of the county in the Brazos district was that 30 families were forced to move temporarily from bottom lands. Seventy-five families were forced to remove to higher lands in a severe flood in the county, it was stated.

Damage to water supplies due to soil washed away in the last 20 years was estimated at $200,000. Damage to fish in the period because of silt depositing in stream channels was placed at $5,000.

Erosion in the last 20 years, it was estimated, to farm buildings was $5,000, to fencing $6,000 and $5,000 for private roads.

The following recommendations were made for soil conservation, fertility increase and lessening of overflow of water on lands.

1. Reduce acres planted in cotton, peanuts.
2. Cease to overgraze pastures.
3. Plant winter crops on row-crop land.
4. Terrace all crop land.
5. Run rows with terrace.
6. Practice regular rotation in strips.
7. Contour list all pastures possible.
8. Practice reseedling and deferred grazing pasture.
9. Plant more fibrous rooted crops.

The survey Cook report stated farmers would be willing to cooperate in a program to increase soil values and lessen overflowing of water if their income was not sacrificed too much during the first years of any program.

The county, it was stated, would be willing to supply all available equipment if plans assumed for payment of the operating equipment.

It would be necessary for the federal government to furnish most of the manual labor expense, half of equipment and reimbursement to the county for depreciation of equipment.

The information was desired for public hearings on run-off and water flow retardation and soil erosion in the Brazos district, it was stated.

DO GOLFERS APPRECIATE CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS

It means a lot that famous golfers like Gene Sarazen, Helen Hicks, Lawson Little, and Ralph Guldahl, agree in their preference for Camels. They have found that costlier tobaccos do place Camels in a class apart. Listen to Ralph Guldahl, National Open Champion: "I've stuck to Camels for 10 years," he says. "I smoke lots of Camels and I've never known them to jangle my nerves. That partly explains why so many golfers are loyal Camel smokers."

