A NEW THRILL FOR AVIATION.

There have been few episodes in the history of Arctic travel more exciting and gratifying to read about than the sudden appearance of the Rockford aviators, Bert "Hassell and Parker Cramer.

As the days passed after the two men disappeared out over the ocean beyond Labrador, it became generally accepted that they were dead. Their radio signals had ceased abruptly; no trace of them ould be found. We had just about decided to write their names down on that long list that bears the names of Nungesser, Coli, Bertand, and the rest.

And then, abruptly, they appeared, safe and sound, at the University of Michigan's camp in Greenland!

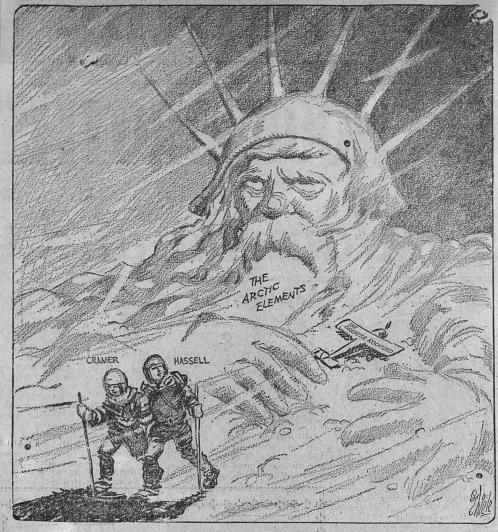

Any emotion is heightened by their flight to Greenland without a break it would not have attracted nearly so much attention; and while their relatives and friends would, doubtless, have been hugewould, doubtless, have been hugely relieved to learn of their safe arrival, the chances are the rest of Italy. "Don't care a thing about it." Bertie Lou looked at him with a flash of fear. He had spoken with great conviction. What if she were wrong, and he really was serious about dropping out of his giddy crowd? To have him constantly offering her the haven and security of his fortune—he would come into his grandmother's money when he was 30, he'd told her—was a prospect that frightened her; it was too tempting when one was in the grip of despair.

She wanted Marco for a friend, but she knew that she would have to face moments of stark loneliness, of terror at the approach of is that they are strong for a ten club circuit, and should Tulsa and Oklahoma City be dropped during the winter, they will more than likely be invited to join the Lone Star organization.

In some respects, the 1928 season has not been quite as successful as season's past. Interest fell off soon after the start and try as they would, players and managers could not win that interest has the start and try as the start and try as they would, players and managers could not win that interest the start and try as a start as a start and try as a back. The explanation of the slack ness on the part of the fans is at-tributed to the fact that only two clubs-showed up to distinction dur-ing the entire season. These were Houston and Wichita Falls. Tenance.

Dounds, we would judge from sidelines. McCullough is lighter.

Eastland has prospects for a fast, fighting team this year and, as most of the material will be back in 1929 and 1930, the outlook for the Mavericks grows increasingly brighter. This sketch was not intended to analyze the Maverick squad at this time. A little later, we will perhaps go further into the matter and tell of other material that is equally pleasing.

WASHINGTON.—Faced by an acute shortage of pilots in naval aviation, the navy department is considering several plans by which civilians may be taken directly into the flying service.

Until now navy regulations have not permitted a civilian to enlist for aviation duty but this may shortly be changed because of the navy's desire to build up the aviation personnel to compare with the regular service.

Opportunities for civilians to obtain naval aviation training have been limited in the past owing to the requirement that a pilot must first enlist in the regular navy service and take his chances on being assigned to aviation.

Twelve hundred aviation pilots are required under the five-year air expansion program which will terminate in 1931. Prospects of obtaining this number under the present plan of enlistment are "distinctly discouraging," Acting Secretary Edward B. Warner said.

Plans for expanding the naval reserve in order to provide more eligible recruits for aviation are also being considered. It is probable, also, that so far as practicable without in any way diminishing safety and technical requirements, the way will be paved for more enlisted men and reservists to obtain commissions.

A difficulty encountered in navy

A difficulty encountered in navy aviation that is not found in the army air corps is that all naval pilots must, in addition to aviationing, be thore

CISCO, Sept. 13.—R. Q. Lee,
Democratic nominee for Congress from the 17th Congressional Disfrom the 17th Congressional District, in commenting upon the action of the Democratic district convention, held in Abilene, Saturday, September 8, said:
"Saturday, September the 8th, the district convention of the 17th congressional district met in Abilene, and declared me the democratic forms of the 17th congressional district met in Abilene, and declared me the democratic forms of the 17th congressional district met in Abilene, and declared me the democratic forms.

Abilene and declared me the democratic nominee of this district, and their report disclosed that I had carried sixteen of the nineteen counties of the district. This check of the vote revealed that I received from all parts of the district, a very gratifying support. And I desire, through the courtesy of the press, to express to the voters of the district my representation for the preference. appreciation for the preference shown me in the August pri-
