Farmers Warned Not to Move to Western States

With income from crops for 1938 less than anticipated, many farm families are thinking of moving what goods they have and moving to the West Coast. The Farm Security Administration advises strongly against it, according to Geo. I. Lane, Eastland county supervisor, who headquarters at Eastland.

He said that a recent study of California conditions was made by W. J. Green, Assistant Regional Director for FSA in this region, and it offers no encouragement to the farm families of the Southwest unless they already have permanent employment.

"Frequently statements reach Texas (Oklahoma) that there is a shortage of laborers at certain points in the west," M. Green reported. These statements are probably correct, but the people making them often fail to add that the work will last for only a short time, that living conditions in the area are undesirable and that when the work is finished, the laborer may find himself stranded in a community far from other employment with no hope of assistance from local sources."

Here Is An Opportunity for Straight Thinking

The world is governed more and more by emotion, and less and less by thought. That is the greatest danger of our day.

If any sanity and decency is to be kept in the world, people must think more. That means all people, not just the leaders.

That is harder than just to shout "Hooray!" or "Boo!" But it must be done.

Let's take a laboratory example, the latest Lindbergh affair. Chances are that one either considers Lindbergh a nasty Fascist spy who intrigued against the Soviet Union, or a wise observer who served peace and the world by telling the truth about the Russian air force, in quarters where that knowledge was badly needed.

Yet how far is one justified in drawing either conclusion? Let's re-survey the facts, and see whether opinion is conditioned by feelings toward Russia, the Soviets, Hitler, Chamberlain, or by known facts.

Lindbergh went to Russia. He was entertained by Russian airmen with the usual courtesies, and shown as much of Russian air strength as the Russians cared to show.

He returned to England. Several magazines there printed a rumor that Lindbergh had made certain comments uncomplimentary to the Russian air force at a social event and to persons of influence in the British government.

His Russian host-aviators immediately came out with a violent statement condemning Lindbergh as a paid liar and a Fascist spy. The world promptly took sides. Lindbergh himself remained silent.

Beyond the published rumor, how much actual proof has been shown that Lindbergh said the things attributed to him? Very little. The central fact of the whole affair remains unverified.

Assuming, however, that Lindbergh said the things attributed to him, were they true? Obviously the effectiveness of any air force before actual test in war is a matter of opinion. It is not a matter on which to use terms like "liar." There can be no proof.

Now the third accusation: that Lindbergh was a paid spy for Fascism, and made such a report on Russian aviation purely to influence Britain against opposing Hitler. That is a nasty accusation. It ought not to have been made without the strongest evidence. But is there any evidence? None at all. It is a plausible-sounding hypothesis, but of proof there is not an iota.

Three belief-hurdles have been quickly leaped by many people in this affair. They concluded: 1. Lindbergh said or did not say what he was reported to have said. 2. It was or was not true. 3. It was or was not said with the worst kind of ulterior motive. Yet all three conclusions rest on assumptions not proved.

All these things were reported in some detail by the newspapers, and properly so, because they were news. But if ever there was a case for suspended judgment on the part of the reader, this is it. The whole thing is a question of fact, and the fact is by no means established.

This is the kind of testing and searching which Americans must apply to all news, especially foreign news, these days if we are to choose a course that is wise and just, and not merely be blown on winds of passion and demagoguery.

SPORT GLANCES --- By Grayson

BY HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service

YOUNG BUSSEY, a real good halfback, blames his dismissal from the Louisiana State team upon his efforts to form a football players' union.

It seems that young Mr. Bussey is practically a John L. Lewis of the moleskins. Starting at an early age, he led a pigskin strike at his Houston high school.

It is about time that intercollegiate football had a Mr. Bussey, and what in the world was wrong with his organizing the pigskin wardens of Louisiana State or those of any other school? If it is true that most of the noble athletes are being paid, as many of the better minds agree, then they certainly should be organized.

It is understood that Mr. Bussey stood for strict limitation of number of minutes of play and time-and-a-half for overtime.

He demanded severance pay four years of it regardless of what happened.

