Brown County Wife Slayer Given Death Penalty

DAVIS GIVEN FIVE YEAR SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Death Who First Not Death Given Virtual Freedom

Thomas Davis, 19 year accused slayer of Lucian Leon Shook, was found by a jury today hearing his trial for the killing of Shook and was given a five year suspended sentence. The judge, which went to trial before Judge Elzo Been of the district court Monday morning, went to the jury at 10 o'clock last evening, following about six hours argument by counsel for the state and defense. The verdict was reached early this morning before Judge Been and other court officials had arrived at a courthouse.

Shook still faces a charge of murder in connection with the death of Leon Shook and county Attorney Joe H. Jones, who asked for the death penalty in the case, stated today that he would oppose the granting of bail for Davis in this case. A date for a trial on the charge of killing Leon Shook has been set.

A former Eastland county judge gave Davis the death penalty for the Lucian Shook killing, but the appeals court reversed the case and ordered a new trial.

Thomas Thompson, alleged leader of the slaying of the Shook boys, who, according to testimony at the trial, said he shot the boys just to see them kick.

Shook was represented by the trial here this week by R. N. and Jim Graham, Eastland attorneys. The state was represented by County Attorney Joe H. Jones, Assistant County Attorneys Grady Brown and W. B. Colle, and Frank Adams, special prosecutor.

Crowd Hears Trial. A crowd that packed the 88th district court room to capacity was present throughout the trial. (Continued on Page 2)

MANY TOPICS DISCUSSED AT MEET TODAY

Transportation, Trade Extension and Conventions Are Among Subjects Discussed.

Many matters of vital importance to Eastland, its immediate trade territory and to the Oil Belt in general were discussed by the chairman of Eastland Board of City Development committees at a meeting and luncheon at the Connellee Hotel today at noon. The meeting, attended by 24 chairmen, convened at 12:00 o'clock and continued until 2:00 p. m. John M. Mouser, president of the Board of City Development, presided.

Among the matter discussed were those of transportation, trade extension, dairying, conventions, athletics, etc. The matter to which the most time was given was that of the fight in Fort Worth between the city council and the Lone Star Gas Company, in which Fort Worth seeks a lower gas rate and threatens to establish municipally owned and operated gas system unless the Lone Star, which is now serving the city, grants a reduction in rates acceptable to Fort Worth.

It was the consensus of opinion at the meetings today that Eastland, while not wishing to take sides in Fort Worth's gas fight, felt that should Fort Worth encourage a

Thomas B. Love To Speak Here At 8:00 Tonight

Thomas B. Love, candidate for the democratic nomination as governor of Texas, will speak at the courthouse tonight in the interest of his candidacy. Senator Love says that he is in favor of an amendment to our state laws clearly defining a navigable stream so as to fairly and fully and constitutionally restrict the injustices resulting to land owners from the construction placed upon the present "thirty foot statute" by the supreme court, and says that Texas should, in the fullest measure, stand behind and make good every land patent she has issued.

In defining his position on the Hoover-Smith campaign he says that "it is being charged that I have declared that no man who voted for Al Smith ought to be elected to any office. This wholly misrepresents my position. On the contrary I have resolutely opposed any such program and I propose to vote for many candidates in the July primary who were Al Smith's supporters."

Love also states that he will heartily support Morris Sheppard for reelection to the fourth term in the United States Senate, and that he earnestly urges all good government democrats in Texas to exert themselves to make the Sheppard majority in the July primary as overwhelming as possible.

He says that when he is elected governor he will "serve notice on Tammany Hall and the outlawed liquor traffic that if they force the nomination of any wet Tammany candidate for president, Texas, the leading democratic state in the Union, will do again in 1932 precisely what they did in 1928."

The gubernatorial candidate claims that he did not use any republican money in the presidential campaign, saying "I paid my own expenses out of my pocket in that campaign and did not receive or disburse directly or indirectly one penny of Eastern republican money."

Negro Kept From Port Arthur Mob By Police Chief

Had Confessed to Attacks On Eight White Women In Past 30 Days. Is Taken to Beaumont.

