BRITISH TAKE WALLED CITY OF JERUSALEM

By United Press. British troops marched into the city of Old Jerusalem today and began dislodging Arab forces who had held the city for days and terrorized the 27,000 population.

British airplanes dropped thousands of leaflets calling on the Arabs to remain in their homes. British forces included 2,000 British and 4,000 Jewish police.

The actual entry into the city was accomplished with few casualties. British authorities announced that a stream guardman and a constable were wounded and four Arabs killed.

The British probably 25,000 troops to crush the rebellion of the Arabs in the Holy Land. The cabinet met in London and agreed a strong policy that may lead to re-alignment of the independent Jewish home.

Far the London government intends to go in changing its program was uncertain. The first objective is to end the war. That is essential to British peace, suffering from the defeat at Munich.

Traffic Deaths In State Decrease But Still Remain High

AUSTIN, Tex.—Texas has counted its traffic dead. State police—who would much rather count the living—have announced that the September street and highway death mark reached 127 to bring the year's total to 1,148 fatalities.

Safety analysts pointed to most of the records of these deaths as examples of recklessness on the part of drivers and pedestrians. Even the fact that the 1938 death mark fell 294 short of last year's figure through the month of September, the traffic experts gloomily predicted a rising toll for the remainder of the year "unless drivers and pedestrians revolt against urges to speed, disobey safety regulations or commit other offenses against public safety."

Strengthening of the enforcement of traffic regulations on highways and in cities and towns was pointed to as the weapon that brought about a major portion of the death reduction this year.

Tabulations of the persons injured in September vehicle accidents were not completed because the statisticians know that a number of them will die of their wounds. However, as usual, the figure is expected to be well over the 1,000 mark.

Sympathetic state police did not forget the estimated 11,480 persons grief stricken over the death of a loved one. Even the financial losses were considered as the statisticians pored over the death books. With an economic loss of $50,000 resulting in the death of one traffic victim—the amount includes a 35 to one ratio of injuries—the state officers estimated the 1938 traffic crash cost to be $75,400,000, enough money to maintain 55 state police departments, the size of the Texas setup.

Sees Mate Shot by Ex-Husband

The entire Bulldog squad is now working hard, in secret practice, and the entire squad is reported to be in good physical condition, with only a few minor injuries cropping up.

Bob Blackman and his Varisotians, with a girl vocalist, will furnish the music for the dance. Admission to the dance will be $1.10, including the tax.

GRID CONTEST AND PARADE ARE FEATURES

Dance After Football Game To Be Staged in Old Elks Building. Plans progressed rapidly today for the second annual Ranger Homecoming, to be celebrated Friday, October 21, which is the 21st anniversary of the discovery of oil in the Ranger field.

The entertainment program is not to be as elaborate as the one staged in 1937, the 20th anniversary, but a large crowd is expected to be present.

Activities really begin in mid-afternoon, with nothing scheduled for the morning hours.

At noon a joint meeting of the Lions and Rotary clubs will be staged, with out-of-town and local visitors being present. At the conclusion of the meeting there will be speakers who will tell of some of the history of the Ranger field and give other highlights. This speaking will be at two o'clock in front of the Gholson hotel.

A big parade is being planned, with at least four bands and two or possibly three high school pep squads participating. Word has been received from Breckenridge that the Breckenridge High school band and pep squad cannot be present until 4:45, so the hour of the parade was changed today from 4 o'clock to 4:45. Fire Chief G. A. Murphy, who is marshal of the parade, has promised that it will start on time. Indications are that it will be one of the features of the day, as much interest is being shown in it.

Friday evening, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock, the Ranger and Breckenridge football teams will engage in the feature clash of the Oil Belt for the week-end. Breckenridge has not been defeated in conference play and the Bulldogs, though held to two scoreless ties, one in conference play, are rated as contenders in the eastern division.

The entire Bulldog squad is now working hard, in secret practice, and the entire squad is reported to be in good physical condition, with only a few minor injuries cropping up.

After the football game, with a 30-minute intermission between, will be a homecoming dance, which will be staged at the old Elks building on Main street. Bob Blackman and his Varisotians, with a girl vocalist, will furnish the music for the dance. Admission to the dance will be $1.10, including the tax.

Peanut Warehouse to Be Open Short Time

J. E. Meroney, secretary of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, stated today that the Ranger Bonded Warehouse was opened again, though it may have purchased all the peanuts it could buy at present.

Arrangements were made for bond to cover 600 tons of peanuts. This morning there were 530 tons in the warehouse, with indications that 600 tons may be reached before night. However, he stated, arrangements were being made to secure enough bond to cover 200 tons more.

He urged that anyone having peanuts to sell to the warehouse contact the Ranger Chamber of Commerce before moving them, in order that it might be determined if they could be bought that day.

Only peanuts from this vicinity will be handled, it was stated, as growers from as far away as 50 to 60 miles were wanting warehouses to handle their crops, and the Ranger warehouse was unable to take care of more than the local crop.

