Big Brother Role Fails to Hide German Aims

The "Scrap of Paper" incident of early World War days remains too fresh in the memory of the world to permit such credence in Germany's "big brother" pledge of Belgium's neutrality in event of western European war. Echoes of war machines rumbling across devastated Belgian fields drown out the peasant platitudes Reich spokesmen voice in proclaiming lasting friendship and undying faith with their western neighbor.

Not wholly altruistic was Germany's promise to respect the territorial rights of a neutral nation and to defend her unthreatened sovereignty.

Hitler eyes covetously the lands of western Russia. If Germany is to be deprived of colonial possessions, on other continents, more attractive lands are nearer, more accessible. With Belgium a neutral buffer between French and British armies and her own western border, De Fuehrer sees opportunity to concentrate his gowing military machine on eastern objectives.

Steadily a wedge of Nazism is being driven toward that goal. Theatrics with Poland and Austria assure neutrality, if not co-operation, in moves against the Soviet.

Treaties bind France and Russia in case of aggression, but Hitler discounts French assistance if his ancient enemy is forced to fight along the narrowed battle line between Belgium and Switzerland. France's powerful Maginot line of fortresses is designed to halt invasion, not to press an attack, and already Germany is constructing her own defenses along the western border.

To check France and throw the main weight of his army against an eastern front is Hitler's all-too-apparent aim.

Turning to a policy of strict isolation in future European conflicts, Leopold III, worthy successor to a hero king, sees little return from a devastating war that cost Belgium more than 93,000.

Last April he asked and was granted release from the Locarno pact, by France and Great Britain, retaining however obligations of the League of Nations against aggressor nations.

And herein lies the danger. For as a member of the league, Belgium might be obliged to enforce sanctions against her newly found friend, in which case Germany—according to the terms of the latest agreement in case "Belgium should participate in military action directed against Germany"—may again regard this treaty as so much waste paper.

Placed in such a precarious position, Belgium can well remember the ancient warning of Greeks bearing gifts. Germany has been tested before and found wanting.

The telegraph companies' decision to eliminate charges for punctuation and do away with the old "stop" in telegrams will ruin a lot of antique radio gags.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox NEA Service Staff Writer

WE, as a nation, pay a large national dentist bill each year because we are wisely more tooth conscious than any other nation. We should be even more so—we should realize that daily foods rich in calcium and vitamins make strong teeth and keep them that way.

Here's a check list of calcium rich foods: whole milk, butter-milk, orange juice, spinach, turnip tops, Swiss chard and other greens, almonds, hazel nuts, molasses, dried figs, egg yolks, cauliflower, endive, shell fish, whole-wheat bread or cereal, cheese and meat from young animals such as veal and lamb.

With a little study, you can include calcium rich foods in all your meals. The following day's menu is a suggestion: Breakfast: Large orange juice, oatmeal with cream, wholewheat toast and butter and a glass of milk.

10 a. m. Glass of buttermilk. Luncheon: Little neck clam cocktail, vegetable plate of spinach, cauliflower and grilled tomato with poached egg and crackers and cream cheese.

4 p. m. Orange juice. Dinner: Fruit cup, broiled lamb chop, Swiss chard, endive salad and floating island.

Parsley Soup (4 to 6 servings) One and one-half cups parsley, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup water, 1 tablespoon fat, 4 tablespoons

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Sliced bananas and dry figs, wholewheat cereal, plum jam, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Parsley halves of hard rolls with grated cheese and bread, canned pineapple, cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER: Lamb stew, to balls, spinach with olive salad, prune soufflé, fee, milk.

flour, 1 quart top milk cream, 1-4 teaspoon tabasco, 1 teaspoon celery salt, few pepper, 1 tablespoon butter.

Wash and chop the parsley, salt and place in a quart glass or enamel pan, cover and boil gently on low heat for 10 minutes.

Remove from the fire, add milk or thin cream. Cook milk mixture over a low heat until slightly thickened and roughly cooked, about 10 minutes.

Add the butter, salt and pepper to the cooked mixture. Remove from the fire, add parsley and the water in which was cooked. Pour the hot soup into cups and place a dash of butter and a dash of onion top of each dish of soup immediately while the odor of flavor are the finest.