PORT ARTHUR, Tex., June 27.—Police today saved Rainey Williams, 38, negro who confessed to attacks on eight white women within the past 30 days, from an angry mob that gathered around city jail here intent on lynching the negro.

By a ruse the negro was placed in Fire Chief L. C. Enright's auto and taken to Beaumont by Police Chief M. B. Word and other officers. Williams had been identified as the negro who attacked a young white woman and Monroe Dorsey, her companion, as they were sitting in a parked automobile last night.

As the mob milled around the building that houses the city hall, city jail and fire department, Chief Word slipped his prisoner down the opposite side of the structure into the fire department.

He put the negro into the rumble seat of the fire chief's auto and prepared to leave when some members of the mob learned of the ruse and stormed the fire department.

They pulled the negro from the rumble seat. Word and his men fought their way with their fists to their prisoner, recovered him and put him back in the car. Chief Word scattered the crowd with several shots fired into the air as the auto pulled out of the fire station.

He headed down the road for Beaumont at top speed. The mob began gathering early this morning.

Peace officers from over the county gathered to defend the jail. City officers, deputy sheriffs and constables barricaded themselves with a supply of tear gas bombs and shotguns. They told the mob they would not release their prisoner.

The mob grew as the day advanced and Chief Word decided that it would be safer to transfer the negro to a stronger jail. Williams was arrested after a 24 hour search and immediately placed in city jail.

The young woman identified him as her attacker early this morning. She was struck over the head three times with the butt of a pistol.

The negro jumped on the running board, according to Dorsey, and attacked the man with his fists. Dorsey ran to the Texas Company plant nearby for aid, he said.

The young woman said the negro jerked her from the car and beat her severely. Her screams for help frightened him away, she believed. The negro faces three charges of assault to murder.

Joe Shield Is Also Charged In Death Of Others

Triple Slaying Occurred In Brown County Last May. Insanity Was Defense Plea.

BROWNWOOD, Tex., June 27.—Death in the electric chair was prescribed by a jury today for Joe Shield, 35, oil field worker, found guilty of the murder of his wife, Opal May Shield, on May 16 last.

The jury retired last midnight, and brought in its verdict at 10 a. m. today. Shield is also under indictment for the alleged murders of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Shields, his wife's parents, who were shot to death in the triple-killing at Brooksmith, near here.

Four attorneys, all appointed by the court, defended the accused man and relied on an insanity plea to save him. They have made no announcement as to whether they will appeal the case.

Shield and the wife he was convicted of killing had separated and reunited several times. They were estranged at the time of the triple-killing. The state's star witness said he rode in an auto with Shield to Brooksmith on the day before the killing and as they neared the town Shield loaded a rifle he was carrying.

Shield, arrested by Brown county officers soon after the slaying, was rushed to Eastland where he was placed in the County jail. This precaution was taken by the Brown county officers to prevent lynching, which was threatened. Shield remained in the Eastland county jail for two or three days, but was never identified by but one man, a man who had worked for him when Shield operated a casing crew here.

'Hell' Is Flowers' Subject Tonight

"Retribution for sin is one of the doctrines taught by the church since the beginning and also Jesus Christ taught the same thing, said Evangelist Flowers in announcing his subject "Hell" for tonight.

"Commercialism, pleasure, idolatry, churchness and fear are among the outstanding things today that is being used to side track people from the path of righteousness. He said "The people of America are fast becoming a nation of the rankest materialist in the world. Americans must have things or they are unhappy, people live for trips, cars, parties, fine clothes and other things that money buys. No one certainly would have any quarrel to make with a fellow because he makes money. Money should be a means in life to an end, certainly not the end itself. The more money a man earns the more does he owe humanity and the bigger the responsibility. Equally as great a pitfall is pleasure. How mad folk are for fun. You must be entertaining at the church today or the folk will not be interested. Sabbath desecration is the result of the mad desire for fun. The Christian Sabbath is a thing of the past. We have pleasureized, commercialized Sabbath. No longer is it a day for worship but a day for fun. When any nation forgets its Sabbath they are doomed."

Home service on Sunday morning at the Methodist church will be one of the outstanding services of the Flowers campaign. An unusual effort is being made to interest every member of the church and their friends in that special service. Mrs. Flowers will deliver her sermon-lecture "Home" at that hour. The crowds have grown this week with every service. The prospects are good for a successful meeting.

