Ours for the Asking

"A calendar of 1,000 events in Europe, in booklet form, is yours for the asking," announces a travel prospectus.

Yes. A thousand events, ours for the asking! See the 400,000 Spanish refugees, huddled in a corner of La Belle France, starving and miserable!

See the rebuilding of what used to be historic and beautiful Spain, and the establishment on its ruins of the world's newest authoritarian state!

See historic old Czechoslovakia, and the terrorized thousands clawing in agony at its iron gates, seeking the smallest chance to escape the German rule.

See historic Russia, but don't inquire what they did to people exactly like you in the recent days when they were building the Social Utopia with a firing squad.

Back on the sunny beaches of the Adriatic. The alarm may come soon enough to enable you to scramble to the bomb-proof shelter in time.

See the concentration camps and the panic look of a man who dares not answer a simple, civil question because he knows not who may be listening, what double-crossing spy his questioner may be!

See the little children, age 10, herded into ranks and shouting a shrill salute in their piping voices as the drill-master begins the task of whipping them into cannon fodder.

See the gas masks hanging beside every fireplace, and hear the drone of planes overhead. It's exciting, for you never know what moment they may stop playing and begin in earnest that spectacular "blossoming" of bombs which so impressed the esthetic Bruno Mussolini.

See the suspicious customs officials, stopping you every 30 miles and rummaging through your baggage. Meet the police every time you raise your camera, and feel the fine contempt that will be felt for you in so many places as a "decadent" citizen of a free republic.

Who knows, you may be lucky enough to encounter the Greatest Show of All—the authentic Next World War, the Five-Ring Carnival of Carnage.

A mere thousand events in Europe this summer? Pshaw! A million!

The American tourist will do well to plan his summer trip this year so as not to miss the ones that appeal to him the most.

Feminine figure skaters are growing more numerous. Many spectators are more interested in the figures than the skaters.

Kelly and Green oppose each other for mayor of Chicago. But what a swell team they'd make in an Irish community.

Scottsville, Ky., won't permit bachelors to work on city jobs. They pause too often to look at the passers-by.

Watermelon Talk At Rising Star Attracts Farmers

RISING STAR, April 15.—It's going to be watermelon cutting time in Rising Star around the middle of July and already one of the paramount topics of discussions in this town is what kind of a crop will be harvested this summer, and whether any melon grown this year will beat records set in the past by planters who have grown melons of prodigious size. Observers find that the subject of watermelons even transcends current political and weather questions as a subject for conversation. For nearly 50 years, watermelons have flourished in the sandy land around Rising Star and in 1903 the late S. H. Clark grew a melon which won second prize in a contest sponsored by the Atlanta, Georgia, Constitution for the largest melon grown in the South. The melon grown by Clark weighed 114 pounds and, according to old-timers, he had to have help to bring it in from his farm south of town. According to men living here at the time, Clark sold shares in the melon to ten men at a dollar each and the men cut the melon and ate it on one of the town's principal streets. The same year Clark produced two other large melons, weighing 91 pounds and 84 pounds. Seed from these melons failed to produce melons of equal size, however, and older residents of the town explain that he grew the melons by a method which he had developed. The old-timers say that Clark fed sweetened water into the melons with a jug which he filled each day. A piece of wool yarn served as a "wick" to feed the water into the melons on the vine. Before a market was established here the melons were not regarded as delicacies. R. A. Horton, pioneer druggist relates how in 1906 he bought a wagon load of choice melons for 85¢. George Goss, president of the Rising Star Watermelon growers association, several years ago picked five watermelons with a total weight of 200 pounds from the same vine. Watermelon production here has jumped considerably in the last few years. In 1937 more than 700 tons were marketed. The 1938 crop came to about the same total, but this year growers are looking for the largest crop in the section's history. Over 3,000 acres have been set to watermelons and there should be much cause for celebration when citizens of the town entertain with their annual watermelon slicing in July.

