

PEANUTS TO BE FEATURE OF DISPLAY

Eastland county's exhibit at the agricultural building of the state fair in Dallas this year will center around peanuts, the county's major cash crop, it was decided Wednesday morning at a meeting in the county courtroom at Eastland. Named by those at the meeting as a member of the committee to direct preparation of the exhibit are Elmo V. Cook, county agent, who presided; Ruth Ramey, county home agent; George I. Lane, county farm security administrator and supervisor; Mrs. Josie K. Nix, Barton Valley, chairman of the Eastland County Home Demonstration council; Wayne Thurman, county agent; and T. G. Caudle, Cisco vocational agriculture teacher. A meeting of the committee to further the work was set for Friday 9 a. m. in the office of Miss Ramey.

The exhibit will show the value of the crop in the county, different products from peanuts, the methods for inoculation of peanuts, the result of fertilizer use on peanuts, the different grades of peanuts and other features of peanut use and growth. Also it was decided to obtain information for negro scientist at Tuskegee institute, in Alabama, who has conducted extensive experiments with peanuts.

REICH ARMY IS INSPECTED BY A. HITLER

By United Press
Hitler personally inspected armies of the Reich today in a tour along the summer war games front. Hitler spent the day with the troops 20 miles west of Berlin. As the German army massed men and material in number and quantity unequalled since the World War the German air force displayed its might for the chief of staff of the French air force who is here on a courtesy visit. At least 2,000,000 men were testing modern war machines, the largest number since the end of the World War. Europe's war jitters were reflected in the stock market and they affected business in general. The United States again sought to exert moral strength for return to law and order. Secretary Hull made America's most vigorous movement by warning that a general conflict could only be avoided by reversing the trend toward world anarchy.

Many and Varied Are Letters In Solon Mail Box

Many and varied are the requests received by a secretary to a congressman, that is the fact known to J. W. Cockrill and Sam Conner, who handle secretarial work for Representative Clyde L. Garrett of Eastland. Only recently did Judge Garrett receive a request for 9,160 copies of 800 Department of Agriculture bulletins. A congressman is only allowed 11,000 separate bulletins for free distribution each year. After explaining the situation to the vocational agriculture agent who wrote the request the order was modified and 10 copies each of 30 bulletins were sent. And then this week was received a request for an agriculture department book which costs everyone $5 each. Anyone who receives the books asked for must pay that price. About 25 per cent of letters received ask for jobs, 10 per cent is on veteran correspondence, 25 per cent of the mail on postal matters and the rest miscellaneous type. All letters receive special attention.

Volunteer Fire Unit Observes 97th Year

GRETNA, La.—A 73-year-old fire engine, said to be the oldest in the South, was pulled through the streets of Gretna again as part of the celebration of the 97th anniversary of the David Crockett Fire Company No. 1, one of the last remaining volunteer fire companies in the United States. The old engine was "Iona Iver," recently relegated to a post of honor in the volunteer fire company house when new equipment was purchased, but always repaired and used for ceremonial occasions. The old engine was bought in 1865 and some of the grandchildren of the men who originally pulled it to fires were the men who pulled it through the streets of Gretna, including newly paved and expansive Huey E. TOLL OF SIX RESULTS IN 'PEN' BREAK

By United Press
HUNTSVILLE, Aug. 17.—Six prisoners who escaped from Eastham prison farm were dead today and Guard John Greer was in a serious condition from stab wounds. Frank Johnson, 23, Texarkana, and Leonard Smith of Tyler were recovered from the Trinity River. The cause of their deaths was not known. Raymond Wilkerson, 24, of Fort Worth and John Frazier, 21, of Dallas were shot to death eight miles from Crockett. Prison officials corrected their announcement that Charles Aaron, 24, of Houston was a member of the escaped party and was killed when Jack Kinsley, 25, of Oklahoma City, was shot to death by possemen. The man shot with Kinsley was Elmer Aaron, 25, sentenced to 10 years for burglary and robbery from Gray and Haskell counties, the prison announced. Authorities said that Charles Aaron was at Eastham farm. Captain John Hamilton, Eastham farm manager, reported at state prison headquarters that only Roy King, 26, of Stamford, sentenced to 20 years from Haskell and Jones counties for robbery, remained at large.

