ROOSEVELT IS FAVORING SPY HUNTING FUND

WASHINGTON, June 24. — President Roosevelt said today the navy and navy should have additional funds to combat espionage in this country. The chief executive, commenting on the New York spy arrests, said that intelligence branches of both services have had insufficient money to cope with a most serious situation. The statement was made as chairman Key Pittman of the senate foreign relations committee said he was watching the situation closely with a view to introducing new anti-spy legislation at the next session of congress. The president condemned the action of a former government agent, who after unearthing spy information, which led to a series of indictments, resigned his position to write stories for the newspapers. Leon Furrou, federal bureau of investigation agent, who handled the New York investigation has resigned to write stories for newspapers.

BERLIN, June 24.—U. S. Ambassador Hugh Wilson has taken up with the German foreign office the question of espionage in America, it was understood today. While newspapers deny that German officers are involved in espionage in the United States, officials were concerned lest the great publicity given the matter repair U. S.-German relations.

Yarborough Says Section Profited Through His Work

The citizenship of West Texas benefited many millions of dollars through accomplishments of District Judge Ralph Yarborough of Austin while serving as assistant attorney general, he declared in Eastland Friday in his race for attorney general. "My successful fight against strapping, whereby the pipelines were paying for only 98 per cent instead of 100 per cent of the oil added many thousands of dollars a year to the revenues of the public schools and to the University of Texas, but it also increased the income of land-owners and independent oil men throughout the state, including West Texas, of course," Yarborough said. "Because the price paid for West Texas oil several years ago was below what it should have been in comparison to oil produced elsewhere, when my fight to raise the price into line succeeded, it meant many thousands of dollars to the public lands out in West Texas but it also had the incidental effect of helping West Texas landowners and independent oil men."

"When New Mexico was blocking the construction of Red Bluff dam, Yarborough was ready to file suit in the United States Supreme Court, but New Mexico withdrew its objection to the great project," he said.

West Texas school children, teachers, trustees and taxpayers benefited along with those of the rest of the state, Yarborough declared, when he recovered $1,073,500 for the public schools in one case and millions of dollars in mineral rights for the schools in other suits which he handled while assistant attorney general.

Emphasizing that his work had benefited all parts of the state, Yarborough said he had recounted phases of particular interest to this region because the occasion signaled the formal opening of his West Texas campaign. He spoke of having worked as a tank-builder in the Borger oil field while earning money to complete his education and of three years and a half spent in the practice of law in El Paso before moving to Austin to accept an assistant attorney general's position.

Woman Tells Police Where to Find Body

FORT WORTH, June 24. — Sheriff's deputies today sought to trace a telephone call from a woman telling where the body of Alvin Skinner, 16, of Riverside, Calif., killed by a hit-run motorist, could be found. The woman called police a few minutes after the youth was hit and killed on a highway, seven miles northwest of here, early today.

Hobo Candidate Visits Capital

Accompanied by a cinder-crusted three-day growth of beard, Ernest G. Albright was 14 days on the trip from Oklahoma City, blamed a fall from his train at Columbus, O., for the delay. He is a Democrat.

M., June 24. — A small blackened area today marked the place where eight men were killed and three injured critically late yesterday when 160 quarts of nitroglycerin were accidentally exploded as the men were preparing to bring in an oil well 10 miles south of here. V. B. Beck, a "shooter," had poured 50 quarts into the shaft and was preparing a time bomb which would explode the charge. Gathered were drillers, explosives men and those financially interested in the well. Among those killed was George Kaseman, 70, Albuquerque bank president, Fred Luthy, vice president of the bank, and Herman Crile, of Roswell, state land commissioner were injured. As Beck and his assistant worked with the bomb it exploded. They were near a truck loaded with the explosive, and the concussion exploded that also. Mangled bodies of men were blown through the air.

