Help Crippled Children—Buy and Use Easter Seals

Thousands of crippled children in Texas can tell you of the wonderful things which are being or have been done to help them to have a better life, but there are yet other thousands who are yet to be reached. The funds derived from the sale of the Easter Seals, the sale of which is being sponsored in Eastland by the Lions Club, during the week of April 11 to 17, will be used to reach these other underprivileged children. The Texas Society for Crippled Children was formed for the sole purpose of focusing public attention on this problem, so long neglected or ignored, and urging the public through its local organizations to help solve the problem.

At the present time there are more than 800 children who are on the waiting list of the Crippled Children's Division in Austin. State and Federal funds appropriated for the care of these children through hospitalization, through proper surgery, the supplying of braces and artificial limbs, will not reach the great number who are asking for the care of the Crippled Children's Division. Each local community where the Seals are offered for sale during the Easter Season is asked to help care for these children. Let's help the Lions Club take care of the crippled children in our community by buying and using Easter Seals during the week of April 11-17.

Racketeers Hate Good Citizens

A special grand jury discharged in New York City recently was believed to have established some kind of endurance record. It had been at work for nearly a year.

Its purpose was an investigation of racketeering and its political ramifications. Among the indictments it returned were those against J. Richard (Dixie) Davis and 11 of his alleged associates in the policy racket. County Clerk Albert Marinelli resigned after charges based on testimony elicited by this jury were forwarded to Governor Lehman. In the process of doing this and similar work the members of the jury had held 56 meetings and questioned approximately 180 witnesses.

Governor Lehman, Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook, and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey expressed their deep gratitude to the jurors for their service at the time of the jury's discharge.

Very likely there were scores of New York business men, racket victims, and assorted men-in-the-street who would have liked to thank the jurors themselves. Without wishing to detract from the deservedly bright reputation of such prospectors as Dewey in any way, it should be pointed out that the business of fighting crime is not conducted alone by a district attorney. The major share, sometimes the whole measure of the glory more often than not goes to that official, but the success his efforts enjoy is dependent on the co-operation, the conscientious devotion to its task, and the fearlessness of a body of capable citizens behind him.

Service on a grand jury needs to be given the public attention and encouragement it deserves. A certain flattery attaches to being chosen as a juror, but too often the responsibilities that ensue are regarded more as the incidental burdens of citizenship, to be borne with a minimum of complaint, than as the kind of opportunities that come only rarely in one man's lifetime.

The privilege of serving as a grand juror needs to be emphasized as a gift of a special power for improving the community life. The opportunities are extraordinary, and the more John Q. Citizen is made aware of this, the tougher time rackets are going to have in our cities.

An Old Champion Goes with the Wind

George T. Dunlop, Jr., right, five times winner of the North and South amateur golf tournament at Pinehurst, N. C., was a heavy favorite to repeat this year. But his chances went with the wind that blustered him into the bunkers time and again while straight-shooting Frankie Strafaci, of Brooklyn, left, with better control popped off the holes to win the final match 5 and 4. Hence the congratulatory scene above, where defeated favorite Dunlop felicitates the winner and new champion.

THE AGONY OF JESUS

BY FATHER S. E. BYRNE
St. Rita's Church, Ranger

COPY TO BILL MAYES — — — AGONY OF CHRIST . . . . . After Jesus having been ordered scourged by Pilate, Jesus was led to the low column where He was stripped of His garments and fastened by the wrists to this column, thus exposing his entire back to the blows of the whip. For the Romans a whip made of elm-wood was used, but for all other offenders the whip was made of leather thongs, armed with knobs of bone and balls of lead. At every blow from this horrible lash the skin was raised in ragged furrows, blood streamed forth, and frequently the victim would fall at the feet of the one wielding the whip, thereby exposing every portion of his frame to their attacks. There was no limit set to the number of blows; everything was left to the whims of the men who were inflicting the punishment.

The Gospels merely records the fact that Christ was scourged, and fails to go into details; but the silence of Jesus, which acted as a savage incentive to the fury of the executioners, indeed, makes us conjure up a scene of prolonged agony. As soon as Our Saviour entered the room set aside for the scourging, His executioners stripped Him and tied Him to the whipping-post. The punishment began at once with measured strokes, each carefully delivered, so that it would cause the most pain. A company of soldiers were detailed for this work. Just how many there were or how many wielded the whip, we do not know. But we do know that several took turns in this scourging. The guard was composed of Roman soldiers. They were pagans, recruited from the scum of the Imperial City. Profane, vicious, they held the Jesus in utter contempt, and they eagerly welcomed every opportunity to wreak vengeance on them, for the wounds the Jews had inflicted upon them and their companions in the frequent riots which the soldiery had to put down with violence. They saw in Jesus merely a Jew who had been sent to them for torture. They knew and cared little or nothing for His guilt or innocence. He was to them just one of the mated race. His dignity and submission, instead of melting their hatred, rather served to stimulate it more. Only when they had done their worst and felt that He would die if they did not stop, did they lay aside their whips and proceed to torture Him with ridicule and contempt.

They had been told that He claimed to be the King of the Jews. Therefore they made Him a mock-king. Around Him they flung a filthy, ragged, purple cloak which they found among the rubbish in the squad-room. Imagine if you can what it meant to have this filthy dirty rag thrown over His shoulders. We know how sensitive an open wound is, and how carefully we treat it, cleansing it and then covering it with clean bandages. The body of Christ was a mass of gashes and torn and bruised flesh, and if this was not enough this filthy garment was thrown over his shoulders, then taking a reed strong as wood, the yet-it in His hand.

mined to release Jesus; again he stepped forth from the Pretorium, whereupon a new storm of cries assailed him. "If you release this man you are no friend of Caesar; whoever makes himself a king is Caesar's enemy."

