A. F. OF L. SEATS DELEGATES AT ITS CONVENTION

HOUSTON, Oct. 6.—The American Federation of Labor convention today seated delegates of the International Typographical Union "on probation," mediating another family quarrel in the war against the Committee for Industrial Organization. The typographical union has been feuding with the A. F. of L. over an assessment imposed at the Denver convention last year. The assessment was rejected in a referendum last spring on the grounds that funds raised were to be used to fight another union. At that time the typographical union was headed by the late Charles Howard, who was secretary of the CIO. Under the federation's constitution a union is suspended when it fails to pay assessments at the end of a three-months period. The credentials committee today recommended that ITU delegates be seated.

PRISONER WHO VAMPED JAILER IS CAPTURED

HICKORY, N. C., Oct. 6.—James Godwin, who made love to his blonde girl jailer and persuaded her to release him from his cell in Lexington, was captured here today. Godwin resisted officers who found him in a barn south of Hickory and was wounded in the face with small shot. Godwin and Bill Wilson escaped when Godwin's soft words led Lula Belle Kimel, the jailer's daughter, to give up the key while her father was away on business. Police said that Wilson surrendered and told them where they could find Godwin asleep. As police approached the barn Godwin shouted that he would "kill anyone who tries to take me." In the exchange of shots that followed Godwin was wounded. Meanwhile, at Lexington, Lula Belle, who weighs 175 pounds, decided she didn't want to serve 60 days in jail. Her father, who has resigned, posted a $250 bond, which permits her to go free until a higher court passes on her sentence.

The fair opens its Golden Jubilee Celebration Oct. 8 in its rejuvenated $12,000,000 plant and runs until October 23. This will be the first State Fair season since 1934, as the annual show was called off the last three years because of the Texas Centennial and Pan American expositions. Outstanding attractions of the 1938 celebration will be the agricultural and industrial expositions, two popular musical show presentations in the Auditorium, and the Midway amusement center. "No efforts have been spared to make this the finest fair ever staged in the Southwest," said President Otto Herold of the fair association. The time for start of the non-conference game has been set at 3:30. With one conference and two non-conference losses behind them the Mavericks will be out for their first victory of the season. Last week the Mavs lost to the Ranger Bulldogs 40 to 8. Previous losses were to Graham and Olney by large scores also. The Fort Worth visitors also have two losses behind them. As a squad, the team from Fort Worth is a slightly-above light team. Heaviest man of the Tech squad is J. Smith, 263-pound tackle, who is out this year for his first season. With three tackles who have had a minimum of two years' experience, it is not likely the big boy will start. School officials are urging city-wide attendance at the game. TODAY

The best thing we have in this world is today. Today is your Savior; It is often crucified between two thieves, yesterday and tomorrow. Today you can be happy, not yesterday nor tomorrow. There is no happiness, except today's. Most of our misery is left over from yesterday or borrowed from tomorrow. Keep today clean. Make up your mind to enjoy your food, your work, your play today, anyhow. You can do anything if you'll only go at it a day at a time. If you're bereaved, betrayed, heartbroken, why take a day off. One day will not matter. Today put away your festering thoughts. Today take some simple joy. Today be a little happy in sunshine. You can do it. It's the burden of the coming days, weeks, years, that crushes us. The present is always tolerable. Whoever planned this life of ours did well in giving it to us one day at a time. We don't have to live it all at once, we've only got to get through till bedtime. Every morning we are born again. Why let life oppress you? You don't have to live your life, only a day at a time. Come let's finish our small task manfully. It's not long. Don't let life mass against you. Attack it in detail and you can easily triumph. The past is what we make of it. It is temper of the present that qualifies it. It depends upon how you now consider it, whether it brings you despair or discouragement. Don't let the past unman you, beumb you with remorse, weaken you with self-contempt. The poet says we rise by stepping on our dead selves. And as for the future the best preparation for it is an unafraid today. If you are to die tomorrow the best way to be ready is to discharge faithfully today's duties, and to enjoy heartily today's simple pleasures. Today is yours. God has given it to you. All your yesterdays he has taken back. All your tomorrows are still in his hands. Today is yours. Take its pleasures and be glad. Take its pains and play the man. Today is yours. Just a little strip of light between two darkneses. Today is yours. Use it so that at its close you can say: "I have lived, and loved, today!"