South America Learned—Europe Has Not

South America has accomplished what Europe could not do. It has peacefully adjusted its most troublesome boundary dispute, a dispute as acrid as any Europe has seen. It has adjusted it in a simple, civilized manner.

Europe, boasting of itself as the centerpoint of civilization, may well watch this example in wonder and envy. For Europe has been able to do no better than arm to the teeth, glower, and adjust Czechoslovakia's boundaries by pressures that were scarcely less a war than if the fighting had really begun.

Yet in South America the century-old dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Gran Chaco territory has been laid to rest forever.

The presidents of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, the United States, Peru, and Uruguay have sealed four years of difficult peace negotiations by delineating the boundary between the countries. During the next two years it will be finally surveyed and marked, while troops of both countries are kept away from the new frontier.

People in the United States seldom recognize the bitterness of this dispute. Paraguay and Bolivia have fought in the past as few countries have ever fought. A three-year war was concluded in 1935, leaving both countries exhausted and disrupted.

Natural recognition of the futility of all this by the people of both countries was aided by kindly and impartial offers of other South American countries to mediate. The Pan-American Peace Conference at Montevideo helped. The patient, tactful services of American diplomats, Spruille Braden in Columbia and Alexander Weddell in Argentina, helped.

It is doubtful if American diplomacy can show anything more to its credit in many years than its part in this victory of peace.

Bolivia and Paraguay hated, and fought, and almost died. But they learned the lesson of war's futility. And they applied the lesson in a sane, civilized settlement of their differences. Both countries must inevitably gain by this mutual triumph.

Europe has also fought, and hated, and its very civilization is now in grave danger. But the lesson has not been learned there.

Perhaps a lamp has been lighted in the jungles of the Chaco which may lead Europe to a better world, much as it was led forward in 1776 by the lamp lighted at the little bridge in Concord.

In a darkening world, it is a light on which all people may feast despairing eyes.

Questions Reveal Labor Standards Act's Provisions

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The following questions and answers on what the fair labor standards act means to the average employe and average employer are based on an interpretive bulletin issued by Wage-Hour Administrator Elmer Andrews:

When does the law become effective? Oct. 24, 1938, in all interstate commerce industries regardless of whether an industry committee has been appointed.

What is an industry committee? It is a committee appointed by the administrator, consisting of an equal number of representatives of the public, employers and employes. Its work is to recommend a minimum wage between 25 and 40 cents an hour which will not substantially curtail employment. Hours provisions are mandatory under the law.

What minimum wage is required by the law? In the first year, it is 25 cents an hour, unless an industry committee recommends a higher figure.

What are the hours provisions of the law? The statute does not limit the number of hours which an employe can work. It provides merely that during the first year, workers must be paid time and one-half for all work in excess of 44 hours per week.

How is the act enforced? By Administrator Andrews and his aides, or by individual employes who may file suit for back pay due them because they were paid less than the minimum or because they did not receive time and one-half for overtime.

What are the penalties? If the government prosecutes through the Department of Justice, a convicted employer may be fined not more than $10,000 or imprisoned for not more than six months. Imprisonment cannot be imposed except for convictions after the first offense. If employes sue, they will receive back wages plus an equal amount as liquidated damages, in addition to attorney's fees and court costs.

Can an employe be discharged for bringing suit against his employer to recover back wages? No. The act specifically protects these workers.

Who is covered by the law? That has not been determined definitely, but Andrews believes that "congress intended the widest possible application of its regulatory power over interstate commerce." He said that he will "properly lean toward a broad interpretation of the key words, 'engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce.'"

What employes are covered? Factory workers, radio employes, telephone employes, certain transportation workers (if their industry is not regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission), warehouse employes, miners, processors, and handlers.

Is it limited to those actually producing or handling goods in interstate commerce? No. Andrews has ruled that maintenance workers, watchmen, clerks, stenographers, and messengers are engaged in processes or occupations "necessary to the production" of the goods.

Is the act limited to workers in factories or mines? No. It does not prescribe where the work must be performed, so it includes employes who perform their work at home, in the factory, or elsewhere.

Does the act abolish piece-work payment plans since it requires a 25-cent-an-hour minimum wage? No. It provides that they must be paid at a rate of at least 25 cents an hour. The piece-work payment plan must be so arranged that this result is obtained.

Does the act permit regional wage differentials? No. Purely regional differentials are forbidden, but, in effect, they can be obtained because the act directs

Weslaco's Problem of Sewage Is Solved

The citrus waste destroys mains and kills bacteria which generally remove ordinary solids from sewage.

When the city dumped the citrus waste into pits, citizens filed the damage suits because of the stench.

MURDER TO MUSIC

and cautious. "What do you mean—a break?"
"Give me a chance to get the unsold records in and turned over to you..."

CHAPTER XIV
Tait "skeleton" which Bob Tait had in mind when he left Dannie Feeley was the matter of the phonograph records which Lud Dombey had been bootlegging outside his contract with the legitimate recording company...

