Marks Spot Where Six Houses Stood

A Red Cross flag stuck in a traffic post, becomes a grim "X" marking the corner of a Barcelona residential district where six houses stood. The scattered mass of splintered wood and mortar ground to gravel is what remained after the Rebels' giant bombs had done their work. At rear, a building, shorn from the adjoining one as by a Titanic sword, lies in ruins that are being combed by rescuers. Few living victims came out of the wreckage and first aid crews were often idle.

Weather Hazards Threaten The State Friday

By United Press

The U. S. Weather Bureau ordered small craft warnings from Port Arthur to Corpus Christi. Rains fell at Galveston and Port Arthur and frost was expected in North Texas Friday night with continued cold Saturday.

The report was submitted by Commissioner Paul Walker after a three-year $1,500,000 inquiry. There was no indication of what recommendations the commission would make to Congress.

President Walter Gifford of the A. T. & T. sharply challenged the report and said its proposal that rates might be reduced 25 per cent without reducing earnings was "absurd."

Hoover Home, Urges Isolation

By United Press

LOYALISTS FAIL TO HALT FOES; JAPS REPULSED

By United Press
Surprise counter attacks by the Spanish loyalists failed today to halt the powerful push of insurgents into Catalonia.

The nationalists, paced by Italian defenders of the "Black Arrow" division, pounded at the government forces at Morella and moved to block the Pyrenees passes, through which 6,000 loyalist troops fled to France.

Loyalists reported their crack divisions had set back the insurgents by trapping them with heavy losses at Lerida by a sudden offensive on the Madrid front. It appeared unlikely, however, they could stop the drive.

In Barcelona, boys under the draft age limits, formed brigades to defend the city.

In Burgos, nationalist headquarters announced the capture of 300 British loyalist volunteers.

Other developments included:

VATICAN CITY.—The Vatican disclaimed authorization for the Austrian Episcopate's declaration asking Catholics to vote for the union of Austria and Germany.

BERLIN.—The newspaper of Field Marshal Hermann Goering suggested that Czechoslovakia be divided among Germany, Poland, and Hungary.

PRAGUE.—The Czech government, fighting the Nazi minority, declared a four-week ban on all political meetings.

In China Japanese troops continued to meet vigorous resistance in Stantung province.

The American campaign for avoidance of foreign alliances was continued by former President Herbert Hoover in a speech in New York attacking a combination of democratic nations opposing dictatorship.

He said the United States must "convince Europe" that "we will keep out of other people's wars."

Points Outlined By Candidates In School Balloting

Points in the platform of three of the candidates in Saturday's election of school trustees at Eastland, D. L. Kinnaird, Dr. R. C. Ferguson and George Hipp, were enumerated Friday.

The points were:

"We advocate a twelve grade school.

"Teach one or more foreign languages in our High School.

"Elect teachers at the expiration of the school term and not delay until the next term is about to begin.

"Board of Trustees to be active and present in the passing upon the credentials and qualifications of the various applicants.

"Repair and improve roadways approaching schools.

"Increase the salaries of the teachers and an adjustment of all salaries which are not comparable with the salaries paid other employees of the school system.

"Adilgent effort on the part of the school trustees to reach some reasonable agreement with the bondholders whereby our school indebtedness can be liquidated.

"A fair and just tax rate.

"A fair and impartial valuation.

"If at all possible, the spending of Eastland school tax money with Eastland merchants.

"We heartily endorse all forms of school activities and will cooperate to develop same to the fullest extent.

"D. L. Kinnaird, Place No. 1.

"Dr. R. C. Ferguson, Place 2.

"George Hipp, Place 3."

OPPOSITION TO REFORM BILL IS MOUNTING

By United Press
WASHINGTON, April 1.—President Roosevelt's House leaders delayed a test of their strength today as opponents of the reorganization bill rallied to protests it would create an American dictator.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, April 1.—Rising opposition to President Roosevelt's government reorganization bill today forced administration leaders to qualify their predictions the measure would be approved by the house this week.

As debate was resumed in the house the senate passed and sent to the house the Glass bill extending powers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to lend to business and political subdivisions.

A new tide of telegrams and letters opposing the reorganization bill rolled in on congress and Speaker Bankhead said final action might be postponed until next week until many amendments were offered.

Republican support of the Senate Finance Committee's tax bill was promised by minority leader Charles McNary of Oregon.

