No Longer Can We Take Freedom for Granted

This year's observance of Brotherhood Week, the annual programs sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews, comes at a specially fortunate time.

First, the week Feb. 19-26, falls within the period when the present Constitution was being ratified by the states 150 years ago. And almost at this exact time, Massachusetts was ratifying with the distinct reservation that the new Constitution must contain a "Bill of Rights." This was later embodied in the first 10 amendments to the Constitution, and is the national charter of religious liberty.

It is entirely clear that the Constitution could not have been adopted without the promise of such guarantees by later amendment. Hence the first 10 amendments are properly regarded as an integral part of the Constitution itself, though adopted a couple of years later after being submitted to the states by the First Congress.

So 150 years after this Constitution, Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish leaders throughout the country are urging "a new study of the Bill of Rights and its implications for a free America." That is timely and proper.

It was the first clause of the first of those precious 10 amendments that read "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof . . ."

What that meant was that Congress shall not establish a state church, with special privileges and relations to the government, as in the England with which the American colonists had been most familiar. And the second phrase means just what it says, that Congress shall pass no law prohibiting people from worshipping God as seems to them good.

For years those simple things have been taken for granted. We have said "Of course, those were progressive steps when they were taken, 150 years ago, but they are elemental now."

So they were, until recently. Now even these elemental principles have been challenged. It is good to see Protestants, Catholics and Jews rising together to defend them. Such co-operative action brings about mutual understanding, which lies even deeper than constitutional guarantees. And it is grounded on the solid foundation that loss of freedom for any is the end of freedom for all.

Variation on a hallowed American political theme: Garner-for-President boom is launched at his mother's log cabin birthplace.

An economic rolyatist wants to borrow the leaning tower of Pisa from Mussolini. He'll use it for local headquarters of the WPA.

A Texan found a five-dollar bill pinned beneath a Christmas gift tie. Most of us merely got five more ties.

Increase Only Sure Thing About Pensions

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The old folks are going to get a break at this session of Congress. The only question is who gives it to them and how big it is.

On the one hand, the administration wants to liberalize the Social Security Act. It aims to hand out more money and hand it out to more people.

On the other hand, various free-lance senators and representatives are offering everything from the original Townsend Plan down to relatively mild changes in the existing law.

All of these trends operate on one another. Out of them, in one way or another, will come help for the aged on a broader base.

The administration wants to make more people eligible for old age insurance—that's what you pay for in salary deductions each week—and wants to change the old age benefit plan so that more federal money can go to states unable to maintain pensions at a decent level.

At the opposite extreme is a measure called the General Welfare Act, introduced in the Senate by Senator Claude Pepper and in the House of Representatives by Joe Hendricks, both of Florida. It is the Townsend Plan without the $200-a-month floor. It calls for a straight two per cent transactions tax and flat monthly payments to everyone over 60, with the provision that the person getting the money must give up his job and spend all his money as fast as he gets it—viz. monthly.

Its sponsors figure that it would provide at least $60 a month to start and probably more. Eventually, they say, it would furnish the full $200.

Then there is Senator Sheridan Downey of California, who rode into office with Townsendite backing, and who says that while he did not initiate or advocate the famous California pension plan, he thinks the country has got to raise its purchasing power through some system of old age annuities.

"Our farms and industries are operating at half capacity," he says. "We must double our purchasing power, and to do it we must raise wages and get decent retirement annuities into the hands of our senior citizens."

Within a few weeks Senator Downey will declare himself from the Senate floor. He likes the General Welfare Act but doesn't think it goes far enough, and asserts that the country must pay pensions of at least $100 a month.

Senator Edward C. Johnson of Colorado is out to amend the existing act. He would lower the age limit for old age assistance payments from 65 to 60, which would create a $45 pension in all states which matched the federal government's payments.

Finally, there is Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massachusetts.

Senator Lodge last year examined the huge revolving fund which is set up under the old age benefits section of the Social Security Act, and figured that it was so big that the payments could be increased without hurting anything. So he brought in an amendment which would have made a straight boost of 33 per cent in the benefit payments.

His idea caught on, and he came within a few votes in getting it through the Senate. He is still for it, and he will be heard from before the session ends.

Training Is An Aid To Family Health

By United Press

CLEVELAND, O.—No longer need home be a turmoil because mother has gone to the hospital or junior has the measles—than's to a new course at the Family Health Association for the training of home-nursing attendants.