"That's all, Mr. Manager Harris Rogers never was a guy I'd pick up to go on a fishing trip. Come on around at five and the cats will be here."

And, true to his word, Torchy had them packed into his diminutive apartment when Tait got there at a minute before five...

The moment he returned to Feeley's office he thumbed through Dombey's papers until he found the agreement with the recording company. Immediately he put in a long distance call to the president, whose name was one of those on the contract...

"That line's been busy for five minutes," Feeley said. "Would you mind not using the headquarters' telephone for your private business?"

BOB TAIT laughed. "No you didn't. I think we can still pay them—providing we work together. The Swingateers is still a hot band. You fellows all though a lot of Dombey. Well, before he was killed he made Myrna Dombey a partner in the corporation..."

"Oh, yes," came the suave voice over the wire. "And I suppose, in view of the recent unhappy business at the Pacific-Plaza, you feel you should have a new deal on Dombey's records? Well, I want to say, Mr. Tait, that we don't trade on that type of publicity. We've a contract with you, and I'm willing that it stand."

"Well, I can try."
WHEN Feeley had hung up, Tait called Stephens' hotel. The musician answered sleepily, and Tait said: "Listen, Torchy—how soon could you get the band together?"

"That's swell. Because if Myrna Dombey gets messed up in the killing of Lud, our chances of keeping The Swingateers intact isn't so good."

"JUST this—and I'm going to put all the cards on the table—I've just been looking over Dombey's private papers and I find he's made some bootleg records for foreign consumption."

"It's only four o'clock," Stephens answered in a hurt tone. "It ought to be easy to get 'em together—because they're probably all in bed, where they ought to be."

"The Swingateers have got to keep going," one of the boys said in a low tone. "Lud is just as big an idol today with the whackies as he ever was. Torchy knows his style. And we'll all do what we can. We'll swing as wide as we ever did, won't we, boys?"

Where Raging Forest Fires Brought Death and Ruin

This airview of the fire-swept area about Fort Frances, Ont., shows one of the many forest fires that raged along the Minnesota-Ontario border region. Seventeen persons, mostly women and children, were trapped and burned to death in Dance township, Ontario. Families were evacuated along a 50-mile front as fire-fighters worked to check the flames.

Five Shots, Four Lions Is Hunt Record

DURBAN.—A bag of four lions in five successive shots is the achievement of L. Grice, of Durban, who recently returned from a hunting holiday in Eastern Transvaal.

When Grice saw the four lions they were lousy on a kill. He fired once and missed. The lions scattered. Then three of them ran past him, one at a time. Grice killed them in three successive shots. The fourth lion charged Grice, but he wounded it and it made off. Later the animal was tracked with dog and killed.

Vatican Clerk to Go On Trial As An Embezzler

BY ALDO FORTE United Press Staff Correspondent

VATICAN CITY. — The huge oak doors of the Tribunal Palace of the world's smallest state have opened for the 11th time.

Mario Politi, 30-year-old administrator of the Vatican library, is on trial charged with misappropriation of church funds. Politi had administered the Vatican library for the past four years. He is the son of a former chauffeur of Pope Pius.

Politi was arrested in August when he aroused suspicion by the type of life he was leading in Rome, frequenting expensive restaurants, theatres and night clubs in gay company. An auditor was summoned by Vatican officials and, after a careful survey of the library's books, Politi was arrested by papal gendarmes and locked up in the Vatican prison to await trial.

The Vatican tribunal was inaugurated in 1929 following the signing of the Lateran treaties which ended the dissension between the church and the Italian state. Prior to its opening, criminals were tried by the Italian authorities.

Of the 10 persons tried by this tribunal only two were released when found "irresponsible." One was a foreign girl who shot at a Vatican prelate. Her name was never divulged. The second case concerned a young Italian atheist who threw a handful of coins against the bronze statue of St. Peter inside the Basilica.

The stiffest term was imposed on Giuseppe De Paolo who was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in 1930. He was arrested while trying to break open an alms box inside St. Peter's.

The Vatican jail is a small building near the Papal mint. At first it contained only three cells which, however, were never occupied simultaneously. When it was enlarged a few years ago, Pope Pius himself visited the cells, much to the amazement of Vatican prelates.

"We wanted to be sure that there were no instruments of torture," the pontiff smilingly explained.

Franco has dropped bread on the survivors of his air raids, and now the Red Cross ships the country 25,000 bars of soap. To take the taste out of Loyalist mouths?

A Mussolini and One-to-be

The young woman above is Signorina Gina Roberti, but soon she will be Signora Mussolini. She is engaged to Capt. Bruno Mussolini, second son of Il Duce, who is shown with her in this recent picture taken in Rome. Captain Mussolini, 21, has been serving as an aviator in Spain. His fiancée, 22, is the daughter of the head of the Contemporary Art Bureau of the Italian Educational Ministry.