30 Trench Silos To Be Constructed Over the County

Approximately 30 trench silos will be constructed in Eastland County by Farm Security Administration borrowers, according to Geo. I. Lane, rural supervisor for FSA. These silos, which require no investment except labor to dig the trench, will preserve the fodder of corn and grain sorghums which otherwise lose much of their feeding value. They will also supply dairy cows with the green stuff through winter months or drought.

The trench silo campaign is expected to be one of the chief factors in helping FSA borrowers to a system of farming more profitable than that which forced them to seek FSA assistance, the supervisor said.

The tenant farmer takes a more active interest in the land which he is renting when he begins to make improvements of this kind, Mr. Lane said. FSA is seeking to promote longer terms for lease agreements in order that tenants will feel justified in making such improvements, which they would not make if faced with the likelihood of being forced to move at the end of each year.

The silo-building program is being carried out under guidance of the county agent of the Extension Service.

Licenses Issued By Highway Patrol

One hundred driver's and chauffeur's licenses have been granted the past week by members of the highway patrol, department of public safety, at the courthouse in Eastland, it was announced Friday.

In an office across from the assessor-collector office on the first floor of the courthouse the licenses are issued each Tuesday and Friday from 9 to 11 o'clock in the morning.

Friday morning the office denied a driver's license to a man whose vision was faulty. Unable to read printing at 15 feet which it is necessary to read at 25 feet distance, the man was recommended to obtain glasses.

Texans Wonder at Mason County Boys Success With Cattle

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Texas beef raisers are beginning to wonder what the Mason County 4-H Club boys know that they don't.

For two years in succession, the Mason County youths have fed the grand champion beef steers of the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show.

This year the champion was Pretty Boy II, owned by 16-year-old Gordon Grote of Mason. The 850-pound Hereford calf won 51 most enough in prizes and premiums when sold at auction to send its young owner through Texas A. & M. College, where he plans to enroll next fall.

Glynn Duncan of Whitney, another club boy, won the reserve championship with a Shorthorn steer.

Grote, an end on the Mason High School football team last fall, said that his only objection to showing beef steers was that it took time from his school work. This year he attended the Denver stock show and came home with a grand championship won by Pretty Boy I.

Last year's winner at the Fort Worth show was Byron Eckert, also from Mason. The two boys bought and fed their calves, which won over scores of beef steers prepared for the show by "professional" adult showmen.

Potatoes Inspected At New Mexico Line

ANTHONY, N. M.—Cars and trucks were being examined here today for Louisiana sweet potatoes. Gov. Clyde Tingley instructed ports of entry to enforce the quarantine on sweet potatoes infested with weevils.

New Mexico State College officials requested the embargo.

"Louisiana has a surplus of sweet potatoes and is dumping them on New Mexican markets," Dr. Ray Fife, president of the school, wrote Tingley. "The ever present danger is that weevils will be imported to this state, in which case California and Arizona markets will bar sweet potatoes from New Mexico and our largest markets will be ruined."

Governor Complains Of Growing Prison Population In State

HUNTSVILLE, Texas — Gov. James V. Allred has complained to the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles because of increasing number of convicts in state prisons.

"Off the record" criticism from members of the Texas Prison Board has been directed at the pardons and paroles group as reports show the record number of 6,662 convicts.

There are approximately twice as many convicts in the prison system now than there were when Pat Neff, seldom-pardoning governor, was in office.