BRITAIN STILL IS HOPEFUL OF PEACE PLANS

Great Britain's government today clung doggedly to hope that gradually improving world peace prospects would permit mediation of wars in China and Spain. Prime Minister Chamberlain is convinced there has been a slackening of war danger under his program. Development today had strengthened his policy. They included:

- Germany and Italy formally agreed to recognize Swiss neutrality, putting that country in the same category with Belgium. This was important from a military viewpoint.
- Great Britain's hopes of mediating the Chinese war were disclosed in the house of commons by Foreign Secretary Halifax. Past mediation has been blocked by Japanese military campaigns, which are now putting Japan on virtually 100 per cent war basis, but opinion that a deadlock is likely continued, particularly in view of military developments in China. Floods on the Yellow River came to the aid of Chinese defenders of Hankow. Chinese guerrillas in Chensi province again were busy and Chinese forces along the Yellow River claimed gains.
- British efforts to get together with Mussolini to force a truce in the Spanish War by withdrawing support from both sides, met with new difficulties, but Chamberlain was convinced such a method would succeed.

Howard Hughes to Take Off Soon On Round-World Trip

Total number of man hours involved is 49,140. Taylor commended the area W. P. A. office at Eastland, pointing out the rapid approval of the project demonstrated the good organization.

Poison Mash Ready To Be Distributed

County Agent Elmo V. Cook announced Friday that poisoned bran mash for grasshopper killing by Eastland residents will again be available Monday. The offer is being made, he said, because of demands after a similar offer recently. To obtain the poison Eastland residents must phone 164, the agent's number, by noon Monday. The poison will be obtained from 3 to 5 p. m. Monday at the agent's office. Those who get the poison were urged to bring a sack, bucket or some container which would hold one-half bushel or more. The poison will only be issued to adults. Cook said the hopper material should be scattered thinly on the ground where the infestation is. It should not be put on shrubbery as sufficient quantities as it would injure plants. No damage will result to lawn if the poison is scattered thinly. During the last offer 30 Eastland residents obtained 800 pounds of the poison.

A week-long upsurge of stock market values has followed adjournment of congress and the first spurge of PWA loans and grants. PWA plans to have $2,000,000,000 of projects under construction by next June. Mr. Roosevelt will talk tonight at 8:30 CST. Meanwhile PWA drove forward its program against recession, allocating funds for 286 projects with an estimated total cost of $73,089,271. The allocation brought the total approved projects in the current campaign to 1,432. Projects approved and grants included, Johnson County, Texas, bridges $4,500, Sweetwater, Texas, streets $81,000.

McCraw recently ruled that the state could use $5,000,000 accumulated from a cent-a-gallon gasoline tax to pay off county and district road bonds.

Florida Crime Points to False American Way

It is hardly straining a point to detect in the sad business of that Florida kidnaping a direct reflection of the shabby, wishful thinking that we Americans are often guilty of.

The most astounding thing about that whole case was the calm, matter-of-fact statement made by the kidnaper after his arrest.

He committed the crime, he told Mr. Hoover's G-men, because "he had been wanting the finer things of life for his wife and himself and had been unable to get steady employment."

So, questing for the finer things, he went ahead and committed one of the most shocking crimes possible to modern man, killed an innocent child, and landed himself in a spot where the shadow of the gallows is very clearly visible.

If this were not so monstrous it would be funny; and yet the grotesque reasoning this stupid Florida man followed can be seen as a direct outgrowth of the sort of reasoning that is common to most of us.

We all want these "finer things of life," and we have a rather childish way of confusing them with the things that money can buy. Of course, a man who can't feed his family or keep a roof over his head is quite justified in making some sort of economic independence the first item on his list of aspirations; but when that point is passed, a civilized man must realize that the things which really make life worth living and are really worth struggling for have precious little relation to a bank balance.

Yet that is the point we so often miss. We build our success stories around the men who have made their pile, and we aren't always very particular about the methods they used in making it.

