CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES
Sunday school, 9:45 a. m.
Morning Worship, 11 a. m.
Wednesday, testimonial service, 8 p. m.
Public cordially invited.
"Unreality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 2.
The Golden Text is: "Let not him that is deceived trust in vanity: for vanity shall be his recompense" (Job 15:31).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The works of the Lord are great, sought out of all them that have pleasure therein. They stand fast for ever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness" (Psalms 111:2,8).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals must look beyond fading, finite forms, if they would gain the true sense of things" (page 264).

EVERYBODY gets a prize!

Have you ever attended a "Treasure Hunt" and raced frantically all over the neighborhood searching for cleverly hidden clues? It's fun, but only the fastest win the prizes.

But there's another "Treasure Hunt" run every day where everybody wins! It's in the newspaper you are reading now. The clues aren't hidden or in code—they're made easy for you! The advertisements in this paper are the clues—and they lead you directly to prizes you choose yourself.

Perhaps you want a toaster or a pair of shoes or a certain kind of soap. Look over the advertising clues till you find what you want at the price you can afford to pay. Without the ads, you'd have to Treasure Hunt all over town, from store to store, from counter to counter, to find just what you want. You can save lots of time and money by getting your clues from the advertising columns.

SERIAL STORY

HIT-RUN LOVE BY MARGUERITE GAHAGAN

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Larry's despicable little sister, Tom told her she loves her. A visit to the hospital shows Pat her course, signs of shadows.

CHAPTER XIV

AS she went to bed that night Pat prepared herself for the morning. It would be the most important one in her life. She hoped she could sleep and sleep forgot for a little while. She brushed the soft dark hair from her face and looked at the shadows under her eyes. How was one to know which code to follow?

Love was supposed to surmount all obstacles. She knew what Larry would feel after her attitude was made obvious. But her love for him was dead. How would Tom feel when he realized that she was turning on the man she had planned to marry?

AT court she watched for Larry. He was there early, sitting beside Church and smiling with a confident air.

Big Jimmy Burke waited for court to begin, hitched his gun holster up around his waist and sat down in the witness chair near Pat. "Well, the young man looks happy," he said. "And it's too bad for Tom. Something about this case doesn't smell good. I've a hunch the boy's guilty, but he's built up a fine case."

The girl nodded waiting for a chance to signal Larry. She finally caught his glance, nodded to the corridor and went out. He followed her.

"Larry--this has gone too far. I've made up my mind to take the stand if you insist. I don't want to, and I'm giving you time to make other plans--"

He interrupted with his old familiar cool, unruffled smile. "I don't have to make other plans, Pat. The case is in the bag. I'm as good as free now."

"No, Larry, you'll never be free. That's what you must see. What if you did win this case? You'd always know in your heart that you were guilty. And I have something more to say. Either you go back in there and tell Church you are going to change your plea to guilty, or I'll tell the truth."

"I'm not going to let an injustice be done here, Larry. You've killed the love I had for you. It's all gone, but you're not going to kill my code of morals. That's something I have to live with all the rest of my life. I'm going to tell the truth unless you go in there now and enter a plea of guilty. I've given you every chance I could. I begged you to tell the judge the facts, rely on the mercy of the court. You could have explained that you were completely upset and didn't know what you were doing when you ran away. But instead you plan on climaxed this case by taking the stand and committing perjury if necessary to free yourself. That's why I'm stepping in now."

"You wouldn't dare." His voice now held a note of unbelief. "You couldn't."

SHE didn't answer, but met his gaze as coldly as though he were a stranger. "You'll make a fool of yourself. You've sat in there during this whole thing, taken down testimony and kept quiet. You can't do anything now. What a spot you would be in, and what a spectacle you'd make of yourself." He laughed. "The reporters wouldn't even bother with me after that. You'd be a much better story. I suppose, though, that you've thought of all that."

She hadn't. Those possibilities had never entered her mind. Now they slapped her in the face and made her reel with the frightfulness of it all. Of course, she would be made to look ridiculous.

Larry seized his advantage. "Yes, it will be an interesting climax," he said. "I think now it's time we went back. We may be holding up proceedings."

She never knew how she found her way back to her table. The room swam in a gray mist, faces staring out queerly disconnected, seemingly hanging in space like the Cheshire Cat when he faded away in Wonderland.

PAT felt as though she were in a dream, and then she turned dazed and uncomprehending as Church came over and touched her arm. "Where's your brother, Miss McGraw? We have him for a witness, you know? Can you get him right away?"

She looked up at him. "My brother--?" "Yes, we don't want to delay this case."

"No--of course not." She felt cold, icy, drenched in a freezing fire. But facts stood out clearly. "He won't be here unless you insist," she said slowly, conscious that Tom was looking at her, that Larry's eyes were on her, that his lips were smiling confidently. He was still gambling, still sure of her.

"Of course we insist," Church said annoy. "Good heavens, you work here. You know court procedure." "Too well," she said. "If he comes he tells the truth, you understand."

