HOUSE AGAIN MAY VOTE UPON A SALES TAX

AUSTIN, Tex., June 10.—Stiffening lines threatened tonight to continue the 46th legislature's deadlock over raising old age pension money.

Rep. R. G. Piner, Jr., of Greenville, said that opponents of a constitutional amendment will make another drive to get the Texas Senate to act favorably on a tax statute.

Rep. E. H. Thornton, Jr., of Galveston, floor leader for the group supporting submission of a constitutional amendment, announced another effort to pass it will be made in the house.

Opponents of the constitutional amendment claimed that pressure being brought to switch the six more votes needed for it in the house had caused a reaction and resentment. Sponsors thought that the needed six votes would be won over before the end of the week.

Another week seemed definitely agreed upon as the limit for the legislative session. It already has operated a month over the 120-day period of a regular session and has established a new length record.

Old Friends of 61 Years Ago United Because of Slave

DALHART, Tex.—Two old friends who had not heard from each other in 61 years have renewed their boyhood acquaintance—and all because one of them got a shave.

West Texas newspapers recently carried the story that W. A. (Uncle Billy) Ketchum, 84 years old, had acknowledged the arrival of spring with his annual shave. He wears a full beard all winter, and when he strips down to a mustache and Van Dyke in the spring the old-timers know that winter is over.

Among the readers who saw the story of Uncle Billy's shave was George W. Forrester in Whitney, Texas. He wrote Uncle Billy a letter.

"I see in the paper that winter is over and you have taken your annual shave and it aroused my curiosity," he wrote. "I want to know if you are the Bill Ketchum that used to live on Steel's Creek in Bosque county."

Forrester then asked Ketchum if he remembered the night they went to church with their girls, expecting to get to walk the long way back home with them. But after church the girls decided to go visiting in another county and the boys had the long walk alone.

Uncle Billy laughed when he read the question. It marked Forrester as his long-lost buddy.

"I sure do remember that," he said.

NEW SECURITY LAWS PASSED BY THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The house today passed and sent to the senate a comprehensive series of social security amendments, designed to liberalize benefits, reduce taxes and extend the coverage of the program to about 1,000,000 more persons.

The majority of republicans helped administration forces to protect the bill against the attack of a bi-partisan bloc, seeking to increase the federal rate of contribution to state old age pensions.

While tax savings were estimated by the house ways and means committee to total $1,710,000,000 over the next three years, not all of them were actual reductions below present rates.

A total of $825,000,000 represented the amount that employers and workers were scheduled to pay during the next three years under existing law, but will not now have to pay. Other savings represented reductions below present rates.

Heart Attack Is Cause Of Death Of Former Film Actor

KING, QUEEN ON A QUIET VISIT TODAY

The king and queen left behind them 3,000,000 excited New Yorkers who staged the biggest show in their honor since Col. Charles A. Lindbergh came home from Paris.

In a little less than six hours the British Monarchs crowded in a noisy welcome at the Battery, after catching their first sight of New York's famous skyline from the destroyer Warrington, a brilliant parade through Manhattan, a typical American luncheon, and a tour of all the British exhibitions at the Fair.

The last event on their program was a reception at Columbia University, once known as Kings College, in honor of George III. At Columbia the king and queen met Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, noted educator and head of the school.

Then, tired but still smiling and apparently happy, they left the noise and crowds and sped up the Hudson River Valley by automobile for a rest and a hot dog picnic with the president.

Queen Elizabeth appeared particularly tired and her sunburn acquired in Washington, seemed to be a deeper scarlet, and toward the end of the world far trip the king's smile was faint.

In contrast to their slow approach through New York to the fair the royal automobile departed at high speed. Their visit to the fair had been cut drastically and by the time they headed for Hyde Park they were about an hour behind schedule.

Flag Day Will Be Held On June 14th

AUSTIN, Tex.—Special stress on observance of Flag Day, June 14, was suggested in Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel's proclamation for its observance in Texas this year.

"In these days of world-wide turmoil, when subversive influences are striving to discredit and destroy our country's ideals and institutions, it seems fitting that the history and meaning of our flag be called to mind. The flag of the United States has not been created by rhetorical sentences in declarations of independence and bills of rights. It has been created by the experience of a great people, and nothing is written upon it that has not been written by their life. It is the embodiment, not of a sentiment, but of a history.