Doctors long have stressed the need for women who can come into a home and take over the combination duties of practical nurse, housekeeper and—to some extent—cook. The home attendant training course here answers this need.

Women enrolled in the course learn all about supervising a home and how to care for invalids, infants, and minor illnesses such as cooking-tove burns or housemaid's knee.

"There has been a pressing need in Cleveland for that kind of attendant for a long time," the director of the association, Miss Eta Creech, said.

"A group of Cleveland women studied the possibilities of a training course to meet the demand for home attendants. The organization was completed in September and by next summer we hope to have 32 home nursing attendants on our call list.

Job Help Offered

"The training course also gives many women who cannot afford a regular training course for nurses a chance to make a living," she added.

Here's the training the women receive to qualify as full-fledged home nursing attendants:

First, they attend classes at the health association, whose headquarters have modern kitchen and dining room equipment for student practice purposes.

Then the students go to school at various institutions for six months. These institutions include day nurseries and convalescent homes.

By that time, the student attendants know how to cook and serve meals, to care for the sick and the multitude of duties connected with supervising a house.

The association, while answering requests for home attendants, has not forgotten a home attendant who never took a formal training course, but learned through experience—grandmother. Grandmother often is criticized for doing things the "old-fashioned" way, but this complaint will be a thing of the past after she completes attendance at a series of meetings for grandmothers.

Living Alone Discussed

The meetings are opening with general discussions on such subjects as: "The 1939 Baby," "My Son's Wife," "Living Alone" and "How to Get the Most Out of Life."

One grandmother told Mrs. Elva Horner Evans, health instructor at the association, that "there never were any complaints about the way I took care of my daughter when she was a baby, but it appeared that everything I tried to do for my young grandson was wrong."

"I picked him up when he was unhappy and once I fed him out of the regular time schedule because he apparently was starving to death."

"So I want somebody to teach me how the 1939 mothers do the job—I'm not too old to learn."

You'll enjoy these three stars in "WINGS OF THE NAVY" A Cosmopolitan production released by Warner Bros. coming soon to your local theatre.

Largest Legislature Ends Smoking Ban

By United Press
CONCORD, N. H.—Not only is the New Hampshire legislature the largest in the country, but it aspires to be the most comfortable.

Its 451 members have voted to allow smoking during legislative sessions. The proposal was sponsored by a woman non-smoker "in behalf of the women members."

"OUT OUR WAY" ————— By William

Folks, Meet Governor O'Daniel of Texas

Cynthia Parker Will Be Basis For Texas Opera Given Feb. 16

By United Press
DENTON, Tex.—The stage is being set for presentation of Texas' first indigenous opera here Feb. 16.

The opera is "Cynthia Parker," based on the romantic story of Cynthia Ann Parker, daughter of white settlers of Limestone County, Texas, who was kidnapped by the Comanche Indians. She later became the wife of Chief Nocona of the tribe, and after she became mother of several children was recaptured from the Comanches by the famous Captain Sul Ross and his company of Texas Rangers.

Julia Smith, librettist of the opera, has confined the story to the prologue, however. The play itself tells how Cynthia Ann and her baby, Prairie Flower, were returned to civilization, and the plot thereafter revolves around the white woman's inability to live the life of her own people after having been among the Indians.

The Julliard School of Music will sponsor at least two performances of the opera in New York following its premiere here, officials of North Texas State Teachers College said. The college officials also are attempting to arrange for the opera to be staged at the New York World's Fair.

Leonora Corona, Metropolitan Opera star, who will arrive Feb. 10 to assume the title role, is a native of Texas. The author, Miss Smith, also is a Texan, a graduate of the college here, and the holder of a Julliard Fellowship in composition.

The average cloud weighs 300,000 pounds, which, it may be supposed, includes the silver lining.

Campus Research Finds Co-Eds Are At Odds On Kiss

AKRON, O.—How can a co-ed be glamorous on her dates? Should she permit the "good night kiss" and what should she do as regards smoking and drinking? These are problems that the Women's League, student government organization at Akron University, has set out to answer.

"Boy-and-girl relationships seem to be the most pressing problem," said Virginia Wecker, attractive sophomore, who is compiling the information. "We submitted questions to every co-ed on the campus in an effort to determine the correct technique for teas, dances, and for dates generally."