Building Life's Monuments
Whether by choice or otherwise we are all builders. We strive from the cradle to the grave, hoping to be conquerors or in hopelessness we falter and faint. We march, as a caravan, through the atmosphere of intellectual ambitions and spiritual honors to attain architectural glory at the end of life's mystic dream.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The cards are down for a knock-down and drag-out fight this winter over chain-store legislation. Whether or not, as Representative Patman believes, the present act bearing his name is "outstanding among all laws of its kind ever passed," the successor law he is expected to stir will stir up much opposition. Details aside, the difference between the present and future Patman acts is this: the earlier laws are aimed at eliminating certain advantages in mass purchasing and distribution which have been enjoyed by chain stores. The principle was: "make them compete fairly with the independent dealer." The new law will aim by discriminatory taxation to kill off chain stores entirely. Progressive taxes, increasing with the number of units and the number of states in which they are operated would make chain grocery or shoe-store operation next to impossible. The campaign to rouse public opinion against any such law has already begun by the A. & P. stores, which got tangled up badly with the present act and regards the proposed one as a death sentence. With a candor rare in such cases, the A. & P. has frankly announced it is going out to fight the "death sentence" tax proposal, and that it has hired public relations counsel to disseminate information, prepare paid advertising, organize consumer groups and forum discussions. Patman, whose heart and soul are wrapped up in his legislation, is himself one of the best publicists in Congress, spending

He walked and walked until he saw a big dog. The big dog saw little rabbit and started running toward him. This frightened little rabbit and he hurried back home, when he saw his mother he was very happy. Afterward when his mother told him to stay at home he always obeyed her and they lived very happy.—Zudell Griffen, 3rd grade.

A Round-up
This summer while visiting my grandfather, he wanted me to help round-up about two hundred head of cows. Early one morning we saddled our horse and made ready to go. It was about sun up when we got to the pasture and the round-up began. It was fun driving the cows from a large pasture into a pen. At noon, we built a camp fire, made coffee and fried bacon. All the cow boys came in to eat. Oh! so hungry. Late that evening we had all the cows in the pen ready to be shipped the next morning. When I got house something white appeared at the window. The boys were so frightened they began to run. When they got to church they told several boys about what they had seen. All the boys decided they would go back to the old house and go in, so they did and found the white ghost was only a white billy goat.—Margie Seay, 4th grade.

The Scare of My Life
Once upon a time dad and I were hunting and suddenly dad shouted "the dog has treed." We ran up the hill and on the summit of a peak I saw my dog; he had a squirrel treed. We got the squirrel and started back down the hill. I was walking in front. All of a sudden, dad yelled. I turned around, but I kept walking. Dad grabbed me by the arm and pulled me back. Right in my path lay a diamond black rattlesnake. He killed him and found that he had eighteen rattlers. Now when dad yells, I jump like I was shot out of a cannon.—Stuart Utley.

"Madam," said the policeman kindly to a little lady who was in crossing the street, where but at the corner, "You jay walking again." "No such thing," she said. "It's rheumatism." (Continued on page 4)

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

Continents extending north and south seem to be most stable! Many east to west land areas have disappeared from the earth. A dog can differentiate between a metronome beating 100 times a minute and one that is beating 95 times a minute. How is a person's intelligence quotient figured? ANSWER: By multiplying the mental age by 100 and dividing by the actual age. Thus, a normal person has an I. Q. of 100. Below 80 is considered subnormal, and a rating of more than 120 denotes a person of gifted mentality.