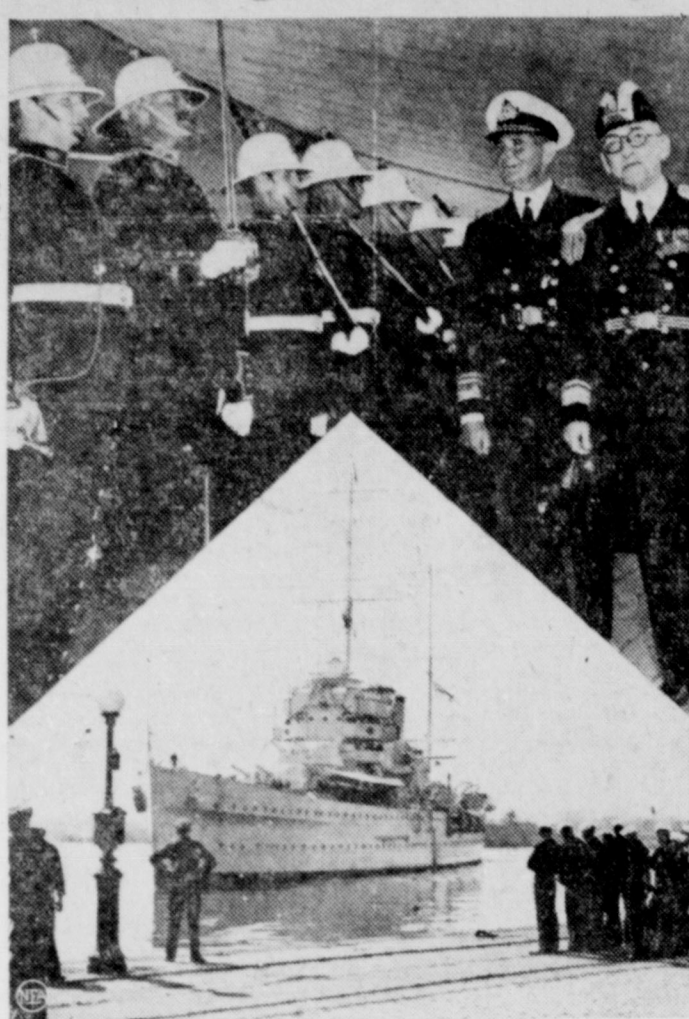

Total of clemencies granted in 1937 was 8.7 per cent less than for any year since 1933. Prison records show that only one full pardon was granted last year as compared with five in 1936, 32 in 1935, and 143 in 1934.

Furloughs and reprieves numbered 195 in 1937 as compared with 157 during the previous year, 124 in 1935 and 284 in 1934.

Governor Allred no longer has power to grant clemencies, having recommended to the legislature that it create the pardon and paroles board to prevent abuses of the privilege.

Critics declare that the clemency board has closed the door of hope against prisoners who wish to rehabilitate themselves after

Welcoming a British Warship

Contrasting significantly with strained relations between armed forces in other parts of the world is the friendship apparent in the pictures above, showing U. S. sailors standing by to welcome the British battle cruiser H. M. S. York as she put into the Washington, D. C., navy yard for a five-day visit. The York is the flagship of Vice-Admiral Sidney Julius Meyrick of the Royal Navy, shown in the top photo with Rear Admiral George Pettengill, right, commandant of the navy yard, as they reviewed British marines aboard the York shortly after the cruiser docked.

Trucks and Tanks Speed Up Infantry

By Robert H. Parham
United Press Staff Correspondent
FORT SAM HOUSTON—The truck, the high-speed tank and the armored car already have established their places in the infantry and artillery branches of the United States Army, but not for some time to come will they replace the horse as the vehicle of the cavalry.

Brig. Gen. Ben Lear, commander of the First Cavalry division at Fort Bliss, Texas, expects to prove that point in a series of reorganization tests he will conduct for the war department at Balmerhea, Texas, in April and May.

As in the infantry branch, the war department has under consideration a reorganization of the cavalry regiment and division to make partially by the addition of wheeled vehicles, but not wholly. The chief problem will be to make the division more compact, its sections less dependent upon one another.

Initial plans for the test indicated that the chief point of encroachment of the motor vehicle into the domain of the horse will be in the supply section, which furnishes the cavalrymen with food, equipment and ammunition.

The first phase of the maneuvers began March 16, when the 12th Cavalry left its stations at Forts Brown and Ringold, on the Mexican border, for Fort Clark, Texas, where it will consolidate with the 5th Cavalry to form a provisional regiment. The 7th and 8th cavalries will consolidate at Fort Bliss in a similar regiment.

With those regiments consolidated, tests at Fort Clark and Fort Bliss will be conducted until April 20, when the two regiments will consolidate at Balmerhea.

Thus consolidated, the regiment enters the second phase of the test—splitting into three regiments for the purpose of forming combat teams. Imaginary enemies will be engaged in battle, under conditions as near those of war times as possible, giving a thorough test to the triangular organization.

The third phase, which will end May 16, involves the testing of the reorganized division as a whole.

Importance of the maneuvers is emphasized by the fact that the war department is at the present time studying reports on a similar test of an infantry division, conducted in this area last fall, with a view toward a complete reorganization of the infantry branch of the army into units of approximately 12,000 men each. Following of that test by the cavalry maneuvers would indicate that a reorganization of the entire army might be in the offing.