"When boys and girls salute the flag, they do not merely express their pride that it is a flag honored over the world, but should remember that the flag represents the country to which they owe life-long allegiance. On whatever spot the flag is planted, there may freedom have a foothold, humanity a brave champion, and religion an altar!

"Now, therefore, I, W. Lee O'Daniel, governor of Texas, do, by virtue of the authority vested in me set aside and proclaim June 14, 1939, as Flag Day in Texas, and do urge that the Stars and Stripes be flown on all state buildings, and that all Texans pay tribute to our flag in fitting observance."

Colecott, a professional Klan worker for 16 years, succeeded Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, who had held the top rank in the hooded order since 1922.

Evans said that he did not retire or resign, but "I merely did not offer for re-election."

DEEPENING OF TWO WELLS STARTED IN THIS SECTOR

Irish Leader Held by U. S.

While Uncle Sam plays host to British king and queen, federal immigration authorities hold Sean Russell, above, leader of the Irish Republican Army that has declared "war" on England. Russell has been lecturing in the United States.

Eastland and Stephens counties this week received revival of work proceedings on two wells completed several years ago. One mile east of Cisco, Eastland county, Hickok Producing and Development Company began deepening of No. 1 Stamps, section 77, block 4, H&TC, which was completed in 1934 for gas. Deepening operations began at around 3,500 feet.

Success in a similar venture, work on Hickok No. 1 Amis, just west of Eastland, was said to have influenced the company to undertake deepening of the well near Cisco. In the Amis the company secured around 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas after deepening recently.

Lone Star Gas Company began deepening of No. 5 Brooks, southwest Stephens County. The well is located in section 54, block 1, T&P survey, and had produced gas for about 10 years from a depth of around 2,150 feet. Deepening operations will be taken to the Ellenburger.

W. R. Ritchie et al were under-dreaming eight-inch at 2,450 feet in their Weddington, 13 miles northwest of Cisco, section 2054, T&E L survey. This, too, is an Ellenburger project, Eastland County.

W. T. Lutton spudded No. 1 Been, section 13, block 3, H&TC survey, three miles southwest of Carbon, Eastland County. It is a 3,100-foot projected operation.

J. D. Cawley et al No. 1 Elzo Been, southwest of Okra, also an Eastland County test, had been advanced below 205 feet in the Stoker survey.

Northwest of Flatwood, Eastland County, G. M. Groce at 900 feet was drilling on No. 1 Yancey, section 15, block 2, H&TC survey. Hoffmann & Page No. 1 C. E. Hatcock, W. M. Rinks survey, nine miles southeast of Eastland and south of Ranger was drilling below 2,800 feet.

Stephens County
Leonard Simon et al on the Beck farm, Stephens County, section 1, block 6, T&P survey, three miles north of Caddo, was testing 1,648-62 feet.

Lone Star Gas Company No. 1 O'Connor, section 51, block 7, T & P survey, was drilling at 1,900 feet in Stephens County.

Wittmer, Knight and Ewing No. 1 Loving, also in Stephens, was drilling at 1,100 feet in section 66, BAL survey.

Breckenridge's townsite well, No. 2-A Gonzalus, just east of the Christian Church, had rig up. Pitzer and West are the operators.

Falcon Oil Company on the Hopper land, section 1142, TE&L survey, had been drilled past 2,900 feet one mile east of Crystal Falls, Stephens County.

German Police Are Fired Upon By Czech Assaultants

PRAGUE, June 10.—Unidentified persons were reported today to have fired upon two German policemen in the town of Nachod. The policemen were said to have returned the fire. It was not immediately known whether casualties occurred.

The Czech premier, Gen. Aloys Elias left for Kladno today to aid in the investigation of the shooting of Wilhelm Kneist, Nazi policeman, whose funeral was held today, as German authorities set a new deadline for the arrest of his killers, under the threat of even more severe penalties than those already imposed.

Before departing Elias visited the German state secretary, Karl Frank, and expressed the Czech government's sympathy and promised to search for the killer.

George I. Davenport, judge of 91st district court, Saturday announced that petit jurors originally called to report Monday should not report as it had been determined several of jurors for cases set then is not necessary.

Should the jurors originally called for Monday be needed later in the term, notices will be sent by the sheriff's department.

At first it was thought jurors would be necessary for cases set this week.

Word has been received in Kokomo that Miss Onah Jacks had requested Phyllis Donaldson of Kokomo to attend the A. & M. Short Course this summer.

