How to Be Happy

It's remarkable how frequently what appears at first glance to be an unfamiliar, quaint, or even revolutionary notion turns out on closer inspection to be merely the same old idea everybody had been accepting all along.

Probably no one rule for attaining happiness has bobbed up under a greater variety of fancy labels than: "Don't break your neck for nothing."

This will doubtless be considered a pretty ruthless condensation, by adherents to the more complicated philosophies built on that basic idea, "Don't break your neck," but any condensation is ruthless. It does not follow that it is necessarily in error.

"Moderation in all things" bobbed up several centuries after Confucius said it another way. The Stoics emphasized the wisdom of remaining free from passion. Practitioners of Yogi might be said to have put similar notions to work in the gymnasium.

The only trouble with recommending the easy life to the average man these days is that it's a little like recommending rest and sunshine to a miner with 15 children.

Ramon Navarro, retired moving picture actor, has taken up Yogi, and says he believes he is now on the way to a state and mental and physical tranquility.

The ideas of Yogi, according to Navarro, "seems to boil down to the idea that we must take life as we find it; that we must not get angry, or excited."

Navarro, 33, has a full-sized swimming pool for a bath tub. It stands just outside his all-blue bedroom in his four-story home, just around the corner from his ultra-modern music room, done in cherry red and deep cream.

Now, remember, we must not get angry or excited. Perhaps a more generally acceptable rule for happiness these days would be: "We must take life as we find it, after having made it what we would like to find."

Lily Pons, the opera star, went through with a shipboard concert despite a furious Atlantic gale. She was probably under the impression that it was a storm of applause.

Amherst College is tightening up on its English requirements. What's that place trying to do, take all the color out of the language?

Trans-Atlantic passenger plane service will start in July. Go ahead; you can get back in 24 hours.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN CLYDE L. GARRETT

Business Outlook

Three successive months of relatively stable production at the present level leads the Government forecasters to believe that the bottom has been reached. Getting attention at present are two favorable factors. In the first place evidence that home building is showing a strong revival this spring under influence of the new Federal Housing Act credit terms.

Uncle Sam Buys Goods Orders for thousands of different articles every year are placed by the U. S. Government. Most of these orders are for mass supplies at terms advantageous to the Government for all agencies rather than a single one. How the bids should be made and when, is determined by the Division of Procurement, and most of the business is done by contract which is usually awarded to the lowest bidder. Anyone interested in selling supplies to the Government may obtain a schedule of supplies the Government may need in the inquirer's lines by writing to the Branch of Supply, Division of Procurement, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., or write to my office.

Poultry and Egg Situation The price of eggs appears to have reached its seasonal low point in March. And though some small declines may occur during the spring, the trend of egg prices is expected to be upward unless consumer incomes fall more than is now believed likely. Supplies of eggs are not expected to be as great as in 1937. Storage stocks are not expected to accumulate to such a size as during the past year, and a substantial reduction from 1937 appears likely in the August 1 holdings of shell and frozen eggs. The effect of the probable smaller holdings in egg prices in the last half of 1938 will probably be to raise them above those of 1937. The price of chickens is declining relative to its 10-year average of corresponding months. By mid-year, with a larger hatch expected than in 1937, chicken prices are likely to go under those of 1937 and to remain below those of a year earlier throughout the fall and winter. The relative decline is believed to have been the result of falling consumer incomes. Supplies of poultry, both in storage and on farms are quite low.

Social Security

In the United States more than 1,800,000 employers will receive new return forms for filing under the Title VIII of the Social Security Act for the quarter ending March 31, 1938. These returns take the place of three separate returns and are for the purpose of giving less difficulty to the employer to properly file out. Thirty-six million employees will be involved in the returns.

Aviation Students

Any interested person or company may obtain various reports made by the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, which was created by Congress in 1915 to direct the study of flight problems and conduct research and experiments in aeronautics. These reports deal with aerodynamics, airships, engines and accessories, fuels, helicopters, hydrodynamics, instruments and materials, meteorology, parachutes, propellers, seaplanes, stability and control, strength of construction and other subjects. Lists of the reports available may be had from the Government Printing Office, at Washington, D. C.

Merchant Marine Careers

A training program designed to help youths who can not get training in a state nautical school or in the naval or coast guard academies is given by the U. S. Maritime Commission. Applications are received from any young men, between 18 and 23 inclusive, for positions as "cadets" on Government-owned and subsidized vessels. Applicants address the U. S. Maritime Commission, Washington, D. C. Give details as to age, education and experience.