INASMUCH as a lot of colleges in the south and elsewhere have placed football on a cash and carry basis, Mr. Bussey reached the very logical conclusion that some sort of a schedule based on a player's value to his outfit should be worked out. A first-class ball carrier himself, it is said that he demanded that the lads be paid so much a yard with bonuses for first downs in midfield and more generous rewards for first downs inside the 20-yard line.

Pay for touchdowns could be prorated according to the opposition. . . . against nonconference foes, $3; against conference rivals, $4; against Pittsburgh, Dartmouth and the more robust Labies, $5, and against Not Quite Normal and the softer touches, 39 cents.

Guards who pull out of the line to run interference would have become skilled journeymen entitled to nearly as much salary as a Marshall Goldberg.

Another idea would be a set sum and full credit in all courses for blocks and tackles . . . with fines for misses in proportion to the worth of the blocks on the other side.

Receipts from this source could go into a pool to buy bench cushions for substitutes.

EVERYBODY else being organized, including pickets, Mr. Bussey couldn't understand why, prosperous football stadiums, fair to organized players should be picketed when the institutions were not in line.

He argued there would be no confusion . . . that a coach who couldn't immediately recognize an apprentice guard from a skilled journeyman, etc., wasn't worthy of the name.

Mr. Bussey explained that his main idea was to see that the boys had sufficient time to get an education.

He felt certain that the overtime clause would attend to that and constituents waived the one pertaining to a blond athlete every winning game.

Mr. Bussey may be kicked off the Louisiana State squad now, but young men of his type will bounce back like an Akron cheer. This thing is going to spread. If they want big league football let 'em pay for it.

Chief Justice Walter S. Stacey, board chairman, said in explaining the report to newspaper reporters:

"You must understand that the problems of the railroads have not been solved.
"A horizontal reduction of standard wages would have been of small benefit to the roads in distress.

"A reduction of the Pennsylvania, for example, which is able to pay the standard wage, would not help the Baltimore and Ohio. Why call on the employees on a road able to pay and make a contribution, not to the industry, but the strong railroad?"

SERIAL STORY

MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA DOMBEY—heroine.
ROBERT TAIT—hero.
DANNIE FEELEY—officer assigned to investigate Ludden Dombey's murder.

ROGERS and Tait agreed that a Martini would be a suitable accompaniment to "The Cat's Meow." Warily Tait sat himself down, careful to keep himself between Harris Rogers and the door. When Nelda disappeared into the kitchen he wondered fantastically if this pair planned to poison him.

door he half expected a shot—or a knife—in the back. But there was nothing more dangerous behind him than Nelda Starr. At the door she took his hand again. Looking at her, Tait caught his breath a little. No question about it, Nelda Starr was a fascinating woman!

CHAPTER XXIII
Harris Rogers' presence in her apartment was a surprise to Nelda Starr she disguised her astonishment splendidly. "How do you, Harris?" she called. Then she turned in the hallway to Tait. "It appears we have an unexpected visitor. Do you know Mr. Rogers, Mr. Tait?"

Rogers rubbed his jaw thoughtfully. "I'm afraid you weren't," he said with a smile. Tait was grateful for the reappearance of Nelda, bearing three Martinis and a shaker on a tray. She held them before Tait. "I have coasters somewhere," she said. "But I never can find them. Just use that magazine there—that is, if furniture marks spoil a drink for you. For my part I really don't mind."

HE looked at his watch, decided that it might not be too late to telephone Myrna. Anne Lester had said that she was feeling blue—not at her own plight, apparently, but at what Lud Dombey's records had revealed. For Feeley had returned the bulk of them to Myrna as owner of the band. And they had told Myrna the story of Lud's fabulous attention to a hundred women. Tait had upbraided Feeley for returning the files to Myrna instead of to him.

"You do get around," Tait said, took Rogers' hand, wondering the meaning of the man's apparent willingness to let bygones be bygones. Was this a trap sprung by Nelda and Rogers? Bob Tait would have given considerable at that moment for the comforting Annie Feeley.

"Well, they belong to her, don't they?" Dannie had said. "And it won't hurt anything for her to know that Lud Dombey was partly heel." Tait could not restrain a smile as he recalled Feeley's words. Good old Dannie had done it for one reason alone—to help Myrna forget the dream band leader she had built up; and to focus a little on Bob Tait.