JILL

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JILL WENTWORTH, heroine, attractive debutante.
ALAN JEFFREY, hero, rising young artist.
HARRY WENTWORTH, Jill's brother.
JACK WENTWORTH, Jill's brother.
SUEVA SUTTON, old friend.

Yesterday Jill meets Alan again, dines with him and Mrs. Wentworth assumes that Jill has met a rich man.

CHAPTER VI
WHEN a girl falls in love, the first thing she does usually is to go on a spree of shopping.

This new mood of Jill's—of wanting things to make herself more beautiful—was one Mrs. Wentworth could understand.

Jill had only seen Alan Jeffrey once since the day she found him exhibiting his beautiful paintings to a still hopeful mother and her two daughters.

Another girl was with them. Ardath Holm, a model who shared Patty's apartment.

Patty's description had not prepared Jill for the new girl's strange attractiveness.

Ardath was thin, with flaxen hair, which she wore coiled around her head like a cap, giving her a foreign look.

Patty immediately liked Alan more than his landscapes, though she admitted they were very good.

"That young man is in a devil of a hole trying to buck this town without friends and without money," Patty said to Jill later at her apartment.

"He may be heaven's own gift to the art world, and I'd still bet he hasn't a chance to earn three square meals a day unless he gets in a better place, where Mr. and Mrs. Money-bags can peek in. It won't help much if you and I and maybe the folks across the hall drop in to cheer him on, will it?"

"No," Jill admitted, slowly. "The thing to do, Patty, is to sell a picture."

"How long do you think $100 or even $200—and I'm boosting the possibility—would last?"

"But Patty," Jill exclaimed, "good pictures bring thousands!"

PROPERLY subdued, Jill became inarticulate. But her brain was functioning. A plan was growing. It had started out as a germ planted in her mind by a chance remark of her own.

The next time she saw Alan was a date. He had invited her to lunch and they had gone to Miss Lancaster's.

She had at last located Patty. Not two blocks south of Miss Lancaster's as Patty had said, but three blocks.

After the luncheon, Jill went straight to her father's office.

Jill thought her father's voice sounded a little tired. How gray his hair was, with the light from the window falling on it. Under his keen eyes there were new wrinkles.

"I was wondering, dad," Jill said, going directly to the point. "I could be terribly extravagant."

Sport Glances By Grayson

PIITTSBURGH—Very few football squads have been able to maintain full stride throughout an entire season. Keep an accurate check on the performances of your team, and now their form varies. A team that is up and hitting on all cylinders one week is likely to slump to mediocrity the next.

The mental attitude of the players usually changes from Saturday to Saturday.

It is easier to get them high for one game than another, and they can't be brought to a peak too often during a campaign.

Each season piles up additional evidence of the vast variance in the play of clubs from game to game.

For example, in its second appearance this season, Illinois was just another team as it was held to a scoreless tie by what was supposed to be a breather in DePaul.

Along came proud Notre Dame to Champaign. It looked like a breeze for the Irish, but the fighting Illini rolled out complete season into an afternoon and jogged off the field with another scoreless tie and plenty of reason to celebrate.

OHIO STATE looked extremely good downing Texas Christian and Purdue on successive Saturdays, but the Buckeyes traveled to Los Angeles and were nose-due to their failure to convert following two touchdowns. The Trojans were supposed to have lost some of their morale as the result of bowing to Washington.

The Huskies appeared well nigh invincible against Iowa and Southern California on successive Saturdays. Oregon State seemed to be something in the way of a set-up for the 1936 Pacific Coast Conference champions, but a cracker-jack of a back named Gray enjoyed a big day, and Washington was nosed out in the last minute of play.

Stanford, twice beaten, repulsed highly regarded U. C. L. A.

Nebraska appeared very much accomplished the day it defeated Minnesota by five points. Along came Ames, which had been trounced decisively the previous week by Northwestern, and the Huskies had to do something tall hustling to score two touchdowns and win in the fourth period.

Michigan State, flushed by its fourth consecutive victory over Michigan, was turned back by Manhattan the afternoon.