It is an honor for her to get a special invitation to attend. Since Miss Jacks works with so many girls it is something unusual for her to specify one girl.

Phyllis is an outstanding member of the Kokomo 4-H club having completed all her goals for each of the four years she has belonged.

Her part on the program is "What the Kokomo 4-H club girls did to help build the clubhouse."

DON'T LET "GEORGE" DO IT

(An Editorial)

Congress, as big as it is and as powerful it may seem, is still in these good old United States, the property of the people. "George," your Congressman, if you please, no matter what district or from what state, is only human, just like you and I, subject to flighty whims and peculiar attitudes. An idea develops and the first thing the rest of the "Georges" know the thing is known as H. R. Number so and so or S. B. No. 38 etc. Then things begin to take an interest...

To most of the folks back home, all this is dry stuff, too much reading and digesting to do to worry about whether it gets by or not.

The most important element of all bills before congress is that the folks back home are really the most interested or should be and they have the real power to kill or pass any bill.

Right now, there is a bill before Congress known as the Neely bill. It intends to have a law passed that would stop one element of the motion picture industry in favor of the other element.

In the words of Will Irwin, famous writer the Neely Bill "is now considering, drawn up is probably 'These twin evils,' block booking and blind selling. The penalties are criminal, not civil. The public has refused to grow very much excited over the Neely bill. But the public is wrong when it regards the Neely bill with languid indifference. In revenue and general importance the motion picture business ranks among the first four of American industries. It is one of the greatest items and it is absolutely the most stable item in our export trade."

"Congress through the Neely bill is taking seriously" according to Irwin, a measure that would cut into revenues by millions of dollars, raise the price at the ticket window and bring a period of reorganization amounting to disorganization and all for the purpose of giving a group of exhibitors a few more weapons in their bucking with the distributors.

Frankly when the thing of motion pictures is boiled down to its importance to smaller communities such as ours in this section and even in the remotest hamlet, we can enjoy the best films almost first hand. The Neely bill would place our conditions and outlets whereby it would be months before we could see these pictures and then at a much higher price if at all.

There is no place in Congress for the exhibitors and distributors of motion pictures to scrap out their differences. That should be handled purely as their own personal problems.

If congress is the place to settle these differences then why wouldn't it be just as reasonable for one dayman to ask congress to make it unlawful for his competitor to drive down a certain street on a certain milk route thereby prohibiting him to make deliveries to any customer on that street.

The whole thing in a nutshell is that citizens of this community who enjoy motion picture entertainment at its best, should interest themselves individually or collectively in this Neely bill through their senator or congressman at Washington and write or wire them to kill the Neely bill. If such bills as the Neely bill are passed it only leads to other class legislation bills being presented and finally demoralizing the very internal fundamentals of democracy.

We trust that a wave of resentment to the Neely bill will flood our representatives at Washington that will remind them that the folks at home are interested in them as well as our own welfare.

Congressmen and Senators are all really red blooded Americans. "Georges" and they welcome constructive criticism and advice from those who sent them to Washington. If they do not, then they have no business representing the people.

Write or wire your representative at once to kill the Neely bill and let all keep up more with what's going on in congress and in our own legislature at Austin and above all, remember the golden rule in our reactions to any bill, that is in the progress of being voted on.

The motion picture industry locally is our most valuable entertaining feature. It maintains a large payroll that is productive to our own local interests. We can all do well to protect what we have and do everything possible to see that its legitimate progress of service is not hampered or destroyed by unfair legislation.

BRUCE CATTON - IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON, NEA Services Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—With the blessing of the Department of Agriculture, a gray-haired, quiet little man named David H. Young is out to make the legs of 45,000-500 American women do their share toward solving the cotton problem.

Frankly, Mr. Young wants those legs encased in cotton hose again, for at least part of the time.

He proposes to bring this about by devising cotton stockings which, for certain purposes, will be so good-looking and wearable that women won't be able to resist them.

It looks as if he might have some success, too. An expert in the hosiery trade, he was borrowed by the department last summer on a two-year loan and given a place in the Division of Textiles and Clothing of the Bureau of Home Economics.

He has obtained the co-operation of several textile companies, which have put some regular full-fashioned machines at work making cotton hose to his designs. He uses a combed yarn of long staple cotton, mercerized and put through a singeing process to give it a smoother texture. On his desk, he has two or three dozen samples of the finished process.