Leaf Worms Caused Village to Become Cooperative Center

DANEVANG, Texas — Leaf worms caused Danevang to become a co-operative community in 1904, and its 425 citizens have prospered since. Miss Helgar Jensen, who teaches the community's children, says Danevang was established in 1894 by Danish immigrants from Denmark and northern parts of the United States. Danevang means "Danish Meadow." The immigrants settled on an area of 24,000 acres, or 28 square miles, to carve a living from Wharton county soil. With exception of a few Germans, six of various nationalities, the population of Danevang is Danish. For 10 years, the farmers were individualists. Then came the leaf-

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox. IT is a good old American custom to serve chicken for special guests. For very, very special guests try these two recipes which Joseph Boggia, Chef at the Plaza Hotel, New York City, has given us.

Fried Chicken Georgia (Serves 6 persons) Joint 3 broilers, making two pieces of breast two thighs and two forelegs. Discard the wings, or use them for another purpose. Wrap each piece of chicken in two thin slices of bacon, bread lightly with crumbs and fry in deep hot fat.

Leaf Worms Caused Village to Become Cooperative Center. DANEVANG, Texas — Leaf worms caused Danevang to become a co-operative community in 1904, and its 425 citizens have prospered since.

Tomorrow's Menu. BREAKFAST: Mexican cantaloupe, dry cereal, scrambled eggs with herbs, toast, coffee, milk.

Chicken Patty a la Reine (Serves 4 persons) One-half pound mushrooms, 2 tablespoons truffles, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1-2 cup cream, 1-2 cup strong chicken broth, salt, pepper, 1 cup diced white meat of cooked chicken, 1 tablespoon of Hollandaise sauce.

Monthly Pow-Wows

Monday night at 7:00 o'clock, scouts of the central section, including those from Blanket, Brownwood, Rising Star, Cross Cut, Pioneer, Sipe Springs and Zephyr, met at Lake Brownwood. Each man brought food for his supper, which included 2 eggs, 2 potatoes, 1 small steak, 1 loaf of bread, and no cooking utensils. How each one prepared his supper without the aid of a skillet was both educational and amusing. It was a worthwhile get-together and was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Father and Son Night

Plans are being worked out by the scouts and scouts of Lampasas for a Father and Son night to be held Friday evening at the Scout Park, April 22.

First Aid

The first aid team of troop 6, Eastland, won fourth place and received a banner at Sweetwater, April 16, when all the winning teams from this section of councils met for the sectional contest of councils. Lubbock won first place in the meet.

Camp Billy Gibbons

Camp dates this year are July 12 to 19, July 20 to 27. Plans are under way for the best and biggest Camp Billy Gibbons in the history of the Comanche Trail council. All scouts should start now to make plans for attending.

Residents Preserve Old Country Customs

Residents preserve Old Country customs. They have festivals at the community house, sing Danish songs and attend square and folk dances. Children attend state schools in the winter and the community's Danish parochial school in the summer.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—The President and his advisers have reached a new, feverish peak in their fight for power. There is some reason to believe that the battle is taking place at the bottom of the present depression. But there is no certainty about that. And meanwhile the manifold uncertainties arising from general confusion in Washington, concerning which business leaders have complained long and angrily, have not been diminished by the bitterness of the struggle over the reorganization bill.

As always, the President is beset by two groups of advisers. One asks him to reassure business, to refrain from oratory of the type which disturbs business and to lay off reforms, at least until business can get on its feet again. The other group urges him to "go on and fight," to insist on mastery and a program of reform which he is told will rouse "the people" to his support.

SPORT GLANCES

BY HARRY GRAYSON

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Eddie Meade says that he will earn $200,000 and win two more world titles the next 12 weeks. Meade is here with his feather forearm, who at Barney Ross 15 rounds for the welter weight at May 25.

It is the event that he repels Ross. Armstrong is in the light weight leadership, June 23. Meade hasn't managed fighters these many years strong can't lose. In case Ross scores to make a welter championship engagement, Ambers is fighting for the lightweight crown, Sept. 16.

Armstrong is beaten by both Ross and Ambers the feather ruler. In putting over this coup, Meade is reported to return Joe Louis-Max Schmeling scrap of June 22 in return for his sanctioning this rich series of Jacobs is said to have promised the New York Times that the million-dollar heavyweight extravaganza at Manhattan, regardless of anti-Nazi activities and other factors.

JACOBS believes that Ross and Armstrong will $500,000, and that the St. Louis Dust Storm will $500,000 with Ambers in the event that he believes his diadem.