BUENOS AIRES, June 27.—Reliable reports received here from Bolivia say that a military committee has overthrown the council of ministers and is forming a new government today.

Rev. Day Is To Talk On Danger Signals Tonight

Evangelist R. E. Day who is leading the Baptist Revival will deliver his Friday night message from the theme, "Running over danger signals, or watching the red lights."

It is expected that the largest audience of the revival will be present tonight as the attendance for the second week has steadily increased over the corresponding night of the first week.

Rev. Day preached what some thought was one of his most telling messages at the Thursday night service. Using Lot's family as an illustration he pointed out the dangers that beset those who move from the country to town or city.

The service will begin at 8:00 p. m. No services will be held on Saturday. The revival will close with a baptismal service on Sunday night. All Sunday morning services will be held as usual.

The westbound passenger train was derailed, but none was injured.

Sees New World After Being Blind For Many Years

CHICAGO, June 27.—A man who battled his way to fortune despite his blindness, looked today upon a world which he had not seen for 30 years and pronounced it good—but different.

Only the flowers and trees are the same, said F. Fish, wealthy Chicagoan, whose sight miraculously was restored in the left eye as he sat in the twilight listening to his wife read.

"I always have thought of women as wearing bustles and trailing skirts," he said. "The men, when I last saw them, had mustaches and sideburns. Always I pictured the street cars as the little cable cars and horse cars I knew before I became blind.

"Never would I have dared to walk through the city as I have all these years if I had known those buildings were towering above me and the automobiles were rushing everywhere. Everything now seems so unreal, but it is good, very good, and very beautiful."

It was while he was on his honeymoon in Ohio late in 1899 that a tree fell upon Fish, paralyzing his optic nerves and making him blind.

of Davis and a large number of people remained about the court-house last night until 10:30 when the jury sent word to the court that it would not return a verdict last night.

The bodies of Lucian Shook, 25, and his brother Leon Shook, 20, were found at 7:00 a. m., on Tuesday, September 11, 1928 near the shack occupied by Lucian Shook, employed by the Braden Oil Company to look after some oil wells near Lee Ray in the northwestern portion of Eastland county.

Lucian had visited his sister in Cisco on Friday afternoon, September 7 and told her that someone had entered his cabin and taken a gun and banjo. He said he would be back to see her Saturday as that was the day he was to go to Cisco for his pay check. When he had not made his appearance by Monday night his sister notified officers, fearing that the burglars had returned and he had met with foul play.

Officers went to the cabin and found that Lucian and Leon, who had come to visit his brother on Friday, were missing. No trace of them was found. The officers traced automobile tracks found near the cabin and found that they were made by a Buick. On returning to the cabin they found the badly decomposed bodies of the two brothers about 100 yards from the cabin.

Lucian Shook had been shot twice through the head and his head had been frightfully battered. Leon was shot through the body, the bullet passing entirely through from side to side. He had been beaten over the head but not as badly as his older brother. It was estimated that the two had been dead for three or four days. Coyotes had dragged the body of the younger Shook some fifteen or 20 feet.

Pistol Shells Found
Officers found 45 calibre shells near the bodies. They secured search warrants and went to the home of Sam Davis. Mrs. Davis admitted they had a pistol but could not find it. Officers found it in the barn with the barrel battered and blood and brains in the barrel.

They arrested Sam Davis, his two sons, Woodrow Wilson, 12, Thomas 17, and Clyde Thompson, 18, a neighbor boy. The elder Davis was released when it was decided that he knew nothing of the killing.

Thompson Makes Statement
Clyde Thompson made a statement which said that he had robbed the cabin of the older Shook boy. He also stole a pistol belonging to Sam Davis. He went to the home of the two Davis boys on Friday night, September 7, and asked them to go with him to the Shook cabin to rob it. They went with him and on the way he told them he was going to kill Lucian. When asked why he told them he was going to kill him to "see him kick." When they got to the cabin in the two Davis boys stayed in the brush and Thompson went into the cabin.

