HERE AND THERE

BY CECIL BARHAM

There Will Be a Hot Time in the Old Home Town New Year's Eve at the Big Midnight Show at the Connellee!

The midnight show will be the biggest and the most daring ever attempted in Eastland! To start the showoff will be a Popeye Cartoon, A band short, Pictorial and Fred MacMurray in the technicolor feature, "Men With Wings" and to climax the show there will be a gala stage presentation featuring the sensational midnight ride of LADY GODIVA on a dashing white steed to the music of the Famous West Texas Musical Ramblers, who will also play and sing your favorite popular and western numbers. The admission will only be 25c—so come on down and join in the fun—and I do mean fun.

HOLLYWOOD FLASHES—The current cycle of outdoor and western pictures has brought about a boom in the Hollywood armament mart—175,000 rounds of ammunition were used within two weeks... Brian Donley has been granted a two weeks leave from "Union Pacific" so he can make a round trip to England before finishing in the railroad picture... "Four Daughters" goes on the "insider's" list as Academy Award material... Barbara Ann Burns, 1-year-old daughter of Bob Burns, was cast in her Dad's picture when the script called for a baby who looked like a bazooka player... Alan Hale takes his first bath—on the screen—in an old-fashioned tub for "Dodge City"... Polly Ann Young, Loretta's sister, has returned to the screen... Maxie Rosenbloom is planning a gymnasium for newboys... Errol Flynn is writing his second motion picture scenario. Sold his first for a reported $25,000... W. C. Fields will dance in his latest film "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man"... Alexander Korda and Merle Oberon, Jane Wyman and Gene Markey, Anita Louise and Richard Green are Hollywood's latest towsomes... Back Jones discards horse and six-shooter for his role in "Me and My Gal."

PRODUCTION JOTS—Paramount has scheduled a re-make of "Beau Geste" with Gary Cooper in the lead... Robert Montgomery goes into "Fast and Loose"... The Ritz Brothers are set for "The Gorilla" as they return from a personal appearance tour... 28 new films go before the cameras in Hollywood this month... Spencer Tracy has the inside track for the role of Thomas Edison in "The Wizard of Menlo Park"... Bert Lahr becomes a torch singer in "Zaza."

DONALD CRISP, Warner Bros. player, admits he's completely baffled by the workings of the feminine mind. He's been trying to figure out the female process of reasoning. Crisp's wife went to New York a few weeks ago for a short stay to see the shows. Having seen them, she was anxious to return. "But she waited exactly 11 days before she could make a reservation on the streamliner so that she could save less than a day of travel time. Try to figure this one out says Crisp. "I can't."

THE EXTRA GIRL SAYS: Matrimonial wars are usually won by battle axes.

Don't forget the Sensational Ride of Lady Godiva, you'll see a beautiful steed (A well-known Eastland county person will act the part of Godiva.)

SCENES FROM THIS WEEK'S ATTRACTIONS

"Lady Godiva" and The famous white steed will appear on the stage with the Musical Ramblers at the Connellee's New Year's Eve midnight show. The series attraction will be "Men With Wings." I can't miss this show! It's all for you and all in fun. All seats 25c

Janet Gaynor and Douglas Fairbanks in "The Young in Heart" at Lyric Friday and Saturday. Paulette Goddard and Roland Young are in the cast.

Mickey Rooney

Mickey Rooney will be presented at the Connellee Theatre Sunday and Monday in "Down The Stretch," one of his first starring pictures. The cast also includes Patricia Ellis and Denis Moore.

Colman and Lloyd Score Triumph in "If I Were King"

Frank Lloyd has set himself a terrific reputation to maintain. His "Cavalcade," "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Wells Fargo" have made screen history, but have also made it almost impossible to describe any picture as the "best Lloyd yet." But his newest work, "If I Were King," which had its local premiere last night at the Lyric Theatre, proves that Lloyd is not only keeping up his former standard, but has now actually surpassed any of his previous successes.

"If I Were King" is a brilliant interpretation of one of the most glamorous characters ever to strut across the pages of history—Francis Villon, the roguish poet of the Paris underworld who became the ruler of France for one glorious week, only to be sent into exile because he dared to love a royal princess. In Villon's life story Lloyd has found the perfect material for his good-humored interpretation of history, his colorful presentation of characters and his great skill with mob action scenes.

Villon, vagabond, poet, lover and statesman, is portrayed satisfactorily on the screen for the first time, and credit must go to Ronald Colman, all of whose previous successes are topped by this splendid characterization. He is swash-buckling as the vagabond, overflowing as the poet, canny as the statesman and irresistible as the him ruler of the country for a week with the understanding that he must drive the Duke of Burgundy away from the gates of Paris before the end of the period or go to the scaffold.

As the bewildered grand constable of the realm Colman sweeps the court off its feet, especially one of the queen's ladies-in-waiting, Miss Dec. Firmly devoted to the task of driving Burgundy from the walls, Colman is opposed by the king's generals, who would rather wait inside the walls as long as their food lasts. Colman's warnings that the populace is starving only brings laughs of derision from them.

The inspiration of the poet's royal sweetheart saves the day for Colman and for France. When she points out that the generals might fight if they were hungry, the constable opens up all the royal warehouses and distributes all the food to the hungry populace, who receive it in scenes of revelry and gaiety seldom equaled on the screen.

HAS BABY A NASTY COLD?

Relieve the Misery As Most Mothers Do
Rub baby's back, chest, and throat with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him deep into bed. What a comfort to know that VapoRub goes to work right away to relieve the misery of his cold without "dosing"—without risk of stomach upsets. And what a comfort to know that long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub will still be working—two ways at once—direct through the skin like a poultice, and direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. You'll find that often by morning the cold is over.

hours later, dressed in the lovely coral frock, looking her prettiest for Dan who would not see her, he knew that we were friends. Surely a friend would not go away so suddenly, without any word or message. Not if friendship meant anything at all. And she was sure her friendship with Dan had meant a great deal.
She would receive some word from Dan yet. Maybe a letter in the morning. Maybe a telegram before the night was over.
But the girl who had answered the telephone at Dan's cousin's home had said that Dan had been gone since yesterday. Why! that meant that he must have left on the day following the smash-up in Corey's car, on the day after that evening when Dan had not rejoined them. Had he known then he might have to leave the city? Had that been why he had thought he had better not return? Had Dan felt it would be best to go away without saying goodbye?
But all of these questions were too much of a riddle for Sally's pretty head. Especially with such a heavy weight pressing against her heart.
A car turned in the driveway—her heart leaped to her throat. Then she remembered, that would be Corey, not Dan, who had telephoned he was driving out this evening.
She was glad Corey was coming. Perhaps he would know where Dan had gone, and why. Perhaps he could help her solve this bewildering riddle.
Sally jumped up eagerly, hurrying to greet him. Corey had seen Dan last; he had been with him during that last evening. He was sure to know something.