Scotland Cenotaph Gets Unofficial Bath

By United Press
EDINBURGH, Scotland.—A novel protest has just been made by two men in Edinburgh who have given the city's stone of Remembrance, the Cenotaph erected at the City Chambers, an unofficial, but much-needed wash. The men, who had no authority to do the work, proceeded unquestioned despite the fact that numerous city officials passed while they were doing it. Later it was learned that the men were members of the Pension League, which considered that the Cenotaph is too often in a grimy state and that visitors from the Dominions in particular must be surprised at Edinburgh's neglect.

Arrival Is Safe For Famous Flier

By United Press
MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh landed here tonight, completing a flight from England to attend the Soviet air show tomorrow.

Again the Little Theatre group comes to the entertainment rescue with its outstanding presentation of the season at the Connelley theatre Thursday night at 8:15. The stage show entitled "The Valiant" is a 45-minute program of intense interest and those who are in the cast are fully prepared to give the best performance of their career.

E. E. Freyschlag has directed the play in a manner of a veteran and under his direction the principals, Earl Francis, K. B. Tanner, Sue Hood, R. S. Searies and James Hill will lead you into the realm and atmosphere of the life existence of the characters they portray.

Volunteer Fire Unit Observes 97th Year

Every person in this community should make their plans to attend this unusual event and in connection with the play, Cecil Barham, local manager of the Connelley, will present on the program one of the outstanding pictures of the year, "Judge Hardy's Children." Characters in this presentation include Mickey Rooney, who is making a strong bid for the academy award; Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker and others, and you can see the whole par-excellent entertainment for the insignificant sum of two bits for the lower floor and fifteen cents for the balcony. In the aggregate, the Little Theatre presentations are purely of local talent and put on for entertainment and not profit. By all means go and see the show Thursday night regardless of what else may be on for the evening. Encourage the good work of those who are unselfishly interested in the community by being there.

International Boundary—North American Style

A big commercial transport plane was flying from Cleveland to Detroit the other day. Taking the shortest route, it swung northwest across Lake Erie, flew over a sizable corner of Ontario, and then crossed the Detroit river and glided down to a landing at the Detroit airport.

One of the passengers was a young man who recently spent upwards of a year in Germany with the branch office of an American firm. When he got out of the plane he remarked:

"That was the most thrilling thing that has happened since I got back to America."

"What, this flight?" asked an acquaintance. The flight had been extremely unexciting—a short, uneventful hop made in perfect weather.

"No," said the young man. "The way we flew over the international boundary without anybody noticing it. We crossed from the United States, flew over Canada, and then flew back—and nobody said a word. That's the sort of thing that couldn't happen in Europe. Planes don't cross international boundaries there, not without a lot of negotiation and formality. They go far out of their way to avoid flying over a little strip of foreign territory. If they didn't, the pursuit planes would go after them."

Which is just another way of saying that we who live in North America never realize how lucky we are—until we see what we would be up against if the European system prevailed over here.

But perhaps it isn't entirely luck, after all. When you stop to think about it, there is nothing to prevent the United States and Canada from distrusting each other and glaring sullenly across the border in the European manner—nothing except the fact that each nation uses good sense and neighborly forbearance.

The United States, for instance, could easily claim that it "needs" the raw materials which Canada has—the metals, the wood pulp, the other things that keep the Great Lakes steamships busy all summer long. It could argue that unless it "controlled" the supply of these things its whole economy would be endangered. And it could go ahead and lay plans for the conquest of the Dominion.

Canada, on the other hand, could point out that its liberty was endangered by the colossus to the south. It could complain about the disruptive influence of American visitors—those C. I. O. organizers who have disturbed Ontario's premier, for example—and it could close the border with patrols, forts and so on.

The situation that would result would be every bit as logical as the situation which is commonplace on almost every European border.

That peaceful boundary between the United States and Canada is, as the young traveler remarked, an immensely thrilling thing. But it doesn't exist by accident.

It is what it is because the people of the two countries have chosen to act sensibly.