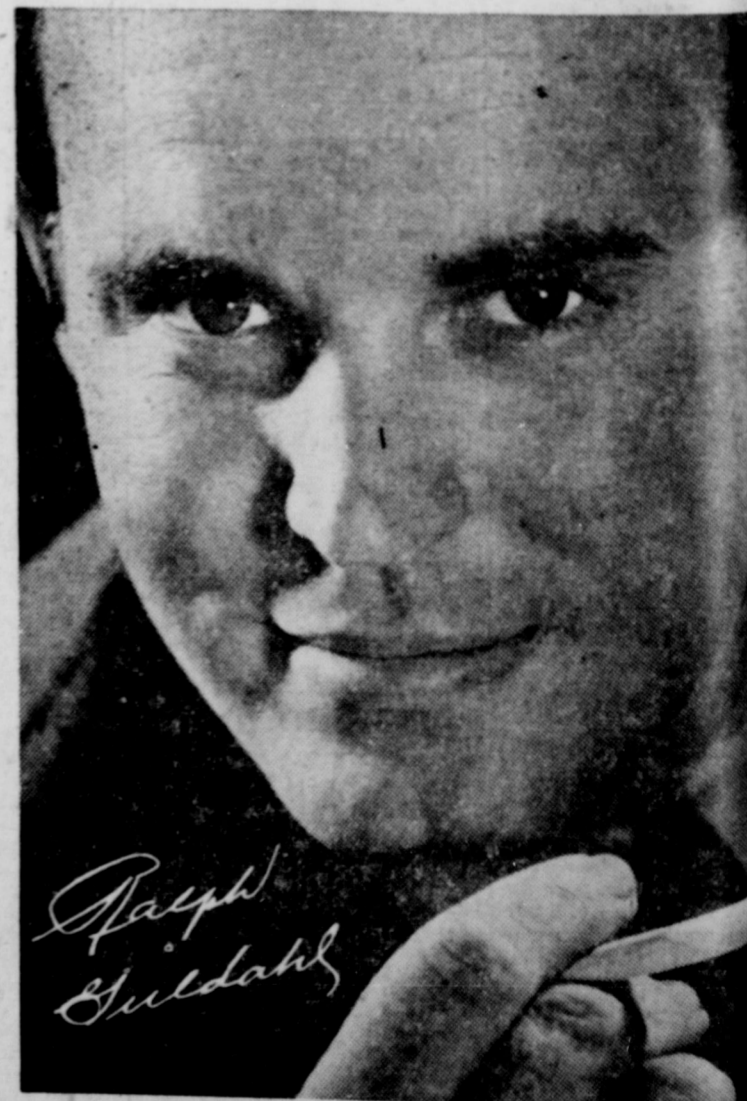

And not only golfers, but people in all walks of life—millions of Americans—prefer Camels day after day after day, making them the LARGEST-SELLING cigarette in America... or the world.

 SALESGIRL Eisie Schumacher: "When the rush gets me 'worn out'—it's me for a Camel, and I get a quick 'lift.' Practically all of us girls in the store prefer Camels!"	 SPORTS WRITER Stuart Cameron: "It's mighty impressive how champions' agree on Camels. I'm glad as any athlete that Camels don't get on my nerves."	 BANK TELLER John McMahon: "I'm handling money by the thousands. Jangled nerves just don't fit in that kind of work. So it's Camels for me."
 WATCHMAKER I. C. Gorkun says: "Camels? Say, every Camel I smoke seems to be milder and tastier than the last one. Camels don't leave me feeling 'smoked out'!"	 DRAFTSMAN B. T. Miller: "I often feel used up during long hours before the drawing board. Camels give me a 'lift' when I feel I need it. They never tire my taste."	 AUTO MECHANIC Al Patterson: "In the garage business you have to catch your meals on the run. Camels seem to smooth the way for good digestion."
 CHIEF SIGNALMAN of N. Y. Central R. R., John Geraghty: "Speed and safety—our watchwords—call for healthy nerves. Do Camels jangle my nerves? No sir!"

hen I met him... which caused heart failure. "They say I was running away from my father, and I was," Jill said. "But I can't tell them about it."

"But, Jill, darling, you must!" Patty cried, distressed. "The police are after you."

"Yes, I know," Jill answered. "You couldn't expect me to tell them I went to a man who didn't love me."

"Jill, you went to Alan Jeffrey?"

"Yes, I would have him despise me utterly. So, as soon as it was daylight I drove to his place to explain about dad; how I had decided at the ball to announce my engagement to Milo and how it was 6 o'clock when I left the place. That was the time Miss Dexter and mother heard dad fall."

"Then, that's a perfect alibi," Patty exclaimed. "You couldn't possibly be in two places at the same time. Alan will tell them you came here."

"He may not know," Jill said in a low voice. "There was a girl there, and she answered the door. Then I went away."

"Ardath!" Patty cried. Then, as Jill did not reply, "Of course it was. I always felt she was out to get Alan."

"It makes no difference now," Jill said, dully. "I don't love him now. I couldn't—knowing about Ardath. I was wild at first, though, and I drove around trying to get myself together. I must have looked dreadful because the officer who stopped me said: 'Pull yourself together, girl. You're going to need all of your wits now.' I thought he was talking about speeding. I said, 'Please let me alone. I'll pay the fine.' Then he said: 'Money won't help you out now, Miss Wentworth. They want to question you about your father's death.' Just like that!"

"They're right about pulling yourself together, Jill. Nobody in their right mind would think you had anything to do with it. Everyone knows you adored your father. All you have to do is to say you felt you owed Alan an explanation about announcing your engagement so abruptly, and had driven to his place. You can say you got there, you changed your mind, realizing an explanation would do no good. You can say you saw Ardath on the street and she spoke to you. Which will be the truth, if only a part of it."

"I'd rather die!" Jill cried. "I could never ask Alan—or Ardath—to help me."

