

Demand For West Texas Crude Rises

Better Prices Forecast; About Half Of Storage Filled

West Texas oil is becoming more in demand, as indicated by heavy withdrawals of crude from storage, reducing stocks to around 27,000,000 barrels and leaving room for more than 24,000,000 barrels. The continuing heavy withdrawal has given rise to hopes of an increase in the present flat price of 35 cents for the crude.

Daily average withdrawals in the Permian Basin, including Lea county, N. M., during the week ending Sept. 22 were 5,965 barrels less than during the preceding week, but amounted to 71,175 barrels.

Daily average distribution in the basin decreased 15,146 barrels to 274,589 barrels while daily average production in fourteen West Texas counties declined 8,207 barrels to 203,424 barrels. Assuming that Lea county produced a daily average of 42,000 barrels, figures on that county not being obtained the demand exceeded the supply by 29,175 barrels during the week ending Sept. 22.

The decrease in daily average distribution was due largely to a decline in daily average pipe line runs of 14,606 barrels to 245,454 barrels. Daily average runs to refineries were 25,315 barrels, 141 barrels less than during the preceding week, while daily average tank car shipments dropped 400 barrels to 800 barrels daily.

Members Believe Third Session Is Sure This Year

AUSTIN, Oct. 5.—Both houses of the legislature have been told by their members that another session of the lawmaking bodies in January is inevitable.

The legislature has been in session nearly 190 days this year.

The repeated sessions, including a four-month regular term, have revived discussion of the often-repeated idea of having a permanent lawmaking body in session 12 months of the year.

Such a system is possible. Its adoption may be nearer than now expected. One of the adjuncts of the present system has made it semi-operative now. But if or when it is made fully effective, the state must, at least, cut down the number of lawmakers to one at which it can stand the toll of expense.

The present trend toward permanent sessions is the growing number of legislative committees and joint commissions that function between sessions.

At present Texas has one on fees; one on taxation measures; one on employment; one on judicial districts and judiciary reforms; one on cotton administration. The state participates now in an interstate legislative reference arrangement. It will have lawmakers among others on its permanent Continental commission. Most any member who wants to is able to create a joint committee and get himself and several others appointed.

Now these lawmakers don't draw pay for between-session work; but instead of that merely have their expenses paid. One such committee, that on prison reforms, spent more in expenses between sessions than the services of its members would have cost in per diem (under the new $10 a day basis, rather than the old $5 rate) during a session.

The only limit on expense is that of being reasonably necessary. In effect, that takes the lid off, and includes necessary travel, necessary hotel facilities, necessary clerical staffs, necessary meals and other items.

Seemingly the way, if lawmakers are going to have to work at the job at all the time, would be to cut the senate from 31 to 21 members, and the house from 150 to 83 members, thus the pay of the 84 as a substantial amount to enable them to stay on the job and give their exclusive service to the state.

The state would benefit, and also would profit even though the pay would be a little greater than the present total.

Work Resumed On Boise City Santa Fe Round House Building

BOISE CITY, Okla., Oct. 5 (AP)—Work has been resumed on the construction of the Santa Fe roundhouse, a delayed shipment of steel having been received from Kansas City.

Delay in the construction work was largely due to several changes in plans, which have raised the total cost of the roundhouse about $5,000. One of these changes was from a cinder floor to six inches

$101,000 To Be Sought By State For Excess Fees

By RAYMOND BROOKS

Another $101,000 to the credit of the fee investigating committee. That much money will be sought for the state treasury, by action to get it back from officials and former officials holding it illegally.

A check by senate see investigators disclosed that in several hundred felony indictments, in which the cases were reduced to misdemeanor grade, the fees for law for felonies were collected by the various county and district officers from the state, while as misdemeanor cases should have been levied as costs against the defendants.

A total of about $108,000 in such illegal collection from the treasury was found. Out of it, less than $8,000 had been returned to the state.

Now probably 50 civil actions against officers and their bondsmen, and against former officers or their estates, likely will be possible, though the extent to which the possibility of criminal action might cause refunds to be made may be considerable.

Besides the salutary effect of serving notice to those supposed to enforce the law that they also must obey it, the monetary savings from the see committee's work this year would run the entire legislature for an entire four-month regular session.

A commentary upon the labyrinthine fee system and its corrosive abuses, was that the new Travis county grand jury stopped after a few indictments of public officers and said that if all the cases presented to it resulted in indictments it would swamp the court docket and again compound costs and fees to where "justice would be overpaid" even in the retributive prosecution by the state itself of charges that its officers had trampled down the laws they were sworn to uphold.

