Bulldogs Lose But Sparkle Once In a Sensational Play

The Ranger Bulldogs finished their 1937 football season at Stephenville Thanksgiving Day by going down in defeat before the Stephenville Yellow Jackets by a score of 39 to 7, but not without a spectacular play that scored one of the most sensational touchdowns seen in the Oil Belt this year. True the touchdown meant little, except that it kept the Bulldogs from being whitewashed in the game, but it showed a determination which, if carried over into next year, may mean the winning of some gridiron contests for the 1938 team. The Bulldogs' touchdown came with the ball resting on their own 16-yard line when Whitefield tossed to Branner for 10 yards. But the play did not stop there. Branner, hemmed in on all sides by Jacket players, lateraled off to Reese after running several yards. Reese carried on, but was also surrounded. He lateraled off to Houghton, who carried on for a time, then lateraled to McKelvain, who went over for the touchdown, ending one of the classic plays seen on the Oil Belt gridirons throughout the year. Whitefield kicked for the extra point. The Bulldogs, trailing at the time they made their one bid, were outlasted throughout the game, Stephenville scoring 14 points in the first quarter and then going on to a fairly hard-earned but one-sided victory. The seven points scored by the Bulldogs brought their total for the year to 64 while opponents of the team scored 438 points in the 10 games played, including one practice game with Strawn and nine conference games. ...

Best Debaters To Represent the Oil Belt at Football

Two long distance telephone conversations with W. T. Walton, superintendent of the Ranger public schools, today indicated that trouble in determining the winner of the Oil Belt district was being encountered at Houston, where most of the district committee members are attending a meeting of the State Teachers association. Evidence is being presented by both Abilene and Stephenville, in a tie for first place, to show why their respective teams should be declared the winners, the main evidence being presented so far being on the basis of comparative scores. The "evidence" presented today to Walton includes the following comparison of game scores, which may, or may not, indicate which team should be voted as winner. Walton stated he had notified Baker Wright to represent him by proxy, leaving it to Wright's judgment as to how he should vote. The evidence presented so far includes: Abilene defeated Big Spring 20 to 7. Stephenville defeated Big Spring 13 to 12. Abilene defeated Breckenridge 13 to 0. Stephenville defeated Breckenridge 13 to 7. Abilene defeated Brownwood 49 to 12. Stephenville defeated Brownwood 7 to 0. Abilene defeated Cisco 13 to 0. Stephenville defeated Cisco 45 to 0. Abilene defeated Eastland 21 to 6. Stephenville defeated Eastland 39 to 18. Abilene defeated Ranger 62 to 12. Stephenville defeated Ranger 39 to 7. Abilene defeated Sweetwater 7 to 0. Stephenville defeated Sweetwater 20 to 0. Abilene defeated Stephenville 7 to 6. Abilene lost to San Angelo, 12 to 7. Stephenville defeated San Angelo 8 to 0. Total for Abilene, 199 points. Total for Stephenville, 190 points, for Stephenville opponents 51 points. After considerable discussion this morning at Houston, it was decided that the members of the Oil Belt committee and their proxies would meet at 5 o'clock this afternoon to determine which team would represent the Oil Belt district. ...

Rex Beach Novel Is New a Movie

"The Barrier," one of the most popular novels ever written by the master of outdoor fiction, Rex Beach, has been made into a motion picture by Producer Harry Sherman.

It took seven long years of negotiations before Sherman could get the screen rights to the book, which he considers the best material for an outdoor film that Beach has ever turned out.

"The Barrier," which shows at the Connellee Theatre, is the story of a romance between a West Point graduate on duty in Alaska (James Ellison) and a young Alaskan girl, (Jean Parker), who is believed to be half Indian. An absorbing photoplay lies in the way the two overcome the obstacle of mixed blood, and work out their happiness together.

In the cast of "The Barrier" are Leo Carrillo, Jean Parker, James Ellison, Otto Kruger, Robert Barrat, Andy Clyde and Sara Haden. The film was directed by Les Selander.

CAPE COD 'TURKEY'

Dipping into brown swells that champed hungrily at the frosted strakes of his dory, the Cape Codder crouched to his cold work with wet, streaming lines till a catch of fish had been made. Good cod was his Thanksgiving "turkey." With dull skies sinking heavily upon him and the first ghostly shafts of a nor'easter hissing from a smoky horizon, he would lift his crinkled eyes shoreward, thankful for the fish that meant both food and feast.