Tait hurried into a drug store, found its telephone booth and dialed the number of Anne and Myrna's apartment. It was Anne who answered. Her voice was shaking. "Bob? Oh, Bob—Myrna's disappeared." "Disappeared? What do you mean, Anne?"

Nelda went to the tall phonograph cabinet, started a record already on its table. "I was down at the Golden Bowl, Harris. 'Torchy' never plays 'The Cat's Meow' and simply had to hear it. Been here long?" She looked at Tait. "Harris and I are old friends, you know. For months I worried him for a spot in Lud Dombey's band." Rogers laughed. "You see, Tait, never believed that all lovely young women should sing in bands. Now, I suppose, Nelda is working on you."

"The recording of 'The Cat's Meow' was coming to its end, and Nelda was about to set the needle back to its starting place when Rogers said, 'Let's not have any more of that, do you mind?'" "Of course I mind. This is my apartment, Harris, and I'm the only one who is entitled to be neurotic in it." Imperturbably she started the music again. For a moment or two the three sat quietly, listening to Ludden Dombey long after he had met his death.

Outside he hailed a cab and gave the driver the address of the Claremont. It would, he told himself, be one sweet mess if Myrna didn't show up for Barkley. They'd be sure to track her down in the end, and she wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance. (To Be Continued)

Eastland Pioneer Club Has Meeting In Home at Dallas

The Eastland Pioneer's Club held its October meeting last week at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Pettit. Transportation was furnished by Mrs. C. L. Carrett, Chas. C. Robey and Ed Starr. Mr. and Mrs. Pettit formerly resided in Eastland, and on recent visit to Eastland extended a cordial invitation to the club to meet with them upon the completion of their home.

The chandelier in the dining room is a replica of one of those which hangs in the east room of the White house. The paper in the dining room is from the same design which won first prize at the Paris Exposition. One would never think of it being wallpaper, but exquisite paintings of the Swiss Alps and Swiss villages. The paper in the breakfast room depicts an old water mill, and is copied from a pattern recently discovered on a wall at Mount Vernon under two other layers of paper. No detail is lacking in making this home not only beautiful and livable, but one of the show places in Dallas.

Luring a short business session each guest expressed appreciation and delight for a perfect day spent with old-time, loyal friends. Mr. and Mrs. Pettit graciously responded, stating that it was a genuine pleasure to have the club members and others, and regretted that more of their Eastland friends didn't come.

Luncheon was served at one, consisting of baked turkey, dressing and accessories, ice cream and cake. Members of the club occupied honor seats at the long table in the dining room, and the other guests found places in the breakfast room. The table in the dining room was laid in Italian cutwork, the other in blue linen. Gorgeous autumn flowers, grown by Mrs. Pettit, resting on mirror plaques, formed the table decorations. Other bowls of flowers were placed throughout the house.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Through repentance, spiritual baptism, and regeneration, mortals put off their material beliefs and false individuality. It is only a question of time when 'they shall all know Me (God), from the least of them unto the greatest'" (page 242).

Electric Clock Is Good Burglar Trap

WASHINGTON—Time was a telltale trap for a burglar here. Myron Fitzhugh's cigar store had been robbed several times lately, between midnight and dawn, and apparently by the same man. The robber's method included the cutting of electric wires, extinguishing the night burglary light inside.

Honoring Our Parents

Text: Exodus 20:12; Luke 2:46-52; John 15:26, 27; Ephesians 6:1-4

ONE of the things which in the main have characterized Jewish life has been the factor of family devotion. Parents have manifested a deep love and devotion to their children, and children in the Jewish community have tended to have a deeper respect for their parents and a stronger sense of responsibility than has been true of the community as a whole.

THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—Economic dopesters who expect something of a business boom this winter have been trying to figure out how people will spend their money when it comes. They conclude a lot of money will be put into home-building and they think that's fine.

The Fords Tell Their Plans for 1939

IF WE KNEW anything better we could do for the country than make good motor cars, we would do it.

By every one doing his best in the job he thinks most useful, this country is going to regain its momentum. We have tried to do our best in our job.

When business was suddenly halted in its recovery more than a year ago, we determined that we should keep going anyway, if not at full-volume motor car production, then at getting ready for greater motor car values that would help future production.