A SPLENDID Duquesne team caught Pittsburgh between the Ohio State and Notre Dame games a year ago, and beat the Panthers on a long run.

Pitt repelled the Dukes, Oct. 9, under almost the identical unfavorable weather conditions that prevailed a year ago, and on a run by Marshall Goldberg that was similar to the run by George Matic which turned the Panthers back in 1936. You may rest assured that the Pitt team of 1937 was higher for the Duquesne game than was the one of 1936. It had learned its lesson.

But, as you no doubt have gathered by now, my point is that past performances do not give a fair line on the ability of any team every Saturday in the season. (Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

Beware of Cold Is Seasonable Advice Of Health Officer

AUSTIN, Texas.—"Beware of the common cold," Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, cautions the people of Texas. "This is the season of the year when colds are most prevalent, and their consequences more far reaching. The organism causing the disease is not known, but every individual is acquainted with its effects."

"Not a little of the susceptibility of catching colds can be overcome by a gradual acclimation to lowering temperatures. Inclusion of outdoor weather. This hardening should begin now, and consist of regular exercise—walking is good—to be continued throughout the winter in weather of every kind. One should be careful to avoid wet stockings drying on the feet, over-heavy clothing and too-heated rooms."

"There are two broad principles to observe in the treatment and prevention of colds. The first says: 'Let every person with a cold consider it seriously. Every cold should be regarded as the possible beginning of a serious illness. That means seeking a physician's advice and explicitly following his directions. If he orders bed, then bed it should be. Complete rest is a fine way to overcome a cold in short order.'

"One's resistance to many diseases, including colds, can be raised by increasing one's vitality through observing the fundamental rules of health: plenty of fresh air, good wholesome food, sufficient rest and the avoidance of habitual over-indulgence of de-vitalizing stimulants, including alcohol, tobacco and the like."

"The cold is a common disease," Dr. Cox repeated, "but every cold is important enough to justify careful attention and treatment for its immediate cure. Death-dealing pneumonia and tuberculosis may begin with colds that do not receive care and attention."

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Whether the Supreme Court's prestige has suffered because of the court's acquisition of Hugo Black who seems firmly planted in his new seat, presumably is a most important question.

Opponents of Mr. Roosevelt, nearly all of whom have vociferously protested Black's appearance as the newest justice, are insistent that the Alabaman's presence there has given the court a terrible black eye and lowered public respect for the previously sanctified processes of justice.

Whatever the truth or error of this conception, it seems especially interesting to those here who recall that early in the year the New Dealers were frankly saying—although not for quotation—that they did hope to crack the Supreme Court's prestige to a point where the people would lose faith in its infallibility and where parliamentary government, meaning Congress, would be supreme.

So if you believe the opposition, it appears that the New Dealers won a victory there, although they certainly are not boasting of it on the same basis.

Many lawyers are inclined to believe that, after the Black expose and resultant hue and cry, it may hereafter become perfectly good taste in polite society to talk about the personal backgrounds and theoretical prejudices of some of its other members. At any rate, word comes from the inside that there will be further administrative propaganda efforts.

Any attempts to disqualify Black from sitting in individual cases are likely to be met with attacks on Justice Pierce Butler and Justice Owen J. Roberts. Butler was an outstanding railroad lawyer and among his clients was the Great Northern Railway.

As a justice, however, he did not refrain from writing far-reaching opinions on public utility valuation standards, and last year he read an opinion which saved the Great Northern $10,000,000 in taxes which had been assessed by North Dakota.

Roberts, Hughes and Van Devanter, who concurred with Butler, had all represented railroads in private practice.

On the other hand, it is not to be inferred that justices necessarily have a bias in favor of former clients. They merely fail to "sit out" when former clients bring cases, as Justice Brandeis did at the time of the adverse minimum wage decision of 1923, because he himself had been active for minimum wage legislation.

But the court doesn't like to be told that any justice isn't qualified to sit in a particular case, and that's one reason for guessing that such tactics against Black won't get far.