One of the major problems, the survey shows, is that of the good-night kiss. "Many freshmen girls think it necessary to kiss to be dated," she said, "but we think we can show that this is not always the case."

Miss Wecker said that the booklet idea had grown from a long need. It was proposed by the league, a student government organization, and quickly won the support of Helen Battrick, dean of women.

"There are the many problems of smoking, drinking, and the correct attire to be worn at university parties, teas and dances," Miss Wecker said. "Many of the girls who come here to school never have been to teas or even formal parties—at least not many times—and they are anxious to know about their behavior. And that's what we intend to tell them."

Miss Wecker said they intended to answer frankly "that old problem concerning kissing and petting."

"Whether or not a girl 'pets' is her own personal problem," she said, "but we are convinced that the most popular girls do not."

Miss Wecker said that since most girls want to please the boys the booklet would try to point out the "little things they can do to have both charm and poise."

"We also expect to supply clever ideas for campus dress which we know the boys like," she said. "Of course, our book primarily is to solve the problems of the girls on our own campus," she said. "It isn't intended as a guide to all college girls. Some of the answers, however, may apply generally."

It's all in the viewpoint. A drunkard with a red nose is simply carrying the badge of overindulgence. A politico with the same badge is merely in the pink of condition.

Elks Disbursed A Wide Variety Of Funds For Charity

HOUSTON.—More than one hundred thousand dollars has been disbursed for a wide variety of charitable purposes by the Elks National Foundation, since its inception in July, 1928. W. W. Short, President of the Texas State Elks Association, announced yesterday on receipt of a report from John F. Malley, Boston, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Foundation.

"The Elks National Foundation was established by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to foster, promote and assist in financing the welfare activities of the Order," Mr. Short said yesterday. "Its principal fund as of May 31st last totaled approximately half a million dollars. The fund is administered by a board of seven trustees, all of whom are former Grand Exalted Rulers of the Order. The fund's entire income is used each year and its principal remains intact. It has no administrative expenses. These are all taken care of by the Grand Lodge.

Mountie Tells Of 1874 Campaign

LONDON.—A man who was one of the original "mounties" who established law and order in the wild Northwest Territories of 19th century Canada has been found living in London.

He is James H. Fullwood, 88, who believes that as ex-trooper 160 he is the only surviving member of the three troops of the newly formed Northwest Mounted Police which, on June 13, 1874, crossed the United States border into Alberta.

They went to exterminate the Montana "bad men" who were plying the Indians with whisky, robbing and murdering them, and preying on the few white settlers scattered through the territory.

So widespread had their activities become that they were endangering the peace of the Dominion. The "mounties" had orders to suppress them at all costs.

"We finally moved them off from Fargo, N. D., in a column two miles long—horses and men, cattle, farm implements and Red River carts which you could hear squeaking a mile off," Fullwood said.

"We were making for Edmonton, Alberta, at the foot of the Rockies, which he had to patrol. It was a hard trip of well over a thousand miles. It took us under five months.

"It was especially hard on the horses and cattle. Forage was scarce and grazing generally nonexistent. Yet day after day our horses covered 50 miles. Long before we made camp at night the men were leading them.

"About half-way along our trail we had to establish a 'crippled camp' for men and horses. Shortly after that the main body, which carried on, had plenty of meat for the first time. We were in buffalo country.

"Our Colonel MacLeod established his post in the Porcupine Hills. It was the first post ever built by the new police, and I helped with the construction. Today it is the town of MacLeod.

"We had little trouble with the Indians. They soon realized that we were there to protect them and they became our allies in our fights with the criminals."

Fair Visitors Will Hear Human Heart

SALT LAKE CITY.—At the request of the American Medical Association, a Salt Lake City sound recording engineer, James B. Keyser, is preparing a special transcription through which visitors to the Golden Gate exposition in San Francisco this year may hear the beat of a human heart.

The recording, highly amplified, will be played while the A. M. A. exhibit at the exposition is open to visitors. The recordings are made by means of an electrical stethoscope, placed over the heart of patients in a Salt Lake City physician's office. The electrical impulses are carried by telephone wires to Keyser's recording studio and "refined" so that disturbing noises caused by "heart murmurs" and heart leakages are eliminated before the sound is recorded on wax master discs from which the transcriptions are prepared.