With Our Wildlife

BY JOHN R. WOOD,
State Game Warden

Wildlife Value on Farm and Ranch

There are many areas in Texas that do not realize the dollar and cent value of the wildlife resources of these lands. This may be because of the populations in the areas have depleted these resources to such an extent that there is little value received. Many areas are almost altogether agricultural sections and many wildlife species cannot exist on the area, although taking this into consideration this area would be adapted to many game birds and animals and could be made abundant if some time was spent in improving the area for them.

In many sections of Texas the landowners have taken advantage of this and many of them are receiving more for their wildlife crop than they are from their major agricultural crop whether it be cotton or livestock. In this article I am going to cite a few interesting facts collected by Dr. Walter P. Taylor, senior biologist in charge of the Texas Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the Texas A. & M. College.

During the 1936-37 full season four East Texas counties received more than $200,000 from the raw muskrat furs. Other furs marketed in 28 Eastern Texas counties no less than $365,000. In Walker county, Texas, this same period brought 84 trappers between $5,000 and $7,000, an average cash return to each trapper during a two month season $57.56.

In six Edwards Plateau counties the landowners received from the sportsmen more than $1,000,000—this money being spent on hunting leases supplies and services associated with their hunting trip. Seemingly it is no accident that communities where game is plentiful and hunting excellent, and in which sportsmen delight to gather in the fall, are relatively prosperous in appearance and in fact. These landowners stated that "the game on their land makes more money for them than their livestock."

A Goliad county rancher has so many bobwhites on his place that he leases his 1,000 acre ranch for $500 for the season simply for training dogs without any shooting of the birds.

One rancher in the Davis Mountains leases his huge 18 section ranch for hunting mule deer. For the two weeks open season this particular ranchman received between $550 and $1,250 depending on the increase of the mule deer and what per cent could be killed yet save an adequate seed stock for the next season.

The Biological Survey and the United States Museum of Natural History have at their disposal the greatest amount of pertinent information on wildlife ever made available anywhere in the world. Taking into account all phases of the situation the Survey has made the following estimates of the present annual positive values of Texas wildlife.

Direct items include meat and fur at 14 cents a land acre, amounting in Texas to $23,510,869, the destruction of insects by birds $44,670,635; inland fishing resources, 44 cents an acre of water surface, $985,036. Indirect values embrace the so-called recreational features—hunter's fee, $220,516, and the amount spent by hunters, estimated at $25 each, $840,800, and finally the amount expected by tourists at an estimated 13 cents an acre for the state, $22,122,548. Thus the annual totals for Texas, including all values direct and indirect aggregate $94,350,394, a substantial part of which is a part of Texas farm income.

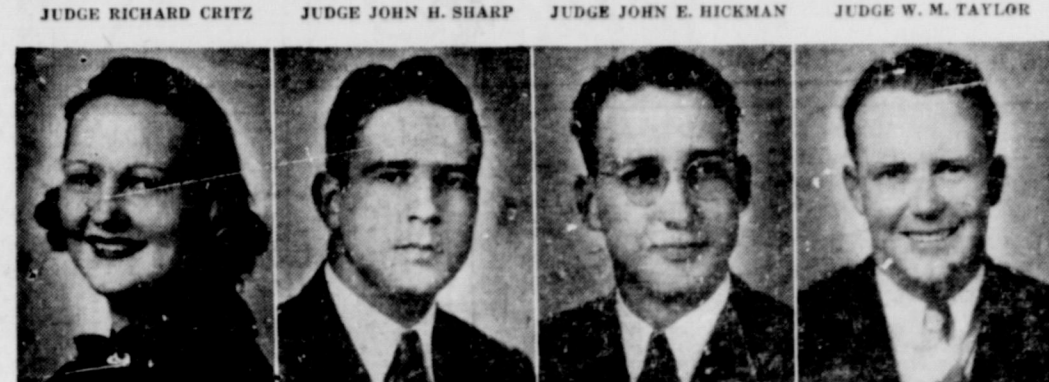

Many of you have heard the lecture "Acres by Diamonds" by R. J. Conwell, the eminent Philadelphia minister. As I remember, he dealt with the adventures of an ambitious individual who traveled around the world seeking his fortune and finally found acres of diamonds in his own back yard. We in Texas are somewhat like that with our wildlife resources.

though larger than Belgium—it is approximately the size of Portugal—has only 1,600,000 inhabitants. The neighboring country of Haiti with half its area, has twice the population. The republic finds that more than half its area is fertile, unutilized land suitable for crop production.