Chief reasons for a reorganization would be to afford the cavalry to take advantage of the improved weapons and machines produced by industry, and to weld the branch into a more maneuverable unit.

The table of reorganization, prepared by the war department, follows in principle that set up for the proposed infantry division. No strengths have yet been prescribed for reorganized infantry elements. Brigades have been eliminated. Three regiments are provided instead of four, and a field artillery, formed by three battalions, is added.

The provisional cavalry regiment to be formed for test purposes contains a headquarters troop, three rifle squadrons and attached personnel.

Attached field artillery regiments will be tested under three different organization plans. First, a regiment of two battalions with three batteries to each battalion; second, a three-battalion regiment with two batteries to each battalion; and third, a regiment of four batteries without battalion organizations.

Other organizational changes include a reduction in size of service and supply organizations and an increased use of motor vehicles, with the exception of combat train vehicles, will be withdrawn from the cavalry and field artillery units and consolidated with the quartermaster squadron. Approximately 6,000 troops, including all of the personnel of the 1st Cavalry Division of Fort Brown, Fort Ringgold, Fort Clark and Fort Bliss, and units from Fort D. A. Russell and Fort Sam Houston will participate in the maneuvers.

Wise Skipping on Ship of State

If any one man in the entire New Deal entourage has gained prestige during the troublous years since 1933 that man is Secretary of State Cordell Hull. In the last few weeks Hull has added to the somewhat general opinion that he is a pretty slick and sensible statesman.

His speech before the National Press Club in Washington was as sane as it was candid. After reaffirming earlier declarations that the United States is ready to disarm when other nations will do likewise, Hull went on to denounce dictators, treaty breakers, and land-hungry aggressors. He criticized both isolationists and jingoists.

In addition to agreeing with those sentiments, the general American public will probably go along with the policy expressed in Hull's statement that the United States will continue to steer a sound middle course between the extremes of internationalism and isolationism.

It becomes increasingly apparent that certain governments will not stop their war-baiting aggression. The more they get, the more they want. It was always thus.

Now there aren't many Americans who want the United States to go over and board the lions in their dens. Neither do they want the U. S. to try to right the many obvious wrongs of the last two decades. But the belief is growing that a couple of oceans do not separate America from all the problems of the world.

Fearful prophecies that some ambitious European or Asiatic despot will get a foothold in the Americas and then go on to conquer the U. S. are by all odds fantastic. But the disconcerting fact remains that Hitler and Mussolini have pulled off some rather fantastic projects lately. And their recent successes don't diminish their nations of invincibility.

The world scene today is an ominous hodge-podge and when Hull states that "no policy would prove more disastrous than for an important nation to fail to arm adequately when international lawlessness is on the rampage," he is talking horse sense, providing of course that there are no attempts to stretch the meaning of the word "adequately."

These are bad times and there is altogether too good a chance that the United States will find itself at war again unless the men sitting in on the international poker game for the nation continue to play them close to the vest. Happily, Cordell Hull gives evidence of doing just that.