Will they cross over and live in eternal life? Or will they have to pay the cost. And have to live in peril and strife? Someone will have to pay for those human lives that were lost. Pray God that our country is not a victim of the Monster War. And that we won't have any lives lost. Let us live as we are; So that we won't have to pay the cost.

WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Exchange of views between the Maritime Commission and the National Maritime Union, featured by Chairman Joe Kennedy's "put 'em in iron" curb to the Algic captain at Monterey and union President Joe Curran's promise to "get Kennedy's scalp," is going to get hotter.

The two chief factors begging solution are a strong anti-union feeling among most members of the commission and its staff and a serious series of breaches of discipline, especially among stewards in the American merchant marine.

Labor leaders don't know it yet, but they'll be hollering blue murder when the commission's report on the whole merchant marine situation is sent to Congress this month. The commission has decided that the Coast Guard should be used to train seamen, that new seamen should learn discipline on Coast Guard vessels and that ship operators should require ship operators to hire the graduates.

This hits the seamen's unions right between the eyes. It would strike at their union hiring halls where men are provided for outgoing ships, and tend to weaken if not destroy the unions.

The scheme is sure to be denounced as a "union-busting" device and reports from inside the commission indicate that some members and high officials believe with either enthusiasm or disapproval, that it is exactly that. The dominant feeling in the commission is that labor unions, at least militant unions, have no place in the merchant marine.

Although propaganda about bad discipline at sea has been common out of the commission lately in advance of its report, everyone concerned—sympathetic to unions or not—agrees that a bad situation has existed and that something must be done to reduce the large volume of passenger complaints.

Publicity is being given to alleged instances of the seaman who demanded hearts of lettuce instead of lettuce leaves, a crew which insisted on unloading a ship on the shady rather than the sunny side of a wharf, a drunken steward who fell into a swimming pool among guests, a steward who said to a female passenger, "Get up, baby, it's time for breakfast," and so on. The merits of the Algic case, with facts bitterly disputed, will be ruled on by a federal court faced by 14 crew members who temporarily stopped work at Monterey.

In the background is the fact that seamen whose wages were forced down as low as $25 on $30 a month and who crowded into filthy, vermin-infested quarters with bad food until many of the better ones left the sea, are now feeling their oats and releasing pent-up emotions against the union.

But the commission is feeling its oats, too, and has hired men for key jobs who privately admit anti-union prejudice.

The question will be asked, fairly or not, why the Maritime Commission couldn't try to work with the unions since interests of both are vitally bound up with good operation of American ships. There is no record that it ever has taken up any complaint with any of the unions.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
NEA Service Staff Writer

THE cow that jumped over the moon was the first beef to go sky-high, but still you can have beef on your table. . . . Next time, the darling young Albanian girl who wrote "Daughter of an Eagle," passes on to me these secrets of the way Albanians keep down their meat costs.

Albanian Stuffed Squash
(4 to 6 servings)

One-quarter pound ground round steak, 4-5 cup uncooked rice, 1 onion, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 eggs, 4 medium green squash (about 6 inches), 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons butter.

Cut squash in two crosswise. Scrape out most of the pulp, leaving a fairly well padded squash cup. Mix meat, rice, chopped onion, parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Stuff squash halves with this mixture, but do not pack very tight, because the rice will swell when cooking. In large deep kettle, place saucers upside down. (Use a steamer.) On these, stand the stuffed squash. Better run a long toothpick through each squash half to keep it in shape. Cover the squash with more plates, add about 1 cup water to pot, cover and place over low fire. Add more water when necessary, but never very much at a time. Steam about one hour, or until meat and rice are done. Before removing squash from kettle, add this sauce and cook a little longer. Beat eggs and add lemon and beat thoroughly until light. Add a little salt and a little melted butter and beat some more. Pour this sauce into the pot over the tender squash. When sauce has boiled up, the dish is done. The Daughter of the Eagle knows her squash!