The refugee plan is predicated upon the belief that the Dominican Republic must grow in its rural centers, rather than in its urban districts. Hence this projected plan for refugee settlement discourages those who would settle in its score or more of larger cities. In fact, it offers concessions to those who will agree to promise to settle in virgin territory.

Rich, loamy topsoil extending down a dozen feet or more, with a dry, warm climate make the island particularly well adapted to the cultivation of sugar cane (its major crop), tobacco, coffee, coconuts, rice, bananas, Indian corn, potatoes, beans, onions, peanuts, pineapples, oranges, lemons, cotton and precious woods. It likewise is rich in mineral resources of gold, iron and copper.

HONOR GUESTS AT ANNUAL "LAWYERS' DAY" AT SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY

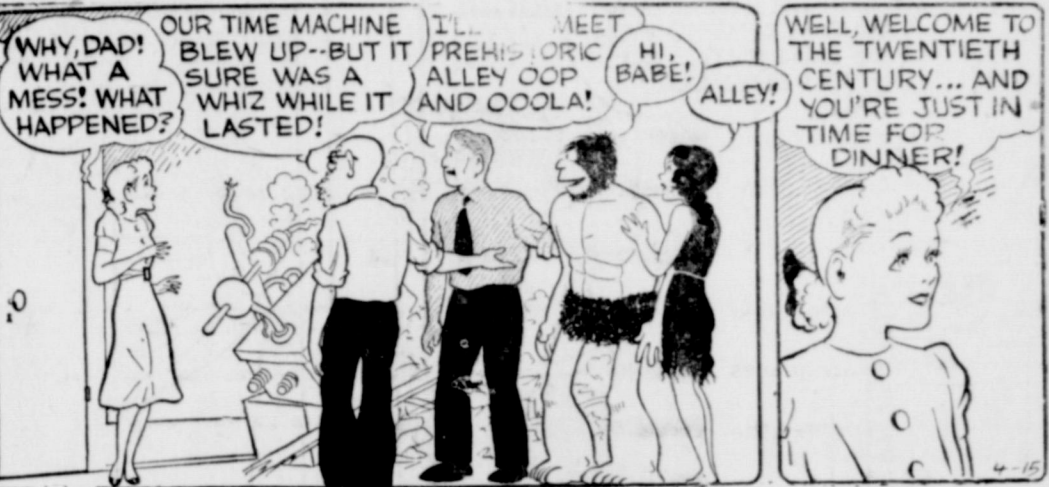

On April 21st the students and faculty of the School of Law will celebrate their annual "Lawyers' Day," with the Supreme Court of Texas, the members of the two Commissions of Appeals, and the Courts of Civil Appeals of Eastland and Dallas as honor guests. All lawyers are invited to attend.

The case involving the power of a court of equity in Texas to restrain defamation of a person's business with the purpose of destroying such business will be argued by Miss Mary Nell Cullum, Harry Shuford, Jack Blackmon, and Nat Pinkston. Miss Cullum is the first woman in the history of the school to participate in this event. Mr. Shuford was fullback and captain of the S. M. U. Rose Bowl football team of 1935.