He has no idea of muscling in on the sheer hosiery field, and he isn't trying to create dress stockings. He has the notion that for occasions where a woman subjects her hose to a good deal of wear—for sports, for instance—something extremely good-looking and highly wearable can be offered that will have both style and price appeal.

Man and boy Mr. Young probably knows about as much about women's legs as any man in America. Billy Rose not excepted. He recalls the time when he was with the Resnick company in Indianapolis. He devised a new sort of weave, or twist, or something technical; anyway, the company wanted to try it out, so it made stockings of the new material, fitted out 100 of its girl employees with the new hose, and used them as guinea pigs.

"Do you know," says Mr. Young, "whenever any defect—any defect whatever—developed in a pair of those stockings, the girl who was wearing them had to troop right into my office and show 'em to me."

"While she was—in in them?" "Yes. Sometimes there would be several of them coming in at once. On that was nothing at all, compared with what I went through in Hollywood a year or two ago."

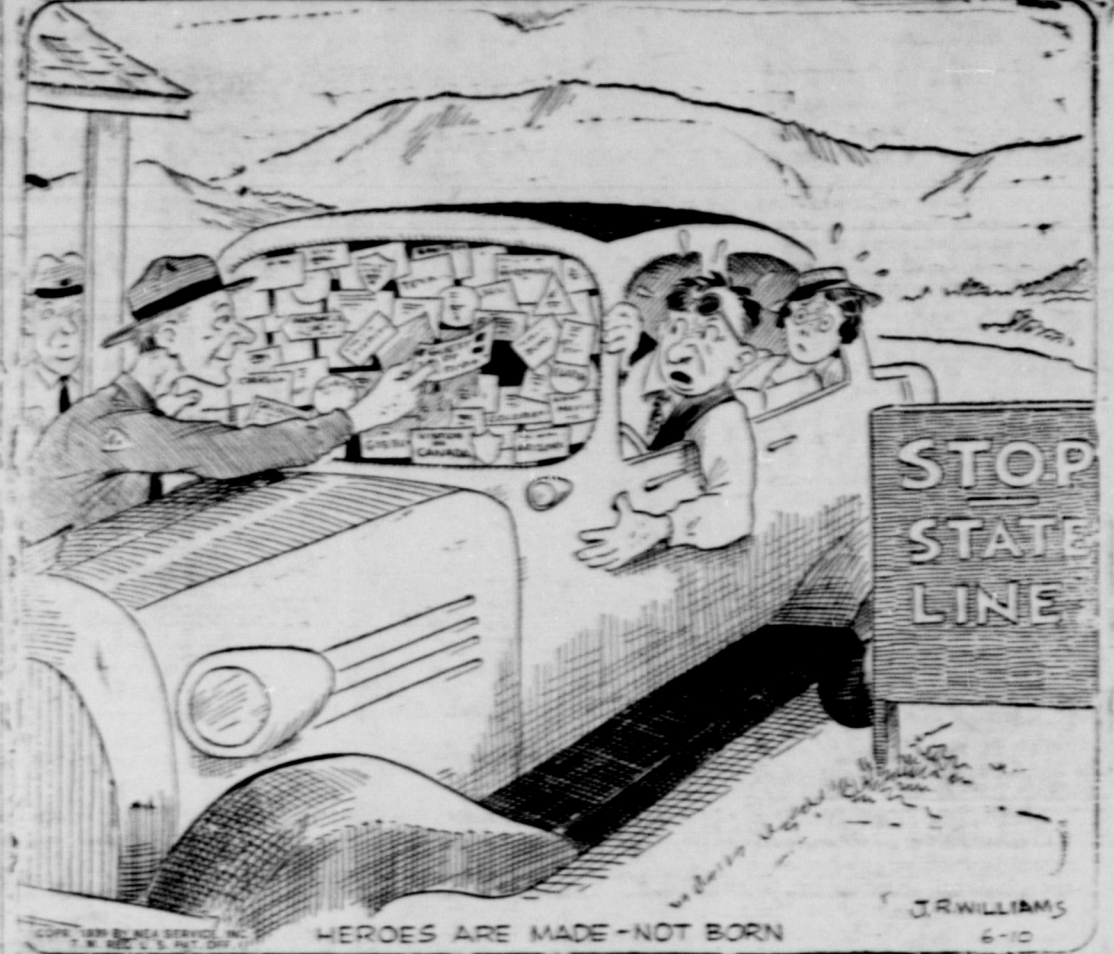

In Hollywood, Mr. Young was connected with a company which made foundation garments. He was working out a new fabric with just the right amount of stretch.