The man's eyes narrowed. "That's what we want. The truth can't hurt us." Pat studied him for another long second. "I see now that you believe in your client, Mr. Church. Apparently he hasn't taken you as much in his confidence as he has me. My brother, you see, didn't go near Larry's car that evening. He knows nothing about it. Larry may have told you differently. I'm telling you the real fact. My brother will not come down here and lie. That's why he isn't here now. He can't help your case."

Church half-turned toward Larry. "I don't understand this at all. My client is your fiance, surely you want to help him--" "He was my fiance," she corrected gently, "but not now. I can't stand by a man who is guilty and who is willing to ask my brother to lie to prove his innocence."

THE gray mist swirled around the court again. Voices came from a great distance, welled and faded, and Larry's smile stood out, only it was no longer a smile, but a frightened twist of the lips. Someone's arm was around her, someone was carrying her into the judge's chamber. She tasted water, felt the coolness of fresh air stream through an open window upon her face.

"I've been a coward," she said. "But I have to finish this now. I waited as long as I could. I thought some sort of miracle would happen. Right up to the end I thought Larry would do the right thing. But he failed me. He's guilty. You see he told me the truth. Told me the truth himself, and thought I loved him so much I would be willing to carry through his lie."

Church turned toward a chair and sat down like a marionette pulled suddenly by strings. His shocked face turned toward Tom. "It's all news to me, Sweeney, I give you my word. I thought he told me everything. I thought he had the case won. I was even willing to put him on the stand if necessary. Give me time to straighten all this out--"

Tom nodded. "Sure--but make him understand he's going to have some explaining to do. If necessary the court can put this new witness on the stand."

Pat felt weighed down with unnumbered bonds. She wanted to look at Tom, but fear of what she would read in his eyes made her hide her face in her trembling hands.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

BY GERRY DICK

WASHINGTON--She might be called the nation's No. 1 Housewife for no food problem of the family market basket is unknown to her. Yet she thinks of peas and carrots in terms of charts and graphs. Bread-making means millions of bushels of wheat to her. Breakfast brings her visions of fields of corn and oats. She is quiet and retiring, yet she is senior economist of the United States Bureau of Home Economics--Dr. Hazel K. Stiebling. Two similar problems claim most of her waking hours. How much food is needed to give every American an adequate diet, is the first problem. How can agriculture supply this need, is the second problem. These problems are geared together, she believed, and the solution of one means much toward the solution of the other. From her office in the building of the Department of Agriculture she began her research on the question of adequate diet.

In a study of tremendous value to millions of housewives as well as to the whole field of nutrition study and home economics, she worked out charts and tables to show what foods could and should be purchased to get the greatest possible food value out of the weekly budget.

Today anyone who wants to know how to stretch the food dollar farthest need only write to the Bureau of Home Economics for the series of four standard diets devised by Dr. Stiebling. These "Diets at Four Levels of Nutritive Content and Cost" are: 1. The liberal diet. 2. The adequate diet at moderate cost.

Washington rents are high. To have the right background the congressman's wife must pay $150 to $200 for a four or five-room flat with a good address. Her own wardrobe, adequate for at home, simply won't do. And there's always the need to put away something for the next campaign, if they hope to coast back. And they do, they most certainly do, for its very, very glamorous. (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.)

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

FREEZE a fig parfait, then call for the neighbors. Tell them it is but one of the 470 ice cream desserts you can make from the newest boon to pleasant living called "Ice Cream Desserts For Every Occasion," by L. P. de Gouy, and you'll be a social sensation.

Fig Parfait One cup fig syrup, 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 1 teaspoon grated orange rind, 2 tablespoons granulated gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water, 3 tablespoons orange juice, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup canned figs (chopped very fine), 1 cup heavy cream whipped stiff, 1-4 cup cream, not moist (optional).

Combine and boil fig syrup and sugar until syrup spins a thread from the tip of a spoon. Immediately pour in a fine stream on to stiffly beaten egg whites, beating briskly and constantly. Then add granulated gelatine which has been soaked in cold water and dissolved over hot water with orange juice, salt and grated orange rind. Continue beating until mixture is cold. Chill. Then fold in the chopped figs, alternately with whipped cream and chopped nuts (optional).

To freeze a parfait in a mechanical refrigerator, pack in tray or mold and freeze until firm, or about 2 1/2 hours. To freeze in hand freezer pail, fill mold or molds to overflowing. Cover with buttered paper, then with buttered muslin or cheesecloth around the top, to prevent salt water from entering into the creamy mixture. Or rub butter around rim of the mold or molds, and let stand for about two hours if in small molds, and 3 to 3 1/2 hours if in large molds.

Use equal parts of ice and rock salt, over and around the molds, turning off the salt water as it accumulates, before it reaches the top of the molds.

Monsieur de Gouy offers advice on the brilliant cranberry in his book. It is reasonable advice, so take it.

Cranberry Parfait One-half can cranberry sauce, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, 1 egg white, stiffly beaten; 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 cup heavy cream, whipped stiff; 1-2 generous teaspoon almond extract, 6 red or green maraschino cherries.