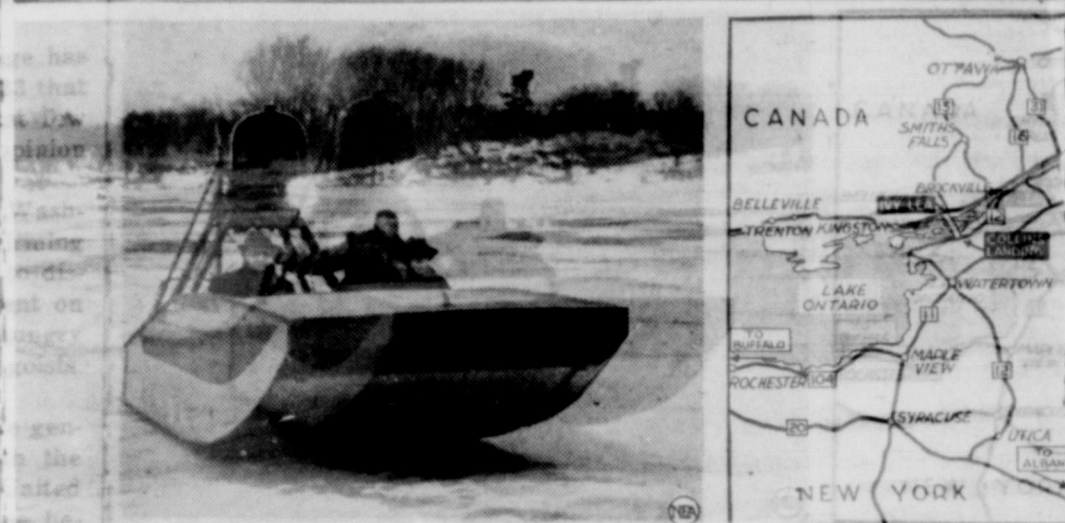

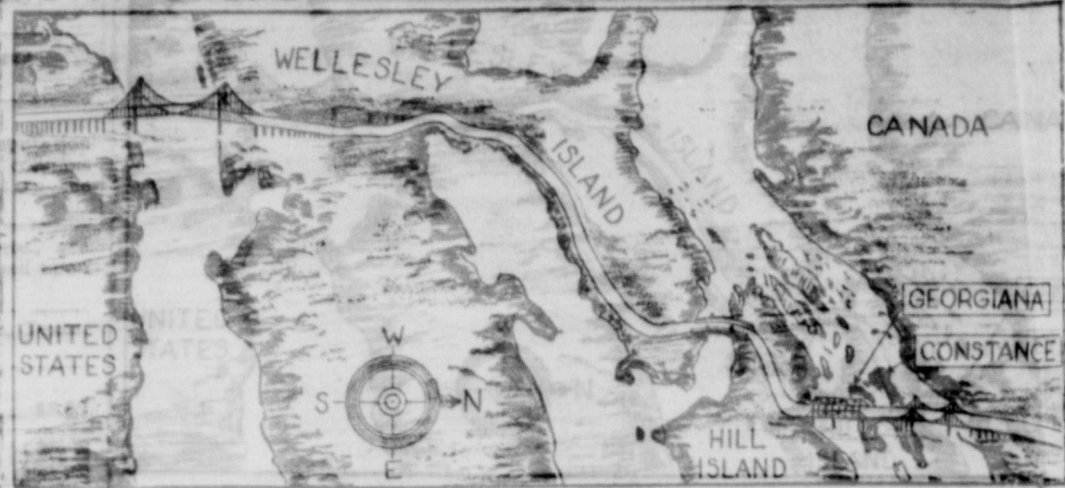

An automobile crash restored a boy's memory. Often the memory is all that's left after a traffic accident.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

By Elinore Cowan Stone
Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CASE OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MADWELL—she is the usual doctor. Her husband, DR. ROBERT MADWELL, is an artist. HILDEGARDE THORVALD—she is the usual doctor's wife. She is a nurse. DEREK MADWELL—she is the usual doctor's son. He is a student.

shirt, lounging with a book—her usual occupation when she wasn't on horseback or gardening or sitting at her piano.

From the beginning that first sitting was a dismal failure.

And this picture means so much to Derek, Constance thought. And then, with a clutch at her heart, why a few weeks ago I should have said, "It means so much to us!" Have we really grown so far apart—Derek and I? And yet I love Derek. I am angry and hurt and humiliated, but I still love him. Or do I?

Yes, she decided. If thinking of someone the first thing in the night, if starting when you could not be sure what he was thinking or doing at any time of day, if having your heart turn completely over when you saw him or heard his voice unexpectedly—if all these things meant that you loved; then she still loved Derek.

voice was thin with impatience. "Alone. We can't go on—"

"Derek," Constance said steadily. "When we talk together alone, it will be only with the complete understanding of every one in this house that it is because we have a right to be alone together. . . . And I'm not at all sure that I want that now—any more than you do."

CHAPTER XX
George Thorvald's recovery progressed, there was a very dent effort on the part of the household to keep the daily routine in the same, normal grooves everyday life.

The portrait, Constance knew under way again. At Hildegarde Thorvald's request, she had with her to the studio for the first sitting.

She did not want to go; but Hildegarde insisted that she needed her support.

"Oh, you'll be there," Hildegarde said. "When I begin to feel that gosh-awful glow, look at you and we can laugh. I'm one of the few women I've met who know just when to laugh—and how much. . . . And I must be painted, I've got to be painted."

Constance went—that once, she saw immediately that here was a cruel mistake. Hildegarde had had her way in respect to at least. The portrait was not to be, as Derek had thought. Constance had to be painted. It was a cruel mistake.

