The Happy Child of Nature

A world in which life keeps getting progressively less simple still looks fondly back at the simple life as one of the supreme blessings attainable by sinful man; and every now and then someone pops up with a reminder that the untutored savage is probably a great deal happier and physically sounder than we are.

The latest bit of evidence along this line comes from a New York scientist who has just got back from a trip along the headwaters of the Amazon.

Along those faroff waterways, this gentleman found jungle tribes who share none of the white man's ways and few of his ills. They go quietly about their business, nothing worries them and nobody hurries them—and they never have cancer, high blood pressure or heart trouble. Many of them live to the age of 100 years and remain hale and hearty to the last.

Which, of course, is just another way of proving that we pay for everything we get in this world. We have a great many things that these remote savages lack, and we couldn't very well get along without them; but we pay for them by living hurried, nervous, fearfully complex lives, and the diseases that lay us low are nothing less than byproducts of our civilization.

But that sort of thing has been said a great many times, and if it makes us yearn for the simple life it doesn't get us any nearer to it; and, indeed, there is no point whatever in dreaming about going back to the good old days, for the simple reason that they are eternally beyond our reach.

For better or for worse, we have got ourselves into a complex and artificial sort of society which cannot very well be simplified. The horse-and-buggy age (to come down a few generations from the day of the simple savage) may have had a leisure and a placid contentment that we do not have, but if we abolished our trains, automobiles and airplanes we should all speedily die. The innumerable complications of the age of machinery may be shortening our lives, but we can't get along without them.

We can't turn the clock back, even if we really wanted to. The only possible direction we can travel is forward. And we shall make the kind of progress we need to make only if we stop moaning about the blissful past and start figuring out ways to adjust this modern society of ours to the deep, inner needs of the human spirit. It can be done, if we put our minds to it; but it must be done by looking to the future rather than by trying to get back to the past.

A refrigerator has been invented that will loosen the ice cubes after they're made, but the chances are it won't sell unless it also mixes the drinks, passes them around, and explains what they're made of.

Dick Weekes Makes a Statement About Race for Treasurer

W. O. (Dick) WEEKES

TO THE VOTERS OF EASTLAND COUNTY: In making my formal statement to the voters of this county there are a few things that I would like to stress as to my character and qualifications for the office I seek. I was born in the Chaney community, 10 miles south of Ranger, March 30, 1908 and have resided in that community during my entire life time. Since graduating from the Ranger High School, I have married and have continued to live in that community where I have farmed. For the past four years I have been connected with the County agent's office where I have gained considerable experience in matters pertaining to the financial business of both the town and county folks. My experience has been such that I feel that it has added to my qualifications to hold the office I seek and I feel that I am qualified and capable of performing the duties of the office to the satisfaction and in a manner that will be approved by the entire citizenship of Eastland county. No one man or group of men is sponsoring my race for this office, and only the fact that I need the office and feel that my qualifications are such that I can give the people the service that they want and expect, prompts me to ask the voters of this county to elect me to this position. To those who do not know me

"A boycott often suggests war," declared the veteran Senator. "In addition to this, it gains nothing. It does not help the United States and it incurs justifiable resentment in the feeling of the nation against which the boycott is made. Boycotts are often instigated by private firms wishing to further their own ends, and such boycotts are propagandized in the name of patriotism. They should be avoided, not only in fact, but in implication."

SOME OTHER ADVANTAGES OF HOME OWNERSHIP . . .

Last week we pointed out three good reasons why people should own their own homes, and co-incidentally sold three homes since the ad was run.

We do not know that folks read advertisements, but we do know that we are selling homes almost every week, and interest in home ownership is increasing day by day.

Here are some additional reasons why every one should own his home: (1) Credit. Home ownership gives financial and credit rating in the business world because it is recognized as a fundamental principle of stability. (2) Social background for your children. (3) Development of responsibility. The home owner feels more responsibility with regard to his dwelling and the neighborhood in which he lives.