While federal and state authorities investigated over a score of deaths of users of a proprietary elixir of sulfanilamide, the American Medical Association, whose "Journal," in an article by Dr. Morris Fishbein, had previously warned doctors to exercise caution in the use of the new commercial drug, is continuing tests to determine the toxicity of the preparation. Ways In Reducing Gas Bills Studied At Lone Star Meet

Methods of assisting consumers to reduce their gas bills by teaching them to avoid waste in operation of domestic appliances was studied by more than 400 Lone Star Gas System foremen, managers, and officials who have just concluded their seventeenth annual conference in Dallas, according to R. N. Wilson, local manager, who attended the meeting. Overheating during winter months, improperly adjusted and inefficient appliances, use of ovens to heat kitchens, failure to cut off appliances when the weather suddenly turns warm, unnecessary use of hot water faucets, and huddling in one or two rooms were discussed as some of the wasteful practices which cause consumers to use more gas than necessary. "While the company is in business to sell gas, it does not consider wasteful practices by consumers profitable business and every effort is made to assist customers

Electric Power In Use In Texas Is Up for September

AUSTIN—Consumption of electric power in Texas during September continued the wide margin of gain over last year which has prevailed during the past several months, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research has announced. Reports from seventeen electric power companies of the State give total production of 238,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity during the month, an increase of 19.3 per cent over September, 1936. For the third quarter production for these companies totaled 703,000,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 20.8 per cent over the corresponding period last year. Commercial consumption, 52,000,000 kilowatt hours, was 15.6 per cent above September last year; industrial consumption, 118,000,000 kilowatt hours, was up 19.6 per cent; residential consumption, 35,000,000 kilowatt hours, gained 15.8 per cent, and miscellaneous consumption, 33,000,000 kilowatt hours, increased 29.3 per cent.

In using only the amount of gas necessary for proper comfort and convenience," he said. Incorrect heating during winter months is not only responsible for some high bills, but it also is conducive to colds with resultant loss of time from the job as well as remedial costs, it was pointed out at the meeting.

"Odorizing gas has been an additional cost to the gas company, but if it proves beneficial to the consumer from the standpoint of avoiding accidents and aids in reducing bills by quick detection of leaks, the company will consider the added expenditure well spent," the manager said. "This is just one of numerous aids which modern natural gas service of Lone Star Gas System offers consumers in an attempt to help them get the most for their gas dollar."

Tom-Toms Call Indians to Meeting For Fifty Tribes

TULSA, Okla.—The rhythmic beat of the tom-toms that for ages have called Indian tribesmen to council or to battle will resound again this week, calling Indians of Oklahoma and the Southwest to Tulsa for the second annual American Indian Exposition. Smart clothing of the whiteman will vie with the beaded robes of tribal accoutrements as Indians from more than 50 tribes arrive for the three-day show. Objectives of the exposition are three-fold: To establish a permanent American Indian center and shrine, to build a museum for housing and preservation of the best of Indian art, and to bring together the most interesting and authentic of archaeological lore. William B. Way, exposition president, said. "It is the outgrowth of years of thinking and planning, fostered and inspired by men and women, both Indian and white, who have desire to perpetuate and preserve all those customs and talents of the American Indian which have had any lasting influence on what the modern generation is pleased to call 'our civilization.'" Dances will form a colorful part of the three-day program. Led by Woodrow Crumbe of Anadarko, the widely known Kiowa group will perform ancient tribal dances. Feature of the Saturday Statehood Day will be performance of the brush dance, scalp dance, wolf dance, buffalo dance and snake dance. On exhibition with the arts and crafts of American Indians will be those of prehistoric explorations in the Spiro Indian Mound. Crumpled vases and tiles, plaques, bits of fabric, many of them in an almost perfect state of preservation, will be shown. The prehistoric relics, valued more than $30,000, link the present with century-old civilizations of ancient men who roamed the land vastly different, even in topography, from that which exists today. Old fiddler contests, Indian Papoose shows and bronze banding will be features of the show. On the third day of the exposition Indian chiefs and tribesmen will meet in a congress to form the League of Indian Nations to work toward a solution of mutual problems. Call for the Congress was issued by the chiefs of the five largest Oklahoma tribes—Osages, Choctaws, Creeks, Chickasaws and Chickasaws. Josef Stalin has been announced as the first nominee for a seat in Soviet Russia's new Congress. Betting commissioners had trouble in locating any riding against his election.