So we blunder our way through this world under a profound misconception of what life really is all about. We set the pace of our entire social order by this unthinking desire to get rich. As by-products, inevitably, our society throws up morbid excrescences like this dim-brained kidnaper, who fancied that he could acquire the "finer things of life" by committing a terrible crime.

Once you assume that life's real prizes are things that can be bought with money, you open the way for weird doings in the way of money-getting. And all of us who have exalted the dollar must share a little of the blame for the dreadful crime down in Florida.

Five thousand insects have been caught and given to the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, but few summer campers will notice the difference.

An owl in Salt Lake City tangled with a power system and emerged quite whole, thereby doing considerable better than a few TVA officials.

Girl, 19, Knows And Sells Coal

By United Press

CLEVELAND.—Pretty 19-year-old Rose Chickiris is a cool salesman—and a scientific one, too.

She is undaunted by the fact that coal-selling is predominantly a man's vocation. In fact, she is proving that her selling tactics equal those of her masculine contemporaries.

She can analyze chemically the contents of a lump of coal. This enables her to inform prospective buyers as to the ash content of the lump; its moisture, carbon and volatile matter contents and whether it is suitable for a particular heating unit.

Here is how Rose happened to start selling coal:

She was graduated from high school with two college championships. One was for science, the other for scholastic honors. She could not avail herself of either. Her family was not able to give her the necessary financial assistance.

After high school she obtained a job at a coal company branch office. But that was not all she did in furthering her ambition.

She enrolled in the Case School of Applied Science's night school to study bituminous combustion engineering.

Her spare-time education goes even further as she is learning the administrative end of the coal business. This includes bookkeeping, selecting and buying.

She hopes some day to manage or own a coal business.

Miss Chickiris prefers to talk to the housewife instead of the head of the house.

"It's the housewife who knows most about smoked-up walls and curtains and is therefore more interested in a better grade of coal," she said.

Hypnotic Relief for Childbirth Pain

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
NEA Service Staff Writer

MEN do eat salads. But many of them refuse "to chew my way through a mouthful of nothing." They like to strike pay dirt. Here's a salad with Swiss cheese, roast beef and eggs as pay dirt, with plenty of "nothing" to supply the minerals and vitamins needed for health. It comes from the chef of the Hotel New Yorker, in New York, and he says every wife should see the men plow through it.

Hunter Salad
(Serves 4 hungry men)

One head romaine, 1 head lettuce, 1 head chicory, 1 head escarole, 3 small tomatoes, 1 ounce chives, 1 clove garlic (chopped fine), 2 hard boiled eggs (chopped fine), little parsley (chopped), salt and pepper, 1-2 cups French dressing, 3 slices ham, 3 slices Swiss cheese, 1 medium slice roast beef.

Cut the lettuce, romaine, chicory and escarole into 1-inch squares. Wash well. Slice tomatoes thin. Chop ham, Swiss cheese and roast beef fine. Rub the wall of the bowl with garlic. Put all ingredients into bowl and mix well with the French dressing. Season accordingly.

Here's another "pay dirt" salad.

Baked Bean Salad
(Serves 8)

One can baked beans with tomato (weighing 1 pound 9 ounces with pork discarded), 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, 1-3 teaspoon paprika, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 3-4 cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon clear gelatin, 1-4 cup vegetable stock, 1 jar frankfurters (6 ounces). Use 8-inch ring mold rubbed with olive oil. Mix the seasonings, lemon juice, and mayonnaise together. Sprinkle gelatin into vegetable stock and stir over boiling water until dissolved.

Set aside until cooled but not thickened. Add to mayonnaise mixture in a thin stream, stirring constantly. Mix lightly with the beans.

Add 6 frankfurters, thinly sliced. Turn into mold and chill for about 4 hours. Garnish with lettuce and the remaining frankfurters. Serve with mayonnaise sliced tomatoes, cucumbers and watercress.