EATING - A FEW PIECES OF ICE IN A BOWL OF HOT SOUP WILL HELP TO COOL IT. WHILE YOU ARE WAITING FOR IT TO COOL YOU CAN DECIDE WHETHER YOU WANT TO EAT OR JUST FORGET THE WHOLE THING.

SLEEPING - TRY COUNTING POLAR BEARS INSTEAD OF SHEEP. IT WILL MAKE YOU FEEL COOLER AND WILL GIVE THE SHEEP A REST TOO.

WORKING - IF IT'S HOT AT THE OFFICE, TAKE ALONG SOME ICE CUBES AND BUILD A SMALL IGLOO ON TOP OF YOUR DESK. AFTER A WHILE THE BOSS WILL COME ALONG AND FIRE YOU, AND YOU WON'T BE WORKING IN A HOT OFFICE ANY MORE.

WHAT TO WEAR - DISCARD YOUR CLOTHES AND WALK DOWN THE STREET WEARING NOTHING. YOU WILL FIND THE RIDE IN THE PATROL WAGON VERY REFRESHING AND A FEW DAYS IN A NICE, COOL CELL WILL KEEP YOU OUT OF THE SUN.

WHEN ALL ELSE FAILS - RUN AROUND SLAPPING PEOPLE ON THE BACK AND ASKING 'IS IT HOT ENOUGH FOR YOU?' AFTER YOU HAVE BEEN HIT ON THE HEAD A FEW TIMES YOU WILL NOT BE CONSCIOUS OF THE HEAT.

AT HOME - BEFORE LOCKING YOURSELF IN THE REFRIGERATOR, IT IS A GOOD IDEA TO BORE HOLES IN TWO SIDES OF IT. THIS WILL GIVE YOU CROSS-VENTILATION.

Bank Holdups Have Declined Since Dillinger

By United Press

INDIANAPOLIS.— Bank holdups have been reduced drastically in Indiana as well as over the entire Middle West since John Dillinger and Al Brady—who went down in records for their murderous crimes as the Hoosier state's most notorious outlaws—were slain in gun battles with Federal agents.

For the first six months of 1933 Indiana boasts a clear slate for bank holdups. This, however, was the first time since the early 1920s that the state has not had at least one bank holdup during a six-month period.

According to state police records, there was only one bank burglary and three unsuccessful burglary attempts on state financial institutions during the first half of the current year.

Thieves obtained only approximately $306 in a night burglary of the Burnettsville, Ind., state bank, in Cass county, on Feb. 11. On Feb. 10 and April 22 unsuccessful attempts were made on the Carbon, Ind., state bank and on April 24 an attempt was made on the Lapel, Ind., State Bank.

The peak for Indiana bank robberies occurred in 1932 during the forays of John Dillinger and his henchmen, who extended their robberies throughout the Middle

WASHINGTON LETTER

By Rodney Dutcher

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—Echoes of the celebrated Madison oil trial, what with various oil companies and executives just fined after anti-trust conviction months ago, others being granted a new trial and still others facing a grand jury on separate charges, recall to defense and government lawyers the headaches of that first trial.

In May, fourteen defendant companies and eleven oil executives of another group awaiting trial pleaded nolo, electing to pay $400,000 in fines and costs. Profiting from the first trial's lessons, they didn't want to spend a few months in Madison at great expense. They didn't like Wisconsin juries and an adverse decision was likely. Cost of lawyers alone would have been more than fines. Other defendants elected to fight.

At least 80 lawyers served the defense in the first trial. The jurors, kept four months from their families except at Christmas, were more irate than the defendants, thanks to constant bickering as to whether they should go to the movies or play pinocle.

The oil men had a press-agent who handed them a manual on how to act. They were asked to go to church and avoid drinking in public. The manual was suppressed. Dr. Glenn Frank invited the defendants to a cocktail party. The party was suppressed too. Numerous veterans of the first trial still threaten to write a hilarious book.

THE New Deal has an Edmund Burke. You may hear more of him. He is no descendant of the great British orator, but he has been sent to New York by SEC to handle the new Chandler act covering corporate reorganizations.