HEY CALL IT CHEMURGY: SCIENCE PROVIDES THE LABORATORY'S ANSWER TO FARM SURPLUSES

Milk Into Suits and Dresses; Cotton for Roads and Bathtubs; Autos From Soybeans—Well, Read It

By Paul Friggens
NEA Service Staff Writer

FTER the "chemurgic" farmer. He sells skim milk to make glass, synthetic suits and dresses. He plants soybeans to build automobiles, corn and wheat to run them. He grows cotton for roads, houses, sic, and bathtubs. He markets his straw stack for paper and even the chips in the dplle are profitable. They make perfume. Fantastic! It might have been 20 years ago, even five years ago, today. For the scientist has gone to work to put the farmer back on his feet and the result is: chemurgy.

The word "chemurgy" comes from the Greek, "ergon," meaning work, and the Egyptian "chemi," origin of chemistry. So it means putting chemistry to work—for the farmer.

But here is no revolutionary idea. Its sole objective is the increase of farm income through the creation and the expansion of markets for American farm products as industrial raw materials.

HERE'S HOW IT WOULD FUNCTION

Consider how it would work. Iowa farmers, facing a recurring surplus in corn, would truck their excessive bushels not to the local elevator but to the nearest "argol" plant where the corn would become a 10 per cent motor fuel blend.

Mississippi's cotton farmers would raise their cotton not to overstock southern warehouses and confound Congress but to build roads, houses, "rubber" ducts and scores of other things never before utilizing cotton.

Wisconsin dairymen, ordinarily pouring millions of gallons of skim milk to the hogs in a year, would truck it first to the nearest casein plant where the casein would be spun into synthetic "wool" and the by-products used in a variety of other forms. After this the milk could still have their fill and about 100 million gallons of skim milk would be left over.

Consider that the Iowa corn farmer and the Mississippi cotton farmer still found a surplus after utilization of their crops in these industrial purposes. What would chemurgy do then?

It would set these same farmers to raising new crops, perhaps beans which are already finding wide use in automobile and airplane manufacturing products. Or oil and castor beans, producing some of the valuable drying oils which the United States largely exports every year. It might even raise these same farmers to raising rubber and coffee, for chemurgy is confident that these crops can be successfully produced at home.

Thus, over a period of years, chemurgy, agriculture would absorb its farm surplus, acres would be put to work, crops would be substituted, old, new demands and new with would be created.

Chemurgy, as a matter of fact, already doing some of these things after four years' intensive experimentation that began with the first chemurgic conference at Urbana, Mich., in May, 1935. A record unfolds daily in the quarters of the National Farm Chemurgic Council at Urbana, O.

CHEMURGY ON ITS WAY

It was not to bear fruit, however, until May, 1935, when a conference of industrialists, farmers and scientists was called at Dearborn, Mich. There the National Farm Chemurgic Council was formed and financing underwritten by the old Chemical Foundation created during war time. Almost $1,000,000 was poured into immediate research under the direction of the late Francis P. Garvan.

Since 1937 the council has operated on its own resources, financed by its own membership. It works out through the laboratories of the nation, such as Michigan State College and the University of Illinois where specific grants have been made for chemurgic work.

Greatest impetus given in the last year was the provision in the new farm act creating four great laboratories to develop new uses for farm products, located at Peoria, Philadelphia, New Orleans and San Francisco. Each laboratory can spend $1,000,000 a year. Thus chemurgy comes of age, begins to go places.

Yesterday, Betty, Hope is in love with Betty, wants to tell her as they return from the canyon. But he remembers that Starr has the Saturday night date.

CHAPTER IX

"I KNOW I suggested it," Betty Mary was saying into her telephone, "but I think the celebration will have to be changed. Hope. Because I have a new idea. Now listen—you and Sheridan come to my hotel at 6 o'clock, for dinner. I have already ordered it. . . . No, I won't go out with you two. I don't want to be seen with you yet. I want to stay under cover. That's my new idea."

The argument lasted another five minutes, but in the end Messrs. Sheridan Starr and Hope Kildare of the U. S. Border Patrol entered the Paso del Norte Hotel burdened with gifts.

"I feel like Santa Claus looks," Sheridan admitted, behind his huge box of roses.