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

BY EDWIN RUTT Copyright 1938, NEA Service Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOSEPH SANDHAM—hero; he thought he was on top of the world until he was snatched into Kelly's net. Kelly—heroine; she thought she was headed for the altar until she was snatched into Joe's net. The WEASEL—antagonist; he thought he was headed somewhere, too, but affairs somehow got mixed up.

Yesterday, Joe wakes up after his wreck, finds himself facing a red-headed girl who tells him she is on her way to Boston to be married.

CHAPTER II

DESPITE the riveting operations that were going on in his head, Mr. Joseph Sandham bounced to a sitting position. For some minutes now a great truth had been slowly dawning upon him. With Kelly's words it crystallized in his brain. This red-headed girl with the trick eyes was a cold knockout. He was a chump not to have perceived it right at the start. She had everything it takes and enough left over for a rainy day. And he, Joseph Sandham, was nuts about her. Completely nuts. Knocked for a loop in the first few minutes of play. Yes, realized Mr. Sandham, he was all wrapped up, tied with red ribbon and labeled "Property of Miss Kelly Archer." And unless he could steer her into a church ere many moons were passed, life was going to be a total flop. And here she sat calmly informing him that she intended to marry some wren named Gilbert.

"Hey!" he shouted. "Say that again."

Kelly said it. Joe shook his head.

"Wrong," he said. "All wrong."

"What do you mean, wrong?"

"Wrong, that's all. You can't marry this Gilbert for the simple reason that you're going to marry me. I won't have my wife going around committing bigamy."

Kelly looked at him as if he were an escaped lunatic.

"Marry you?" she repeated incredulously.

"You've got it," said Joe.

"I perceive," said Kelly, "that you're an imbecile."

"Imbecile? Ha! Hard names won't get you anywhere. What you've got to do, young lady, is disengage yourself from this tramp Gilbert."

"He's no tramp. He's a darling."

"That's what you think now. But wait'll you bask in my society a while. Gilbert will appear laughable to you."

"I don't intend to bask in your society. For any longer than it takes you to drive me to Boston."

Joe jumped, "Boston?"

"Quite so. If it hadn't been for you and that crackpot car of yours I'd have been in Boston by now. And married to Gilbert."

"Married to Gilbert?" roared Joe. "Do you mean to say you were on your way to marry the tomato? Lord, this is terrible."

KELLY waved her hand. "Listen," she said. "See if you can get this straight. Last evening I had a horrible fight with my family. They said things to me and about—well, about Gilbert that I can never forgive or forget. So I simply up and walked out. I wired Gilbert that I was ready to elope with him now. He's—he's been deviling me to for a year. And I got into my car and started for Cambridge just as fast as I could go. And everything would have gone according to Hoyle if you hadn't been snoogling on the wrong side of the road. Well, you make me break my car. And if you've got even a symptom of decency, you'll drive me to Boston just as soon as you feel better. Because—I haven't enough money to take the train. And there's no other car except yours. And Gilbert expected me this morning."

"I don't blame you folks for saying things," said Joe. "What does this idle Gilbert do?"

"That's all you know about it. Gilbert is studying to be an archeologist.

Joe snapped his fingers. "I'd have bet money on it. Just an inquisitive guy going around excavating things that don't belong to him."

"What utter bilis. I suppose your profession, whatever it is, is on a far higher and nobler plane than archeology."

"Yes, a darn tootin'," barked Joe. "It's a nice clean business with a future in it. No rats, no rot, no rust. We do things and go places, us guys."

"Well, what is your business? If I may be no presumptuous as to inquire?"

"I'm a candy salesman," said Joe.

Kelly wrinkled the charming end of a charmingly tip-tilted nose. "Candy salesman? Good grief. It sounds too horrible."

"What is horrible about candy? Think of the joy it brings to little children and old ladies and church socials and . . ."

"Oh, for Heaven's sake, you think of it. I'm only interested in knowing whether or not you are going to be gentlemanly enough to drive me to Boston?"

Joe trumped the pillow.