The Shook boys accused Thompson of taking the gun and banjo, which Thompson denied. They suggested that the three go to Thompson's father and tell him about it and Thompson agreed. When they got a short distance from the cabin Leon Shook hit at him with a powder horn he was carrying when another argument started. He fired at Leon, Lucian ran. He pursued Lucian and fired twice at him and he fell. He then turned to Leon and fired at him again and he fell and he returned to Lucian who tried to get up and seized Thompson's arm, but Thompson broke from his grasp and beat him over the head with the pistol until he was sure he was dead. He then went to the body of Leon and hit him over the head a time or two to be sure he was dead. He then took $13 and a watch from Lucian's pockets, gave them to the younger Davis boy and returned to the cabin where they got two new suits of clothes.

Woodrow Davis Testifies

Woodrow Davis testified in the trial of Clyde Thompson that they got the car belonging to Lucian and were going to get the bodies and put them in the house and burn the house, but that Clyde Thompson did not let them do it. Thompson did not let them do it because the fence that was between the car and the bodies so they left them there. Woodrow's statement said that Thompson told them he was going to put two nooses to his gun and when he was 21 he would shoot Lucian in it.

Trials Are Held

Thomas Davis was tried on October 15, 1928 and was given the death penalty. His case was also appealed and reversed. He was Sanders fired once, but the negro leaped in the air and the shot missed. The negro disappeared in the dark. Sanders' lone passenger climbed from under a seat and the car moved on.

Keeping Tab On The State Candidates

COMANCHE, Tex., June 27.—Declaring that politicians cannot solve the farmer's problems, Clint C. Small of Wellington, gubernatorial candidate, pleaded for co-operation between farmers and the Federal Farm Board in an address here Thursday. Last night he spoke at Stephenville and stressed development of Texas natural resources.

JEFFERSON, Tex., June 27.—The people should not be denied the right to express themselves through the ballot on the question of a state road bond issue, Ross Sterling of Houston said in a campaign address here Thursday. "More than that," he added, "the politicians who oppose giving the people the right to decide the issue should at least be fair enough not to mislead the people by charging that I seek to saddle heavier taxes upon the farmer, the ranchman, the home owner and the business interests of the state." Sterling said one of the main purposes of the bond issue would be to relieve the people of the burden of road taxes.

BELLS, Tex., June 27.—Two addresses marked the gubernatorial campaign activities Thursday of Jim Young of Kaufman, during the afternoon he opened the 15th annual Bells picnic and last night he spoke at Gainesville. Young was introduced here by former State Senator Tom Wells who referred to him as "Texas' next governor."

COLEMAN, Tex., June 27.—Senator Thomas B. Love of Dallas, candidate for Governor, addressed two West Texas audiences Thursday. He spoke in Coleman during the afternoon and at Abilene in the evening. Problems affecting West Texas were discussed.

GREENVILLE, Tex., June 27.—The State ad valorem tax in the most "unfair and unjust burden" the people of Texas are carrying, Earle B. Mayfield, democratic candidate for governor said here last night. He said the tax falls on the class of people unable to pay and irrespective of their means.

Girls Exiled From Zion City Because They Bought Gum

BY UNITED PRESS
ZION CITY, Ill., June 27.—Word came to Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of this religious colony who believes the world is flat, that three of his girl employees had been purchasing chewing gum.

Gum chewing along with cigarette smoking is against the "blue laws" of Zion City, so the three girls, Lillian, Dorothy and Mary Baker, were ordered before the board of executives.

Under questioning they admitted readily that they had purchased the gum from William Bickett, a storekeeper, and then added, brazenly it seemed to Voliva, that they also were chewing the gum.

The overseer discharged them from the Zion institutions and industries plant and exiled them from the colony.

U. S. Population--By Weight

Census takers are about through and there is nothing left to do except to tabulate some eight billion items collected at the rate of sixty per person throughout the country. Three years are allowed by law for this operation and every possible short-cut is taken to save time. In government specifications for a Toledo scale company are destined to be the principal speeding up factor in the counting this year.

E. M. LeBoiteux, chief of the mechanical laboratory of the census, is responsible for the new system of checking. Census cards are put on the scale pan and by means of a specially calibrated chart, are counted at the rate of 2000 each weighing. Nine of these instruments will start their work checking the output of the punch operators on agricultural data.