Beat together with a fork cranberry sauce, powdered sugar and salt. Then combine the stiffly beaten egg white and stiffly beaten heavy cream. Fold gently. The cream has been whipped with almond extract. Now add this mixture to the cranberry mixture.

Freeze as directed for the fig parfait. Top each serving with a rosette of whipped cream, and place a red or green cherry on top of the whipped cream rosette.

New Packard Seen At Burnside Motor Firm In Eastland

Frank Lovett, at Burnside Motor company, West Commerce, today is introducing the new 1939 Packards to the public. Many improvements which the company says add comfort, driving ease, longer life, economy and beauty are listed in descriptions of the new Packards.

These models are the Six and One Twenty.

All of the 1939 models are characteristically Packard in appearance, carrying, basically, the well known hood and radiator lines. Outstanding in a long list of mechanical improvements, standard equipment is a new system of shifting gears. Speed changes are made while a small lever conveniently placed on the steering column just under the steering wheel. Packard has given this system the name, "Handishift."

With "Handishift," gears are changed in practically the same manner as with the old type of shifter lever so that, it is pointed out by the company, there are no new driving habits to learn. At the same time gear changing can be accomplished more quickly and much more conveniently and the floor of the driving compartment is unencumbered.

Transmissions of both the Six and One Twenty have been enlarged and improved. Gears are of larger size and additional anti-friction bearings are provided. All three forward speed gears are in constant mesh in this new transmission.

A new simplified fourth speed, or overdrive, called "Econo-Drive," automatically actuated by simply depressing and releasing the accelerator pedal, is available at low extra cost on the Six, One Twenty and Super Eight. Chief advantage claimed for Econo-Drive is that it reduces engine revolutions 27.8 per cent, saving greatly in motor wear and increasing fuel economy as much as 20 per cent. Oil economy is said to be improved to an even greater extent. Engineers explain that a button on the dash can make Econo-Drive available for operation or lock it out of service.

Packard this year introduces a fifth shock absorber, something new to motor cars, on the Six, One Twenty and Super Eight. Its purpose is the suppression of side-wise or traverse road shocks.

The well known-Safe-T-Flex system of independently springing the front wheels is continued on all four lines with a number of important improvements. Safe-T-

Flex rear spring suspension is also continued on the Six and One Twenty. One of the important improvements found on these cars lies in the addition of what has been called a transverse shock eliminator incorporated in the front suspension linkage. This is said to further damp any road vibrations.

Among the long list of other mechanical improvements are new carburetors on the Six and One Twenty, improved automatic choke, floating type engine oil screen, improved timing gear chain, improved hydraulic brakes with dirt and moisture resistant linings, improved rear spring suspension and shock absorbers, permanently lubricated and self adjusting water pump, new longer life connecting rod bearings on the Six and One Twenty, Neutro-tuned cooling fan and improved insulated mounting of the body to the frame.

Engine compartment cooling tunnels, automatic radiator shutters, automatic aluminum alloy pistons, oil filters, hardened camshafts, full pressure lubrication systems and other notable Packard mechanical features are continued.

Much has been done, it is announced by the company, in making the cars more attractive in both exterior and interior appearance as well as still further improving them in comfort, ease

Department Store Sales Increasing

AUSTIN, Texas. — Reports to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research from 106 Texas department stores indicated gains in sales during August of 22.2 per cent over July and 1.1 per cent over August last year.

Aggregate dollar sales in these establishments during the first eight months of the year were practically identical to those of the corresponding period in 1937.

Credit sales constituted a large proportion of the total than in of handling, performance and in ability to last even longer.

The Six, smallest of the Packard fleet, is a big car with a wheelbase of 122 inches and a 100 horsepower engine. The One Twenty is built in wheelbases of 127 and 148 inches and has an engine of 120 horsepower.

Visitors can see the Six now on display.

August last year, while the percentage of collections to outstanding accounts was slightly less than a year ago.

DEER HUNTERS SHAMED

GILROY, Cal. —The killing in this vicinity of two toothless deer, is declared by game experts to be of no particular credit to the hunters. They insist that when a buck has become so old as to lose all of its teeth, almost anyone could knock it over with a club.

WHAT DO YOU PAY FOR WHEN YOU PAY RENT?

Just the right to stay in a certain location for a few days or weeks. There is no promise or assurance of anything more. The place is for sale—perhaps at a bargain—and the tenant knows that he may have to move at any time. Its like a shot in the arm—it's all right while it lasts.

But how different is it with the man who comes in and makes a payment on his home! He owns the place. It belongs to him in his own right—to occupy, to improve, to beautify—to enjoy. Each payment he makes, he adds to his equity. He has confidence in the future as well as himself. His employer is watching him grow, as growing people are those who will rise in the world.

In no manner can we dodge the advantages of home ownership. It fixes a price. The individual is the actor, the community the audience. A man might grow and not own a home, but he can't own a home and not grow.