"By gosh," he roared, "I will drive you. And I'll pound sense into that red head of yours every mile of the way. I ought to be over in Meriden or somewhere selling a guy a piece o' Chandler & Sandham's Triple-Flavored Black Walnut Crunchies, but that can wait. Everything can wait till I avert this disaster to flowering womanhood. Where are my clothes?"

"Neatly folded on the chair by your bed, Excellency."

"Who folded them?"

"I did, Mr. Spanish Inquisition Sandham. Who did you think?"

Joe heaved himself up, keeping under the protection of the bed-covers.

"Attababy," he said. "You'll make a wonderful wife. Bust it now, while I dress."

TWENTY minutes later Mr. Joseph Sandham stood in the driveway belonging to Mr. Tyler Archer and surveyed his car. He was pleased to note that it had come through the collision practically unscathed. The radiator was dented a little and the front left fender looked like a discouraged doughnut. Otherwise it seemed sound in wind and limb. Joe got in and drove it a few feet down the driveway. It steered well and the tires were okay. Satisfied he descended from the driver's seat and stood looking pensively at the starboard side of the car which bore, in gilt and black, the legend:

Chocolates

CHANDLER & SANDHAM

Caramels

Without going around to port Joseph knew that the inscription there read:

Bonbons

CHANDLER & SANDHAM

Confections

From the house came the appetizing aroma of bacon, crisping in a fryingpan. Joseph lifted his head and sniffed, like a hound. And at this point Kelly popped her head out of a kitchen window.

"First and last call for breakfast," she said.

Mr. Sandham leaped like a speared grampus and the leap carried him all the way into the kitchen. Kelly was infesting this place, charming in a sea-green apron.

"In there," she said, indicating a breakfast-nook which held forth beyond the open door of the pantry. "Go make a beast of yourself."

"Gee," said Mr. Sandham, "you can cook? Fancy that."

"Of course, I can cook," said Kelly scornfully. "What do you think I am, an orchid?"

No suitable comeback occurring to him, Mr. Sandham went into the breakfast nook and overpowered a double range stove. Just as it said "Uncle," Kelly appeared, bearing a breaded wheat. He crumpled this buried it under sugar, drowned it in cream and took it in his stride. Followed bacon and eggs, the eggs scrambled to a beautiful pale-yellow consistency. Mr. Sandham went to work, swooshing this concoction down with coffee which would have drawn commendation from a peniciliary Arab. Kelly stood over him, refilling the cup.

"This guy Gilbert," said Joe, with his mouth full of bacon and eggs, "would have lived high if I hadn't come along."

Radio to Combat Fires In Forests

By United Press
WASHINGTON.—Fire-fighting vehicles of the U. S. Forest Service will be equipped soon with new, two-day radio facilities—using fishing pole antennas—which are expected to increase greatly the usefulness of the service.
The equipment, developed by A. G. Simpson, a Forest Service radio engineer, will enable the vehicles to remain in constant touch with the dispatcher. Fire-fighting headquarters can order fire trucks toward a configuration and later, when the truck is on its way, give detailed instructions. The dispatcher also will be able to recall the truck to send it to a more dangerous or more recently-reported cars and the Forest Service's portable radio equipment. The regular short-wave band will assure broadcast reception for at least 20 miles in the worst weather and, in fair weather, up to 500 miles. "These distances are phenomenal," said Simpson, "when it is considered that the antenna used is only a 7-foot metal fish pole of ordinary hardware store variety, costing about 60 cents."

"But the outstanding feature of the apparatus is a small iron containing the matching unit which permits unusual efficiency in transferring energy from transmitter to the antenna and, conversely, from the antenna to the receiver. "A coil and condenser combination is used to adjust the impedance of the antenna to the transmitter so that they are brought to perfect tune."

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The Social Security Board is ready—even eager—to cover 55,000,000 persons under its super-colossal system of old-age insurance. It only has 39,000,000 such customers now. But the Advisory Council on Social Security, representing employers, employees and public, is studying methods of extending the program to agricultural, domestic and self-employed workers who number about 16,000,000.