Broiled Fish on Toast with Pickles

This comes from your own U. S. Sam via the United States Department of Agriculture. It is printed verbatim and should add one more ground beef recipe that has the double advantage of being quickly cooked and easily eaten. Toast slices of bread on one side. Spread the untoasted side lightly with butter or other fat and sprinkle with salt and pepper. For 6 or 8 slices of bread, use 1 pound ground raw beef with salt and pepper and add 2 or 3 tablespoons top milk or diluted evaporated milk. Spread the meat mixture over the untoasted side of the bread slices, covering evenly to the very edge. Broil by direct heat, under flame or grill, for 5 to 10 minutes. Add melted butter if desired. Serve hot with garnish of pickles, sliced onion, or green pepper.

Woodson Winner Over Olden 18 to 7

In their final conference game, the Olden Hornets lost to the Woodson Cowboys Friday by the score of 18-7. The game decided the Championship of the lower half of the district.

The Hornets threatened in the first quarter. Rex Howell received a pass on the 40 and carried it to the fifteen but the Hornets fumbled and the Cowboys kicked a field goal on the 21 yard line and scored but failed to convert.

The Cowboys scored again in the third quarter on an intercepted pass from the Hornets' 25 yard line. Their final score came in the fourth quarter after a fumble on the thirty. They advanced to the eighteen and then the Hornets received a fifteen yard penalty and they scored from the three.

The Hornets scored after an eighty yard drive. Holt scoring on a pass. Ray Howell plunged over right tackle for the extra point.

High lights of the game was the fight of the Hornets against heavy odds, being out weighed considerably. Wilbert Norton, "Jiggs" Fowler, Rex Howell, Melvin Holt played an outstanding game.

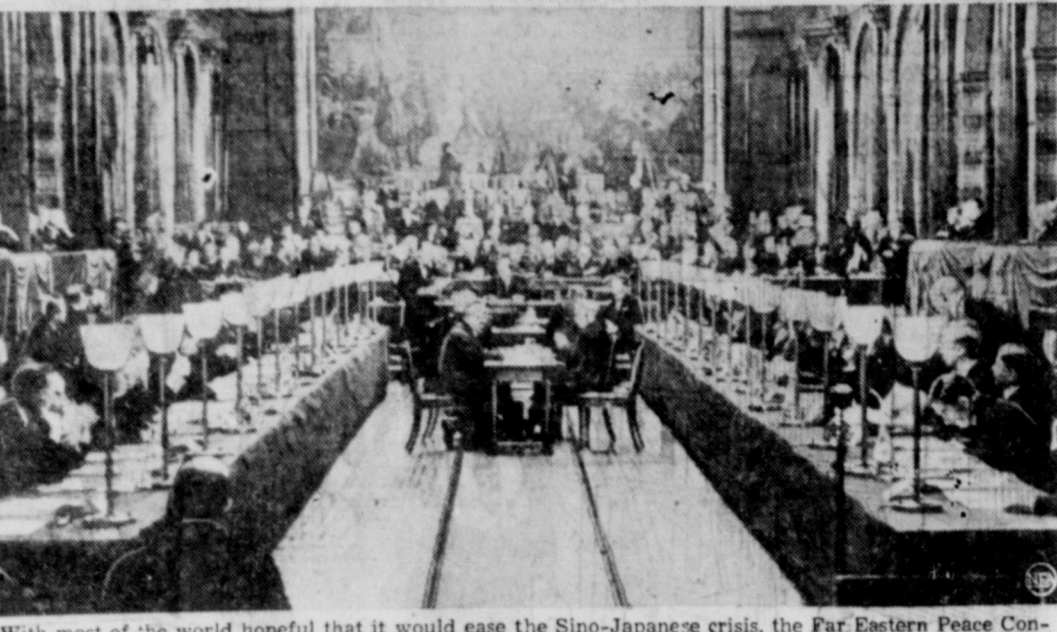

The game was witnessed by the largest crowd ever to see a game in Olden. This ends the season for the Hornets, and Coach Scruggs

Chart Is Compiled For Boiling Eggs While On a Plane

SAN FRANCISCO. — When should a three-minute egg be boiled more than three minutes? When the egg is 12,000 feet in the air, en route from San Francisco to Honolulu in a Clipper airplane.