"You mean you look like Santa Claus feels," Hope grinned at his friend. "Me, I bring Mexican pralines, and a purse hand-woven by Indians. Flowers will and die, ha!"

But Betty Mary was touched by all of the gifts. She almost forgot dinner in her prolonged enthusiasm. Her eyes took on a misty look when she thanked the boys seriously, and told them they were the bravest, finest gentlemen she had ever known.

"Even if it's not so it sounds great, Betty Mary," Hope declared. "I hope we can keep you fooled. Anyway I hope I can. Sherry, he's just posing, really. He's just a flat-foot cop at heart. Me, I'm romantic, and handsome, and—"

"And garrulous, and lazy, and impressed by a senorita he met in Juarez, Betty Mary," big Sherry interrupted. "He's not to be trusted."

"I am! I mean I'm not!" Hope was tangled now. "I just said she was a pretty girl, is all. Anyway, that was a month ago and—"

"Sh-h-h-h, stop jabbering!" Betty Mary commanded. "Especially about another girl. I shall be jealous. If there really is a senorita in Juarez, Officer Kildare, I shall call and insult her, so there! I'm going to Juarez myself."

"What for? Let's go tonight. To a cabaret, or a theater. Huh?"

"No, I'm serious. Sit down, boys, and let's talk business while dinner is coming up. Now, I really am going into Mexico, this very night. I'm going under cover, too. I mean, I shall go as Miss

Paul Wins Recognition for Gentiles

Text: Acts 15:23-29; Galatians 2:1, 2, 9, 10

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

THE meaning of the Gospel for Paul and the significance of the discovery that the grace of God is for all men without distinction. Later, he was to write, "If any man be in Christ Jesus, he is a new creature; old things are passed away, all things are become new."

The emphasis in these words should be placed on the word "any," and very quickly in the early Christian Church this power of the Gospel unto salvation was made manifest in the types of men and women who were brought into the new fellowship. But this did not happen without a great deal of controversy and without protest.

There were some who felt that gentiles either had no place in the church at all, or that if they were to come into this new fellowship, they must come by becoming first of all Jews through the rite of circumcision and being made subject to the ritual requirements of the Jewish law.

PERHAPS it was natural that those who had been brought up strongly in the Jewish law and tradition should feel that way, and should regard it as a reflection upon Moses and his great leaders that a new religious community should grow up fulfilling the great ideas and ideals of Moses and the prophets, yet free from the ritual requirements that had developed around these great teachings.

Paul, however, was insistent upon the rights and privileges of these new Christians. He saw the experience in Christ Jesus transforming men and women, turning saints into sinners, and he saw that this experience was not by any means confined to those of any one race or of any one form of religious association. Those who came into the Christian Church from the pagan world under the power of the

Hardin Classifies Senators On Pensions

By United Press
AUSTIN, Texas—Sen. Doss Hardin told the Senate members they were composed of three groups. He designated them as:

- (1) Those willing to vote for increased old age assistance.
- (2) Those who think there should be no increase in pensions.
- (3) Those who will vote to increase the pensions but will not vote to levy the taxes to pay them.

Hardin said so far as the old folks are concerned the effect of the votes of the last two groups is the same.

"If you want to be for the old people, you have to vote for more liberal pensions and also for the money to pay them," Hardin asserted.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES

Sunday school, 9:45 a. m.
Morning worship, 11 a. m.
Wednesday, testimonial service 8 p. m.

Public cordially invited.

"Doctrine of Atonement" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 16.

The Golden Text is: "We also joy in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement" (Romans 5:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here; for he is risen, as he said" (Matthew 28:5,6).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Our Master fully and finally demonstrated divine Science in his victorious death and the grave" (page 45).

Jordan, but I certainly won't know you. I am going to be a giddy tourist asking questions and sketching pictures. I have studied art a little. I have a plan."

"Yeah? What sort of plan?" Hope smirked, knowingly.