Here they Come Down Our Street! Remember the thrill when the six-foot drum-major twirled his gold baton and turned the big parade right down your street? Some of the world's most exciting business was coming right by your door! There's another parade of exciting business that comes down your street every day—comes right into your home. It's the newspaper you are reading now. On the newspaper's pages march rank after rank of pictures and word-pictures of what the world is making today—from new breakfast foods to overcoats, from jewelry to overshoes. Lots of them are things that you want and need—and you have a grand-stand seat to watch them all march by. Just sit back in your easy chair and take your choice—the newspaper advertisements tell you all about them and even where you can get them. Make it a point to read the advertisements—they bring the world right down your street!

THERE is much hullabaloo in southern California about a new rubber kicking toe. It is two inches wide, corrugated in front, and fits on the regulation football shoe like a rubber. The device was invented by Cecil Cushman, coach of the University of Redlands, Calif.

Obviously, the new kicking toe works in practice, but coaches say that only practice will get results in any form of kicking... especially in place and drop-kicking.

THE present broad-toe kicking shoe with a high rise made of solid sole leather has been in vogue for more than 25 years. That was all Charley Brickley required to drop-kick from all kinds of angles for Harvard.

Momentary Amusement for a Puzzled Posterity

Assuming that 5000 years from now there is alive a civilized race interested in the doings of its forebears you can have an amusing time figuring out what that race is going to think when it opens the "time capsule" buried recently on the grounds of the New York world's fair.

The outfit that put this capsule together was thorough, if nothing else. It set out to bury a collection of odds and ends which would give the people of 50 centuries hence a good cross-section view of our civilization, and it got in practically everything (as they say) except the kitchen sink.

There was a Bible, a woman's hat, and a can opener. A tooth brush nestled alongside a paper of safety pins, flanked by a box of children's blocks on one side and a camera on the other. Samples of modern textiles were wedged in with a pipe and a box of cigars. Seeds from the grain belt were put in, along with hunks of coal, bits of asbestos, and an 1100-foot microfilm "essay" which included 100 books and a thousand pictures.

Altogether, the collection ought to make a fine stew, if stirred sufficiently. But although it ought to give our descendants an interesting half hour or so, it is doubtful that it will really tell them what the world of 1938 was like.

The important things seem to have been left out, principally because no capsule ever made would contain them.

Where are the intolerance of peoples, the brutal craftiness of dictators, the cowardice of statesmen, and the jealousy and suspicion of great nations? These are the things that set the key for today's civilization. Without knowing about them, one cannot get even a glimmering of the true state of things in the world today. But how are you going to put them in a test tube for examination 5000 years from now?

Where is the blindness and the division of spirit that makes separate classes within a nation seek their own good rather than the good of the whole? Where is the folly which leads people to put up with scarcity in an age of abundance, with unemployment in a land crying to heaven for needed repairs with hunger in a time of bumper crops?

You can't put those things in a capsule—and you can't understand this world of ours unless you know about them.

The truth is that while we are a race of matchless gadget-makers, technicians and inventors, we don't know much more than the ancient Romans knew about the business of running society intelligently. We live in what ought to be a matchless, incomparable age of promise—and we have mismanaged it so that it looks remarkably like a prelude to a new dark age.

And it is that fact that will be interesting to historians of the future. They will want to know how it was that a world so marvelously equipped for living in happiness, peace and plenty managed to travel so fast in the opposite direction.

A Thought

No quality of Christian character can be essential that is not possible to every man. On every side there is so much to inspire gladness of life. The love of men, the beauties of nature, the sweetness of friendship, the joy of service. Every day is the dawn of golden opportunity and every night a purple benediction of rest and peace. We should go forward with blithesome heart strong and happy in the consciousness of living here and now.

Chevrolet Dealers To Attend Meetings Throughout Nation

A program of 42 meetings to be attended by 80,000 members of the company's retail organization from coast to coast, is being arranged by Chevrolet for the period between Oct. 6 and 14. W. E. Holler, general sales manager, announced today.