Judy went on with her work, won't you be too tired?"

"Lord, no! I can do anything. I'm as strong as a horse."

"As to Guarvenius, I'm sure he will jump at you. He is an artist, and would not think of money, anyhow. Believe me, I admire your independence. Leave me out of it altogether. Fix it up with Guarvenius yourself; but allow me the privilege, when you are ready, of helping you in whatever way I can."

Judy was delighted. She was beginning to warm to the idea. There was adventure in it. This man, who knew so much of the world, was ready to allow her to succeed on her own merits. He did not want to lay her under any obligations. How ridiculous Bastien had been! It was a perfectly genuine business proposition. He knew she was a dancer, and she knew it, too.

Guarvenius arrived. He was a small, dapper man, with a delicate, artistic face, slightly feminine and yet strong. He had gray hair, growing back in a shock from his broad forehead, a small, high-bridged nose, deep-set, luminous, gray eyes, and a really beautiful mouth, spoiled by a set of discolored teeth, accounted for, no doubt, by the never-absent cigarette.

Judy was never at a loss with any man, and the two got on famously. Guarvenius spoke perfect English in a voice with a sad, sympathetic cadence.

The lunch was served in a small, severe, dark-paneled room. It was very frugal. There were more flowers on the table than there was food. There was only water to drink. It was a strictly business-like function but for the flowers, and there were flowers everywhere, all over the great apartment—heavy-scented flowers that sent fumes up into Judy's brain such as no wine could ever do.

"Now, Miss Judy, you must dance," said Gideon, when they had finished coffee. "I will show you the other room—they will have it ready. A friend is coming to play. What would you like him to play?"

He led Judy into another great room, with three tall windows overlooking a garden. It was quite bare, with a polished floor. At one end was a raised platform with a full-sized grand piano on it. There was no other furniture. The walls were pale yellow, hung with tapestries.

Judy looked round her. She felt suddenly as if she had never danced in her life. It was huddled little bundle of misery that looked up at Gideon.

"Oh, no, mademoiselle!" smiled the young musician. "I have feared that she had failed, after all. They were very subdued, these two men.

But when Gideon and the musician had gone out of the room and left her alone with Guarvenius, she found that she had not failed.

Cotton Crop Light
 DALLAS, Tex., June 27.—Texas' cotton crop is below normal at present because of the general need for a slow, drenching rain, the weekly cotton report of The Dallas Morning News said today.
 Late planting and unseasonably cool weather caused shallow rooting of the crop, and the intense heat prevailing has not overcome the handicap, the report said.
 The Rio Grande Valley has had excessive rains which has caused some damage by weevils, according to the report.

MOM'N POP

The Idle Stomach—Our Most Serious Unemployment Problem

By E. V. McCollum, Ph.D., Sc.D.
 Author of "The Newer Knowledge of Nutrition," "Food, Nutrition and Health," etc., Professor of Bio-Chemistry, School of Hygiene and Public Health, Johns Hopkins University.

Living as we do nowadays on a diet consisting largely of concentrated and highly refined foods, many persons too often overlook the absolute need for a certain quantity of "indigestibles"—food that keeps the digestive tract healthfully at work and provides the excess so necessary to promote well being.

It is a recognized law of Nature that the digestive tract of any creature is adapted to suit the kind of diet with which the species long has been accustomed. And in order to obtain a clear picture of the importance of roughage in the human dietary, it might be well for us to review briefly the three types of creatures—including man—that compose the animal kingdom.

First, there is the species known as herbivora, who subsist entirely upon food of vegetable origin. These have stomachs of enormous capacity, and intestines which are residues of long and intricate matter which result from a diet of coarse herbage. The lining membranes of the stomach and intestines of herbivorous animals, too, are highly resistant to mechanical injury and tolerate without damage the friction of the coarse residues they pass along the digestive tract.

Flesh-Eating Animals
 Next in the scale of animal species we find the carnivora, who restrict their food solely to the flesh of other animals. In this group we find the digestive tract is of much smaller capacity, as a result, no doubt, of long adherence to food of exclusively animal origin. Meat, glandular organs and fat, we know, are highly concentrated foods; and even a small bulk suffices to provide ample nutrients for growth and the maintenance of weight, even when much of the food consumed is burned for the performance of work or the production of heat.