"I'm going to get more information on Mr. Luis Barro."

"Now listen here, Betty Mary, you—"

"You listen yourself. Both of you. Those prisoners you took admitted they were Barro's customers, didn't they? Barro sent them over, you said. Just as I learned, in advance. Well, we still didn't capture Barro, and trouble with him may keep on indefinitely unless we get more information as to his movements, and do something to put a stop to him. See? He must be lured to our side of the line."

"All right. But you, a girl, can't be risking—"

"Oh, I can't? Are you my boss, you two?" She dimpled at the big men. "Listen, your boss sent me out here to fire you! Maybe I will!"

"Aw! But listen, Betty Mary. No; you listen. I have already reserved a hotel room in Juarez. I shall carry a .22 rifle cartridge in my purse. It has proven to be a badge of membership in Barro's band. It sounds fantastic, maybe, but luckily it's true. You couldn't possibly use that knowledge yourselves, and you haven't had any luck hiring confidential helpers. I am unknown here yet. Maybe I can be of some real service. Anyhow I am going to try."

THEY spent nearly three hours arguing and discussing the strategy further. When the two men perceived that she was determined, they helped her map out a detailed course to follow.

Hope and Sherry knew certain places in Juarez—restaurants, cabarets, hotel lobbies, theaters, gambling halls—where Luis Barro was known to visit. They also knew that he kept a suite of rooms in the Montezuma Hotel, but that he had other residences, too.

Betty Mary agreed just to move cautiously by hinting, when she thought the time was ripe, that she wanted help in smuggling some aliens into the United States. Or hinting that she had certain valuable commodities to be slipped in. Or just discreetly displaying her .22 cartridge where it might get her "in," with some of Barro's gang.

The latter procedure, they felt, would be safest and most likely to produce results. But the two officers didn't like any of it and

Las Leñas Entertained

One of the most delightful parties of the season was held Thursday in the attractive home of the James Hortons in honor of members of the Las Leñas Club.

The home was beautifully decorated with spring flowers. The guests were all dressed as characters in well known books with prizes awarded for the best costume. Miss Carolyn Doss, dressed as Huckleberry Finn, was awarded the prize.

Games and contests were enjoyed, with prizes awarded to Carolyn Doss, Dorothy Day, Mrs. Kenneth McElroy, Miss Jessie Lee Ligon and Florence Perkins. Lovely gifts were presented each as first prize winners in the contests held.

Officials announced that plans are being completed for the May Day festival that the club is sponsoring. The school children are already working on the May Pole dances and various drills.

The Junior Class of high school is sponsoring a contest for the election of a king and queen for the festival. Miss Charlton Marx and her committee will have charge of the coronation ceremony.

The most popular girl and boy will be chosen from the contestants to reign over the festival, it was announced. Mrs. Bennett stated that there will be 200 school children in the May Day program.

Guests listed: Mrs. Hollis Bennett, Mrs. Roy Birmingham, Mrs. Jack Ammer, Miss Marguerite Quinn, Miss Joan Johnson, Miss Mary Carter, Mrs. Warren Chalkler, Miss Dorothy Day, Miss Carolyn Doss, Mrs. Viola LaMunyon, Miss Jessie Lee Ligon, Miss Charlton Marx.

Shower Honors Bride A gift shower was given Friday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Williamson, Sr., complimenting Mrs. Terrell Williamson, who before her recent marriage was Miss Grover Nell Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover N. Collins.

The attractive home was beautifully decorated with spring flowers of white and pink and blue-bonnets. A bank of white blossoms was used as a centerpiece for the table.