All signs indicate that this committee—Which Senator Vandenberg of Michigan called "the perfect council"—will recommend in December that Congress vote to include those groups of employees. Recently it recommended inclusion of more than 500,000 workers in non-profit establishments.

To me the great difficulty of administering old-age insurance for farm workers and domestic employees, a system has been suggested under which employers will buy stamps and affix them to cards held by employees, the stamps to be bought from the Treasury and paid for by equal employer and worker contributions.

Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the SSB is going to England to study the social security system there and will give special attention to the stamp system as the British have adopted it for similar types of labor.

USUALLY no one will believe it, but sometimes in Washington occurrences which seem innocent and meaningless are just as innocent and meaningless as they seem.

The plan for a commission to study British labor laws was heralded in a Washington morning newspaper as a prelude to White House request for revision of the table radio equipment. The regular short-wave band will assure broadcast reception for at least 20 miles in the worst weather and, in fair weather, up to 500 miles. "These distances are phenomenal," said Simpson, "when it is considered that the antenna used is only a 7-foot metal fish pole of ordinary hardware store variety, costing about 60 cents."

"But the outstanding feature of the apparatus is a small iron containing the matching unit which permits unusual efficiency in transferring energy from transmitter to the antenna and, conversely, from the antenna to the receiver. "A coil and condenser combination is used to adjust the impedance of the antenna to the transmitter so that they are brought to perfect tune."

Wagner labor act. Chairman John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. who had been told the law was a routine Department of Labor matter, read the story and roared that C. I. O. wouldn't participate.

Mr. Roosevelt then testily he was sending the committee to provide enlightenment for labor and columnists, pointing its report would be used as argument against Wagner act vision rather than in favor.

Actually, careful investigation has disclosed, the trip was planned as a mere junket of no significance. The White House had the information it wants. British labor laws right now.

Similarly, the deepest, sacred secret in the Department of Labor was, until recently, fact that Secretary Perkins was going to Europe.

The secrecy made people imagine all sorts of things. The fact was that Madame Perkins, though she was to visit the International Labor Office convention, wanted a European tour for purely personal reasons.

SECRETARY WALLACE recently received telegrams from Philadelphia urging him to reduce sugar quotas. They were signed "Consumers League."

Knowing that the National Consumers League had no branch in Philadelphia, officials investigated and found the messages had been charged to a large sugar brokerage house in the Quaker city.

It looked like a real scam. But the company officials were given a chance to explain. The investigation revealed that a trader employee, who had been playing the sugar market against company rules, was responsible. Employee was fired.

Sees Continuing Trend South for Chemical Plants

DALLAS.—Encouragement for the South in its drive for continuing industrial progress is seen by the All-South Development Council in a review of chemical process industries' 1937 expansions and future trends by James A. Lee in connection with the recent convention of the Manufacturing Chemists' association at Skytop, Pa.

SPORT GLANCES . . . . By Grayson

BY HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service

THIS business of forewarned being forearmed doesn't always turn out in the best interests of the defense.

The east found that out in the I. C. 4-A get-together at Randall's Island Stadium. Columbia, Pitt, Princeton, Yale, and the rest were cautioned against the strength of the mightiest of mighty Southern California track squads, but to no avail.

When Dean Cromwell's Trojans scampered off with their eighth I. C. triumph they only added fuel to the growing contention that the west coast always has been, and always will be, the greatest producer of star cinder talent of any section in the United States.

It's easy to understand, however, and Cromwell and Brutus Hamilton, California coach, frankly state the biggest reason.

They claim to have no greater coaching talents than the outstanding coaches in the east and midwest. Nor is the raw material any better.

They point merely to item No. 1 on the California Chamber of Commerce praise bulletin—the climate.

TRACK is strictly a matter of conditioning and individual training. Coaches don't have to spend hours and days on team play and co-ordination. And in California, the sun-kissed lads can do their conditioning the year 'round, without going stale.