MARK ROGERS came to the studio for a few moments that morning. He nodded briefly to Derek, spoke a few words to Constance in his amused, infuriatingly detached way, and then lingered to chat with Hildegarde Thorvald—telling her something funny that had happened to him that morning. They seemed to understand each other—those two—quietly, humorously, effortlessly, as if between them there was no need for pretenses or evasions.

With Hilda, he was a different man from the one Constance had always known—youthful, more relaxed, bubbling with infectious good humor.

While they were talking and laughing together, Constance looked out over the white blooms of the fruit trees toward the crumpled blue of the distant mountains—feeling somehow, a little forlorn. It might be very well—comfortable, she thought, to have a man like Mark Rogers turn to you so naturally for companionship and understanding; to feel as Hilda obviously did with him, no need for putting up little feminine defenses.

Derek, who when Rogers came in, had turned somewhat sulky to the business of mixing colors, strolled with apparent aimlessness over to where Constance stood and said softly, "Connie, I must talk to you."

"Well?" Constance's smile was all sweetness and open candor, although her heart was pounding. "You are talking to me, aren't you, Derek?"

"You know what I mean," his

Oh, well—what was it she had said to George Thorvald that first night? "No one can help not loving someone any longer." It had sounded so childish when Mark Rogers had teased her about it. But was it?

True to his word, Ernest Thorvald had had a horse run into the corral for Constance—a slim-legged, spirited, sorrel chestnut. And the new riding clothes from Los Angeles fitted perfectly. In the saddle Constance looked like a slight dark-haired boy.

She rode every day now—sometimes alone, sometimes early in the morning with her host. She liked riding with Ernest Thorvald because he was steeped in the Spanish lore of the country, and told her many romantic legends of the early days in the southwest he loved so much.