Armstrong, the most spectacular little man since McGovern, collects 25 per cent of the net receipts. Armstrong, one of the busiest beak butlers in boxing right now as a result, so will take the baton, ride here for three weeks. Meade—the "e" belongs to the Springs, Armstrong will repair to Dr. Joe Barlow's Pompton Lakes, N. J.

WHILE the official contracts state that Ross will box at 147 pounds, they have private agreements with Ross to do 142 or less and Armstrong 136 or less posted a $5000 forfeit.

Meade had $176,000 in cash while managing the last bastion boss, in 1921. Stout Edward had to hook a watch that Lynch got out of New York in 1927. He moved to Cleveland. He left Cleveland in disgust two years ago for Los Angeles, Cal.

Meade is back in the big chips, and he is in it with his knowledge of fighters that put him back on the map. He was in August, 1936, and borrowed the $100,000 from Al Johnson and George Egan. Eddie Meade really struck gold—black gold—

Easter Cruise

BY MARION WHITE
 Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
 JOYCE MILLNER, heroine; she took an Easter Cruise.
 DICK HAMILTON, hero; he bumped into the heroine.
 ISOBEL PORTER, traveler; she sought a mate.

Yesterday Dick and Isobel came aboard and Isobel announces their engagement! Joyce is stunned!

CHAPTER XIII

NEITHER the Porters nor Dick were at the doctor's table for dinner that evening. Mrs. Porter had speedily arranged a very special dinner in one of the ship's private dining rooms. If there were any doubt about the engagement, if there were any dull apprehension in her mind that its consummation in a Havana cafe might not be adequately formal, she was promptly correcting the situation. Joyce could imagine the thrill of triumph which would glorify the occasion.

She steeled herself to be exceptionally gay. She talked on, frivolously and lightly, about the price of perfumes in the Arcade, about the young man who had been ice-skating in Central Park only yesterday, about the flavor of the soup and the fragrance of the coffee. If anybody thought she cared about their engagement—

They talked at length of Haiti and Joyce expressed her eagerness to visit this island so weirdly presented through the pages of mystery books and movie thrillers.

"Tell me what," Dr. Gray suggested as they ordered dessert. "I'll have the steward serve our coffee down in my cabin, and I'll ask the chief officer to join us. He can tell you some hair-raising stories."

So the three of them left the dining room together, and a few minutes later Mr. Jones, the chief officer, joined them in the doctor's cabin.

Mr. Jones told them many tall, tremendous stories of voodoo worship and magic, all of which he attested to be actual, personal experiences, and none of which his listeners believe. They were amusing tales, nevertheless, and Joyce enjoyed every breathless moment of suspense, for the chief officer was a natural story teller.

She was having a leisurely breakfast hours later when she heard the first voices of the mystic isle, outside her port-hole. She knelt upon the bed and looked out. There, beneath her very window, a dozen black boys were diving from their fragile crafts for coins thrown from the decks above. She watched them intently, marveling at their swift, young bodies shot through the water after the illusive coins.

There was a knock on her door, and she turned to see Mr. Gregory on the threshold.

"I have a disappointment for you," he announced in gloomy reply to her greeting.

"What is it?"

"Dr. Gray cannot go ashore with us. He has an emergency operation; one of the crew has come down with appendicitis."

Joyce's face fell.

"However, if you would care to come ashore with me," he went on, "the doctor has given me an outline of what to do and where to go."

"I'd be delighted," she said, forcing a smile. She wouldn't be delighted at all; Mr. Gregory was a dull companion. However, there would be no pleasure in going off herself, a lone sheep, without purpose or direction.

They went ashore in the first small launch, just beyond the wharf, a veritable army of chauffeurs offered their services. Mr. Gregory called the name of the chauffeur whom the doctor had recommended; instantly seven eager natives responded.

"What will we do?" he wondered, looking at the seven black faces.

She laughed. "It must be a name like John Smith," she said. "Easily duplicated."

Eventually they chose the driver who offered the most comfortable car, and they set off, not alone with him, but with two other darkies crowded into the front seat; one, it was explained vaguely, to be their guide, the second an extra interpreter.

Wherever they went, the natives stopped in their tasks to wave a friendly welcome. They were lovable people, Joyce thought, despite their poverty. And once more she thought of the emperor who had dreamed of endowing them with a mighty tradition. Perhaps he had failed, but he had left them something else. He had bequeathed to them the dignity of independence; today they walked along the streets with their heads high, despite the tatters of their handed-down clothing.

And such clothing as it was! A tall, elderly darkey strode along proud in the glory of a full dress jacket, its black tails hanging down over blue cotton work trousers. His feet were bare, but on his head he wore a high silk hat, the top of which had long since been battered through. The women strove for only one detail of elegance—variety of color. And they wore jewelry extravagantly: beads and bracelets of native seeds, dyed every color of the spectrum.