The purpose of the meetings, designated as dealer preview conventions, is to present all models of the 1939 Chevrolet line to the dealer organization and acquaint its members with sales and advertising plans for the coming year. Decentralization of the sessions at which the new product is presented to dealers and salesmen is expected to accomplish in a few days what would require weeks if the retail forces were brought to Detroit, as they were in 1933. In that year, 12,000 men were brought in by Chevrolet, and three solid weeks were required to complete the program. Now that the number of men attending has been increased to include dealers' salesmen and mechanics, bookkeepers and mechanics, bringing attendance up to 80,000, the present plan is the only one that would finish the job on time, for Chevrolet plans to announce its new product Oct. 22.

The task is expedited, however, at the cost of elaborate arrangements, whereby central office executives and wholesale field personnel will go into the territory, arrange for the largest meeting place available in each of the 42 convention cities, install scenery, backdrops and other properties, and supervise the meetings themselves. Each of the meetings will be attended by all the dealers and dealer employees of the zone in which it is held, and in the case of two meetings—those at Boston and New York—retail personnel from adjacent zones will be included. This means that nearly 80,000 men will require transportation to the meeting points in their various zones. They will travel by railway, airplane, bus and automobile. "Even with the decentralization of the pre-announcements of 1938 product organization," said Mr. Holler, "tendance in the various where meetings are to will average nearly 2,000 majority of cities, this will the largest available place. It will require the ed efforts of the whole organization to prepare duct the huge gatherings, of which has never before seen in the history of a business."

A Statement of Public Policy by The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company

The Honorable Wright Patman, representative in Congress of the first district of Texas, has announced that he will introduce in the next Congress a punitive and discriminatory tax bill frankly designed to put chain stores out of business. In the past, Mr. Patman has been very successful in securing enactment of legislation which he has sponsored. He has demonstrated that he is a very able lobbyist and propagandist for his own bills. The management of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company is therefore faced with the necessity of deciding upon a course of action in relation to this proposed legislation—whether to do nothing and risk the possibility of the passage of the bill and the resulting forced dissolution of this business, or to engage in an active campaign in opposition to the bill.

In arriving at a decision, the interests of several groups of people deserve consideration—the management, the 85,600 employees of the company, the consuming public, the millions of farmers producing the country's food, and labor.

1. The Interests of the Management

The interests of the management can be dismissed as of very little importance.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company is managed by George L. Hartford and John A. Hartford under an arrangement made by their father, George Huntington Hartford, the founder of the business. George L. Hartford has been actively engaged in the grocery business for 58 years, working generally six days a week. 52 weeks a year during that entire period. John A. Hartford has been actively engaged in the grocery business for 50 years, working generally six days a week, 52 weeks a year during that period. Both of these men could, of course, retire without personal or financial inconvenience and live very comfortably if chain stores were put out of business. The record of the last calendar year shows that out of any money earned annually from the business, in the case of George L. Hartford, 82 percent is paid to government in taxes; in the case of John A. Hartford, 83 percent is paid to government in taxes. As neither of the brothers has any children, any monies left out of their earnings would accrue to their estates, and in the event of their death, inheritance taxes would probably amount to two-thirds of such accrued earnings, leaving approximately 6 cents on the dollar as a motive for continued personal service.

It is therefore apparent that the interests of management need hardly be taken into consideration in arriving at a decision.

2. The Interests of the Employees

The interests of the employees of the company are, however, a matter of very grave concern.

It is simply a statement of fact to say that the employees of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company generally throughout the United States receive the highest wages and have the shortest working hours of any workers in the grocery business, whether chain store or individual grocer. Many of them have devoted all of their working lives to the interests of the company.

The management, therefore, has a definite obligation and duty to defend the interests of these 85,600 employees against legislation intended to throw all of them out of work.