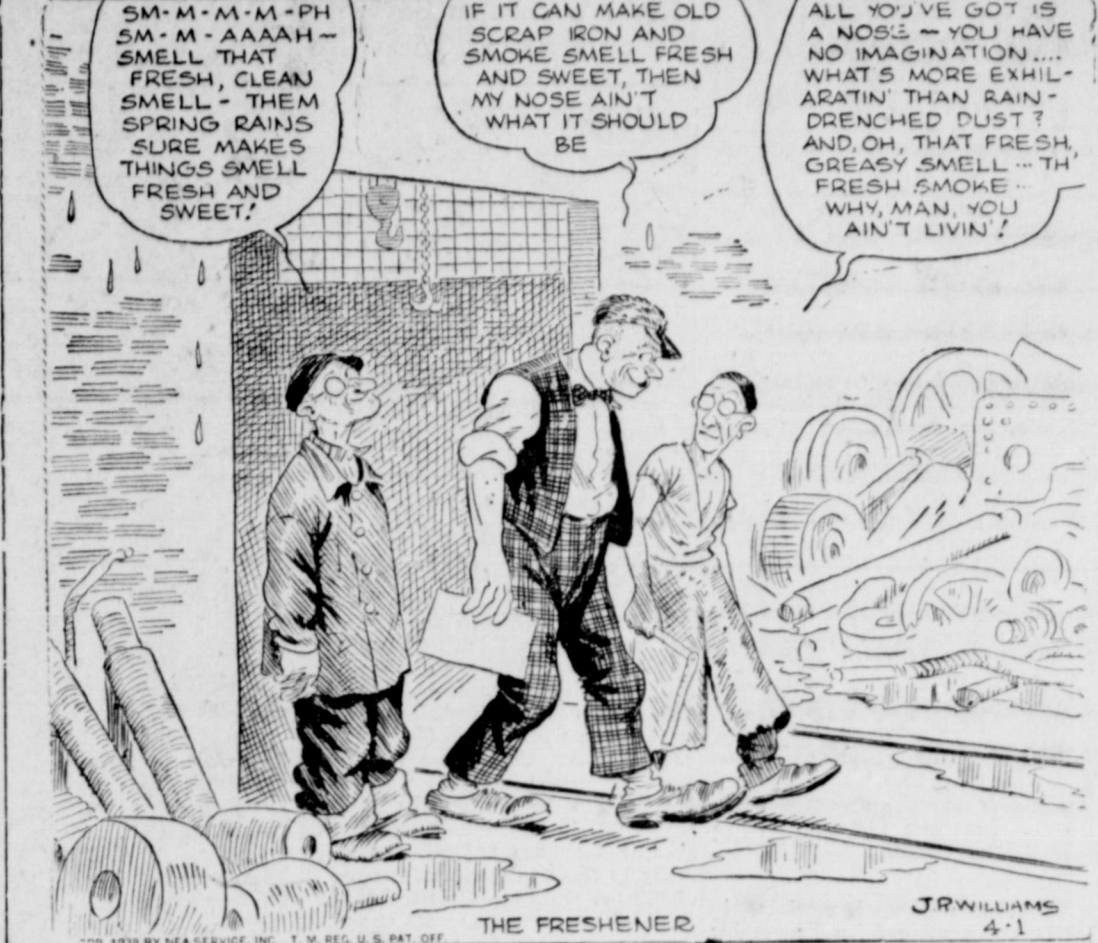

Often Constance rode with her hostess, Hildegarde Thorvald, who was never known to move faster than a stroll foot, became a reckless Valkyrie on horseback. She rode as she played the piano and sang, with a kind of tempestuous abandon. Her horse, a magnificent high-strung black, was as eager to run and as tireless as she. There was not much time for story-telling when one rode with Hildegarde.

One morning while they were at breakfast, Mark Rogers, coming in for an early visit to his patient, brought a message that the horses of "la ama de la casa" and the senorita were waiting.

Hildegarde said, "Sorry, Constance. I'm having to look after some things here while Dad runs up to Los Angeles. . . . Derek, why don't you and Constance go for a gallop?"

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Hull, who may be our next President, insists on moving further away from strict neutrality and isolation and toward a posture where the United States can move on to actual intervention in world affairs if and when its executive heads deem that to be wise.

This was the chief significance of the speech which Hull made at the National Press Club for broadcast to the world.

First of all, Hull nailed down positions previously taken in his step-by-step delineation of a foreign policy whose actual significance is questioned by isolationists and pacifists.

He emphasized this country's interest in orderly international process throughout the world—not merely in China—and implied strong disapproval of the German seizure of Austria as well as an intense interest in European affairs.

He dwelt on the desirability of parallel action by peaceful nations against "lawless" nations—a point of considerable importance when one gets to speculating as to how close parallel lines can approach each other without becoming the same line. And he re-emphasized an intention to protect American rights and interests abroad. "In-considerable importance when one gets to speculating as to how close parallel lines can approach each other without becoming the same line. And he re-emphasized an intention to protect American rights and interests abroad."

Finally and very cautiously, Hull laid the groundwork for a drive to repeal the neutrality act. The administration will make no frontal attack on the law. But on March 29 the House Foreign Affairs Committee, under Hull's friend and fellow Tennesseean Sam McReynolds, will begin hearings on a number of bills for its repeal or amendment.

TAMPA—Bill McKechnie reveals for the first time that he was offered the management of the Chicago Cubs by Philip K. Wrigley during the world series last fall.

This causes the pilot of the Cincinnati Reds to suspect that Charley Grimm will be relieved of the field directorship of the Bruins at the club's first definite spring session.

While he has an idea Tony Lazzeri would have the inside track under such circumstances, it wouldn't surprise McKechnie if Wrigley brought in a man from the outside. It is presumed by many that Lazzeri had some sort of an understanding when he asked the New York Yankees for his release to go to the Cubs as a coach and reserve infielder.

McKechnie chose the Reds instead of the Cubs because he did not care to serve under Wrigley, who conducts his baseball club as he does his gum business. Nor did he care to go along with the he calls "yes" men around Wrigley. He indicates that he either did not care to clean them out or suspected that he could not.

McKechnie preferred to be with Warren Giles, under whom he served with the St. Louis Cardinals' Rochester subsidiary in 1929.

GILES coaxed him away from the Boston Bees with a two-year contract at $25,000. He virtually assured $30,000 this year, for he gets a $5000 bonus if the Reds finish in the first division or draw as well at home as they did in putting in last in 1937, when they played to something in the neighborhood of 450,000 paid admissions in the Rhineland.

"Like his father before him, Mi. Wrigley wants the Cubs to win," says McKechnie. "He doesn't care about having them finish second. He won't be satisfied until they're first in front by 10 games."

HERE'S AN APRIL PIE TO FOOL YOU. IT TASTES EVEN BETTER THAN IT LOOKS.