While the digestive tract in these flesh-eating animals functions satisfactorily without much indigestible material on which to work, it must be remembered that the carnivora, under natural conditions, take a great deal of exercise and that the residue from their food is quite smooth in texture. Even so, many of these animals—as the dog, cat, lion and tiger—eat much bone substance, which is changed by the strong acidity of the stomach to form insoluble and fairly bulky material of amass favorable to the mechanical functioning of the intestine, and thus makes elimination possible at a rate which is consistent with health.

Coming now to man—the third type of species in the animal kingdom—we find that he is omnivorous. Except in the far North, where no vegetable food is available, human beings draw their nutrient from both plant and animal life. Nevertheless, man cannot eat very bulky vegetable food in any considerable quantity, because his digestive tract is of small capacity. Neither can he safely eat the coarse vegetable matter because the lining membranes of his stomach and intestines are too delicate to withstand the scraping of the coarser particles of indigestible matter without injury.

What Cooking Does
 One way in which man has attempted, and with success, to eat safely the coarser food and leafy vegetables, is through softening and disintegrating the cellulose of those foods by cooking them. The cooking process not only declassifies some of their substances as cellulose, but makes the remainder of the food more digestible and thus averts the after distress of eating. When some of the smaller and fugitive tribes of American Indians were game was scarce and food plants not abundant, they were compelled by circumstance to eat grass seed, acorns and other vegetable foods which are coarser than humans are accustomed to eat. They suffered greatly from indigestion and their intestines injured by their digestive tracts taking cellulose which was too coarse and irritating. They had not less than a score of "grandmother" remedies for indigestion to attest these experiences.

Common knowledge tells us that indigestible things are dangerous if eaten freely; yet it is equally clear that our intestines do not function properly unless there is a certain amount of indigestible matter to distend them to the right degree, and to form a mass which is favorable for the muscular contractions of the intestine to move along with the peristaltic waves.

Between the extremes of having in the intestine too much and too coarse cellulose on the one hand, and too little indigestible bulky matter on the other, lies the happy medium which is favorable both to comfort and health. There are many kinds of cellulose in different vegetable products. It forms the framework and fibres of plants, the walls of vegetable cells and the coverings of seeds. In most of its forms, cellulose is insoluble in boiling water; and it is not acted upon by any of the digestive juices, though certain kinds of bacteria are capable of fermenting and digesting the cellulose of certain plants.

Bran is probably the form of cellulose which has been most discussed in connection with the improvement of intestinal hygiene through cellulose elimination. There is good reason for believing, however, that when bran is eaten exclusively for promoting intestinal hygiene, it generally is eaten too freely. If properly softened through cooking, and taken in amounts no greater than are afforded by eating the whole cereal as a breakfast food, it is undoubtedly an excellent source of cellulose.

What has been said of wheat bran and its benefits is even more particularly true of the cellulose of the rice kernel. Rice is the principal cereal grain in the dietary of more than half the human race. Those who have been brought up on a diet constantly containing rice like it better than any other cereal. We have, in America, long been accustomed to small amounts of rice occasionally, but we generally never have eaten it as freely as we have either wheat or corn.

Cellulose of Rice Softest
 The cellulose of the corn kernel is considerably more difficult to digest and more irritating to the cellulose of either wheat or rice. Of the three, the cellulose of rice is the softest and smoothest; and for regulating the elimination of children, or of adults with delicate digestive systems, it is almost ideal as a scattering agent in food. A few fastidists doubtless eat too much of cellulose-rich foods, particularly green leafy vegetables. While we never should become extremists about any feature of the diet, it is a fact that the modern food regimen often is lacking in sufficient cellulose, and this condition is one of the most serious unemployment problems that confronts the human race today.

Idaho Ranges Fine Combed In Wild Horse War
 Menaces to Livestock Men Rounded Up and Sent to Canneries.

By United Press.
 BOISE, Idaho, June 27.—Probability that the wild horse will follow the trail of the buffalo and be driven completely out of rangeland, taking with it another reminder of the old pioneer West, was seen in the activities of range riders and organized roundup crews who have been busy for several weeks herding "broomtails" and mustangs, plowhorses and other types of animals into corrals.