3. The Interests of the Consumer

Since this business has been built by the voluntary patronage of millions of American families, we believe that we must give consideration to their interests in this matter. Millions of women know how acute is the present problem of providing food, clothing and shelter for themselves, their husbands and their children out of their present income. When food prices go up it is not a question of paying more for the same food. They do not have the additional money with which to pay. Therefore, they must buy less and eat less. A & P Food Stores last year distributed at retail $881,700,000 worth of food at a net profit of 1%.

This food was sold to the public at prices averaging from eight to ten percent lower than the prices of the average individual grocer. Literally, millions of sales were made at prices twenty-five percent lower than those of the average individual grocer. This saving of eight to twenty-five cents on each dollar is of vital importance to these millions of families. If they were denied the opportunity to buy at these lower prices it would simply mean that in millions of homes they would have to leave meat off the table another day a week, eat less fresh fruits and vegetables, give the growing child one bottle of milk less every week or stint on butter, cheese, poultry, eggs and many other of the most nourishing foods.

In the last 10 years during the greatest period of chain store growth, the number of individual dealers has increased rather than decreased. We maintain that there is nothing wrong when these dealers charge more than we charge. They must charge these prices in order to make a fair profit. The average grocer will, upon request, deliver the groceries to the customer's door and in many cases extends credit to some of his customers. Delivery service costs money. The grocer must put this added cost in the prices to his customers. In the same way the extension of credit involves the expense of bookkeeping, the tying up of capital, and credit losses. There is nothing wrong in the higher mark up of the individual grocer, because he is rendering a service that justifies his prices.

If some customers can afford and voluntarily elect to pay a higher price for groceries and meats because they want credit or because they want delivery to their homes it is quite proper that they should pay an additional price for such service. However, the millions of families in this country whose income is limited and who can have more and better food because they are willing to pay cash and carry home their own purchases, should not be denied this opportunity. Millions of families of limited incomes can only enjoy their present standard of living through these economies and savings. These millions of American families have helped us build a great business because they believe we have rendered them a great service. The company, therefore, has an obligation and a duty to protect the interests of these customers.

4. The Interests of the Farmer

Eight million farm families are engaged in producing the food consumed by the American people. All of the farm homes in America, therefore, comprising one-fourth of all of the population of the United States, have a direct interest in the methods of distribution by which the products of their labor and of the soil are marketed.

Approximately 30% of their production is marketed through the chain food stores; about 70% through individual grocers. Their fruits, vegetables and other foodstuffs are sold through the chain stores at prices averaging 8% to 10% cheaper than the prices at which they are sold by many grocers. If the farmer sells a given product to both at the same price, the individual grocer must charge the public more to take care of his higher costs. Thus 30% of the farmer's products reach the public at low prices and 70% of his products reach the public at higher prices.

If the public cannot consume a given crop of apples, potatoes, berries or any other product, at the prices at which they are offered, these goods do not move from the grocer's shelves; a surplus accumulates and the farmer finds that he either cannot sell the balance of his crop or must sell it at a substantial loss. Only too often a situation arises when it is literally cheaper for the farmer to let his apples or his peaches rot on the ground than to expend the labor costs necessary to pack and ship them. Every farm economist knows that a 10% surplus does not mean 10% less return to the farmer but often more than 20% less return.

In other words, the farmer's problem is to sell his products at the cost of production plus a fair profit and to get them to the public with as few intermediate costs and profits as possible. It is therefore obviously unfair to the farmer to propose legislation which would, at a single blow, wipe out 30% of his distributing machinery—and that 30% the part which maintains the price to the farmer yet reaches the public at low cost because of economical distribution. It would be just as unfair to the farmer to propose putting out of business all of the individual grocers of the country who distribute 70% of his produce. Both chain food stores and individual grocers perform a distributive function vital to the interests of the farmer. If either failed to function the farmer would be faced with tremendous surpluses and heart-breaking losses.