Sometimes, it seems, we come by our blessings too easily. We take the gifts a more progressive civilization has brought us with a complacency that robs us of deeper thrills. And the thrills are there, with but a slight exercise of imagination.

'Hands Off Brazil'; But for How Long?

Until Rio de Janeiro air clears of the smoke screen thrown out to effect the installation of Getulio Vargas as dictator, Brazil will remain an uncertain political quality, and as such, will be dangerous goods for the United States to be tampering with.

Some recognition of this has come from Washington, where the belief exists that now is a time for full indulgence of the "good neighbor" policy sponsored by President Roosevelt. A firmer barrier against intervention is the Buenos Aires peace conference agreement, under which American governments promised not to interfere in any way in the domestic affairs of other American nations.

But behind these fairly strong persuasions to keep our hands off, are some clamoring contradictions. And there's something familiar to their ring.

In the first place, there are the $560,000,000 worth of obligations due the United States from Brazil. Approximately $200,000,000 is in direct investments—public utilities and manufacturing enterprises. Brazilian bonds held in this country total some $362,000,000.

Then there is the matter of big business carried on between the United States and Brazil. American commercial men fear that a Fascist Brazil—suggested by the corporate state form of the new government—will resume barter trading with Germany, and possibly Italy, at the expense of American exporters.

Only a few months before Getulio assumed dictatorial power, American firms estimated that German goods landed in Brazil at low prices had slashed American competitive sales from 25 to 95 per cent.

What will happen now that Vargas is in the saddle and fully committed to a course of anti-Bolshevism similar to Germany's, is something American traders can only groan and pray over.

These grumblings and worries are bound to reach the ears of the administration if it develops that Brazil has turned in the "wrong" direction. Cries for protection of investments and property always have been about as much an official concern as the loss of lives, in foreign embroilings.

Add the State Department's own little worry about preserving the "democratic form" in governments of the western hemisphere, and you have the makings for an "incident" which may lead to a "misunderstanding" which may lead to something far worse.

So it is admirable that word has already come from Washington that wherever Brazil heading, she can go, for all the United States cares. But people with good memories and a curiosity to see if history ever repeats itself are going to have fun seeing just how long this noble experiment will last.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ROBERT BARRY—hero, explorer.
MELISSA LANE—heroine, Barry's partner.
HONEY BEE GIRL—Indian; member of Barry's party.
HADES JONES—pioneer; member Barry's party.

Yesterday safe back in camp, Bob is the center of a conflict between two women. Melissa realizes for the first time that Bob means more than a mere business partner to her.

CHAPTER VII
ZACHARY "HADES" JONES was working over near the stream bed, mow dry and usually so, which lay at the foot of the great cliff. He was cutting sapling poles—long slender ones—with which to make ladders. He stopped swinging his axe to rest when Mary Melissa came through the bushes toward him.

"You aren't expected to do this hard labor, Uncle Hades," she began. "Wasn't Mr. Holliman hired for this?"

"Ain't never shirked no work yet, Miss M'Issy. Think I'm gittin' old, do ye?"

"No! Oh no! Sometimes I think you are younger than I. But—" The old man was eyeing her closely, kindly.

"Somethin' on yore mind, 'You been cryin'?"

"I mean—is she—is she all right? Uh I'll tell you, confidentially, Uncle Hades. She is throwin' herself at Dr. Barry! I think she imagines he is in love with her."

Hades chewed on his tobacco for a few seconds.

"I seen that already," he stated calmly. "I been figgerin' what to do about it."

"You havin' seen it?" Mary Melissa was surprised. "You did?"

"Yes'm. Everybody has, I reckon, except Bob hisself. Blind young squirt. Not that he ain't right to me, ma'am, but—looky here, Miss M'Issy, ain't choo sort of look to him yoreself?"

His jaw stopped working as he peered at her intently. Her blush was answer enough. The old man cackled in friendly laughter.

"Honey," he patted her shoulder paternally, "I ain't figgered it out yet, but don't you worry none. I'd see him roast on coals before I'd let any Indian make a fool of him."

The old man picked up his ax, resumed swinging. He had the skill of long experience. And he had many a labor-saving trick stored away. Holliman was for lashing the cross bars or steps to the ladders with small rope, after setting them into notches. Hades made a stronger ladder in half that time by heating an iron rod and burning holes through the uprights, then inserting his short steps therein. Mary Melissa was able to help him with the heating.

