A Newspaper Office Yields Romance

A great deal of nonsense has been printed at one time or another about the romance of newspaper work. From the time of Richard Harding Davis down to the era of "The Front Page," the newspaperman has been held up as a chap who moves through an aura of romance—a slightly smudged and soiled aura, occasionally, but romance nonetheless.

At least 90 per cent of this is pure hokum. Yet there is a romance in the business as there is in all trades and callings; but there is nothing spectacular about it and it is only rarely that the man in the street is able to get a look at it.

One of these rare occasions took place not long ago when the Pulitzer Prizes for the past year were awarded.

The gold medal for disinterested and meritorious public service was awarded to the Bismarck Tribune in North Dakota; and because the thing which that newspaper did to win the award is a striking example of the real romance of newspaper work the tale is worth retelling here.

Back in 1933 the farming region of western North Dakota was in a bad way. Drought and economic depression had reduced whole areas to desperation. About the only solution anyone could offer was a suggestion that all hands stand by and wait for help from Washington.

It was here that the Bismarck Tribune got busy. The late George D. Mann, publisher of the newspaper, had the notion that the farmers of this particular dust bowl could work their own way out of the mess if someone showed them how. He decided that his paper would do the showing.

So a long, unspectacular and laborious campaign was begun. First, the newspaper stressed the value of irrigation. It agitated, campaigned and educated; and, after some three years, brought about the construction of some 200 irrigation projects which helped turn sun-baked fields into green and fertile producers again.

But that was only a part of it. There was a campaign to restore submarginal lands to the range; a drive for the construction of innumerable small dams to conserve water; a shelter-belt program; a course of education in scientific farming practices such as contour plowing and crop diversification, and a whole flock of lesser matters.

As a result of all of this, the area which looked done for a few years ago is now getting back on its feet again—and, which is important, getting there by its own efforts, and not by help from above.

Now there is a genuine specimen of the "romance" of the newspaper business. It isn't the sort of romance you read about. There are no picturesque reporters in it, no hard-boiled editors, no dauntless seekers after scoops. It is simply a story of a long, thankless campaign to make a region a better place to live in; as such, it is worth a dozen fo the old blood-and-thunder, get-the-news at all costs yarns.

A girl in Sidney, Australia, swallowed a door-key, and everybody was surprised when she failed to develop lock-jaw.

Pitcairn Island, home of the descendants of the Bounty mutineers, has been given swing music. Watch for another mutiny.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By Mrs. Gaynor Maddox
NEA Service Staff Writer

SPICE is not necessarily hot stuff. It may be fragrance added to food or even a touch of subtlety. Study your range of spices and you'll find new flavors for your summer menu.

Yesterday I received a little book called "Spices and How to Use Them." You'll like it, too. Here are two reasons why:

Escalloped Onions and Cheese
(Serves 4 to 6)
Two cups small boiled onions, 4 tablespoons butter, 4 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1-4 teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon celery salt, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1-2 cup cheese cut fine.

Melt butter in top of double boiler. Add flour and blend. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Add seasoning and cheese and cook until creamy, stirring constantly. Place cooked onions in buttered baking dish, pour over sauce and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees F.)

Pennsylvania Dutch Spinach
(Serves 4 to 6)
Four slices bacon, 3 tablespoons flour, 1-1/2 cups water or potato water, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 ta-

COFFIN AND GRAVE READY

Tree is Weighed As It Stands at Over 2,000 Tons

FRESNO, Calif.—Without placing so much as a twig on a pair of scales, foresters have found that the greatest tree in Sequoia National park weighs 4,299,851 pounds, or more than 2,000 tons—probably the heaviest tree in the world.

Careful measuring and weighing of parts from other living trees were used as a basis for the computations. Foliage and root volumes were found by measuring the leafy portions and root systems of fallen trees.

The weight of the foliage was found to be 15.15 pounds per cubic foot of closely packed leaves and twigs. The wood of another tree of the same species—sequoia gigantea—was found to weigh 57.96 pounds per cubic foot. The bark weighed 23.8 pounds, limbs 50.75 and roots 60.8.

By multiplying the estimated cubic footage of trunk, branches, bark, roots and foliage with their respective weights, the total was reached.

Texas Tech Plans Field Trip to Mexico

AS FIRE RAGED BENEATH A RIVER

Fire raging in New York's uncompleted $58,000,000 Midtown Tunnel, 90 feet below the East River, was extinguished after 12 hours when the bore of the tunnel was flooded. Firemen, wearing two masks each, are pictured at right above, emerging from the shaft after successful efforts to hose down the flames. Before entering they were tested in compression chambers for ability to stand the tremendous atmospheric pressure. As shown at left, the highly compressed air in the tunnel, displaced by falling rock and clay, forced its way 90 feet upward and shot a geyser 100 feet above the river's surface.