A board of inquiry has reached that decision after a formal investigation. It all started because stewards aboard trans-Pacific Clippers couldn't decide just how long a three-minute breakfast egg should be boiled when the steward and the egg were up above the clouds.

Engineers at Pan America's Alameda base took up the question, to-wit: "What is the relation of altitude to the achievement of tensile strength, by boiling, of an egg?"

The engineers produced charts which will be posted in galleys of all Clippers. The charts show, by graphs of altitude pressures, that if a passenger between San Francisco and Honolulu orders a "three-minute egg," it should be boiled three and one-half minutes if the plane is 5,000 feet and four and one-half minutes if it is at 12,000 feet altitude.

reports a very successful season. Winning four, losing two and one tie.

Preachers' Revolt In Mexico Taken Rather Lightly

JUAREZ, Chihuahua. — Some residents of Juarez are a little nervous over the recent manifesto issued by Senor Pablo L. Delgado calling for a revolution, but the bartenders and citizens at large of this city on the south bank of the Rio Bravo do Norte don't think so much of it.

Senor Delgado, a fiery-minded preacher who lives in El Paso, Texas, isn't at home to visitors. The fact is, he isn't at home at all. His family thinks he is somewhere in Arizona.

From the talk that is going on in Juarez, one could assume that Senor Delgado, former captain of Juarez fiscal guards, once allied with the "Gold Shirts" of Gen. Nicholas Rodriguez, doesn't have much of a following.

But from his hiding place, the non-interview-giving leader has sent out a new statement: "Some fools thought I was going to appear immediately on my white horse, like Napoleon, in front of Juarez. My manifesto was a call. The manifesto is finding its way to every nook and corner of the republic and very soon you will hear the music."

But the gentlemen who preside over the mahogany bars in Juarez merely laugh over their beer steins and assure the casual visitor that Senor Delgado can't get to first base in any sort of an armed revolt, and other than the gentlemen behind the mahogany, there are few better judges of wind direction on this side of the border.

"Unless Cardenas goes there is little chance of trouble here in Mexico," they say. "The peons love him because he has given them land and the chance to make themselves individuals."

Whether war is brewing, it is hard to tell. But this much is certain: Gen. Juan Felipe Rico will have a special reception committee on hand to welcome the former Cardenista follower if he puts in his appearance on this side of the international bridge.

"The manifesto was put into circulation for personal financial gain," said Rice. "Delgado has not appeared in Juarez since, but if he does, he will find we are prepared to arrest him."

One-Sixth of All Taxes Are Paid by Owners of Autos

WASHINGTON.—One-sixth of all the money gathered in taxes by all local, state and federal units of government is obtained through levies upon ownership and use of motor vehicles.

This was revealed today upon completion of a twelve-month study of taxation in the automotive field by the National Highway Users' conference. The study, based largely upon government figures, is believed to be the most extensive and authoritative of its type ever undertaken.

Motor vehicle owners and users bear a total "ultimate consumer" burden of at least $1,750,000,000 in levies placed annually upon automotive transportation in all its phases, the conference reports.

Annual tax receipts of all governmental units are estimated at $10,200,000,000.

Establishing the annual total of direct and indirect taxes at an average of $60 per vehicle, the report states: "The actual average unit value of each of the 28,000,000 vehicles in the United States is only $190.05, according to the American Automobile association. Ninety per cent of the automobile owners of the country have an annual income of less than $30 per week."

The per-vehicle average of direct taxes has increased 545 per cent during the last twenty years. This great increase, the report notes, has developed during a period marked by a steady growth of automobile ownership by low-income families.

Direct taxes last year formed 86 per cent of the total of special levies paid by motor vehicle owners. The remaining 14 per cent was comprised of taxes on industries and enterprises in the automotive field which ultimately are paid by motorists in purchase prices.