In the central square of the city they left the car for a few minutes to look about the government buildings, to view at close range the various monuments to the heroes of the republic. The mute figures told their story dramatically; looking up at them the years seemed to roll back for one fleeting instant, and again that tumultuous undercurrent of a long-ago struggle for freedom surged in one's blood.

As they walked back to the car, Joyce a little thoughtfully, she was startled out of her day-dreams by the pitter-patter of bare feet behind her. A little girl came up, holding out something in her hand and explaining volubly in unintelligible phrases.

"Why, it's my bracelet!" Joyce exclaimed, taking the offering. "I must have dropped it. Thank you, my dear. Merci, I mean, merci," she corrected in French.

The child's eyes were wide as saucers as they stared in enraptured admiration at the trinket. It was an inexpensive novelty bracelet in gold lacquer, with several bangles hanging from it. But to her it might have been the Koh-i-noor.

"I'd never have missed it," Joyce said, grateful for the child's honesty. Then, impulsively, she held it out. "Would you like it?" she asked with a smile.

At first the girl drew back, but Joyce took her thin arm, wound the bracelet around it twice, then snapped the link. "Pour toi," she explained in her textbook French. The child's mouth opened in a smile that lighted her entire black face. She stared, unbelieving, at the golden links of beauty around her wrist. Then, impetuously, she bent and kissed Joyce's hand.

"Merci, mamselle!" she cried.

"You're foolish!" Mr. Gregory admonished. "She'll lose it or throw it away in a few moments."

Joyce shook her head. "You don't understand the female mind, Mr. Gregory. Why, when I was her age, I'd have given my right arm for a bangle bracelet."

Later that afternoon, Mr. Gregory was to remember the incident. Very much later, when the shadows of darkness were enfolding the mystical island and the drums were beginning to beat their tom-tom through the forest. When from a mountainside five miles out of Port-au-Prince they heard the last whistle of the Empress, Mr. Gregory was to remember the importance of a silly bangle bracelet.

clerk at times, I am qualified to render to Eastland county the kind of service that is expected of its treasurer.

My means are very limited and I am having to make this campaign at a great sacrifice and it may be that I cannot see, in person, each voter in the county. However, I shall attempt to do so before the date of election.

I want to promise you, upon my honor, that if you see fit to favor me with this office, you shall never have cause to regret your having helped me. I am badly in need of employment. I promise you honest, efficient and courteous service if elected.

More than I can express by word, I appreciate the encouragement that I have thus far received and assure each and every voter that I shall very much appreciate your vote and influence.

Respectfully submitted,
 GARLAND BRANTON.

Fresh Vegetables And Fruit Better As Spring Tonic

FORT WORTH.—Fresh fruits and vegetables should replace sulphur and molasses, sassafras tea, and other "spring tonics" on the American diet, Dr. A. H. Flickwir, Fort Worth city health director, advises.

"Sulphur and molasses are a nasty diet, good for nothing," Dr. Flickwir said. "Sassafras tea is a pleasant drink, but there is no other reason for you to drink it."

"What people do need is a diet of spring vegetables and fruits. Greens of almost any kind will prove a better tonic than medicine. Onions are good, too—fresh green ones."

Dr. Flickwir's "spring fever" antidote is (1) plenty of fruits and vegetables to prevent scurvy and pellagra, and (2) milk and sunshine to "tone up the system." The fruit, he reminded, must be ripe to maintain the necessary vitamins.

Garland Branton Makes Statement Upon Candidacy

To the Voters of Eastland County:

In submitting my candidacy for the office of Treasurer of Eastland county, I wish to make the following statements with reference to my qualifications:

I am thirty-five years of age, have a wife and three children, ranging from eight to twelve years. I was born and reared in Eastland county. I have a common school education.

My friends in Eastland county and especially those at Rising Star, who have known me so intimately all my life, will vouch for the statement that I am honest, industrious, ambitious, capable and well behaved. I do not drink and have never accepted charity.

At the age of fourteen I suffered the misfortune of losing both of my arms just below the elbow; yet to a large extent I have overcome this handicap. I have had several years' experience as bookkeeper at my father's gin four miles north of Rising Star, Texas. I write a very legible hand, drive an automobile, etc. Notwithstanding, I am not making a sympathy campaign. I know that, with the assistance of my wife and perhaps one hired

The Brightest Easter Smiles in All the Land

If President Roosevelt is worried about the fate of his government spending program, or chagrined by recent setbacks in Congress, he certainly showed no evidence of it on Easter Sunday. Both the Chief Executive and the First Lady flashed big smiles as they were pictured leaving St. Thomas Episcopal Church in Washington after attending Easter services. Mrs. Roosevelt is wearing the ensemble she had chosen for a bright sunny day.