So as fast as Mr. Young kicked in with a new bit of fabric, it would immediately be made up into a foundation garment. The garment would be donned by a perfect-36 model, who would come into Mr. Young's office and do all sorts of stretches, bends, splits and what-not to test the thing thoroughly.

"For a man who is nearing 60," he remarks mildly, "all of that was a bit of a strain. They used to say, you know, that I got my gray hair because of the pious life I led. Well, perhaps it was as well."

Anyway, Mr. Young's cotton hose will be introduced to the trade in the near future. If they go over, the annual consumption of cotton will be upped by several million pounds per year.

Egg Shipments Are Double Last Years

AUSTIN, Tex.—Egg shipments from Texas poultry farms during April nearly doubled those of April last year, University of Texas business research officials said today. Interstate egg shipments totaled 79 cars last month, against 41 a year ago. Receipts of eggs from other states numbered 9 cars against 16 in April, 1933, University Bureau of Business Research reports show. Chicken shipments totaled 51 cars, against 47 in April last year, an increase of 8.5 per cent, while turkey shipments became negligible, only two cars moving, compared with 13 cars a year ago. SERIAL STORY BRIDE ON A BUDGET

BY JANET DORAN. COPYRIGHT 1934, NEA SERVICE.

CHAPTER II HIS attractive, weather-browned face was so serious, his brown eyes so intent as he figured on the back of the old envelope. Watching him, Iris felt a curious maternal pity tugging at her heart. He took all this so seriously, he was so sure that arithmetic was the solution to happiness. While almost any girl could tell you it had nothing to do with real happiness. "What you'll save on your clothes alone, will be a big start, honey," Bart said, after studying the oracle of his arithmetic sobriety. Iris said nothing. She didn't tell him that it was no saving, because she had purchased the suit for no other reason than this. And it wasn't paid for yet! "And eating at home, to say nothing of good home cooking," Bart added fervently. "Come to think of it, we've been saps to be afraid of this for so long, honey. Why, the way I figure it, we'll be money ahead, being married. No high-priced restaurant meals, no indigestion, only one place to keep up, and being together as well."

They were married at 4 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon at the gray-stone church.

"You'll take me out to dinner now and then, Bart Whitaker, or I'll step out with the professor of natural history!" He grasped her slender wrists in warm strong fingers and pulled her down close. "Dear," he said humbly, "I want you to be happy, I don't want you ever to have to worry and scrimp and do without the way other wives do. It's because I love you so, Iris, that I've been afraid. I'd be selfishness to ask you to marry me, knowing the hard road we'd have ahead."

"If you love me," Iris whispered softly. "With a smothered endearment he crushed her to him. "Dear, dearest dear," he whispered unashamedly. "You know that you know I love you, I'm half crazy with loving you. . . . Iris, why wait any longer? Why not be married now—we can have a honeymoon after school closes, and we've our vacations. Now . . . we've waited too long as it is, dear." "Of course," Iris agreed practically. "And you won't mind waiting till summer for our honeymoon, dear?" Bart tried tenderly. Against the rough wool of his coat, Iris shook her head. "Mind? She'd a hundred times rather wait until summer for a honeymoon. By then, she'd have to have new summer clothes; by then she'd have Bart persuaded out of his queer obsession against clothes money expenditure. It was just a matter of time."

The Golden Text is: "Thy righteousness is like the great mountains; thy judgments are a great deep; O Lord, thou preservest man and beast" (Psalms 36:6). Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, O Israel: The Lord our God is one Lord: And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might" (Deuteronomy 6:4, 5). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Having no other perfect Mind to guide him, the likeness of God, eternal, having that was also in Christ" (p. 17).

guess how much her suit cost, or any of her clothes for that matter, from her face. Only—well, she was glad it was dark in the theater. Some catty woman might smile sarcastically, and wince; Bart, someone might titter, after looking at the obviously expensively tailored suit. In the days that followed, Iris was beset with a hundred issues. She had to buy new lingerie, new pajamas and a chenille robe, and blouse, and some pumps and a mules. She had to have another hat. And she had to insist gently but firmly on gardenias, instead of the violets Bart wanted to give her to wear to the wedding. He gulped and tried not to show the dent this made in his careful budget. Gardenias were costly, Bart found. "You must remember a small gift for your best man, too, Bart," she reminded him. "Some nice studs, or a cigarette box, or something."