Swinging his axe to rest when Mary Melissa came through the bushes toward him.

"In two days we'll have ladders all the way up," Bob predicted.

"Who will place them?" Lissa asked.

"Holliman and I. There are enough safe footings, mostly. We'll chisel a few. I'm anxious to start excavation up there, Miss Lane. You must be next one up. It's—it's marvelous!"

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ROBERT BARRY—hero, explorer.
MELISSA LANE—heroine, Barry's partner.
HONEY BEE GIRL—Indian; member of Barry's party.
HADES JONES—pioneer; member Barry's party.

Yesterday Determined to win Bob, Honey Bee Girl persuades Holliman to enter the picture to woo Melissa. He agrees.

CHAPTER VIII
IT was Wednesday morning when excitement reached its highest in the archaeological camp. Bob had the party up in the gray of dawn.

"Let's eat and get going!" he urged. "We can get into the castle before 9 o'clock, I think. Shouldn't be hard to place the last two ladders."

"I can show you many fine jars. Many big ollas, pots and things. In cave. Not broke. Worth many dollars. Some with three horse design. You know?"

Holliman knew. Most outdoorsmen do, in the Southwest. An ancient pot, from some prehistoric ruin, is likely to be worth $100 or more as a museum piece. A horse design used in ornamenting water jars and grain storage jars, would more likely be worth $1000.

Horses were not native to this continent. They were brought here by the Spaniards. Horse patterns painted on walls of prehistoric ruins probably are due to Spanish invasion, as at Canyon de Chelly or Canyon del Muerto, Arizona, far to the north.

Defiance Castle. But horse patterns on still earlier relics, especially on pottery pieces, might indicate descent from or communication with Asia. Each such piece would tend to strengthen the theory that America was populated first by Asiatics, hence each such piece was of high value. Holliman knew that.

"Jars with horses on 'em? Whole jars?"

Honey Bee nodded.

"All right, I'll bite. What you want?"

"You make thee love, try marry thee white woman?"

"Huh?" Holliman was shocked with surprise.

"You make thee love, Miss Lane. Keep her away from Barb. I show you thee cave with horse jars."

It was sort of fantastic, funny even, this strange proposition. But Holliman got the point. He pushed his floppy 10-gallon hat back on his head and grinned, but he told Honey Bee it was a bargain.

"You do it—without me, you know?" Honey Bee scowled at him, in her peculiar manner. She looked a little vicious then, for all her wild behavior. Holliman sobered.

"Yeah, I see. I get paid for making love and keeping my mouth shut, while you take Barry. It's a deal. It oughtn't to be such a mean job, nohow."

Mr. Lee Swanner returned home Saturday morning after picking cotton on the plains.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Langford and children visited Porter Morris and family.

GOLD NECKLACE BAGGED
By United Press
LINDSAY, Calif.—George Dennis and Bob Eddy, Lindsay youths, had "good hunting" with the opening of the 1937 dove season. While cleaning their catch a gold necklace was discovered in the craw of one of the doves. The 14-inch necklace was in good condition.

ably the second human being—to visit here in at least 1000 years!"

THE thought of it thrilled Lissa. She felt a queer tightening in her throat. She said nothing. She smiled at Bob, and together they stared across the 200 miles of haze and blue and purple and red spread before them—a gigantic palette, of pastel paints daubed there by Nature, and oddly alive by the morning motion of the sun.

Mary Melissa gave thought to the contrast this view meant in her life. In New York City her home was a de luxe apartment 40 stories up from 57th street.

Now she was on a similar height—looking, incidentally, from the porch of yet another apartment. The grandeur, somehow, was much the same.

"It's—magnificent, Dr. Barry!" she murmured, it barely audible. The silence, not the roar of traffic, was dominant here. Skyscrapers were not 40 stories, nor 60; they were rocky peaks a hundred "stories," or a thousand. A few birds could be seen. Grazing in their new corral 600 feet down were the expedition's mules and horses—but in all the expanse before them was not another visible living thing.

BOB sensed her mood, and the spell of the place gripped him too, caused him momentarily to forget his science, the past that stood in masonry behind them. He gazed at the eastern horizon. Then something—he never knew what—caused him slowly to turn and look at Mary Melissa Lane.

He saw her profile there—real by saw the girl for the first time. She had been a person before, a very definite person, who could and did issue a $5000 check that was good, and who fitted surprisingly well into the personnel of a mountain expedition. But now—

By George, her eyelashes are amazingly long! And her nose, and chin—nothing pert there, nothing flippant. A solidity, rather; yet delicate, too. Molded so finely. With no fault. His scientist's eye was analyzing her, not at the direction of his mind, but from some deeper force.