For years the A & P has dealt with the farmers both as producers and consumers. We feel that we have a definite obligation and duty to oppose any legislative attack upon their best interests.

5. The Interests of Labor

Every business in this country has a vital interest in the purchasing power of labor. When labor has high wages and great purchasing power, everyone is prosperous. When labor's purchasing power is curtailed, all business suffers and the American standard of living is impaired. For many years it has been the wise policy of the national government to protect real wages and the purchasing power of the worker's dollar. Combinations or agreements to raise prices, thus reducing real wages, have been declared illegal.

It certainly seems strange that it should now be proposed to destroy a group of businesses for the frankly admitted reason that they furnish the necessities of life to the wage earner and his family at low prices. There are approximately 900,000 workers directly employed in the chain store industry. What course is open to us but to oppose the action of a man who, at a time when more than 11,000,000 wage earners are already out of work and 3,000,000 families on relief, proposes a bill that would add almost another million to the roll of unemployed, wipe out 30% of the distributing machinery of all of the farmers of the United States, and raise the cost of living of the wage earners of the United States.

We believe that our organization has rendered a great service to the American people and that it is as a result of that service that we have prospered. If we consulted our own interest it would be very easy to stop and enjoy whatever leisure we have earned. No one is dependent upon us except our fellow workers. However, after the fullest consideration of all interests, we have arrived at the decision that we would be doing less than our full duty if we failed to oppose, by every fair means, legislation proposed by the Honorable Wright Patman.

As we have said, Mr. Patman is an able politician, an able lobbyist and an able propagandist. In that field he is an expert. We are experts only in the grocery business. We believe the chain stores have a right to present their case to the American people. We will not go into politics, nor will we establish a lobby in Washington for the purpose of attempting to influence the vote of any member of the Congress. We expect only a full and fair opportunity to present the case for the chain stores as a great service organization for the American people.

Since the task we have set before us is one involving the widest dissemination of complete information to all of the American people, and since this is a profession in which we are not expert, we have engaged Carl Byoir & Associates, public relations counsel, to do this work. We realize that our views are seldom news. We know, therefore, that we must be prepared to spend a substantial sum of money in telling our story to all of the American people. We declare now that this money will be spent in the dissemination of information through paid advertising and every medium available to us, and in cooperating in the work or formation of study groups among consumers, farmers and workers, which provide open forums for a discussion of all measures affecting the cost of living.

We believe that when the American people have all of the facts they will make their decision known to their representatives in Congress. As Americans we will be content with that decision.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA DOMBEY—heroine, wife of the sensational swing band leader.
ROBERT TAIT—hero, newspaper photographer—detective.
ANNE LESTER—Myrna's closest friend.
DANNIE FEELEY—officer assigned to investigate Ludden Dombey's murder.

Yesterday Myrna disappears immediately after Dombey is shot and Tait realizes she must be found or the police will suspicion her.

CHAPTER III
REACHING the entrance of the Golden Bowl, Bob Tait found the big doors closed tight. A persistent knocking conjured up the red face of Detective Officer Michael Dunphy.
"Hello, Mike," Tait greeted him. "How's chances to get in?"
"In is it? You're the first one that's been wanting to get in. The rest have been wanting to get out." Reluctantly, Dunphy shifted his huge bulk to admit Tait.
The great Bowl was empty now save a comparatively small knot of people down near the orchestra platform. Tait recognized the back of Detective Officer Dannie Feeley, the most persistent of the force from down at headquarters.
"Where're all the rest of the mob, Mike?"
"Don't worry," said Michael Dunphy. "Dannie has watched that. They're upstairs, the women in one room and the men in another, and they're being frisked for suspicious belongings. The worst of it is, about 50 or 75 got out of here right after it happened." The detective sighed early. "We don't know where they went—an' we don't know, furthermore, who they are. A fine little of fish."
"Well," Tait answered good-naturedly, "there's nothing like getting in a lot of probable suspects if you're going to commit a murder."
"Yeah, I saw a movie once where a murder was committed at a football game."
"That was worse than this, any-ow."