The annual drive on wild horses threatened to clear the ranges of the last vestige of the fiery tribe of animals that used to range the open country of the West. Riders were covering the wide section lying in northern Nevada, southwestern Idaho and southeastern Oregon, rounding up all horses running loose on the range, sorting out those sporting brands, auctioning the better grade of unclaimed animals for individual use, and auctioning the culls to representatives of horsemeat canning factories.

Buffaloes were destroyed by widespread drives of hunters seeking their hides for robes, once so popular. Wild horses are being driven from the ranges and shipped to canning factories; if per-

FAMILY DOCTOR MADE MILLIONS OF FRIENDS

Fifteen years after his graduation, Dr. Caldwell became famous for a single prescription, which now, after forty years, is still making friends.

Today Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the world's most popular laxative. Millions of people never think of using anything else when they're constipated, headachy, bilious, feverish or weak; when breath is bad, tongue coated, or they're suffering from nausea, gas, or lack of appetite or energy.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is made today according to the original formula, from herbs and other pure ingredients. It is pleasant-tasting; thorough in the most obstinate cases; gently effective for women and children. Above all, it represents a doctor's choice of what is safe for the bowels.—Adv.

How About Stribling, Maxie?

The sore left hand that figured prominently in Chicago's Battle of Postponements between William L. (Young) Stribling, the Georgia Cracker, and Otto Von Porat, tall Norwegian, has every reason to be sore now. The Georgian flicked that left in Von Porat's face for a couple of minutes and then hooked it savagely to the Norwegian's chin. The result can be seen in the picture above; Referee Ed Purdy counting off 10 seconds with Von Porat flat on his back. Young Stribling (in black trunks) once more looms as a dangerous foe for Champion Max Schmeling, or anyone else, for that matter.

Lone Cedar

Crops are beginning to need rain badly. Many, in fact, would not make even if it rained right away.

The Lone Cedar Sunday school was not as large as usual Sunday, but an interesting lesson was discussed. There were several reasons for the Sunday school being smaller, because some of the members were at other places, to singings, church or some other place. Carl Eakins delivered the message after Sunday school. Everyone enjoyed the sermon. He is a young minister just starting out. However he studies hard and brings out some deep thoughts.

Thurman Donowho preached here Sunday night. This was his fourth sermon. Lone Cedar is indeed fortunate in having two such men as these two young ministers.

Dan Donowho led the mid-week prayer service, and appointed Mrs. Graham to lead next Thursday night.

Miss Ruby Earl Nabors spent Saturday night at the home of Miss Johnnie Mae Alford.

Bird Exhibit Recalls Expert On Philippines

Exploits of Dean C. Worcester Bought to Force by Old Collection.

By HARRY W. FRANZ
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 27.—The recent acquisition of a large collection of Philippine birds by the United States National Museum brought to light the story of a scientist and ornithologist, Dean C. Worcester, now deceased, who became one of the foremost men of affairs in the Philippines after the American occupation.

The bird collection, of 1,500 specimens, was acquired from the Minneapolis Public Library, where it has been housed since the Young Expedition to the Philippines in 1909-10. Its collectors were Worcester, then an assistant professor of zoology at the University of Michigan, and Frank S. Bourne of Ann Arbor, Mich. These two men had made an earlier expedition to the Philippines in 1897.

As a result of his search for birds, Professor Worcester acquired an extraordinary acquaintance with all parts of the Philippine Archipelago, unparalleled by any other American of his time. In 1898, collaborating with Dr. Bourne, he published "Contributions to Philippine Ornithology," which contained not only a complete description of the bird life of the islands, but a wealth of

Shortly after this, the American Occupation of the Philippines occurred. Worcester was one of the few men here who had an intimate knowledge of conditions in the islands. He became a consultant of President McKinley and is said to have counseled sending of a special commission to the islands.

Worcester himself became a member of the United States Philippine Commission, serving from January, 1899, to September 1, 1901, during the critical transition period from Spanish to American regime.