Unconsciously she parted her lips a trifle, and he saw perfect teeth. A moment later she turned to him, perceived his intense scrutiny, and turned away smiling. It broke his trance, but Dr. Robert Wilson Barry, archaeologist, realized for the first time in his adult life that the present can be altogether as fascinating as the past. In him, a mature young scientist, his heart was inexplicably pounding.

"Don't seem to be anybody else here," Hades Jones called. He had been peering in various doors. "Look out for rattlers in places like this."

"Snakes?" queried Lissa. "This high up, Uncle Hades?"

"They come up along rocks, anywhere. Anywhere there's likely to be mice and rats and such like to eat. The's pack rat nests in here, I see."

"THEY found no rattlesnakes, nor any other sign of recent life. Bob repeated that the place probably had been abandoned sometime in the Dark Ages, as Europe reckoned time.

"But why?" asked Lissa. "Where did they go, I wonder?"

"That's exactly why we are here?" Bob reminded. "If we can find the answer to that, it will be worth—everything."

"Could they have cut entrance steps in the stone, that have since been eroded away?"

"Hardly. Rainfall is scant in this country. Wind erosion would require maybe a million years for that. No, remains of any stairs they cut would still be visible."

"They explored inside. The mummy was valuable, Bob said. No doubt they would find more human remains, after slight digging.

"One Good Lamp Doesn't Make a Well Lighted Home"

• Of course it helps, but more rooms are to be considered than just the living room. If you already have one or two modern Better Sight Lamps, you've made a good start toward better lighting, but the same principles of better light for better seeing apply in the kitchen, the bedrooms and even in the home workshop. The sole purpose of Better Light is to provide illumination that is adequate, both in quantity and quality, for safe and easy seeing, to reduce eyestrain and to make your home more attractive and more livable. We will be glad to make a complete check of the lighting in your home without cost or obligation, if you'll just phone our office.

• This is the Better Sight Lounging Lamp, specially designed for use by a lounge or easy chair where a good reading light is needed. It also is an ideal lamp for use when reading in bed.

WASHINGTON—The interrelated issues of the budget, taxation relief and the general business situation will provide plenty of headaches on Capitol Hill...

TAX REVISION: The Treasury has been working out a revision program and Morgenthau has said he favors reducing consumer or "hidden" taxes...

UNDISTRIBUTED CORPORATE SURPLUS TAX: Revision sure, but repeat unlikely. Principle of the tax must be retained, the administration insists...

RELIEF: If unemployment continues to increase there is likely to be a demand for at least half a million dollars in addition to the $1,500,000,000 appropriated for 1937-38 work relief.

Senator Byrnes of South Carolina again will try to have cities and states compelled to contribute 25 per cent of work relief funds...

WASHINGTON—The aims of the regional planning program which will be before Congress are so many and diverse that it is difficult to comprehend the program at one gulp.

Under the Norris bill in the Senate and the Mansfield bill in the House, the nation would be divided into seven planning regions, among which the Tennessee Valley and adjacent area would be one.

Regional authorities similar to TVA would plan—or initiate—the carrying out of the Roosevelt dream of substituting planned development and conservation of natural resources for the familiar congressional "pork barrel."

Flood control, prevention of soil erosion, reforestation, storing of water for irrigation, cheap electricity, decentralization as against urban congestion, new opportunities for millions and employment for the unemployed are among the objectives.

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, recently ill, is back here in good health. His own bill, after putting the Cumberland river basin and sections of the Mississippi Valley under TVA, would create six other planning development authorities.

These would be set up in corporate form, with administrative power over regional power, water, forest and soil projects. Each authority would operate, as does TVA, with a lump sum and discretionary power to decide how, when and where the money should be spent.

Congressman Mansfield of Texas, chairman of the House Rivers and Harbors committee, also has TITANIUM, LEAST KNOWN METAL IN THE EARTH'S CRUST, IS THE MOST COMMON! IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THERE ARE ONE HUNDRED MILLION BILLION TONS OF IT IN THE UPPER TEN MILES OF THE EARTH'S CRUST.

DISCONCERTING as it may be to fishermen who glory in their gaily colored flies, fish distinguish between different colors in the same manner as do certain types of color-blind persons.