"There's The doorbell again"

Suppose daily to your door came the butcher, the grocer, the clothier, the furrier, the furniture man, and every other merchant with whom you deal? What a tedium of doorbell answering that would mean!

It would be even more impractical for you to visit daily all these stores to find out what they have to offer and the price.

And yet you need those merchants' service quite as much as they need your patronage. Contact between seller and consumer is essential in the supplying of human needs. Before a sale can be closed the goods must be offered. Every day, through the advertising columns of this newspaper, the merchants of this city come to your home with their choicest wares. Easily, quickly, you get the news of all that is worth while in the market-places of the world.

They are not strangers at the door, but merchants you know and trust. You are always surer of high quality and fair price when you buy an article advertised by a reputable firm.

Eastland Knights, Sisters Picnic at Williamson Farm

The Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters of Eastland held a joint picnic Sunday afternoon at 5:30 at the F. C. Williamson farm located at Staff.

The picnic grounds were about a mile from the house, in a shady grove of trees, on a creek of running water, which the young people in the crowd enjoyed. After the lunch was eaten they went in swimming.

The picnic table was loaded with food of every kind, ice tea and ice water.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reed and family, Tom Lovelace and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl White and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Blackwell and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Strickland, the host and hostess and sons, and Harlan Crawley, a visitor in the Williamson home. Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Smith and children of Freer also attended.

Both the knights and the sisters thanked Mr. and Mrs. Williamson for their hospitality.

White Banners at Lyric Theatre Is Showing Currently

Carrying as its guarantee of engrossing interest and solid entertainment the tag, "from the novel by Lloyd C. Douglas," the Warner Bros.-Cosmopolitan production, "White Banners," comes to the screen of the Lyric theatre today with Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville in the leading roles.

This unusual story by the retired minister is the third of his novels to be made into a motion picture. The other two were "Magnificent Obsession" and "Green Light," and they proved conclusively that the film public likes the Douglas type of story as much as that great public which buys his books.

In the picture, as in the novel, the dominant character is that of Hannah Parmalee, the toilworn peddler who comes into the household of Paul Ward, the small-town school teacher, at a troublesome time and devotes herself unselfishly to the service of the Ward family.

Necessarily condensed, the story of the picture deals mainly with the period in which Paul Ward invents an iceless icebox and then reaches its climax in the discovery by Hannah that the adopted son of the town banker is her own child. What she does thereafter movingly illustrates the author's contention in behalf of the nobility of the human spirit.

The part of Hannah is played by Fay Bainter, long famous on the stage but only recently a recruit to motion pictures. Claude Rains is Paul Ward, his wife is played by Kay Johnson, Jackie Cooper is the youth who Hannah learns is her own, and his girl friend, the daughter of Paul Ward, is Bonita Granville. Other important roles are filled by Henry O'Neill, James Stephenson and J. Farrell McDonald. Edmund Goulding directed.

China's Flood-Stricken Peasants Beg Japs for Rice

Driven from their homes by the great Yellow river floods, Chinese peasants are pictured above as they stood waist deep in water and begged Japanese soldiers for rice. These were only a few of the more than half million Chinese driven from their humble homes in the valley flooded so often by "China's Sorrow." This photograph, made by a Japanese photographer with the invading forces, is one of the first pictures of the flood terror to reach the United States.

Bantam Hatching Three Baby Hawks

By United Press
AMARILLO, Texas—One of Tommy Curtis' bantam hens is going to be surprised when three baby "chicks" grow up.

The young ones are three hawks, hatched from eggs that Tommy's father, Eli Curtis, found in a nest on his New Mexico cattle ranch. The elder Curtis took the eggs—larger than ordinary hen eggs—wrapped them in cotton and sent them by bus 125 miles to his son, aged five years, in Amarillo.

The youngster put the eggs beneath a setting bantam hen, and they hatched along with seven bantam eggs. The hawks were a little tardy in hatching, but the dutiful hen insisted that she be allowed to keep the young hawks after they hatched.

Tommy has only one worry—what to do about the hawks' carnivorous habits. He was afraid they would eat the bantams when they grew larger, and considered offering the hawks to a zoo. The boy has a small menagerie at his home, including dogs and rabbits—but he doubts that hawks would make the family any happier.

Coolie Survives a Jump That Killed Water Buffalo

By United Press
SINGAPORE—A Malay coolie, pursued by a wild buffalo, leaped over a 20-foot cliff in British Malaya and was not injured. The buffalo, leaping after him, was killed.

The story is told in the annual report of the Government Survey Department of British Malaya.

The coolie was carrying a box containing a heavy theodolite when he was pursued across the rice fields by the buffalo. The coolie did not drop the box and run, but placed it carefully on the ground and ran, with the buffalo gradually gaining.

It was within a few feet when suddenly the path along which