Feely whirled. "Hello, Bob. Is that a fact? Did you see Mrs. Dombey?"
band. "Funny thing, the dame he married just before it happened—she skipped out. That looks mighty queer."
Tait pretended not to hear. He sauntered toward the group, began listening to the questions that Dannie Feeley was barking out. The boys in the band seemed obviously broken. If their expressions and voices could be depended upon, they had worshiped Ludden Dombey. And Bob Tait had reason to believe that this was a fact.
"All right," said Feeley, then. "You boys can go on home now. But I'll be wanting you. Don't forget that."
Tait heard the smooth, well-modulated voice of Harris Rogers. "I'll be glad to stay, Officer Feeley. As manager of the band and Mr. Dombey's personal affairs I can probably answer any questions the boys could."
"That's enough for now," Feeley said. "The question I want answered right now is why Dombey's brand ew wife isn't here."

"WAS it now?" denied Mike Dunphy. "Say, that was pie compared with this! At least guys football games talk sense. I can't understand a word those here and players say. That little guy with the clarinet." The detective raised his voice to mimic the clarinet player. "I never saw he tomcat feelin' better, 'til this little guy tells Dannie. He was in the groove tonight. He was ending it out of the agony pipe like nobody's business. That's the way they talk!"
Tait laughed. "That's the language of swing music, Mike. Know what they call the dancers?"
"No, I do not."
"Jitterbugs—and whackies. Sometimes they call them ickies." Michael Dunphy's blue eyes widened. "Well, I hope the saints preserve us! Where they talk like that, anything could happen! Jitterbugs is right!"
"Don't let it get you down," Tait advised. "Remember you lived through the jazz age."
"Not only that, I lived through it way back to when they were Turkey Trotting. But I wasn't no jitterbug." Dunphy looked over at his cohort, questioning the two women are there. If they are, just hang around until I come along later."

"You bet, Dannie." Dunphy disappeared into the hallway.
As casually as his trembling fingers would permit, Bob Tait lit a cigarette. "I'll drift along, Dannie. If you need me for anything, I'll be around."
Feeley looked scornful. "If I need you I'll be in a bad fix, Mr. Tait." But there was the hint of a lilt in Feeley's voice. He had always liked Bob Tait, and they had naturally encountered each other often.
"Good night, Rogers."
The manager of The Swingateers nodded. "So long, Tait. Thanks for taking care of Mrs. Dombey."
The remark nettled Tait. He wondered, a little angrily, if Harris Rogers felt that his job of managing The Swingateers went on to managing Lud Dombey's widow. He didn't care for the proprietary air Rogers had shown; and, above all, he didn't like the way Rogers had set Feeley on him.
BUT there was little time to think about that now. The moment Tait was out of sight of Feeley and Rogers he took to his heels in earnest. A half minute later he was at the curb, his hand on the handle of a taxi door.
"Claremont Apartments," he ordered. "And I'm in a real rush."
He hoped that Mike Dunphy was still at the cigar stand, choosing a favorite smoke before starting for the Claremont Apartments. And if Mike ran true to form, that was where he was.
He hoped something else, too—and fervently. It was that he'd find Myrna at the apartment. There'd be plenty to explain to Feeley if she hadn't shown up there. And if she was there Tait wanted to talk to her—talk to her before Dunphy and Feeley arrived to badger her into saying things she didn't mean.
"I suppose I'm nuts," he told himself. "I ought to keep out of this."
But he knew that he wasn't going to keep out of it.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

BEANS and Boston brown bread is a sturdy Saturday tradition. With fluffy codfish cakes, we rejoiced in this fare late one Saturday at the Colonial Inn at Concord, Mass., after a long green drive through New England. Paul Revere must have eaten them there, also Emerson and his neighbor, Louisa M. Alcott of "Little Women" fame.
The chef parted with his secrets when I appealed to his patriotism. "Baked beans make a good Sunday breakfast," he pointed out.