Subsequently, Worcester became secretary of interior in the Philippine Insular Government, serving from September 1, 1901, to September 15, 1911. During this period he had a large part in the development of insular policies, and his many scientific and political publications had a great influence on developments in Washington.

The bird collection received by the National Museum fills numerous gaps in the Museum's previous collection, which not includes a total of between 7,000 and 8,000 Philippine birds, the largest in existence.

Among the rare specimens is the monkey-eating eagle, one of the largest birds of prey in the archipelago.

Contrasting with this are the small sun birds, of brilliant metallic blues, violets, and red—the Oriental substitute for the humming-bird, which exists only in the Western Hemisphere.

The collection includes numerous humbills, distinguished by their large grotesque beaks. Another strange bird is the megapode, which does not incubate its eggs, but buries them in a mound of decaying vegetation, and after four or six weeks returns to help the young bird dig itself out.

The white heron, common of the Oriental water buffalo; the swift, which prepares the edible bird-nest considered a delicacy by the Chinese; and numerous strange owls also are in the collection.

Scientifically, the new collection is very important because it contains over 30 specimens from which scientific descriptions were written for the first time, and which constitute the original types for scientific purposes.

Besides birds, the National Museum now boasts splendid collections of Philippine insects and fishes.

ROGERS FINDS

OKLA IS O. K.
Will Rogers never misses a chance to publicize his home town, Claremore, Oklahoma. In "So This Is London," his Fox Movietone production, which comes to the Lyric theatre on 11 p. m. Saturday there is a scene on board ship headed for London with Will to duck. At every turn he seems to encounter an irrefragable kid, played by little Martha Lee Sparks of "Happy Days" fame.

The kid hurls one question after another at him until, finally, Will stops her and says:

"Wait a minute. You ask a lot of questions. Just what part of England are you from?"

And the little girl answers:

"Claremore, Oklahoma."

You don't have to guess who put that line in and it stays, too.

"So This Is London," adapted from the stage play by Owen Davis, Sr., who also wrote the dialogue, proves more delightful entertainment than Rogers' first Fox Movietone success, "They Had to See Paris."

Some Rich heads the supporting cast with Mary Forbes, Maureen O'Sullivan, Frank Albertson, Dudley Christy, Lamorne Case prominent in the cast. It is the forty-ninth directorial effort of John G. Blystone.

Kingsford-Smith Glad Trip Is Over

NEW YORK, June 27.—The Southern Cross rested in a hangar today from the rigors of a Newfoundland-to-New York flight that was as steadfast and brilliant as the stars for which she is named.

Carrying four weary men, the monoplane shot out of the sunset at Roosevelt Field yesterday and crashed to the conclusion of a flight that started at Fort Meade, passed at Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, and ended here.

Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith swung a leg out of the cockpit, stretched his cramped muscles and grinned.

"Gee," he said, "I'm glad to be here."

Ten thousand persons who had waited for hours at Roosevelt Field were equally as glad. They climbed over a wire fence and descended to the plane. Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, was caught in the swirl and carried along.

Grever Whalen, head of the Mayor's reception committee, yelled for police, but 125 patrolmen were helpless.

An hour later order was restored and Kingsford-Smith and his companions were on their way to a hotel for a night's rest.

The E. D. T. Before landing Kingsford-Smith brought the Southern Cross down to 500 feet and dipped in salute the wings that already have soared three-fourths of the way around the earth.

Today, Kingsford-Smith was making plans for flight to California which will give him the distinction of being the first man ever to fly around the world using a single plane and the same crew. Last night he said he would leave "within a week."

Churches

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church
June 29th 1930. Mass at 8 a. m. This is the Third Sunday after Pentecost and also the Sunday with the octave of the Sacred Heart and the feast of Saints Peter and Paul. The gospel of the Sunday is from St. Luke XV, 1-10. This gospel speaks of the good shepherd who leaves his ninety-nine sheep and goes after the one sheep that is lost and seeks it till he finds it and brings it home rejoicing.

So Jesus goes after the sinner trying by grace to bring him back and it is successful when the sinner is ready and willing to do his part. Christ died for every individual, hence he has done more for each one of us than either father, mother, brother, sister, son or daughter.

Jesus loves with a divine love and longs for our eternal salvation. Let us do our part.