ONLY White House visitor to cause a flurry since the President left was Miss Peggy Walsh, the "Lulusio Queen," from Indiana. She is 18, and her name isn't Peggy Walsh, but the big tomato canner who had her in charge wouldn't let her tell her real name. The Queen had a bushel of tomatoes for Mr. Roosevelt, but these were turned over to Bill Hassett, assistant to Secretary Steve Early and highest ranking White House occupant at the time.

Interviewers learned from Peggy it's pronounced "tomayto" and the reason it's a fruit instead of a vegetable is because "It's a love apple." Peggy is a handsome girl.

EVEN most congressmen don't know why the senators have a double-track monorail car service to take them underground from their offices to the Senate chamber, whereas members of the House have to walk.

A guard says there used to be a tramway on the House side, too. But the boyish enthusiasm of representatives who crowded it beyond its gunwales resulted in so many cars breaking down service had to be abandoned.

THE Treasury Department has a colored messenger named Wonderful Anthony and he is a man of parts. Wonderful is a master penman and an able cartoonist.

DESPITE the administration's eagerness to have everyone believe business is booming and employment expanding, Federal Trade Commission has just made B. Son John and Bride Rival FDR as Anglers Still honeymooning, the John Roosevelts—he is the youngest son of the President, she the former Anne Lindsay Clark—went a-fishing 20 miles off Bermuda and returned with an impressive haul proudly displayed in the photo above. John caught five barracuda and a bonito and landed a shark. Anne hooked a 22-pound barracuda. "We hope Dad hears about this," commented young Roosevelt, since F. D. R. is something of a fisherman himself.

The Dillinger mobsters also operated throughout most of 1934 and aided in boosting that year's loss from bank robberies to $61,000. There were ten raids on state banks and two messenger robberies during the year.

Despite the daring robberies of the Brady gang in 1935, losses from bank holdups in the state were comparably small—totaling only $10,000. Although Brady at the time of his escape from the Hancock county jail at Greenfield, Ind., boasted he would state police, department of justice system was established.

"make Dillinger look like a piket," he fell considerably below the amount of money Dillinger seized through his career of crime.

In the following year state bank robberies dropped to only $8,000 and in 1937 fell to $6,000, state police records show. Partly attributed to this drastic reduction was a drive which gave Indiana a modern, fully-equipped radio police system.

Closer co-operation between state police, department of justice system was established.

city police departments, county sheriffs and deputies, established following the Dillinger and Brady gang raids, also regarded a major factor in reducing the state's bank holdups.

HAYWIRE HOUSE

Yesterday's shooting their way into the Restatorium, Bull Griffin and Tony Spaldini announce they are going to stay for the night.

CHAPTER IX

A COMPLETE silence greeted Mr. Griffin's announcement. Kinks finally broke it.

"Well, gee," he began, "I don't know whether . . ."

Sally stopped him. Sally was a girl who missed none of the tricks.

And since she'd been chivied into the hotel business, she was going to be in it. And how.

She glanced upward toward the Harknesses. Evidently Mrs. Harkness, somewhat stunned, had decided to obey Mr. Griffin's peremptory order to "beat it."

"Very well," Sally said, in a business-like voice. "You can stay here. Our rates are $6 a day per person."

"Six . . . huh?"

Sally saw that an explanation was in order.

"This," said Sally, "is the Pennington-Parker Restatorium. A place—she threw Kinks a severe glance—"for rest and relaxation."

"Well," Mr. Griffin decided, "it's o.k. I'll go for some rest. In a big way."

"Our rates," said Sally, who hadn't taken her eye off the ball, "are $6 a day per person."

But if she thought that this was going to throw Bull Griffin for a loss, she had mistaken her man.

Mr. Griffin expertly shifted his gun from his right hand to his left, dug into his pocket and produced a roll of money that would have choked a hippopotamus. He peeled off a $100 bill.

"Here you are," he said. "Dat's fer da two of us for a week. Keep da change an' buy yourself a aeroplane."

Sally took the money dazedly. "You—you mean you're actually going to pay us?" she gasped.

"Without a—fuss?"

MR. GRIFFIN was insulted.

"Sure," he said. "Wotcha tink I am, a deadbeat?"

"But you've got guns and . . ."

"Aw, we ain't tough, lady," interrupted Mr. Griffin affably. "Only wit' mugs like da Little Cheese."

"But I don't see why you should want to stay in a place like this."