"I never thought of that, Iris." Repeatedly—as if it were quite her fault, instead of being a custom she merely reminded him of. THEY were married at 4 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon, before a few friends and the dean, while the dean's wife wept sentimentally all through the solemn little ceremony in the gray stone church at the end of Sorcery Row. And instead of returning home to the little apartment they had prepared, hastily, out of Iris's rooms, and an additional room, adjoining plus the furnishings, Bart brought from his rooms, there was the wedding supper at the Tivoli. Bart was tired from a rushed hectic day at the shop, and if he thought fleetingly of the cozy Saturday night suppers of steak, French fried potatoes, salad and shortcake, or baked beans and fixings that was their usual Saturday night feast, he said nothing. This was his wedding day, his and Iris's. And whatever Iris wanted, he wanted her to have. At the supper, Johnny Keelin, his best man, and a reporter on a small daily paper 40 miles from Linwood, had a cocktail too many and grew maudlin over Iris. "Best gal I ever had, Iris, that's what she is."

"Johnny, don't!" she said, startled, and gave her a long look she managed a smile and passed it off as nothing. "He was teasing me, something that is—said said to me, not realizing I laid the first paying shot that small fib. That out of that small to grow a thousand mighty network of them, off their happiness, do their faith, their trust in that by its very goodness, small he betrayed her unwillingness ever to know—how completely their lines of thought. ### Largest Grapefruit Crop Is Harvested

WESLACO, Texas.—The great grapefruit crop in Texas has been almost completely harvested, and growers estimate it will exceed 15,500,000 boxes.

Reported by the Growers Industrial Committee showed that 15,588 boxes had been harvested May 20, and that probably another 75,000 boxes might be unreported.

Inspectors for the U. S. Department of Agriculture carefully supervised workers stripping the last of the fruit from the trees, in order to lessen the possibility of further spread of the Mexican fruit fly.

The Growers Industrial Committee said that 7,364,461 boxes of fruit were sold as fresh fruit, that 4,417,850 were made in juice and other by-products, and that the government purchased 1,560,000 boxes for various governmental agencies. Exports to various countries, not including Canada, amounted to 103,498 boxes. Residents of the Rio Grande valley consumed 75,000 boxes of fruit locally.

Texas also had a record-breaking crop of oranges this year. Through May 20 the harvest amounted to 2,800,319 boxes, and was estimated that 10,000 boxes remained in the valley.

Orange disposal was distributed as follows: 2,514,758 boxes through commercial fresh fruit outlets, 125,000 boxes used in retail consumption, 86,400 boxes sent out by express and parcel mail, 36,911 boxes dumped as waste, 25,000 removed in private use, 12,650 used in canning and product plants, and 100 boxes donated to charitable causes.

Paul Writes Personal Letters

Text: II Timothy 1:1-6; Philemon 1-7, 21, 22

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D., Editor of Advance

IN addition to his letter to the churches Paul wrote personal letters to individuals, and some of these letters have been preserved. Outstanding among these are the two letters to Timothy, whom Paul called his son in the faith and his "beloved child."

Timothy was the son of a Greek father and a Jewish mother, whom Paul had met on his second visit to Lystra. His father's influence must have been favorable, but Paul speaks particularly of his grandmother, Lois, and his mother, Eunice, in whom with Timothy himself he says there was "unfeigned faith" in Christ. Paul evidently had no son of his own, and Timothy seems to have stood almost as near to him as if there had been blood relationship. Paul and Silas took Timothy with them when they left Lystra during their second missionary journey.

The companionship then formed, with its background of the high esteem in which Timothy was held in spite of his youth in the Christian community, continued to the end of Paul's life.

A young man of great abilities and high promise does not always fulfill his destiny. Hence it was that Paul urged Timothy very strongly to "stir up the gift of God" that was in him. The brief section of Paul's letters to Timothy found in the lesson ought to be read in connection with the entire two epistles to get the full atmosphere and effect of Paul's exhortation to his young fellow disciple.