FRESH APRIL STRAWBERRY PIE (Serves 6)

One quart fresh strawberries, 1 cup sugar, 5 tablespoons corn starch, 1-2 cup water, 1 package cream cheese, 1-2 cup whipping cream, 1 tablespoon powdered sugar, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla extract, 1 baked pie shell, 9 inches in diameter.

Select about 1 cup of the choicest berries and set them aside for garnish. Mix together the sugar and corn starch; add to cleaned, crushed berries and water. Place mixture in top of heat resistant glass double boiler, 1 quart size, and cook until clear and thick—about 15 to 20 minutes. Set aside to cool. Spread cream cheese in the bottom of pie shell already baked in a 9-inch pie plate. Then add half the berries which were set aside for garnish. Pour the cooled strawberry mixture into the pie shell, arrange the remainder of the berries on the top and chill. Just before serving, garnish with whipped cream flavored with sugar and vanilla.

And here's another April Fool's dessert that looks like a March snow storm but it's really a heavenly meringue.

AUSTIN.—Postal receipts in Texas continued a favorable trend during February in comparison with last year, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Reports from 37 representative Texas cities show total receipts of $1,187,501 during February, an increase of 2.8 per cent over February last year, but a decline of 5.6 per cent from the preceding month. The decline in receipts from January are attributable to the shorter month.

Cities in which receipts during February were greater than in both the preceding month and the corresponding month last year were Amarillo, Brownsville, Fort Worth, Galveston and Sweetwater.

Sight Defects in First Grade Set at Quarter of Pupils

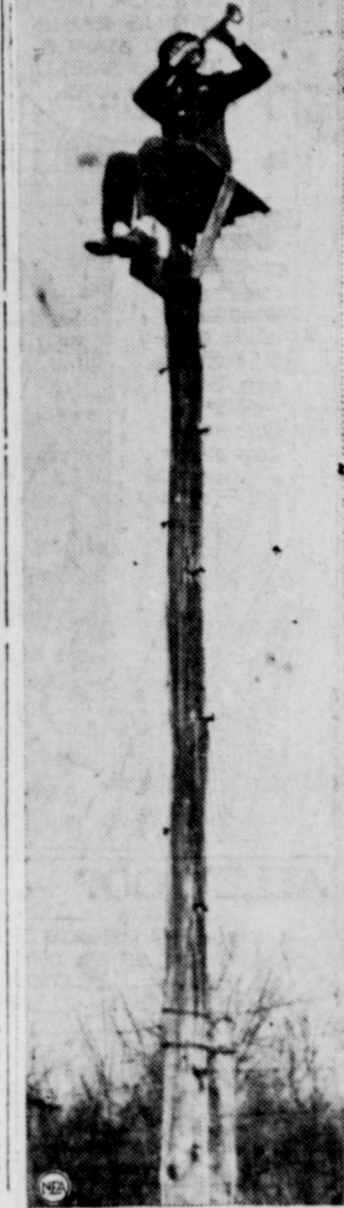

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.— Worried parents who think their offspring are not getting along well enough in school should have the children's eyes examined. Dr. Emmett Betts, research professor in education at the Pennsylvania State College, believes.

"One third to one-fourth of all pupils fail in first grade reading because they are not physically ready to learn to read at the age of 6," Dr. Betts said. "Sometimes too, children are not mentally or emotionally ready to read when they enter the first grade. They have not had the proper experience with books at home, and they cannot adjust themselves socially to groups."

"For some first grade children, it is more convenient to read from right to left than from left to right. Such things block the general educational progress of the child."

Dr. Betts' reading clinic, designed to correct reading difficulties which retard children and adults in their educational processes, is one of the few such clinics in the United States. He has evolved a few simple tests for persons who are not sure they have eye trouble. One of the things he has learned is that if your eyes jump more than five times as you read a line of ordinary newspaper type, chances are you have reading trouble.

National manufacturer and local merchant advertise to help you.

Perhaps slip covers on davenport and wing chair will make faithful but a little weary pieces look like new. Perhaps summer draperies will make your living-room so fresh and gay that you yourself will hardly know it. A new rug may be the prescription that your home needs. A new lamp can light more than a corner—it can shine into the hearts of all who see it. Glassware, a new table, porch furniture, all can enter into your home's fact lifting.

Look about your home as if you had never seen it—and follow the advertising on these pages!