Southern California this year probably will roll up a string of triumphs that will be unequalled in track circles for some time to come.

The Trojans already have won the Pacific Coast Conference and I. C. 4-A titles. June 11 they drove on to Columbus for a triangular affair with Ohio State and Indiana. June 17-18 they rolled northward to Minneapolis and the National Collegiate.

On June 24-25 they go to Chicago to help the Pacific Coast Conference cause in the annual colorful meet with the Big Ten.

Then on July 2-3 the cream of the Trojan crop will move over to Buffalo for the National A. A. U. meet, and vie for the privilege of making the numerous traveling squads that will be sent about this summer.

The moral of the story being "Run on the Southern California track team and see the world."

LOOKING around: Dauber's effort in the Belmont Stakes, when he was carried wide in the stretch drive, convinces horsemen that the Foxcatcher Farms star truly is the prize blunderer of the year.

Natives at Denver exchanged amused glances when Ralph Guldaugh toured Cherry Hills in a seven-over-par practice round.

That course will break a lot of hearts in the Open, is their prediction.

The Big Ten's most futile task in the combined Western Conference-Pacific Coast Conference track meet this year will be in the pole vault . . . Loring Day of U. S. C. and George Varoff of Oregon climb to 14 feet 7 inches, and Ken Dills, another Trojan, can do 14 feet 4 . . . that's one the Big Ten should concede and save a lot of bother.

Joe McCarthy's pop-off about the Indians being a "choke-up" ball club has Cleveland fans seething . . . they'll all be loaded for bear when the Yanks come to Cleveland on their next western trip.

made favorable is seen in Lee's comment on these advantages. "Raw materials are there in great abundance," he said, "production costs are lower than in any other section, a market exists in the southern and neighboring states, and recent technological developments have placed this section in a position to compete with other sections."

"A recent survey covering the entire South from the Atlantic to chondising to industry its geographical and resource advantages and has stressed its "Golden Rule" policy toward industry, has accounted for a large share of the new southern investment in these fields, particularly in petroleum refining and heavy chemicals.

That the natural advantages of the South in appealing to this type of industry assure long-time continuance of development along these lines if other factors are the Rio Grande indicates that the building in that section will continue for some time to come. Many of the buildings contracted for in 1937 are now under construction, contracts have been let since the first of the year for other buildings, while plant sites are being selected and plans drawn for additional plants which will be built as soon as business takes a turn for the better.

Texas' position as a magnet for these developing industries, the report points out, enhanced by the increasing disposition among her leaders to emphasize the desirability of sound, aggressive state encouragement of industrial enterprise, can bring the Lone Star State an impressive share of the fruits of this long-range expansion movement.

The steady march of technical advances in petroleum refining has accounted for extensive modification of existing refineries and equipment in recent years, while changes in various key chemical processes are being made constantly, necessitating frequent changes in equipment, and often installation of whole new plants or removals to new locations to produce large quantities of certain heavy chemicals when a new use suddenly creates a new volume market.

Catfish Is Mascot Of Municipal Airport

FORT WORTH, Texas.—A 55-pound catfish has succeeded a faithful dog as mascot of the Fort Worth municipal airport.

After several years as a familiar figure around the field, the dog accidentally was killed. The catfish was caught in a lake near here by Ray Fortner, pilot on the Fort Worth-Memphis route of American Airlines.

Fortner gave the big fish to the airport cafe operator, but it was slapped by the fish's tail, and was decided to keep it in the fish pond at the field as a mascot. First attempt to befriend the four-foot catfish resulted in a ducking for J. C. Kemper, airport employee. Kemper patted the dorsal fin, the airport safe operator, but it tumbled into the pond. The negroes weren't seriously injured.

Suppose daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price.

And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Every day, through the advertising columns of this newspaper, the merchants of this city come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world.

They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are always surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm.