EXPANDING FOR THE FUTURE

We began to build 34 million dollars' worth of new plants and equipment. We felt that if we could not employ all our men building motor cars, we would employ as many as we could building better production facilities.

We were told, of course, that this was no time for expansion, that a wiser business policy would be to "hold everything"—which means, stop everything. But no one ever got anywhere standing still.

Besides, we are not defeatists. We do not believe this country has seen its best days. We believe this country is yet in the infancy of its growth. We believe that every atom of faith invested in our Country and our People will be amply justified by the future. We believe America is just beginning. Never yet have our People seen real Prosperity. Never yet have we seen adequate Production. But we shall see it! That is the assurance in which we have built.

Business is not just coming back. It will have to be brought back. That is now becoming well understood in this country; for that reason 1939 will be a co-operative year. Manufacturers, sellers and buyers will co-operate to bring back the business that is waiting to be brought back.

This construction program is almost completed. It has increased activity and payrolls in a number of related industries. It has given us better facilities for building better cars and trucks, and eventually our new tractor which is being perfected.

THIS MEANS MORE VALUE

The current program has provided a new tire plant, which will turn out a part of our tire requirements . . . a new tool and die plant that will help us cut the cost of dies . . . and a steel-press plant that will enable us to make more of our own automobile bodies. These are in addition to the plants we already had for producing glass, iron, steel, plastics, and many other things.

We don't supply all our own needs, of course, and never expect to. The Ford engine is one thing that no one's hand touches but ours. Of nearly everything else we use we build some quantity ourselves, to find, if possible, better and more economical ways of doing it. The experience and knowledge we gain are freely shared with our suppliers, and with other industries.

We take no profit on anything we make for ourselves and sell to ourselves. Every operation, from the Ford ships which first bring iron ore to the Rouge, is figured at accurate cost. The only profit is on the finished result—the car or truck as it comes off the line. Some years, there is no profit for us.

Henry and Edsel Ford, on the occasion of the 35th anniversary of the founding of the Ford Motor Company, June 16, 1938

But we see to it that our customers always profit. A basic article of our business creed is that no sale is economically constructive unless it profits the buyer as much as or more than the seller.

Our new plants have helped us build more value into all our cars for 1939. That means more profit on the purchase to the purchaser.

We have not cut quality to reduce costs.

We simply will not build anything inferior.

NEW TESTING EQUIPMENT

While we were putting up new plants to produce cars, we constructed new equipment to test them. The first weather tunnel of its kind ever built for automobile research went into operation at our laboratories this year.

It makes any kind of weather to order. The weather it delivers every day would take months to find in Nature. Our cars are weather-tested to give you good service in any climate anywhere.

In other tests, every part of the car is punished unmercifully. Then our engineers tear it down to see if they can find abnormal wear or any sign of weakness.

The money we spend on tests saves you money on repairs. And your family car is safer and more dependable when we put it in your hands.

THE NEW CARS

We have two new Ford cars for 1939—better cars and better looking—but we also have an entirely new car.

It's called the Mercury 8. It fits into our line between the De Luxe Ford and the Lincoln-Zephyr. It is larger than the Ford, with 116-inch wheelbase, hydraulic brakes, and a new, 95-horsepower V-type 8-cylinder engine.

We know that our 1939 cars are cars of good quality. We think they're fine values in their price classes.

With new cars, new plants, new equipment, the whole Ford organization is geared to go forward.

HENRY FORD SAYS—
"America knows but one direction, and that is—onward! Time will bring changes, but not in the main course. The openings and opportunities for men and women who can do things, who know their jobs, are becoming more numerous. Our schools should bear this in mind and prepare their students for life. Every school should be a place where students learn by doing."
Considered in the light of some current events, and Mr. Ford's connection with them, the above statement from his pen so recently is rather remarkable. But he still has faith in WORK, in PREPARATION, in INDIVIDUALITY—his secrets to opportunity and success.
And what does Mr. Ford believe about home ownership? Those who have been out to the great Ford industrial center near Detroit have been impressed with this part of it—the beautiful homes of the hundreds of employees paid for on the company's own monthly installment plan. Available to you is a similar plan right here in Eastland.