"Well now look, lady," said Bull, in the voice of one who addresses the primary grades. "It's like dis: Me an' da Little Cheese usta be pals. Dat wuz before I'm wised up to wot a dirty, lyin', double-crossin', little weasel he is. But two weeks ago I'm wised."

takes a trip to Queens. Da Cheese ain't suspectin' nuttin' an' dey ain't nuttin' to it. We pulls our rods an'—bam! Da Little Cheese goes for a ride all smothered in chrysanthemums." Mr. Griffin leered in gloating anticipation. "I'll send 'em to him meself, damn if I won't."

Sally nodded. "I think that's a very brilliant plan, Mr. Griffin. Stay here just as long as you want. Come along now, I'll show you your room."

On the following afternoon there was a little trouble with Mrs. Harkness. Mrs. Harkness was not partial to Mr. Griffin and Mr. Spaldini.

"We're leaving tonight," she told Sally. "I don't know what kind of a place this is. These men are rough, loud and coarse."

"I refuse to leave this house," he said.

Mrs. Harkness whirled on him. Were her ears betraying her? "Alvin Harkness, what do you mean?"

"Just," said Mr. Harkness, splicing wire expertly, "that I'm not going anywhere else. I like Mr. Griffin. He's interested in my idea for a revolver that shoots by electricity. My mind is made up, Elsie. We stay. That is final."

And the worm, having turned, prevailed for perhaps the first time in his life.

Two quiet days followed. Mr. Griffin's car had been incarcerated in the barn. Messrs. Griffin and Spaldini were spending the time at pinocle. Mr. Harkness, drunk with victory, was electrifying the mounted animal heads with a kind of reckless abandon. The Lord was in his heaven and all was oke in the world.

On the afternoon of the third day Kinks sat in the kitchen watching Sally make biscuits.

"All is well on the Rappahannock," he said. "Peace and serenity walk the lane. Which seems a propitious moment, Miss Pennington, to ask you when you intend to marry me?"

Before Sally could frame a scathing reply Mrs. Clippstack clattered into the kitchen.

"See here," panted Mrs. Clippstack. "I don't know what things are a-comin' to. There's a lunatic in the front yard takin' rabbits out of a hat."

Hold Weekly Meeting
The Pythian Sister Lodge met at the usual time Monday night in Castle Hall with a good attendance.

During the business period, a report was made of the accident suffered by Mrs. Blanche Nicols, a member of the Order.

Plans were made for the Pythians of Breckenridge and Eastland to visit in the Mingo Temple, Monday night, August 29. All members of these Orders are urged to attend and arrangements will be made to secure cars for all wishing to go.

The Order had as guests Monday night, Mmes. Mae Fruit, Mary Pellazari, Pelfrey and J. R. Day of Breckenridge. Members of neighboring Temples are welcome at all times in the Eastland lodge.

The next stated meeting will be held August 22 and all members are urged to be present.

Attending: Mmes. Bertha Ross, Hollyce Ferris, Winnie Dorsey, Bee Lovelace, Katrina Lovelace, Alene Hunt, Margerite White, Katherine White, Ethel Shepperd, Mary F. Street, Corine Ogden, Lula Mae Maddox, Mary Frances Reed, Ola Mae Blackwell and J. B. Strickland.

Discusses "Vitamins"

At the regular meeting of the "Mothers Club," which meets once a month at the W. P. A. Nursery, a program discussion of the essential vitamins found in foods was conducted.

The Supervisor distributed copies of the program and a round table discussion followed. Individual children and their particular physical handicaps were discussed, and it was found that some were victims of too many vitamins of one kind, and not enough of another kind. A lack of appetite means a lack of Vitamin B; nervousness, indigestion and other common ailments of children may be overcome by a balanced diet with the necessary vitamins. These and other vital interests pertaining to the food problem and children's diet were discussed.

The next program will be on "Left-overs" and how to utilize them. Each member will bring an original recipe with a left-over as the basic ingredient.

At the close of the session light refreshments of punch and wafers were served by the Nursery dietitian to those present.

Following is a copy of the paper prepared by the supervisor:

Vitamin A — Keeps Tissues Healthy (tooth structure-resistance) Found in milk, butter, cream, egg-yolk, thin green leaves.