The legislature was told that its gesture of cutting $125,000 off the fee funds of the judiciary appropriation was an empty gesture. If unspent, the amount would revert to the treasury; but if it claims upon it exceeded the smaller amount, then the sums would be paid out anyway and some future legislature would have to foot the bill, the lawmakers were told.

Explanations of the ruling that the tax moratorium law is void were made Friday by Atty. Gen. James V. Allred, who wrote the ruling, and Compt. George H. Sheppard, to whom it was sent.

Compt. Sheppard told members of the house he had not asked for it; that he did not agree with Allred; that the law is worthless, and that while he will be compelled to follow it until the courts act, he will force a court test at the earliest opportunity.

Atty. Gen. Allred in a written statement said his ruling erroneous.

usually had been credited with holding the legislature could not defer the payment of taxes.

"We made no such holding, and our opinion does not deal with the question of the legislature's right to provide split tax payments," Mr. Allred wrote.

"What we did hold was that there is a serious doubt as to the right of the legislature to remit interest and penalties on all past taxes up to such interest and penalties are part of the tax and are secured by liens."

Rep. E. M. Barron, author of the bill waiving interest and penalties on all past taxes up to next Jan. 31, insisted that the law was passed under the calamity section of the constitution, and that the courts would not "go behind the statement of facts recited by the legislature." He cited the Hidalgo county decision, and said other court decisions would sustain the law.

Mr. Barron argued that when Compt. Sheppard gets the law to court "it will be the constitutional duty of the attorney general to represent the department in an effort to uphold the law."

Mr. Sheppard had written the legislature a statement in which he concurred in their belief that a valid law laying aside penalties would help the state get in much revenue that could not be paid if heavy penalties and interest were added.

CHILDRENS COLDS

Checked 2 ways without dosing!

OVER 12 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

You purchase shoes, fruit and candy. You call for cigarettes.

It's like this: WHEN YOU

GO TO BUY A PAIR OF SHOES, you examine the leather, the way the shoes are made, their shape. You try them to see if they fit—if they satisfy you.

Why not follow the same method in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes that are made from the very best tobacco—mild, ripe, sweet. You want them made right. You want them free from harshness and bite and "pinches." In other words, you want cigarettes that satisfy you.

WHEN YOU GO TO BUY FRUIT—oranges, grapefruit, apples—you want ripe fruit, fruit that has matured before being taken from the tree; fruit that has been handled right and packed right; fruit that's the same throughout—not green on one side and ripe on the other.

Why not apply the same test in purchasing your cigarettes? You want cigarettes made from tobaccos handled right by the farmer—ripened, sweetened in the sun and cured right. You want cigarettes that taste the same, day in and day out. You want them pleasing in taste—mild and satisfying.

WHEN YOU BUY CANDY, you want to know, above all things, that it is pure. Is it real candy or are there a lot of other things mixed in with it? And you want it fresh. You want it freshly made and you want it so packed as to reach you just as it was when it was made.

Why not apply the same test when you buy your cigarettes? You want a cigarette that's pure; for purity counts in cigarettes just as it does in candy. Then again, you want a cigarette that's just as fresh as when it was made.

Now, if you apply to cigarettes all the tests that you apply in buying shoes and fruit and candy you will purchase CHESTERFIELD like millions of other smokers.

First, because tobacco men will tell you that in Turkey, Kentucky, Georgia, the Carolinas, Virginia, and Maryland, only the mildest, ripest tobacco is bought for CHESTERFIELD—tobacco cured by the sun's pure rays, by the farmers' slow-burning ovens, and finally by great high-pressure steam drying machines. In the tobacco regions where they grow tobacco and know tobacco, CHESTERFIELD is usually the leading seller.

Second, because the carefully selected CHESTERFIELD tobacco leaves are blended and cross-blended. This exclusive CHESTERFIELD blending method is not just mixing together different tobaccos—it is mixing them in such a way as to bring out the finer qualities of each. It's like producing a new and better type of tobacco—tobacco with greater mildness, more smoothness, much better taste.

Third, because the cigarette paper is selected with the same care. CHESTERFIELD paper is the purest, the best that money can buy. Then the cigarettes are made and packed by machinery in clean, sanitary factories. And the moisture-proof, attractive package—free from heavy inks or inky odor—comes to you just as if you passed the factory in the morning and took your CHESTERFIELDS from the machine.

Good . . . they've got to be good.