This was a terrible threat, for the Caesar of that day was Tiberius, and certainly if Pilate had not acceded to their wishes, they would have brought their accusations against him before Caesar. Pilate saw in a flash the Jews summoning him before this inexorable judge,—the crime of high treason charged against him,—his fortune plundered,—then exile and death. He could make no stand against these fears of the future. Trying to veil his terrors under a semblance of haughty contempt, Pilate began.

"This, then, if your king?" But his voice was drowned by the cries of the multitude. "Away with him, away with him." "Crucify him!"

"This is your king; shall I crucify your king?" Their reply to this question was the deciding point. "We have no king but Caesar," shouted the chief priests.

Defeated by this last thrust, he delivered Jesus into their hands. His crime was to be severely punished; before three years had elapsed Pilate was summoned to clear himself of accusations brought against him because of his depositions of certain Samaritans. He was condemned, despoiled of all his property and sent into exile. We are told by various traditions that it was here along the banks of the Rhone river, that finally dragged down by remorse, he put a violent end to his existence.

From the punishment of Pilate, let us realize that if we do offend God, even though we are not punished in this life that we will have all eternity to satisfy for our sins, usually however sins that we commit are turned to our own sorrow and some day we have to suffer for them even in this life.

Meteorite Hunt Is Urged Over U. S.

WASHINGTON—Stones from Heaven may be worth more than "Pennies from Heaven," the Smithsonian Institution said in requesting nationwide search for meteorites. E. P. Henderson, of the museum's geology department, estimated that thousands of meteorites—or fragments of shooting stars—are scattered throughout the United States. Each meteorite, he said, would bring a very good return for a day's work.

although it wouldn't make the when they strike rich. Henderson said scientists had to depend on the average citizen to find the "stones from heaven" because most "shooting stars" are high above the earth and usually appear to fall miles from their actual landing place.

The best way to recognize a meteorite, Henderson said, is by its extraordinary weight. Meteorites, often composed almost entirely of iron and nickel, are among the heaviest of rocks.

The star fragments do not always show signs of burning. The stones, although actually burned because of friction with air, probably are cool enough to handle

He explained that he had nearly at absolute greens below when it enters atmosphere. As the stones descend, the white-hot before heated above temperatures.

Easter Cruise

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOYCE MILNER, heroine; she took an Easter Cruise.
DICK HAMILTON, hero; he bumped into the heroine.
FRANK PORTER, traveler; he sought a mate.
Yesterday, Dick goes ashore at Hamilton on some special mission and Mr. Gregory asks Joyce to go with him. She declines, hoping Dick will call her instead.

CHAPTER VII
DICK was waiting at the ship's rail when Joyce came aboard. "I tried to see you this morning," he said, "but Dr. Gray chased me off. Joyce, are you all right?" "Of course I am, Dick." "You might have caught pneumonia."

"Nonsense. The whole thing seems nothing at all in daylight." "Here, let's sit down a moment." He led her over to his deck chair. The whole row of chairs was deserted now, with most of the passengers just returned from shore or watching for late arrivals.

"Believe me, we won't try any more tricks like that. I was all set to suggest another happy two-some in Havana Friday night, but I don't dare. We'll tag along with the sheep. You'll come with me, Joyce?" Her eyes twinkled. "I even dared to hope you'd ask me."

For a moment he regarded her speculatively. "I still can't be sure of you. First I thought it was perversity that wouldn't let us get together—your perversity, if you remember yesterday morning. But after last night, I'm willing to believe that it must be destiny . . ."

"Don't talk like that! I'll expect an earthquake in Havana—or at least another revolution." He laughed. "Then we'd better stick close to Mrs. Porter. I do believe she could manage a revolution."

"Undoubtedly. You saw what happened last night to the first two rebels." He took out a cigaret, lit it slowly and leaned back in his chair, watching a group of small fishing boats off shore. In about five minutes the Empress would be leaving Bermuda for their next port of call, Nassau in the Bahamas. Already the sailors were preparing for departure, though the companionway had not been raised.

SUDDENLY Joyce straightened in her chair. "I wonder what's going on," she said, looking astern.

He nodded, thoughtfully. "And seven seconds to rip the bottom

HEAT: The summer heat dries the felt, causing cracks, breaks and general deterioration. FIRE: Every home is exposed to the damages of fire.

Why Take These Chances?

Our storage vault assures you complete protection against moths, and your contract, backed by a leading insurance company, gives you complete protection from fire and theft.

It Costs So Little To Be Safe

The cost is only $3.00 for each $100.00 valuation until November 1st, 1938.

FOR ONLY 75c UNTIL NOV. 1, 1938 WE OFFER THE SAWDUST PROCESS FOR CLEANING AND GLAZING YOUR FURS!

MODERN DRY CLEANERS AND DYERS

South Seaman Phone 132 EASTLAND, TEXAS "Your Clothes Insured While in Our Possession"

Floods and storms in Arkansas and Oklahoma took heavy toll of telephone lines in February. Yet almost all the silenced telephones were back in service within a few days.

One reason: Western Electric warehouses are spotted so no Southwestern Bell town is farther than an overnight jump. From these, material poured into the wrecked areas as rapidly as repair crews arrived.

Without Western Electric supplies, instantly available in emergencies, our job of giving you constant good telephone service at low cost would be vastly more difficult.

One reason for this low cost: Western Electric prices are moderate. Over the last 20 years its earnings have averaged less than 7%.