In the letter to Philemon, Paul associates Timothy with himself as a brother, and they address Philemon as "our beloved brother and fellow worker." Philemon lived at Colossae, and he was probably a man of some wealth, for he owned slaves. The occasion of Paul's letter was a plea on behalf of a slave named Onesimus, who had run away from his master, Philemon, and had come under Paul's influence in Rome.

The letter reveals the strange and powerful influences of Christianity in contact with a society where slavery was in existence. Under the influence of his conversion Onesimus was evidently ready to return to Philemon, accepting voluntarily a servitude against which he had formerly rebelled. Would Philemon receive him as a Christian brother, or would he treat him according to the standards of the world as a runaway slave? The situation here for all of Paul's tact and strategy, and he wisely appealed to Philemon by emphasizing first of all the spirit of love and brotherhood which Christianity enjoined, and assuming that Philemon accepted such teaching and would act in accordance with it.

We do not know what was the result, but we may assume that Paul's letter had its proper effect and that Onesimus was restored to the house of Philemon, still perhaps as a slave—for the two men could not in themselves effect a change in the institution of slavery—but with a very different interrelationship and mutual attitude because of their common faith in a Master whose whole purpose was to free men from all the bonds of sin and slavery.

wire also went over the telephone line that leads to Gohmert's office, and electricians said that if anyone had picked up the telephone while the wire was on the lines, he very likely would have been killed.

Fortunately, however, the day was Sunday and nobody was in the office. A telephone company employe noticed the trouble and removed the whiskey bottle and wire.

Gold Plate Found In Mummy's Skull

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—An ambulance swerved up to the Rhode Island School of Design. The driver and two school employes placed the patient on a blanket and carried him to the X-ray room.

For the patient was Nes Min, a mummy dug up at Panopolis, Egypt, in the 1180s. The school recently acquired the mummy, which had a gold plate in its skull.

Young Composer Rewarded

Singing, composing and playing her way to collegiate fame, Miss Lois Pinson of Forney was selected the most outstanding student in the largest graduating class in the history of Texas State College for Women. The Leman Memorial Award given each year for noteworthy achievements in some particular field was presented by Dr. L. P. Hubbard at the Commencement Exercises. Miss Pinson, in addition to being the school's leading pianist and interpreter of the classic masterpieces, has composed numerous popular songs, the most successful one being "Campus Shadows," a refrain which has been featured at all the college dances and has already found a wide sale.

Laboratory Will Fight Attle Disease

FORT WORTH, Texas.—Another chapter in the Southwest's fight against livestock diseases has been started with the completion of a laboratory at Angleton, Texas, to study the mysterious and highly infectious anaplasmosis, a malady which affects cattle.

Completed at a cost of $35,000 with funds from the Public Works Administration, the new laboratory will be operated by the experiment station of Texas A. & M. College. Research workers for the first time will find adequate facilities in this area for the study of anaplasmosis and similar diseases.

The subject among veterinarians and cattlemen still waxes hot as to its cause. At first the malady was confused with the dread Texas fever, transmitted by ticks. After the notorious tick had been eradicated, however, along with piropilosis, or Texas fever, anaplasmosis remained.

Since then it has cropped out in the Gulf Coast area as well as in Colorado, Oklahoma, and other spots.

Much of the research in the new laboratory will be devoted to locating the vector—or carrier—of the disease, methods of controlling it, once it is discovered, and searching for methods of curing it after it has been contracted. The new Angleton laboratory also will be used to study other little-known diseases of cattle in the Gulf country, in locating and combating parasites, and studying nutritional deficiencies prevalent among the cattle in the area.

South Dakota To Have Anniversary

By United Press

RAPID CITY, S. D.—Biggest jewel in South Dakota's crown of rejoicing in this the 50th anniversary year of statehood promises to be the Golden Jubilee celebration which will be held on Mt. Rushmore July 2, when the face of Theodore Roosevelt will be unveiled by Cutzen Borglum in the huge and historic carvings in the Black Hills.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the president who formally started the monument in 1926, has been invited to take part in the ceremonies. William S. Hart, star of early western pictures and a native of South Dakota, will be among those present.

Borglum, who is general chairman of the observance, has announced that a pageant depicting the history of the territory and the state, is under course of preparation and will be enacted on the pine-clad mountain slope beneath the towering figures of the Shrine of Democracy where the face of Theodore Roosevelt, the only President who ever lived in South Dakota, will join the distinguished company of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln.