East Texas Rooters Foiled by the CCC

JASPER, Texas.—Hogs which root up a scrawny existence from the East Texas piney woods will be foiled again this spring.

Enrollees at the Nancy camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps, who have planted hundreds of thousands of pine seedlings during the last several years, have begun the hog-proof fencing of 10,000 acres.

Forest Ranger Lorenzo Jared said that, unless the CCC boys precede them out, the razorbacks would uproot months of labor required in planting the seedlings.

Funds Are Sought For a Survey On The Trinity River

FORT WORTH—Supporters of the Trinity river conservation project are seeking a $250,000 congressional appropriation to speed preliminary work.

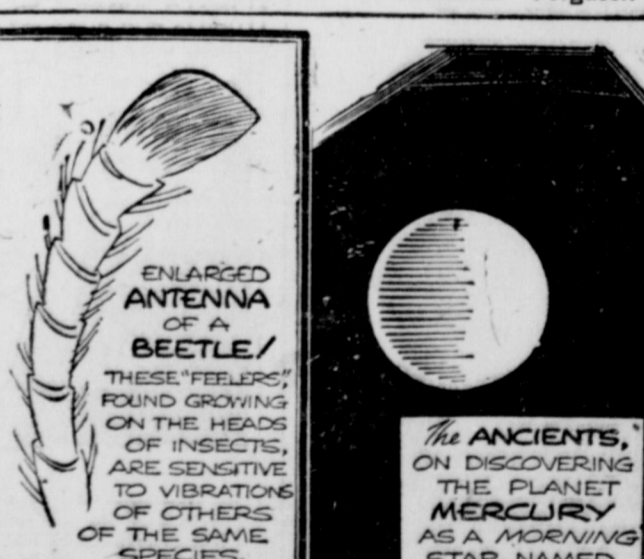

The canalization survey already is completed, and $125,000 each is needed to finish work on the flood control and conservation phases, according to Manager John M. Fouts of the Trinity River Canal Association.

"With the exception of demonstration projects," Fouts said, "there has not been on the Trinity watershed a single state or federal soil and water utilization project. Such projects are being carried out on all other major watersheds of the state."

The department of agriculture and the U. S. army engineering corps are working on the conservation and flood control projects, he said.

The Trinity watershed in 38 Texas counties contains about 17,800 square miles, with 5,000,000 acres in cultivation, Fouts said.

Fund Being Raised To Mark Burial Place of Pioneer

GOODNIGHT, Texas.—A $1,000 fund is being raised by West Texas friends to mark the burial place of Col. Charles A. Goodnight, pioneer Panhandle rancher and noted Texas trail driver.

Col. Goodnight and his wife, for whom this town was named, are buried side by side in a local cemetery. The memorial fund would be spent building a six-foot iron fence around the burial plot and to place between the graves a simple stone marker inscribed with the record of the pioneer couple.

W. H. Patrick, Clarendon banker and friend of the Goodnights, is chairman of a committee raising the fund. Vance Johnson of Amarillo is secretary. Other committeemen are J. T. Christian of Claude, Cleo Hubbard of Goodnight, and Claude Wells of Memphis. Mrs. Harold D. Bugbee of Clarendon is treasurer.

Harold Bugbee, Panhandle artist, will contribute lithographed portraits of Col. Goodnight to the first 25 contributors to the fund. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce will be asked at its Wichita Falls convention to take part in the campaign.

Col. Goodnight brought the first beef cattle to the Panhandle. He was noted in the early days as a trail driver and ranchman.

"Pin the Tail On the Donkey"

When you were young, you played that timeless game. Blind-folded, you weaved your way to the painted donkey on the wall, and tried to pin his tail in approximately the right position. You hit his nose, his ear, his leg—or you missed completely, and your blind stab landed on the empty wall.

Do you still "pin the tail on the donkey" when you go shopping? Do you make your purchases "blindfolded," leaving your choice to chance? That is literally the "unenlightened" method. It wastes your time, your energy, your patience—and your money.

Don't buy haphazardly. Know beforehand what to buy, and where to buy it, and how much to pay for it. Read the newspaper advertisements! Scan the shopping columns; compare prices, compare values—decide upon your bargain. Then go directly to the store which advertises it; make your purchase—and be content!

No more hit-and-miss buying when you follow the advertisements. They lift the blindfold; they make it easier to find the best values.