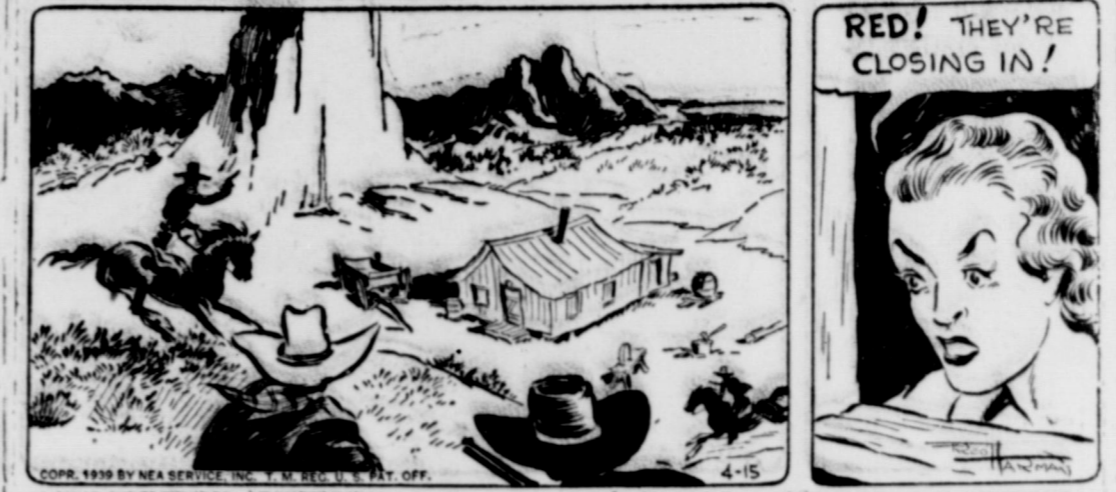

Games and contests were enjoyed. The gifts for the bride were presented in a clever manner, an old negro mammy, dressed for the part, brought in the gifts in an old fashioned wash tub and presented them to the bride.

A delicious plate was served by the hostess, using the decoration motif.

The bride received gifts from the following: Mrs. J. B. Griffin, Mrs. S. S. Williams, Mrs. Pat Smith, Mrs. M. O. Hazzard, Mrs. Jewell Fonville, Mrs. Tom Uttley, Mrs. Laura Murrell, Mrs. Tom Lovelace, Mrs. Ruby Green, Mrs. Vernell Hickman, Mrs. Grover N. Collins, Mrs. Winnie Lou Dorsey, Mrs. Lena Patterson, Mrs. John Blackwell, Mrs. Claude Strickland, Mrs. H. Bourland, Miss Katrina Lovelace, Mrs. Frank C. Williamson, Jr., and Mrs. Frank C. London Movies Are Testing Television

LONDON—Cinema television has come to stay. The success which attended the television broadcast in three London cinemas of the fight between Eric Boon and Arthur Danahar for the lightweight championship of Britain is prompting rapid development of this form of entertainment.

Gaumont British and Baird Television officials have decided to go ahead with the production of television apparatus to be installed in 350 cinemas.

More than 17,000 square feet of floor space is being added to the Baird factory at Sydenham, Kent, to facilitate the speedup of production.

The television broadcast in the three London cinemas was the first occasion the cinema paying public has had to see a great sporting event as it happened. At one the Scopophony system and at the other two the Baird system of cinema screen projection were used.

In an interview, Isidore Ostrer, chairman of Gaumont-British, said that he was arranging through a Gaumont-British official now in New York for top-line artists and sporting personalities to visit Britain and appear on the cinema television screen. Thus the television service would combine with the cinema interests and provide the solution to the high cost of artists' fees for public viewing.

The boat race between the famous Oxford and Cambridge crews and the cup final are two forthcoming sporting events likely to be televised to cinema audiences.

City Adds Fines But Crime Doesn't Pay

By United Press MARYSVILLE, Cal.—"Crime doesn't pay," especially when a municipality counts on crime for balancing its budget, according to local city officials. They decided to build a bigger jail, with more accommodations for petty offenders, and increased the police force accordingly, on the theory they could count on $7,500 police court revenue during the fiscal year to help pay for the new jail. However, crime failed to pay as expected and the budget will be $3,000 short for the year.