Vitamin B—Promotes appetite (for nerves, digestion, paralysis) Found in fruits, vegetables, whole grain cereals.

Vitamin C—Prevents Scurvy—Found in oranges, grape-fruit, lemons, tomatoes, raw cabbage, raw turnips.

Vitamin D—For good bones and teeth (preventive for rickets)

Carroll Starts Sentence for Murder

One step more after the dramatic picture above was snapped, and prison bars closed around ex-Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll for the rest of his natural life. Convicted at South Paris, Me., of the murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield, he is shown entering jail after receiving a life sentence. Carroll will be in the same cell block with Paul Dwyer, his chief accuser, who had previously confessed to the crime.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — A prophet usually lands in the doghouse in his own country. That was exactly the fate of Dr. Stanley High, who was publicly booted from the White House inner circle when he wrote a magazine article predicting a liberal-conservative battle for control of the Democratic party.

But High knew what he was writing about, and events he predicted have come to pass. His piece "Whose Party Is It?" appeared February 6, 1937. He had prepared it weeks before without knowing President Roosevelt would pop his Supreme Court plan on the eve of publication, and would depend on conservative politicians to put it over.

Roosevelt had no foreknowledge of High's article. Although he wreaked his wrath on High, he finally has said the same things High said—and publicly.

The issue, High wrote, was whether the Democratic party was to become the liberal party in 1940. Old-line Democrats were ready to ease out the "economic salvationists" and their salvation plans and "restore the inoffensive Democracy with which they were familiar in the traditional era before Roosevelt."

They were sure, he continued, they could have a party by 1940 in which Carter Glass, John Garner, Al Smith, Jim Reed, and John W. Davis could again feel at home. Sensational at the time, but stale news 18 months later, was High's prediction:

"It seems probable that the engineer of this movement of restoration will be the Vice President, Mr. Garner. Hopes of the old-order Democrats are pinned on him."

SENATOR JOSEPH C. O'MAHONEY of Wyoming, chairman of the Temporary National Economic Committee (monopoly investigation committee to you), selected as his assistant Prof. Arthur R. Himbert of the University of Wyoming, a specialist on corporation law, business units, public utilities and public administration.

A tall, slim, weather-beaten westerner with black moustache and quizzical expression, Himbert for three years has worked with O'Mahoney on the latter's widely discussed plan for a federal incorporation law. Himbert collects unusual air mail stamp covers, and, in autographing one of these, O'Mahoney recently wrote the words:

"There can be no political liberty without economic freedom."

SOME industrialists and financiers hire Washington lobbyists, press agents or other specialists to coach them on appearances before Senate investigating committees. Vice-President Charles M. White of Republic Steel didn't.

Citizens and police of Canton, O., had been testifying before the LaFollette committee that squads of Republic armed guards had tear-gassed school children, un-armed strikers, and spectators, and had beaten women and men with iron bars, shooting several. Then Bus Driver Darrell Smith told how he had been attacked and had managed to get away.

"I will ask Mr. White to restrain his levity," said Chairman LaFollette. "I don't think anyone else is impressed with it."

Then the committee heard that Republic Steel had been so impressed with Smith's evidence as to pay him $500 damages, and that Herbert Blazer, non-employee, had got 400 buckshot in his back, with photographic evidence.

By that time White had received so much attention he was trying to sit in the back of the room. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

It's the little humble things that make a house a HOME

THOSE careless marks of his baby fingers... could any one buy them from you now? The knee-high smudges on the door! The pencil scratches on the wall that showed his growth from two to a little man of six! The nicked nursery bed where you two watched for hours one night until a sprawled, feverish form slipped into healing slumber!

Yes, a home is seasoned with smiles and tears, mellowed by memories and flavored with hopes. Each room has well-loved articles that have grown dearer with the years. And there are new things that you are working and planning for. It may be an occasional table for the living-room. New drapes for the breakfast nook. A summer rug. Porch and lawn furniture.

The advertisements in this newspaper bring you news of furnishings to freshen your home. Study them and save shopping steps and budget dollars. They will help you add to the gracious charm of your home... that little world which is your very own!