Colonial Inn Baked Beans
(Serves 6 to 8)
Three cups California pea beans, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 cup molasses, 1 cup sugar, 1-2 pound salt pork, scored, small onion if desired.
Soak beans over night or bring to a boil. Drain, then add other ingredients and cover with water. Bake in a slow oven for 8 hours, or until done. Keep beans covered with water while cooking.

Boston Brown Bread
(Serves 6)
One cup cornmeal, 1 cup graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 2 cups sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup molasses, 1 cup raisins.

Three Games Go on Air This Week End

With three intersectional football games on the broadcast schedule of the Humble Oil & Refining company this week-end, followers of Southwest conference teams will be able to accompany them, via radio, from coast to coast.
The first game to be broadcast over the week-end is Texas Christian university's meeting with Temple university in Philadelphia on Friday night. The Humble company's broadcast of the game will begin at 7:20 p. m., Texas time, and can be heard over stations KGKO, Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KABC, San Antonio.
Number two on the intersectional broadcast schedule is the game between the Texas Aggies and Santa Clara in San Francisco. This broadcast begins at 4:20 p. m., Texas time, on Saturday, on Stations KGKO, Fort Worth; KXYZ, Houston; KABC, San Antonio; KRIS, Corpus Christi; and KRGV, Weslaco.
Humble's third intersectional broadcast will bring Texas listeners an account of the Rice-Louisiana State game from Baton Rouge Saturday night. This game begins at 8:15 p. m., and Humble's broadcast ten minutes earlier, at 8:05.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Grape bowl, oatmeal, raw sugar, cream, crisp bacon, date muffins, coffee, milk.
LUNCHEON: Creamed dried beef on toast, raw vegetable salad, hard rolls, baked apples, cookies, tea, milk.
DINNER: Tomato juice, codfish cakes, baked beans with salt pork, Boston brown bread, ketchup, cole slaw, apple pie with cheese, coffee, milk.

Louisiana Baked Beans

Life and history flow leisurely under the ancient elms of Concord. Perhaps you must have quicker recipes. Try this compromise with tradition. It hails from a modernized Louisiana kitchen.
One large onion, 3 cans baked beans, 1-3 cup New Orleans molasses, 1-2 cup dark brown sugar, 3-4 cup ketchup, 3-4 cup boiling water, 1-4 pound salt pork.

Place onion in bean pot or casserole. Add beans. Combine molasses, ketchup, sugar and water. Pour over beans. Score rind of pork. Bury pork in beans, leaving rind exposed. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 1 hour.

That crossroad Europe's been at ought to be a pretty well built-up section by now.

Here are the NEW LAMPS that make Seeing Easier

- Local stores which sell floor and table lamps are co-operating this week in presenting to their customers an elaborate display of all types of lamps, emphasizing the desirability of these lamps to make seeing easier and to make every room in the home more attractive.

Visit those stores which sell lamps and see how little it costs to have an attractive and well-lighted home.

Look for this I. E. S. tag of approval on the lamps you buy. It is your assurance that the lamp meets all of the standards for good lighting.

The popular tri-lite lamp is generally known as the "all-purpose lamp," for it provides a wide illumination, adds to the attractiveness of the room and provides three intensities of lighting at the turn of a switch.

The primary purpose of a lamp is to make seeing easier, and this lounge lamp, also called a floor reading lamp, serves that very important purpose.

FILL EMPTY SOCKETS TO MAKE SEEING EASIER

OR TABLE LAMPS  Lamp bulbs of 100-watt or 150-watt size will give the best light for reading or studying.	FOR BETTER SIGHT LAMPS  Use the same size and type of lamp bulb they originally contained to give best results.	BRIGHTEN YOUR KITCHEN  A 100-watt or 150-watt size will provide enough light to make seeing easier and to speed your work.
